CONVOY RUNS GAUNTLET WITH PLANES FOR MALTA

Duce's Cruisers Again Turn Tail And Bolt
2 Hit By Torpedoes, 2 U-Boats Sunk,
Cruiser Manchester Is Lost, Other Ships Hit

LONDON, Aug. 14—(CP).—One of the greatest sea and air battles of the Mediterranean has cost Britain the cruiser Manchester and the aircraft carrier Eagle, but resulted in delivery of reinforcements and new planes for Malta and saw Italy's cruisers again turn tail and run without getting in range of British guns, the Admiralty announced today.

Known Axis losses included two submarines sunk and two cruisers hit by torpedoes, said the Admiralty's communique which today gave the first official Allied account of the battle which had been in progress since Tuesday.

The Admiralty intimated that the convoy might have suffered further losses or damage, saying, "It is not to be expected that extensive and dangerous operations of this type, carried out in close proximity to enemy bases, can be completed without loss."

It declared, however, that published Axis claims were known to be exaggerated.

Combined German and Italian claims included: sunk, three cruisers, two destroyers, 21 merchant ships and the aircraft carrier Eagle; damaged, one battleship, two aircraft carriers, including the British aircraft carrier Furious and the United States aircraft carrier Wasp, and "numerous other steamships and men-of-war."

Originally, however, the Germans had claimed only 21 merchant ships were in the entire convoy.

With the exception of the Eagle and the Manchester, there has been no confirmation of these Axis claims from any source.

The Manchester was a 9,400-ton cruiser, completed Aug. 4, 1938. Her peacetime complement was 700 men. Besides 12 six-inch guns she carried three planes. The Admiralty disclosed that many of her crew were rescued and others may have reached French Tunisia, near where she went down.

"Can't Allow Allies To Use India"

So Japanese Threaten; Shift Philippines General To New Front

TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcasts), Aug. 14.—(AP)—Tomokazu Hori, government Information spokesman, told foreign press correspondents today that "present conditions in India are such that India is being used for Allied war purposes, and Japan cannot tolerate such a situation."

"It is a different question when and what steps Japan will take," Hori added.

The Japanese War Ministry announced today that Lt.-Gen. Masaharu Homma had been relived of his post as commander-in-chief of Japanese forces in the Philippines to permit his assignment elsewhere.

Gen. Homma's background implied a possible connection between his new, unspecified assignment and the Japanese spokesman's hints of action against India.

Homma, who speaks English fluently, was one of the few high Japanese officers ever premitted to enter India as a special attache with the British forces.

Homma was the Philippine commander whose death was reported so persistently "from various sources hitherto regarded as reliable" that Gen. Douglas MacArthur recorded these reports in a communique from the Philippines last March 8.

The Japanese denied the reports and have mentioned his activities from time to time since then.

On Their Way

OTTAWA, Aug. 14—(CP).—Defence Minister Ralston sent the nucleus of the first Canadian parachute battalion on its way for Fort Benning, Ga., today for training with the United States army with words of encouragement and praise.

"Bring back everything you can get in the way of training, information and experience, so this first parachute battalion will be the best that Canada can produce," he said. "If it is that it will be second to none in the world."

Claim Hepburn Shaping For Election

TORONTO, Aug. 14 (CP) — A Toronto evening paper said today in a dispatch from Niagara Falls, Ont., that 'indications of an impending general election in Ontario were seen by political observers here with the announcement that Premier Hepburn (of Ontario) would make speeches at Sault St. Marie, Port Arthur and Fort William late next week.

"They follow appearances of the Premier at a number of both formal and informal gatherings in recent weeks."

The paper said that "today, Mr. Hepburn for the first time in many months did not deny Ontario's electorate might go to the polls soon" and quoted him as saying at an interview:—

"Personally I see no general demand at this time for an election. but, if such evidence was available, I would not hesitate a minute in asking the people to pass judgment on the record of my government."

The paper said several members of the cabinet and many government

Strikes Ease Off But Wheat Rice Buying Drops

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

BOMBAY, India, Aug. 14—(AP).—Evidence of a quiet but troublesome boycott by the All-India Congress in its campaign for independence appeared today as rioting and terrorism died down throughout the disturbed country.

Bombay cotton mills where work was interrupted by strikes at the start of Mohandas K. Gandhi's campaign were reported working with larger shifts.

Evidence of a boycott was most pronounced in such commodity markets as rice and wheat. The markets remained open, but actual buying and selling was markedly reduced.

Such Congress leaders as remained out of jail predicted that workers leaving the riot-troubled cities would soon spread the mass non-co-operation movement in the villages.

Order prevailed in Bombay, but there were outbreaks on the other side of the Indian peninsula in the Madras area. Four persons were killed there in an attack on a railway station in which several passenger cars were burned after travellers had been evicted. Some telephone and telegraph lines were pulled down.

Some Indians and some newspapers such as the Bombay Chronicle suggested that the time had come for the government to consent to negotiate a settlement, but there was not the slightest indication of such a move in the capital of New Delhi.

Reports continued to come in of casualty totals from outbreaks in scattered sections earlier this week. An official compilation from Old Delhi said 40 persons had been killed and 55 injured in disturbances there between Tuesday and today.

Even in the most-feared evening hours yesterday Bombay remained relatively quiet and there were no reports of casualties. New Delhi, another trouble centre, also was reported quiet but tense.

With armed British security forces still patrolling and police and troops acting swiftly and firmly, however, there was some sporadic street fighting and vandalism elsewhere.

Brief Fall Weeks May Decide Issue

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The outstanding development among the big events which are boiling up in all parts of the war-torn Globe is acquisition finally by the United States of the strength to assume the offensive in widely separated theatres.

This eagerly awaited moment arrives as the war is rushing to the peak of the crisis in what may easily be the decisive year. The ultimate outcome of the conflict may well depend on what happens in the few remaining weeks before winter throws a barrier in front of the on-rushing Hitlerites.

Every ounce of fighting strength which the Allies can produce right now is worth a hundred-weight six months hence.

Further indication of the increasing power of the United States fighter planes are for the first time operating on a large scale against the Huns in Western Europe. These forces are striking from bases in Britain.

Meantime American marines, backed by Allied warships and aircraft, are in the midst of a daring offensive against the Japs in the Solomon Islands, and at latest reports were getting ahead with the job of wresting highly important strategic points from the enemy in the Tulagi zone.

Big United States bombers are making fierce war against the Axis in the Mediterranean area, and far afield in China are hammering the Japs. Up among the fog-shrouded Aleutians a Naval force has been

Need 1,200,000,000 In Year No Prate Of Sacrifices

SASKATOON, Aug. 14—(CP.)—Canadians must invest $1,200,000,000 in war bonds within the next 12 months but this goal will not be realized "unless we as individual citizens of a nation fighting for our life understand better than we do to-day the full and awful significance of the issues which are at stake," G. H. Lash, Ottawa, Director of Public Information, said today.

"Why do I say that we shall to raise this loan unless we change our attitude?" Mr. Lash asked in an address prepared for delivery to the 23rd annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Associations.

"Within the past two weeks I have talked to nearly 100 people about the forthcoming loan and what is expected of them. They are people who live in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg and some are residents of smaller communities scattered far and wide across the land.

"Without exception, they have said to me, they cannot do it. They are making all the sacrifices they can possibly make already.

"Sacrifices? Do not let us prostitute the symbolism and the beauty of that word. Sacrifice is a saintly, God-given word reserved for the men and women who have made a free-will offering of their lives upon the altar of freedom.

"Who are we, in this lush and lavish land to prate of sacrifice because we have to go without a new coat this winter; give up membership in a club or two; eat less expensive meals; cut down on our liquor; walk instead of ride to work; move to a cheaper apartment; humble our pride by taking in boarders; labor a little harder ourselves to save acquiring extra help? If these things be sacrifice then what is this hallowed thing that others are doing upon te battlefronts of the world where our fight is being fought so that this land may remain unspoiled?"

"The answer will be given in October. I hope and pray that to the glory of this nation, to the memory of our sons who have fallen and to the honor of those who still must die before this war is won, the people of Canada will say, no matter what the price of freedom be, we shall pay it."

Dealing with the manpower problem, Mr. Lash said many women are insensible to their wartime duty. "The women of whom I speak are those who, when offered jobs in vital war industry, refuse to consider them unless they are jobs at which they will not soil their hands or in which they will be placed in authority over others.

"National selective service officers from whom I get this information tell me that this condition is becoming more pronounced daily, especially in the highly industrialized sections of eastern Canada. I am glad to say that they report an almost complete absence of such snobbery west of the Great Lakes."

He closed with these words: "No Canadian deserves victory who is unwilling to give to victory the same full measure of his means and labor which he will be forced to give the enemy in defeat."

Torpedo Bombers Blitz Hun Convoy

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, Aug. 14 —(CP)—Torpedo hits on two ships in a strongly protected Axis convoy off the enemy coast were reported by a Canadian torpedo-bomber squadron after a moonlight attack that was described as a "considerable success."

The attack was led by Sqdn Ldr. W. W. Bean of Kitchener, Ont., who flew so low that at one time he was below the level of the deck of the ship into which he tossed his torpedo. Flt. Lt. A. Gus Hobbs of Calgary was also sure a torpedo he fired found its mark in an enemy vessel.

Bean, a flight commander, said the convoy was clearly visible in the moonpath.

"We stooged around for some time sizing up the situation and waiting for our time to attack," he said. "When we got a ship in a position favorable for our method of striking we came down low and made our run. Apparently the Hun didn't see us coming for we met little opposition coming in. There was a flash when the torpedo hit.

"After dropping our 'torp,' I put the aircraft down to about five or 10 feet above the water. We attacked at right angles to the convoy's line and after making our attack we swung through the convoy between two ships. We were so close that the gunners could clearly see the bridge. We were below deck level at one time."

After the aircraft turned away the flak came out in a steady stream, converging in the water just ahead of the Canadian bomber. Bean took evasive action and got out without being hit.

27-Ouncer Holds Own At Timmins

TIMMINS, Ont., Aug. 14—(CP).—The smallest infant ever to survive more than a few hours birth in Timmins, was still alive today and given an even chance of living to become a normal, healthy child.

The tiny girl, born Tuesday to Mr. and Mrs. Philbert Gosselin, weighed one pound, 11 ounces at birth and has since been kept in an incubaor in hospital here.

Dr. M. L. Minthorn, attending physician, said the infant was "doing very well."

"Her color is better and she is holding her own in weight," he said. "If she can live two more days, I don't think we will have anything to worry about."

The child was one of a set of twins. The other infant, weighing little more than a pound, survived only a few hours. The baby's father is a member of the Canadian (Active) army, attached to the paymaster's staff of a unit at Simcoe, Ont.

800 Nazi Seamen Brought To Canadian Camps

OTTAWA, Aug. 14—(CP).—Seized with their ships in Far Eastern ports, a group of almost 800 Nazi merchant seamen have been landed in Canada and placed in internment camps in the interior after a tense but uneventful voyage from the tropics.

The seafarers, interned in India for periods ranging up to 2¼ years, were classed as prisoners of war when they arrived in the Dominion. Originally, their status had been that of enemy aliens.

Though the troopship guards said the prisoners were well-behaved on the voyage, one said the guards felt "as though we were sitting on a powder keg." Had the Nazis been able to overpower the watchers, they would have been able to take over operation of the ship, for they included all classes of seamen.

The Germans' ships were seized at eastern ports right after the outbreak of war in 1939. The ports were in India and Burma, the Netherlands East Indies, Eritrea, as well as Singapore and Australia.

Russians Stone Wall Before Stalingrad Gain West Of Moscow

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Aug. 14—(AP).—The Red Army held stoutly on the approaches to Stalingrad today and claimed impressive successes northwest of Moscow, but the Soviet information bureau acknowledged that Russia troops in the Caucasus had fallen back before Nazi columns driving toward the Black Sea port of Novorossisk and the Grozny oil fields.

Germany's armored legions in their drive to the area of Mineralyne Vody, 50 miles east of Cherkessk, have come within sight of Mount El Bruz, 18,465-foot ice-clad double peak in the Caucasus mountains.

The fighting is in the plains country on the northern side of the great Caucasian range, a terrain suited for tanks.

The bureau's noon communique reported that Russian artillery, pounding away at steadily-attacking German forces on the flanks of the Stalingrad front, had knocked out more than 100 enemy tanks, 35 armored cars and 350 trucks.

Northwest of Moscow the Russians said they had slain 3,000 Germans in two days of fierce fighting, during which they captured an unidentified place which the Nazis had held for more than a year.

11 Counters Fail

Red Star, Soviet army organ, said the Germans had counter-attacked 11 times in an unsuccessful attempt to recapture the point, situated on the shore of a lake (perhaps Lake Ilmen).

The same source reported that the 7th Dutch Volunteer Legion, composed mostly of Dutch Nazis, had made its appearance on the Leningrad front further to the northwest. The unit was fighting in June on the Volkhov front and then numbered about 4,000 men, but now totals barely 1,900, Red Star said.

Indications that the Germans were trying to reinforce their positions northwest of Moscow by air to meet the sudden Russian offensive threat were seen in the reports that Soviet fliers had attacked a fleet of 20 big German transport planes escorted by three fighters, bringing

Riddled Raider Stays To Bomb 2 Bring It Home

LONDON, Aug. 14 (CP Cable)—The courage of two young Canadian fliers was praised today by the R.C.A.F. in its report of their return flight from Duisburg which it described as "one of the most remarkable exploits in the recent history of the air force."

The youngsters, with the same surname but unrelated, were Sgt. Pilot Ronald G. Bell of Victoria and Sgt. Observer John K. Bell of Westmount, Que., members of an R.C.A.F. Hampden bomber squadron commanded by Wing Cmdr. John Twigg of Ottawa.

The pilot went on to bomb the target after the aircraft was riddled with shellfire from a Nazi fighter, after which the observer operated the pilot's rudderbar with his hands, at the same time charting a homeward course.

Navy Seizure To End Plant Strike

BAYONNE, N.J., Aug. 14—(AP)—The United States Navy today seized the strike-bound Bayonne plant of the General Cable Corporation and announced it would reopen the factory this afternoon.

"Any interference with the operation of this plant is an offence against the United States," said the notice of seizure posted by Rear Admiral Harold G. Bowen.

A Navy spokesman said, however, there were no present intentions of bringing in sailors or soldiers to enforce the order because compliance appeared a foregone conclusion.

The 1,000 workers whose unauthorized walkout tied up production of cable for Army and Navy uses had welcomed a presidential order for seizure of the plant and predicted they would return after a meeting to vote the end of the strike. They had defied plant management, union executives and the War Labor Board in their demand for a wage increase.

Admiral Bowen assumed management of the plant.

President Roosevelt yesterday gave the order to take over after the strikers, estimated at 1,000 by their leader, voted to continue the walkout they started Monday night.

Admiral Bowen, former chief of Navy's Bureau of Engineering, took charge of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company at Kearny, N.J., when the Navy seized it and operated it for 134 days last year before returning it to private management.

"The workers will be happy to go back to work for the government," said Strike Chairman Michael Petraikian, adding that the strikers would "work like hell to make up for the time lost and get behind the President. If it's for Uncle Sam, let him name the terms."

Slaughter Feared Over Rail Sabotage

LONDON, Aug. 14—(CP).—Nazi broadcasts repeated today threats of death as reprisal against Netherlands hostages unless railway saboteurs in the occupied Netherlands surrendered by midnight tonight and fear was expressed by Netherlands government sources here that a "terrible slaughter" is impending.

(Tass, Soviet news agency, reported from Geneva last night that Hermann Goering had ordered German agents in occupied countries to stage "a resolute and merciless struggle against all attempts at revolt.")

The Germans were said to hold 1,600 hostages.

Even as the deadline drew near there were new reports of continued sabotage. The Germans announced that four persons were arrested in an attempt to blow up a Nazi-controlled radio station.

A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm, said Gen. Friedrich Christiansen, Nazi commander in the Netherlands, declared that explosives found on those arrested were of "foreign origin." He was quoted as threatening reprisal against hostages throughout the district.

None of the Nazi broadcasts heard here specified the number of hostages whose lives would be forfeited if the saboteurs who wrecked a Netherlands train a week ago failed to surrender.

An undisclosed number of German troops were killed in the wreck.

A Netherlands spokesman expressed the fear that the number of hostages condemned might be increased as a result of the latest attempt against the radio station, but added: "We at least see that the people are not broken in spirit."

The nationality of the persons said to have attempted to wreck the MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ont., Aug. 14 (CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. J. R. M. Boothby, D.F.C., 25-year-old member of the Royal Air Force stationed at the bombing and gunnery school here, said in an interview today he would "happily machine-gun every German, in the knowledge that the world then would be a better place."

After witnessing Nazi atrocities in Belgium, France, Poland and the Netherlands, Sqdn. Ldr. Boothby thought he had good reason to believe, "killing Germans is the only justifiable blood-shedding business in the world today."

BATTLE OF SOLOMONS SPREADS FIRE OVER VAST ISLAND AREA

Allies Catch Jap Aid In Convoys

By MURLIN SPENCER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Aug. 14—(AP)—The Battle of the Solomon Islands exploded over a broadening area of of the South Seas to-day, with Allied bombers blasting away at Japanese warships and transports apparently trying to reinforce garrisons hurled out of three coastal areas by United States Marines.

Allied flying fortresses and medium bombers caught the enemy vessels in New Guinea waters west of the Solomons yesterday and drove home three separate attacks, a headquarters communique reported. Bad weather prevented the pilots from observing the full extent of the damage.

News of the land fighting still was meagre as the battle of the Solomons entered its second week, and a United States Navy communique said only that operations were continuing.

There was every indication, nevertheless, that this first Allied offensive of the war now had grown into a clash of major proportions and one which might alter the course of the Pacific struggle.

(The Japanese reported—without confirmation from any Allied source—that their forces in the Solomons action had sunk 13 British and American cruisers, nine destroyers, 10 transports and three submarines; had damaged one cruiser, three destroyers and one transport; and shot down 58 planes. Japanese losses were given as two cruisers slightly damaged and 21 planes lost. It was announced last Monday that Allied losses then included a cruiser sunk and two cruisers, two destroyers and a transport damaged.

Like the Rest

(Tokyo's claims recalled its extravagant reports of Allied losses in the Coral Sea and Midway battles, which bore no resemblance to the facts. Both of those battles resulted in Japanese defeats.)

The headquarters communique said that during the first of yesterday's attacks on the Japanese ships off New Guinea, six Japanese Zero fighters challenged a flight of flying fortresses and that two enemy craft were shot down and three damaged.

Seven Zeros engaged medium bombers in the second attack and one enemy fighter was destroyed. The third Allied attack was carried out without interference.

All Allied planes returned to their bases.

Heretofore the attacks have been for the most part on the port installations and airdromes, but with

N.S., wireless operator and air gunner, was wounded in the scalp by a shell splinter and other splinters gashed his face and right hand.

He was temporarily blinded by blood streaming into his eyes and was stunned for a short time.

The bomber was attacked by a Nazi night fighter as it entered the target area and in the words of Pilot Bell, "That Jerry didn't waste a single shot."

A large hole was ripped in the elevators and another at the juncture of the tail of the plane with the fuselage. The port side of the fuselage was slashed from the tail to the nose and the port wing and gas tank punctured.

A General Mess

One shell gouged a big hole just behind the pilot and another wounded the wireless operator while a third damaged one of the bomber's machine-guns. The hydraulics and radio telephone were useless and the intercommunication system crippled.

"The enemy didn't return to the attack," said the R.C.A.F. account, "but left the bomber so badly battered that most crews would have turned home with a clear conscience."

Instead, the crew made another run over the target, dropped their load and only then began to think about home. But more trouble was ahead. Ten minutes later there was an explosion in the port engine which then quit and the bomber went into a spin for some 1,000 precious feet before the pilot could pull it out and head for sea for the Netherlands.

They prepared to bail out as the faltering bomber went into more spins but each time Pilot Bell regained control.

"By this time," he said later, "my legs had become so tired that I could no longer operate my rudder-bar and my observer grabbed it with his hands and moved it at my direction. At the same time he managed somehow to work out our course and we were mighty glad to see the flarepath of an airdrome when we finally reached England."

As a final bit of courage and judgment, R.C.A.F. headquarters said, the pilot, faced with necessity of crash-landing on a strange field, carefully chose a spot clear of the flarepath so he would not block it for other aircraft.

Murray was taken to hospital where it was found his wounds were not serious.

Now this doesn't mean that the United States has come into full strength or anything like it. But it does mean that it finally has the ball rolling.

The diversity of these operations, which literally circle the world, emphasize the fact that this is a global war in the full meaning of the term. It shows us how impossible it is to dissociate any one theatre from the rest. It makes it plain that all these widely separated operations are in reality closely related.

Look at all the "fronts" there are. There's the Russian theatre, the Anglo-American air offensive in Western Europe, the nasty battle of the Atlantic, the battle of the Mediterranean, the battle for Egypt, the Sino-Jap conflict, the battle of the southwest Pacific, the battle for the Aleutians. What happens in any one of these zones affects all the others.

Thus we see that when we start to talk about opening up a "second front," there are many places in which it could be useful. The drive against the vital Jap bases in the Solomons, for instance, if successful, may prove to be a most important "second front" by creating a diversion to keep the Nipponese from attacking Russia in Siberia. The Solomon Island offensive also is a "second front" for hard-pressed China.

When we look at the position from this standpoint it becomes clear how foolish it is for the general public in the Allied countries to take unto themselves the prerogatives of the Allied high command and insist that a "second front" be established in Western Europe or any other theatre. The establishment of a "second front" must depend on the pressure of the moment and on Allied ability to meet the emergency.

Baltimore Girl MakesRecording

ROSENEATH, Aug. 14 (ENS) — Features of the W.M.S. meeting held on Wednesday afternoon were an article recording an interview between Rev. G. A. Sisco of Toronto, secretary of general council of the United church, and Miss Mary Haig, missionary at large in Bona Vista, Presbytery, Newfoundland. Miss Haig, a Baltimore girl, served fifteen years as missionary to Japan, was recalled previous to hostilities with that country and transferred to Newfoundland. In the interview Miss Haig outlined her many duties consisting of preaching, visiting, organizing, and social work, and said one of the problems was the lack of local leadership in the church. Mrs. M. Davey outlined the story.

Another feature was a talk by Mrs. A. J. Campbell on Peace and Temperance, and an article contributed by Mrs. D. Brisbin presented the need for missionary offerings, that full preparation may be made to carry on after the war in home and foreign missions, and to meet present day needs, was the third feature.

The meeting was held in Mrs. Andrew Brown's home, and Mrs. A. Halstead, second vice-president, was in charge. Mrs. R. Crego, treasurer, reported $9.55 received from the summer meeting.

There were readings by Mrs. Andrew Brown, Mrs. R. Crego and Miss Gwen Varcoe.

Canada Protests Jap Failure To List Canucks

OTTAWA, Aug. 14 —(CP)— The Canadian government has sent a protest to the government of Japan through the International Red Cross at the failure of the Japanese to provide a list of the names of Canadian soldiers and civilians interned at Hong Kong, it was stated at the Department of External Affairs today.

The Canadian government had expected the long-delayed list would be sent on board the diplomatic exchange ship Gripsholm which is bringing home Canadian and American diplomatic and other officials from Japan and Japanese-occupied territories.

The Canadian protest is to back up a British protest lodged through the government of Switzerland, which is the protecting power for British interests in Japan.

The Gripsholm is due in New York in about 10 days or two weeks and it is possible the Canadians on board will be moved directly from the ship to a train for Montreal.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 14 — (CP) — Names of six airmen killed early Wednesday in the crash of two Royal Canadian Air Force planes following a mid-air collision near Armstrong, in Northwestern Ontario, were announced today by No. 2 Air Training Command. The planes crashed after refuelling at Armstrong on a Winnipeg-Ottawa flight.

The pilots were PO. A. J. LaBella of Tuxedo, Man., whose next-of-kin is his wife, Mrs. A. J. Labella; and Sgt. J. H. Kirby whose next-of-kin is his mother, Mrs. Jennie Kirby, of 103 Alice St., Oshawa, Ont.

Sqdn. Ldr. Boothby said German airmen always attacked and machine-gunned British pilots who were forced to "bale out."

"Dozens have been kiled in this way," he added.

They Got Milk

PATERSON, N.J., Aug. 14.—(AP).—Officials of the Wright Aeronauptical Corporation said yesterday about 50 men employed in one of their five plants in this area stopped work for a short time because they didn't get their milk.

Girls who push cartloads of bottled milk to a vending machine, had complained to the management that some workmen grabbed bottles and annoyed the cart-pushers, the plant officials said, and it was decided to discontinue the service.

After the men had been idle for about 15 minutes in protest, the milk was delivered to the vending machine—the company did not say by whom—and work was resumed.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Aug. 14 (CP) — Reports that dates for the 1943 Canadian Open have been set and that the tournament will be held in Montreal are premature...B. L. Anderson, secretary of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, told Snapshots a Montreal proposition is before the R.C.G.A. tournament committee but won't be made definite, or discarded, until the end of this year.

The irony of it all Dept.

Alf (Vancouver Sun) Cottrell comes up with a late but good story on the Canadian Derby (Maginot Line first, Ten to Ace last.) It goes thusly: When Jockey Scotty Craigmyle was parading Maginot Line before the Derby, he passed C. W. Smith on Ten to Ace, leaned over and asked if Smith would like to split stakes. Smith laughed heartily. The race began, Ten to Ace took a 20-length lead, then faltered. When Maginot Line swept by in the van of the field, Craigmyle bellowed at Smith: "How about splitting stakes now eh Jock?" Cottrell didn't identify definitely the noise Smith made at this juncture, but it definitely wasn't another peal of laughter.

Incidentally:

The Manitoba Golf Association has made its open tournament entry-free to servicemen...Interesting to see that Don Penniston, Quebec Aces coach, has applied for enlistment as an R.C.A.F. athletic instructor...After all, with that overflower of player talent the Air Force will need a coach here and there... Lumber Industry Headaches NamedByDealer

The headaches of the lumber business were the things under discussion at the Kiwanis Club, Friday, as Harold Scott chalked up the problems of another industry affected by the war, in a clear cut and interesting manner.

He pointed out that the powers-that-be considered the lumbering industry as important as every other war effort and backed his statement up with a quotation from Donald Nelson which said that "lumber is a critical material and logging and lumber manufacture are just as important as the construction of ships, planes and gliders."

"Timber control was organized at the time of the collapse of France. It was set up in July, 1940, to supply material for airports and hangars, and its duties were extended till today it administers prices, both wholesale and retail. Price control legislation came down in May, 1941, freezing prices as at April 1. This caused wild confusion because some dealers had not kept abroad of market conditions and because they had a fair stock in the fall did not see the necessity of advancing their retail prices, even if the wholesale market had advanced. We had cases where in some towns there were retail prices in effect in some yards, below replacement prices, yet legally they could do nothing about it.

"There are in Canada over 2,200 retail yards and committees were formed in the different districts to survey retail prices and prepare price lists. These were submitted to Ottawa and when approved became the list for that district. There are about 60 of these district zones in effect today. Their value lies in the fact that they even off prices and serve as a protection to the public against any rise in prices. The district in which Peterborough is situated is called the Trent Valley, and extends from Belleville to Oshawa, north to near Barrie taking in Haliburton County.

Green Stock

"Normally there is carried over each fall," the speaker continued, "sufficient one-year-old stock to handle the deman till the middle of the next season. By that time the lumber sawn the early part of the previous year is ready to use. However, the huge volume required in the fal of 1940 and 1941 used up the reserve dry stocks, making us dependent on fresh sawn stocks. It is too expensive to kiln dry softwood lumber, so it has been quite a problem to supply the trade with dry lumber. Ordinarily we can get a carload within a week to ten days, now it takes from three to six weeks. One of the biggest white pine distributors in Canada has not had his sales representatives out for a year, and has refused all new accounts.

"During the last few years, plywood has become quite a factor in our building industry and within the last few months the British and Canadian governments have taken over the total production of the veneer mills. Very recenly, Mr. McNicol, assistant timber controller, said that plywood was entirely off the civilian market. After educating the public to the advantages of this wood it is necessary now to supply a substitute.

"Modern civilization demands oak floors at least in the living and dining rooms. Oak flooring is made out of a soft textured Tennessee oak and was looked on as a luxury a year ago last December. Since it requires American funds to buy, February, 1941, saw the last oak in Canada. True there is Canadian oak, but it is firmer and harder and two out of three nails bend when you try to nail it up," Mr. Scott concluded.

St. Nazaire Raid Bir Hakeim Bolster French

Written for The Canadian Press by a French newspaperman with a family in France

LONDON, Aug. 14. —(CP)— St. Nazaire, where inhabitants gave armed help to British Commandos, Bir Hakeim, where French fighters put up a magnificent resistance, and Laval, by his reinstatement in power through undoubted German influence, have done more than anything else to boost the stock of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and the French National Committee in London.

These events have brought to a sudden end intrigues in Britain and the United States against the leader of the fighting French.

The British public knew little or nothing of the intrigues that assailed Gen. de Gaulle and the National Committee. For the man-in-the-street Gen. de Gaulle was, after all, the Frenchman who broadcast the thrilling appeal to his countrymen to join him and keep France in the fight.

Gen. de Gaulle is a Republican and has never ceased to declare that he and the National Committee are guided entirely by the laws of the Third Republic. Every decision made is in strict accordance with the Emergency Law of July 11, 1938, on the organization of the nation in time of war (declaration of Professor Cassin, National Commissioner for Justice and Public Instruction before the foreign Press Association in London July 22).

The head of a movement which started with two followers and the use of the BBC London microphone when France collapsed, De Gaulle did give an outside spectator an impression of reluctance to take a hand in the political organization of the movement. It was as though he were the soldier waiting for some other representative Frenchman to attend to the non-military side.

He was, at the beginning, surrounded hardly by what one could call an elite. But one could not fail to perceive that once the military side of the movement was organized the quality of his political collaborators improved. Their only disadvantage was that they were not men universally known in French politics before the war. But this was at the same time an advantage, as none suffered from a dubious political past.

Sincere In their Task

If at times they have been accused of being amateurish in some points requiring subleties of diplomacy, they have won esteem in London because of their integrity.

Gen. de Gaulle is reported to have said: "If there is any man serving me who expects to gain personal advantage in France after the war because of it, he is making a big mistake."

The acceptance of a post in the French National Committee by Andre Philip, who once played an important role in organizing and coordinating the efforts of the numerous secret societies inside France, has given proof that Gen. de Gaulle and the National Committee are accepted and recognized as the real representative of France, Not only by Frenchmen abroad, but by the French in the homeland.

The growing prestige of the fighting French has been obvious to the most casual observer. Although July 14 was a working day, Londoners turned out in their thousands '—ranks five deep on both side of Birdcage Walk—to cheer the Fighting French contingents of soldiers, commandos, sailors, airmen and A.T.S. as they marched out of Wellington barracks.

Motorist Jailed Claims Cell Was Cold

COBOURG, Aug. 14—First the magistrate and then the provincial police were requested in vain by defense counsel to disregard temporarily suspension of a driver's license after Howard Troke of 465 Salmon avenue, East York, appeared in Traffic court yesterday.

T. F. Hall, K.C., appeared for the accused. Troke was charged with dangerous driving and with speeding, being fined $15 and costs on each charge. The accused was arrested on the night of August 7, Yellerton township, by Provincial Constable William Thompson of Bowmanville.

Constable Thompson testified that Troke was doing about 50 to 55 miles per hour and was going from one side of the highway to the other, at one time almost forcing the constable off the road. Crown Attorney Harry Deyman pointed out that Troke appeared to have been drinking but was not intoxicated.

"Your license is suspended for one month" the magistrate told the accused.

"Can my client drive his car back to Toronto, there is no use of his having to pay storage for his car for a month here" asked Mr. Hall.

License Suspended

"I have ordered his license suspended for one month. I cannot give him permission to drive his car back to Toronto. He can have someone else drive it back" ruled the magistrate.

"My client is entitled to some consideration in this matter. When he was arrested he spent the night in Bowmanville jail. All he had was his clothes he was wearing. It was cold and he had no blankets. That is certainly no way for a man to be treated," observed Mr. Hall.

"The fact is that his license is suspended for one month. It must be obvious that I have no authority in the face of that to tell this man that he can still drive his car back to Toronto. I can't prevent him from driving it, but if he does he renders himself liable," stated the magistrate.

Mr. Hall turned towards Provincial Constable Thompson 'I would ask the police then if they would let Mr. Troke drive his car just to Toronto, surely it is not too much to ask," suggested Mr. Hall..

I cannot undertake to do that" replied the constable.

I'm pretty sure that the officer would not charge him with an offence under the circumstances, he just wants to get his car to Toronto," commented Mr. Hall.

I am not going to say he can do that. When he leaves this court he is on his own," insisted Constable Thompson.

Any objection you have to the Bowmanville jail is something for the town council of that centre to deal with" stated the magistrate.

Wakely was thrown out by Hoy, and Foote went to second. Len Wakely was hit and Hagerman singled to right to score Foote. The Grill scored three in the second inning, when Macleod was hit by Woods. F. "At no time in the history of the world has mankind been faced with issues of such gravity and magnitude as those of to-day. I cannot too sincerely express the hope that in the consideration of the problems of fundamental importance which are set forth in the agenda of the convention its members may find much inspiration in guiding the thought of their fellow Canadians."

Nickle Wonders If Chaloult Out To Cut Ties

KINGSTON, Aug. 14. — Before more than 250 delegates attending the forty-fourth annual banquet of the Sons of England, Major M. W. Nickle, M.C., K.C., last night stressed the fact that every loyal Canadian from coast to coast exercise his rights under the Constitution and to take as his policy "There shall always be an England."

Major Nickle said in part: "I read in Thursday's newspaper in a despatch from Montreal that Rene Chaloult made a speech in which he said what is needed in this country is 'a Government of patriots able to enforce resolutely, although not in any provocative way, a French-Canadian policy which would not hesitate to rid us of foreign trusts that have been enslaving us.'

"Does the speaker mean we sever our connection with the English people?

"Does the speaker mean the discontinuation of our being a constitutional part of the British Empire?

"Does the speaker mean the good feeling which exists between Canada and the United States must be disrupted?

"If so, then before such a movement can take root it is the duty of every loyal Canadian from the Atlantic to the Pacific to exercise his rights under our constitution and to take and to have as his policy that which I am prepared to accept —there shall always be an England, and England shall be free."

Major Nickle pointed out that one of the prime objects of the Sons of England was the making and strengthening of the British constitution by fostering and publicizing the proud tradition of the Motherland and to inculcate loyalty to the flag and respect for law and established authority.

He referred to the growth of British rights from the time of the Magna Carta at Runnymede in 1215 and the bill known as the Petition of Rights, 1628.

Major Nickle spoke of the democratic governments that has been established by Britons and he said that Canadians should forget petty criticism of the Government's war effort, "which impedes progress and our main war effort. Believing in democracy, I believe we should support the administration and aid the captain and his crew of the Canadian Ship of State in her rough and troubled passage through the sea of war until we successfully reach the harbor of peace, contentment and prosperity, all of which fine principles can only hope to be handed down to our children by us, as others have done to us."

Serious Charge

COBOURG, Aug. 14—(ENS). — John Morrison, former car ferry employee here, was sentenced to 18 months definite and six months indefinite when he appeared for sentence yesterday on a charge of carnally knowing a girl who was mentally unbalanced. He was arrested by local police some time ago following the complaint of the grandmother of the girl.

13 CHILDREN—BUT NO WRINKLES

What a rarity!—a woman with a large family and an unlined face! Read this letter she has written:—

"I am a woman of 50, have a family of 13 children, and have not a wrinkle on my face. Some time ago I passed through a very severe illness, and resolved to try Kruschen Salts, and am a new woman since taking them. I have taken Kruschen for twelve months—not a small dose, but half-a-teaspoonful every morning in a cup of hot water. I think Kruschen gives you a feeling of buoyancy and youth that nothing else does."—(Mrs.) E. T.

Many minor illnesses, depression and worry—which are the chief causes of wrinkles—are frequently due to the presence in the system of poisons bred by the waste products of digestion. These poisons are the root cause of rheumatic pains, headaches, kidney trouble and other complaints, which make people old before their time. Kruschen helps to expel those poisons and keep the blood-stream pure. And a rich supply of pure, vigorous blood is one of the secrets of youthful vitality.

No Christmas Curb

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 (AP) — Despite the transportation problem in the United States there won't be any government restrictions on Christmas packages next Yuletide, nor on Christmas Cards. That was the answer of the office of Defence Transportation yesterday when government agencies were asked whether carloads of Christmas mail still would be permitted to roll across the country as in the days when munitions and airplane parts weren't competing for space.

A Blackguard

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Aug. 14—(AP)—Police have orders to shoot on sight the impudent blackguard who has been: loosening clothespins and then tracking over the fallen wash; breaking holes in shingle roofs; raiding gardens; answering reprimands with a raucous infuriating sound; and attacking all who molest him. Women of the neighborhood said the rascal is a pet crow, left by a family that moved away.

The Pacific Offensive

Although information about the offensive against the Solomon Islands is still scanty a few things are clear from what we know. The first, and most important, is that the Allies have taken the offensive; American troops and naval units, collaborating with other forces from Australia, have attacked Japanese strongholds and have had at least some success in dislodging the enemy. This is good news indeed; we have been hoping for many months for this moment, when the United Nations would choose their ground and their time, and make the foe fight on their terms. Now that time has come, and it is wonderfully inspiriting. We must not look for prodigies in the Southern Pacific; we may sustain a defeat there and we shall certainly have serious losses, but we have made a beginning, and that is the important thing.

The second fact which appears out of the vagueness which hangs over this particular action is that the Allies have chosen the ground for their offensive with great wisdom. If we regain some of the Solomons we shall be in a position to threaten the Japanees hold on all the islands of the Southern Pacific. Of course we shall not be able to do so without great forces, great effort and a lot of luck, but at least we shall be a threat to the enemy, instead of being threatened by him. The Japanese know the value of the Solomons, and that is why they are fighting so violently to retain their hold on them. The extent of Japanese concern over a battle may be gauged by the size of the losses which they attribute to our forces. Already the Japs have declared that twenty-eight American ships have been sunk or put out of action; observers who are well-informed about American Pacific strength regard this claim as ludicrous; half that loss would be more than the Allies could afford to pay for the prize they seek. When the Japs begin to lie on this heroic scale they must be worried.

Their worry would be justified by the third point which this Solomon expedition makes clear. That is that the Allies have an offensive scheme, and that the seizure of some of the Solomons—particularly Florida island, which has the magnificent harbor of Tulagi—is the first move to put it into action. The Japs have suffered serious naval defeats at Midway and in the Coral Sea, and though they are still very strong they might be beaten by brilliant strategy. It is an axiom of war that an enemy is more easily beaten when his forces are divided, and the fact that the Jap forces are spread over many islands divides them effectually.

We should hear the outcome of the battle for the Solomons before long. If it is won by the Allied forces, it may mark the beginning of a long, complex campaign by sea, land and air to undermine Japanese power in the Pacific islands and to drive them out. If the offensive is not a success it will at least have staved off an attack against northern and eastern Australia. But the sober and confident tone of such news as we have had from the Solomons gives us hope that we may hear of a victory which will be the beginning of the end of Jap domination in the Pacific.

Parliament And The CBC

We do not understand the attitude of those newspapers which have been complaining that Parliament is continually flouted and neglected, but who are seemingly anxious to flout and neglect the recommendations of the Parliamentary committee which recently investigated the matter of broadcasting in Canada and particularly the organization of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. We believe that the committee was thoroughly competent, that it did its job thoroughly, and that its recommendations should be heeded. The sittings of that committee doubtless cost the people of this country a tidy sum of money; if the committee's recommendations are to be neglected, and the CBC cobbled up in a manner agreeable to its friends, it will be no time at all before the Corporation is in a mess again.

It appears from the Parliamentary report, and from what is observable by any intelligent radio listener, that the CBC is in an unsatisfactory condition from top to bottom, and the place to begin the reformation is at the top. We have suggested that the Board of Governors resign their posts; of the ten members two might be asked to resume their duties on a new Board. Much of the present dissatisfaction with the CBC is the result of the light way in which these gentlemen have taken their duties; they are the Colonel Blimps of the broadcasting world.

The Parliamentary committee advised that some other post be found for Major Gladstone Murray, now General Manager of the Corporation; well-meaning friends of Major Murray's have urged that nothing of the kind be done. This is sheer nonsense; has the Parliamentary committee deliberated upon this matter merely to have its views brushed aside? There is no question of "getting" Major Murray; these pleas that he be kept on after a committee of the people's representatives have specifically advised that he be released from his present duties add nothing to that gentleman's dignity in the eyes of the people of Canada, whose servant he is. It is unworthy also to pretend, as one influential paper has done, that the only alternative to Major Murray is Dr. Augustin Frigon, his assistant. Of course Dr. Frigon would not do, and no one would seriously consider him for the post of General Manager. And let no one say that there is no other man in Canada who could fill the job for we have already expressed the view, shared by many Canadians who know his work, that Dr. Ira Dilworth of the Western Region would make a first-rate General Manager, and for anything we know to the contrary there may be other Canadians equally competent or more so.

The CBC belongs to the people. Let no one forget that. A Committee of Parliament, which is elected by the people to protect their interests, has recommended that certain changes be made in the organization of the CBC. Certain interests, moved by friendship for persons concerned or by frank enmity toward the Government in power are seeking to nullify the effect of the Parliamentary report. Are those interests going to settle the matter or are they not? We ask because they are in some cases the same interests which have been claiming that Parliament is set at nought.

The Belly And The Members

We have read with the deepest interest the account of the banquet tendered M. Rene Chaloult by La Ligue Pour La Defence du Canada, celebrating his acquittal on a charge brought under the Defense of Canada Regulations. We wish that we could draw some deep conclusions from the Chaloult affair and supply our readers with some weighty predictions as to what its outcome might be. But in spite of our best efforts the doings of M. Chaloult and La Ligue seem to us no more than Macbeth's tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing.

Chaloult's speech at the banquet (which sounded curiously like one of those gay eighteenth century affairs at which a group of friends feted a crony newly and unexpectedly released from Newgate) contained some interesting matter. We wonder, for instance, just how the speaker would define the word "patriot," which he used so often. And what does he mean by "education," for which he calls so loudly? Does he mean anything which an intelligent citizen of English-speaking Canada would recognize as coming under that heading? Somehow we doubt it. And what precisely does he imply in his "bold, conquering social program, forseeing post-war problems and providing advantageous solutions for them?"

Look as we will, we can see in this noisy speech nothing but a deepening desire to draw Quebec even further from the rest of Canada, while retaining the advantages which reside in Confederation. As a beginning of the education which M. Chaloult so earnestly desires we suggest that he read, and then expound to his followers, Aesop's fable of The Belly and The Members. Meditation on that theme might do much good in Quebec.

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THE grain storage problem is again looming large in Canada. It looks as though this year's crop was going to burst our bins. A rough estimate of the total grain production of Canada this year has been placed at over one and one quarter billion bushels and the available public storage space at present will not accommodate over 200 million bushels. Coarse grains are never a serious problem in Canada in the matter of storage, and with increased hog production, and finishing of beef cattle in the Prairie Provinces, there will be a large amount of oats and barley which will be fed upon farms. The wheat yield, however, promises to be very substantial, and the housing of it promises unusual difficulties.

In 1940 there was a serious storage problem and elevators came to the rescue by the construction of all sorts of additions to elevators then in existence. Many elevators had additions built on three sides, the fourth side being close to the railway, prevented any addition being constructed as a "lean to" to it on that side.

The wheat yield in Canada looks like a record crop. Some things can happen yet to reduce the yield but the prospects are quite good and famine is not one of our threats. If we could get a considerable quantity of our wheat to Russia it would help in the right place.

When western wheat is brought here for feed some care needs to be taken in feeding it. Some farmers, who changed last year from white to hard red wheat, complain that their pullets almost quit laying for a time and it was difficult to get them back into high production again. I wonder if soaking the hard wheat before feeding would help. It would be worth trying, but of course should be done at some experimental station. I am going to make enquiry.

HIGH SCHOOL students are to be out of school until Sept. 22nd to help with the harvest. These boys can be quite useful and if given reasonable directions will help very much. Any youth who has not been doing farm work will find his hands giving trouble from blisters. He can reduce this trouble to a minimum by using cheap cotton gloves. They will give good protection and save the wearer from annoying blisters. When I moved West almost forty years ago a good many young men rode after cattle and did some work with small herds on farms. These men always wore leather gloves in case a rope might burn their hands. It was an easy move to using cotton gloves when handling a fork if your hands were not accustomed to this work and I found it to be an excellent plan. Displaying blisters was once an evidence that you were working, but it might show that you didn't know how to take care of your hands and so got blisters which hindered your work.

Farmers who filled their silos with either alfalfa or mixed clovers, cut the crop quite early and so, in spite of showers, got their work ahead and do not now have to plan how to harvest a crop of corn and put it in the silo rather late in the autumn. This was an ideal hay crop for ensilage. Any silos not completely filled can now be finished with the aftermath which will make the best ensilage yet.

CANADIAN farmers will be keenly interested in a recent broadcast made by Mr. Hudson, British Minister of Agriculture, to the farmers of the United States. It was in the nature of a review of some things accomplished by British farmers in the last two and one half years, but it also contained a good few suggestions as to the future of agriculture in Britain which may have a revolutionary effect upon Canadian farming. Mr. Hudson said, in part, referring to British farming:

"Things looked none too good when the war started. We were growing less than two-fifths of the food we ate, and then we were using eight million tons of animal feeding-stuffs imported to produce milk, meat, eggs and so on. There were still parts of Britain—the best land—that were farmed just about as well as any in the world. But much of our land was suffering from neglect—suffering badly."

"We found it better, under the chaotic conditions into which the world had slipped, to let you grow the feeding-stuffs for us, at a loss, and let large parts of our own fertile country go derelict. You lost your money and we lost our land. Yes. Yes—it's easy enough now to see what a mess we had made of our pre-war world by pretending that none of us had any interest in what was happening to our neighbor. That's one of the things we've got to alter when victory is ours."

"I wish I'd time to tell you of all we've had to do in thirty months to repair the neglect of thirty years. We've laid thousands of miles of land drains, dug out thousands of miles of farm ditches, re-built farm roads and buildings, and even farm cottages and houses. Thousands of acres that had never been cultivated in recorded history now promise a good harvest."

"You must take my word for it that there has been a revolution in the English countryside. A physical and a spiritual revolution. For the plough, that has awakened those sleeping acres to active life, has also roused the hearts and minds of the men who farm them. No longer do they feel they are the unwanted poor relations, the mugs of the community."

Mr. Hudson later sums up some of the British farm achievements. He says:—

"We have increased our arable acreage from 12 million to 18 million now, and that without any increase in the number of people working on the land. You, who have sent us from overseas farm machinery and fertilizers, have helped enormously. I know it has often meant sending us what you badly needed yourselves."

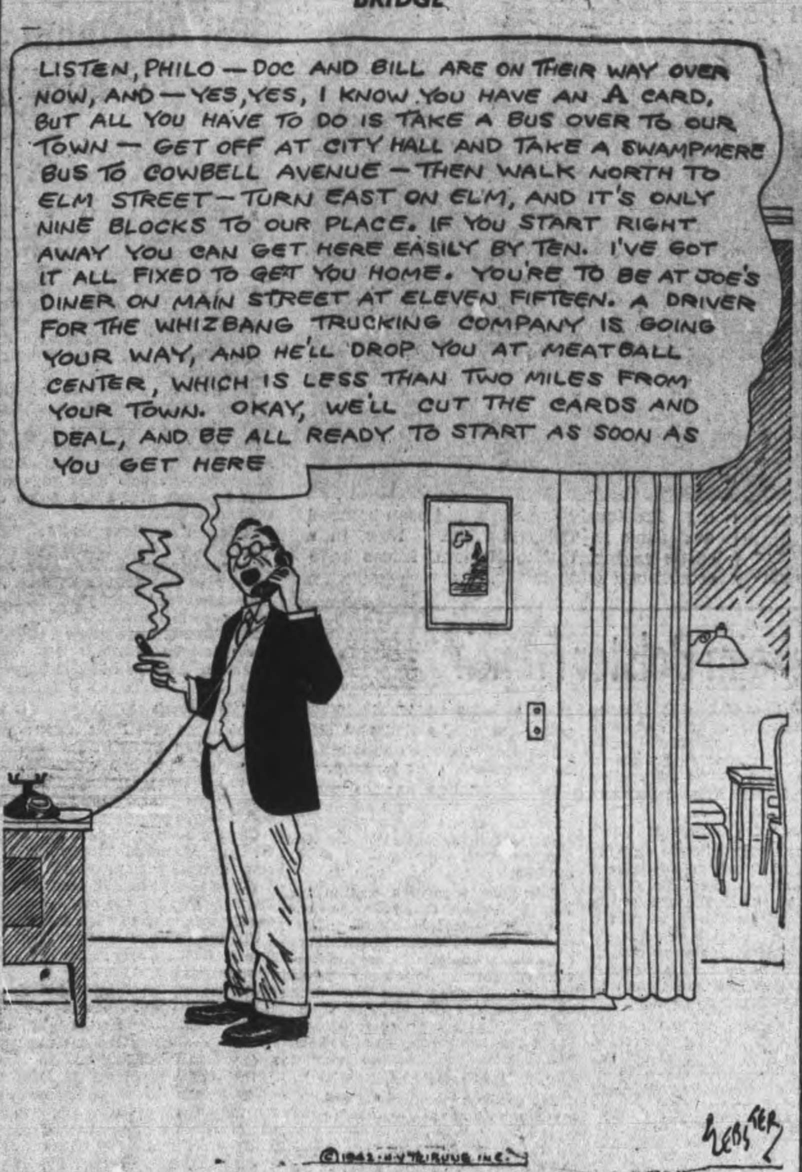
These few excerpts from Mr. Hudson's speech indicate that the Canadian farmers will have a new order of things to meet following the war, and that we must formulate our plans to produce the food and feeding-stuffs that may then be in demand. We have drifted into a system of bonuses in recent years that doesn't promise well for the future of sound farming in Canada, and we better recognize that fact before long.

Stimulating Hatred

There are ample reasons why every man, woman and child in the United Nations should hate the regime which sent the whole population of Germany and Italy upon a career of unexampled cruelty, rapine and slaughter; and we should not be too squeamish about stimulating hatred of that regime and of every uniform which represents it.—Toronto Saturday Night.

BRIDGE



Tokyo at Major Decision

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON, Associated Press War Analyst

HEAVY with menace as is the war news from South Russia, recent events in the Pacific must tend to abate Moscow's fears of an immediate Japanese attack on Siberia.

As this is written, United States marines, backed by powerful naval forces, seem to have made good their footing in the Solomons. Tokyo is directly confronted with the most serious challenge it has faced since it threw its lot in with Hitler last December.

Whatever else is at stake in that fight, the Tulagi naval base site is a major necessity for the Japanese both for offensive and defensive purposes. In Japanese hands it has been a constant threat to American-Australian communication lines. American-held, it would be no less a threat to the prime Japanese naval outpost of Truk in the Carolines, 1,000 miles to the north.

Fierce fighting between Japanese and American naval craft indicates that the Japanese recognize the strategic threat involved in the Allied offensive. A major sea-air battle matching those of the Coral Sea and off Midway Island may be in progress or in prospect as both sides move in heavy reinforcements. Should the outcome be as definitely favorable to American arms as were those two previous sea-air clashes with the Japanese, the whole nature of the war in the Pacific could be changed overnight.

With the first Allied offensive action well under way, Tokyo must reach a decision of critical importance. It must accept the challenge and hurl southward enough fleet and air strength to ensure victory, or ignore it to strike at Russia.

There can be no serious doubt that the Allied move in the Solomons is serving to lessen the probabilities of an immediate Japanese attack on Russia. It has a distinct second-front aspect so far as Russia is concerned, heightened materially by the stepped-up American sea-air blows at Japanese-held points in the Western Aleutians.

Japan attempted in the Aleutian-Midway attacks to impede prompt American air intervention in the event of a Japanese attack on Russia. It proved abortive due to the failure to take Midway and the losses inflicted on Japan. So long as there are Japanese outposts in the Aleutians, however, the air routes to Siberia from the United States must be travelled at hazard.

Aggressively challenged by American landing forces and sea and air power in the Solomons, Japan must either divide her forces to support her far-separated island outposts in the Southwest and Northeast Pacific, or concentrate reserves in one place. And the threat in the Solomons is so obvious that it must be in that direction her war craft and air reserves are being sent, leaving her minor footholds in the Aleutians to their fate.

Washington Spotlight

(By ELMER DULMAGE Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 (CP)—Not since the war started in 1939 has Washington been as depressed as this week. The picture may be painted in many shades, depending on the painter, but it was black to an observer fresh on the scene.

The great Russian army is being beaten, driven from the only major supply areas in the Soviet Union. India is the scene of disturbance that weakens the country's defence, among other things. United States war production lags here and there; "all-out" production is not yet a reality. There was no news on the second front in Europe.

The official Soviet view now is known here. It is grim. Unless German strength is diverted from the Russian front, the Red armies are in immediate danger of being driven from the rich sectors that supply them with the means of waging war.

If the Germans continue their successes in the south, soon the Russians will be virtually without oil. There is nothing like enough oil—or manufacturing either—behind the Urals to keep the Soviet armies fighting efficiently.

That is Russia's situation now. Calamitous defeat in the field, according to the highest diplomatic sources in Washington, is quite possible for Russia this summer.

It is taking perhaps 270 Nazi-led divisions to pound down Soviet military strength. These sources estimate the Germans have between 20 and 30 divisions in western Europe.

"HELP US NOW"

Put bluntly, the Soviet appeal to the other United Nations is: "Do you want to open a second front against 20 or 30 divisions now, creating a diversion that would force Hitler to move many division from Russia, or wait until Hitler has so weakened the Red armies that he can transfer an overwhelming force to the west?"

There is no suggestion the Russians will stop fighting, even if the worst comes to the worst. They are fighting for their lives; there are no Russians Hitler can deal with. But soon they may not have much to fight with.

Donald Nelson's war production board, the instrument of such vital importance to every Allied country, is under fire for failure to achieve all-out use of productive capacity in the United States. The latest shot was fired by a House of Representatives committee on national defence migration.

Nelson, the Sears Roebuck executive for whose success high hopes were held everywhere, may well be relieved of his over-all production authority. Some divisions of his board have good records, others not so good.

PRODUCTION DISAPPOINTMENTS

It was hoped Nelson would inspire the whole production effort, realizing the vast potentialities of American industry. Apparently there has been nothing like that.

The committee reported "there has been nowhere evidenced any intention on the part of responsible officials, civilian or military, to regard it as their job to demand maximum output or to move heaven and earth to get it."

With Russia suffering stunning military defeats, the phrase "to move heaven and earth" must have meant something—and apparently did—in Washington.

The result may be that industry is instructed where its materials are to be had, where its labor is available, instead of receiving "directives" from official sources that are not instructions.

A.P. BOOK SOCIETY

Max Hill, the A.P.'s correspondent in Tokyo, is shooting for another deadline aboard the liner Gripsholm, bringing home Americans and Canadians from Japan and other Far-East outposts. Hill is writing a book on his experiences and the manuscript is to be delivered to the publishers when the Gripsholm docks.

In more comfortable surroundings, other A.P. men are also writing books. Louis Lochner, Berlin bureau chief from 1922 until Pearl Harbor, is writing the story of Hitler; Richard Massock, home from Rome, writes of Mussolini's Italy; William McGaffin, now in India, is putting down his war experiences in the Balkans, the Middle East and Burma.

And Oliver Gramling, whose "A.P.: The Story of News," was a 1940 best-seller, has written one about the foreign staff of the A.P. with emphasis on its war-time gallantry.

CAPITAL TRIVIA

Washington was not shocked, but rather relieved, by the execution of six German saboteurs. A dozen or more reporters waited for news of the executions outside the district jail when three U.S. Marines and a British sailor went up to the jail door and demanded the privilege of "taking care of those guys." The offer was politely refused.... With the Canadian and U.S. armies actively directing defence, the Canadian-American Joint Defence Board, on which the leading figure is Mayor La Guardia, has served its purpose and may not act much longer.

A Bible Message For Today

Then answered the Jews and said unto him, What sign shewest thou unto us, seeing that thou doest these things?

Jesus answered and said unto them, Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up. Then said the Jews, Forty and six years was this temple in building, and wilt thou rear it up in three days?

But he spake of the temple of his body. When therefore he was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this unto them; and they believed the scripture, and the word which Jesus had said.—John ii, 18, 22.

Be not thou therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me his prisoner: but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the gospel according to the power of God; who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began, but is now made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel.—II Tim. i, 8-10.

"I eat three dozen hen egs, two dozen duck eggs, and one dozen goose eggs at a single sitting."

"Fine."

"And do you think you can go through them with your act?"

"I know I can."

"On Saturdays we often have as many as six shows and on some holidays once an hour."

Canucks Get Sub 32 Hungry Nazis

HALIFAX, Aug. 14.—(CP)—The capture of a Nazi submarine by a Canadian warship after it had been disabled by aircraft was described last night in a broadcast by a Royal Canadian Navy seaman from Ingersoll, Ont.

Without disclosing the area or time of the capture, James Kay Crotty, a petty officer leading torpedo operator, told how his ship captured 32 Germans aboard the U-boat and then took it in tow. He spoke over Station CHNS here.

His ship was in port, he said, when it got an emergency order to proceed to sea. Soon the word went around on board that the vessel was after a U-boat that had been attacked from the air.

"Finally, we picked up the sub," he continued. "Apparently it couldn't dive, for it was still on the face. Our planes were still overhead, waiting for us to go to work. Of course, our job was to seize the submarine and take the crew off.

"It would have been easy to sink it, but we were there to keep it afloat... There was a full gale blowing and a heavy swell, and we had to stand by until the weather moderated. That was late in the day.

"By that time, more ships had arrived, and they helped to screen us from other U-boats that might have been in the neighborhood while we got a line to the one on the surface."

Most of the Germans, he said, were clustered on the conning tower at this time. "The seas were so heavy they were breaking right over the tower," he added.

Crotty said his ship took off "all that were alive."

Skipper a Dude.

"We got 32 prisoners including the captain," he went on. "He had an iron cross and was quite a dude. He had a fine pair of watertight goggles. He showed them to one of the sentries and when the sentry reached for them, he laughed and tossed them overboard. He seemed to get a big kick out of that.

"We took them on board our ship and fed them. I don't think they'd had much to eat for a day or so, for they were hungry as wolves. They seemed very surprised that we had butter and canned milk. They'd pass the butter around and look at it as if they'd never seen anything like it before."

"We were waiting for them to start cutting up rough," said Crotty, "but most of them seemed darn glad to be aboard. Most of them were youngsters. One kid came over the side pointing to himself and saying, 'Me, glad, me glad.'"

"Some of the others wouldn't talk to us or have anything to do with us at first, but there was one who had been in Canada. He must have told his mates they were lucky to be with Canadians, because they warmed up a little later."

Still Raiding Convoy

ROME, (From Italian Broadcasts), Aug. 14.—(AP).— The Italian High Command claimed today that Axis planes and submarines attacking a big British convoy in the Western Mediterranean since Tuesday and inflicted heavy losses "on the convoy, to escorting vessels, above all to aircraft carriers which suffered many hits, and to enemy air forces."

"The action, still in progress, shows results favorable to us," said the communique, which reported the convoy was escorted "by an imposing number of warships, among which were numerous aircraft carriers."

Native Sons Rap Dollar-Year Men

KENORA, Ont., Aug. 14.—(CP)—The Native Sons of Canada are opposed to dollar-a-year men and urged in a resolution approved last night that all appointees to public boards be given a permanent salary and not be connected with private firms.

The Association's 18th biennial convention last night also called on the Parliament of Canada to announce aims for social justice and economic security in post-war years.

The convention suggested that a minimum pay of $45 a month be established for Canadian soldiers with a portion of each monthly salary kept in trust.

One official said the convention endorsed a resolution which urges the Dominion government not to sanction construction of expensive canals until after the war because of the cost and the detrimental effect on Canadian railways.

The resolution further suggested that this work be undertaken as a government project in post-war years if necessary.

This spokesman said that delegates were told that United States engineers have been surveying a ship canal which would connect Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie, bypassing the Detroit river and the cities of Windsor and Detroit. Cost of the project was estimated at about $20,000,000.

Dr. T. H. Cody of Winnipeg, was elected national president, succeeding Thornton Prosser of Toronto.

M. Raymond Hints At New Party

MONTREAL, Aug. 14. — (CP).— Talk spread in political circles today of the possibility of a French-Canadian party being formed in the province to fight for autonomy and for nationalization of resources.

The talk began last night after Maxime Raymond, Liberal Member of Parliament for Beauharnois-Laprairie, and Rene Chalout, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly for Lotbiniere, hinted that such a party might be organized.

Both men spoke at a banquet held under the auspices of La Ligue Pour La Defense Du Canada, an anti-conscription group, to celebrate Mr. Chaloult's recent acquittal here on Defence of Canada Regulation charges.

Mr. Raymond saiad that "it is now more important than ever to organize in one solid group all our best elements. We have reached a milestone in our history where bargaining with our duties is no longer permissible."

"We all have unavoidable civic duties and I can see in the very near future the moment when each and every one of us will have to face his responsibilities in the domain of action.

"Let us get rid of the party spirit which has given us a political era of abandonments and perpetual adjournments. Let all men of action capable of clear thinking get rid of their apathy and assert their convictions.

School Children Doing Splendid War Work

CAMPBELLFORD, August 14.—(ENS)— Some idea of the vast amount of work being done by children in urban and rural schools to help the War effort is seen in a summary of their activities prepared for Campbellford and Seymour by Inspector A. A. Martin, Brighton. According to the report Campbellford Public School children gathered nearly 800 pounds of salvage and this included such items as rubber, paper and metal. Equally important were the cash contributions they were able to make to the Red Cross, British War Victims Fund, etc. as a result of extra-cirricular actvities such as their annual operetta. Cash contributions from the Public School to the Red Cross alone during the January-June term amounted to $285.80. In addition to this they gave the British War Victim's Fund, Navy $129.75 while other miscellaneous contributions added an additional $175.00 to various war agencies.

Equally praiseworthy were the efforts made by the various schools in Seymour Townships: S. S. No. 1 gave $6.00 to the Red Cross; S. S. No. 2 $45.00 to the Red Cross, $25 to the B. W. V. F., etc. and six articles of clothing; S. S. No. 3, $25.00 to Red Cross and $20.00 to the B. W. V. F.; S. S. No. 4 $3.00 to Red Cross and salvage 1,800 pounds; S. S. No. 5, $8.00 to Red Cross; $5 to B. W. V. F.; $5.00 misc. and 800 pounds of salvage; S. S. No. 6, $9.00 to Red Cross; miscellaneous $9.70; salvage 2,000 pounds; S. S. No 7—$21.60 to Red Cross, B. W. V. F. $15.95; salvage 800 pounds; S. S. No. 9,—Red Cross $2.00; B. W. V. F. $27.35; 4 articles of clothing, salvage 300 pounds; S. S. No. 11—Red Cross $23.00, B. W. V. F. $8, Misc $7.00.

Beat Generals Handily 7-4 In Close Game

Westclox made it two straight in the Girls' Softball League playoff series last night, defeating Generals 7 to 4 in the second game of the best four-of-seven round for the Bond Cup and the league championship. The third game will be played Saturday night.

The Big Bens earned the decision through steady hurling by Marg Watson and another great bit of relief pitching by Isobel Bullock and through snappy fielding.

The took a one-run lead in the first innings, lost it for a short time when Generals scored twice in the second and then went ahead again with three in the third and were never headed after that. When the losers scored a run in the eighth and were threatening Isobel Bullock went to the mound and struck out the next three batters. She also retired the side in order in the ninth, stopping the C.G.E. attack cold.

Generals were without Norma Strickland who was hurt the other night but Eleanor Craig got back into the game with her broken thumb in a splint and banged out a triple and a double.

Aggie Anderson with a homer and a single, Isobel Bullock with a three-base hit and single and Marg Hawthorne with two single and two walks in four times up led the winners on the attack. Bea McDowell went the route for the Generals, holding the winners to nine hits to do the most damage.

The fielding of the two second sackers, V. McLean for Westclox and Marilyn McCarthy for Generals stood out. A feature play was a running catch by Aggie Anderson of a drive by Annette DeCarlo.

Westclox started the scoring in the first. With one out V. McLean singled to centre. Eunice Armstrong also lined to centre but V. McLean was forced at second. Marg Hawthorne walked and Isobel Bullock singled to fill the bases. Eunice Armstrong scored on a passed ball after which Marg Watson rolled to Phyllis Bigelow.

Generals took the lead in the second. With one out Phyllis Bigelow singled to third. Eleanor Craig tripled to right centre, sending in the run. Elva Adamson rolled to second and Eleanor Craig was safe at the plate when Isobel Bullock dropped the ball in tagging her. Annette DeCarlo and May Wade both singled but the inning ended when Marilyn McCarthy hit to Marg Hawthorne for a force play at second.

Westclox came back with three in the third. Aggie Anderson started the rally by slashing a homer over third base, the ball rolling under the cars in left. V. McLean flied out but Eunice Armstrong singled through short, went to second on a high throw to first and scored on Marg Hawthorne's double to left. M Hawthorne scored the third run on a passed ball.

The winners made it 6 to 2 in the fifth. Aggie Anderson got a life when Ruth Hewitt dropped her fly to centre. She went to second on a wild pitch, to third on V. McLean's roller to May Wade and scored while Marilyn McCarthy was tossing out Eunice Armstrong. Marg Hawthorne walked and scored on Isobel Bullock's three-base hit over Ruth Hewitt's head. The batter was out at the plate trying to stretch the drive into a homer.

Generals made it 6 to 3 in the sixth. Eleanor Craig doubled to start it, went to third on Elva Adamson's infield out and scored after Aggie Anderson had made a fine running catch of Annette DeCarlo's fly to left centre.

The losers threatened in the eighth. Ruth Hewitt beat out an infield hit to start with and went to second on a wild pitch. Phyllis Bigelow beat out a tap to third and Ruth Hewitt scored on Marg. Hawthorne's wide throw to the difficult corner. Isobel Bullock took over the pitching chore and put the brakes on by striking out Eleanor Craig, Elva Adamson and Annette DeCarlo in a row.

Westclox added another run in the first of the ninth.

With two out Doris Walker singled over second and went to second on a passed ball. Aggie Anderson beat out a tap to May Wade on which the thirdsacker made a high throw to first and Doris Walker ran home. V. McLean was safe on an error but was forced at second by Eunice Armstrong.

Isobel Bullock shot down the Generals in order in the last half of the ninth and one of the best games of the season was over.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 16.—The eighth session of the Saratoga yearling sales on Wednesday night resulted in 49 yearlings passing through the ring for a total of $37,650, an average of $768. SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Tonight's game between Royals and Luckies may settle the question of which club will meet Plazas in the final series for the City League championship. A win for Royals will end the argument. The second-placers got the edge on the series by nosing out Luckies 9 to 8 in the opening fixture and a second victory tonight winds up the round and sends the former Chesterfields who won the loop last year into the finals. Luckies can tie up the series by tossing the Parnell squad for a loss and Manager Fred Griffin's will give everything they've got to pull off the feat for there is no particular love lost between two outfits. It looms up like one of the best battles of the year, with elimination for Luckies certain unless they can even up the round. The proceeds will be turned over to the O.A.S.A. bat and ball fund and will help to supply much needed softball equipment to Canadians in the armed forces. The league has arranged for a Brinton rug and a Kenwood blanket as special draw prizes and fans will get a chance on the two awards for every five-cent piece they contribute toward the fund. The game will be started sharp at 7 o'clock and the chance to see a red-hot playoff battle and at the same time to help out a worthy cause should pack in the customers.

Because the provincial playoffs are just around the corner the final round in the Girls' Softball League has been speeded up. The league had to step on the gas to have a winner of the senior division declared in time to take part in the provincial intermediate playdowns. According to the setup now Peterborough is supposed to have their representatives ready to play the Toronto winners in Toronto next Wednesday, August 19, with the return game in Peterborough on the following Saturday. However the situation in Toronto indicates that there will be some difficulty there in naming a winner by the date set. The Globe and Mail remarks that P.W.S.U. President Mae Brown will have to do something about the intermediate provincial playdown schedule if she hopes to have Toronto teams represented. The schedule calls for the Intercounty League and Hamilton to play off on the same dates as the Peterborough-Toronto series. The winners of the two rounds are billed to meet for Ontario honors on August 26 and 29. Toronto has three intermediate leagues and the G. and M. remarks that the Queen City would have to do it with mirrors to get a winner by August 19. However the local loop has been informed that the Toronto representatives will be ready next Wednesday.

In order to hasten the selection of a Peterborough representative Westclox and Generals have been ordered to play the third game in the series at the Bowl tonight and the fourth on Saturday evening. Big Bens have a decided edge on the final round now by grabbing off the first two games, taking the second tilt last night by 7 runs to 4. Westclox, making effective use of Isobel Bullock as relief pitcher, came through smartly to grab off the decision. They fielded snappily and made their hits count. Generals, however, have not given up the fight by any means, despite the fact that they have a heavy casualty list. Norma Strickland is out and Eleanor Craig, May Wade, Marilyn McCarthy and Bea McDowell are all handicapped through injuries. Generals hope to get back into the running by picking off the third game tonight and then even up the series Saturday. Tonight's struggle should be about the best of the season for a third loss for Generals would be just about fatal to their chances. The game is billed for 7 o'clock sharp.

He's A Worthy Son

Jim Bagby, ace pitcher of the Cleveland Indians is the worthy son of a worthy sire. His father was one of the best twirlers of his day and the son seems destined to emulate his performances. At any rate he grabbed off his 13th victory of the season yesterday at the expense of the Detroit Tigers winning the decision 3 to 2. Bagby has only lost five games this season and has been doing his best to hold the Indians up. Virgil Trucks, Tribe to five hits. In the other American League game played yesterday former Buffalo Bison, put on a good show in a losing cause holding the St. Louis helped to cool off the Chicago White Sox by smothering Jimmy Dyke's crew 8 to 3. Sundra won his seventh victory as against two defeats but had to have help from Hollingsworth to complete the job. Bill Dietrich was the losing pitcher. It was his eighth defeat of the season and Harland Clift helped to put the skids under him with a homer with two on the bases.

In the National League St. Louis Cards who cannot afford to drop many games if they hope to overhaul the Brooklyn Dodgers were tossed for a total loss by the Chicago Cubs who won by the lop-sided score of 13 to 5. The Cubs in fact were twelve runs in front going into the ninth but the Cards managed to put together four counters in the final frame to close up the gap a little. Clyde Passeau went the distance for the Cubs and had an easy victory. The Cards gambled on Dickson, a pitcher they brought up from Columbus last year and he failed to cash in on the opportunity. They had both Pollet and Krist in there before the battle ended. The loss cost the Cards half a game as Brooklyn were idle. Terry Moore had a four-master for the Cards and Bill Nicholson hit one for the circuit for the winners.

Somewhat unexpectedly the Catholic Softball League playoffs are getting under way tonight when the Knights of Columbus club and the East City Cubs will clash at Memorial Park in the first game of the semi-final round, the winners to meet the league-leading St. Peter's in the final series for the championship and the Sullivan Cup. The early start in the playoffs has been occasioned by the fact that the Sacred Heart team has retired from competition through inability to get its players out regularly and as a result the title battle has been left to the three clubs, St. Peter's, Cubs and the Knights of Columbus. Cubs won the championship last year and if they manage to get past the Knights in the series starting tonight, are expected to give St. Peter's plenty of opposition when the final round ges under way.

Showing the uncertainity of golf, Ben Hogan, Mr. Golf, burned up the course at Rochester yesterday in the $5,000 open tournament to finish with a record score of 64, six strokes below par. Last week in the Canadian open Hogan couldn't match the smooth golf of Craig Wood, who picked off the title with the third lowest score in the history of the event. Yesterday at Rochester Hogan was sizzling hot and proved it with a 64 score while the Canadian open champion was well back. He couldn't do better than an even par 70 for the course and that was nearly good enough for the pace that was being set by Hogan and other shot-makers. Hogan had nine one-putt greens in his record-making round yesterday and his brilliant shot-making has made him favorite to take the big end of the prize money.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: There are three playoff games on the softball menu tonight. Royals and Luckies meet in a City League semi-final, Westclox and Generals clash in the third game of the Girls' League finals and Cubs and Knights of Columbus tie into each other in the Catholic League semi-finals....Plazas are entitled to a military replacement for Jake Wade who has gone to the Navy. Nick Sero of the Soldiers would be a handy bird to have around....Clyde Passeau of the Chicago Cubs won his 16th victory of the season. He promises to be the first pitcher in either loop to hit the 20-win mark this season....Isobel Bullock's relief pitching has been a feature of recent games....The Westclox's regular catcher seems to have plenty on the ball when she takes over the pitching job. She faced only six Generals batters in the two innings she worked last night and five of them whiffed....Royals and Luckies should stage a real argument tonight. It's playoff time and anyway the two clubs do not get along very well....Archie Green's Flyers won the first game of the Belleville playoffs in hollow fashion, defeating the Vets 19 to 7....The Airmen look like sure winners of the Belleville title....Agnes Bowler, Peterborough girl with the C.W.A.C. at Kingston will be a member of the track team from the unit which will take part in the big field day at Toronto tomorrow....Toronto divided a twin bill with Buffalo last night and are still in sixth place....FLASH: Tonight's girls' game postponed until Saturday.

Sacred Heart Drops Out Of Playdowns

Much to the regret of the Catholic League officials, the Sacred Heart team has withdrawn its bid for a playoff spot. The executive worked a little overtime in an effort to get the southend team to finish out the schedule and to seek a shot in the finals, but the management of the Sacred Heart squad found it pretty tough trying to field enough men and regretfully backed out. This team seems to have had this trouble all season and the present condition is rather not new, for the different players has had a great deal to do with it.

Due to the fact that the ground for the ployoffs has been cleared faster than C. S. L. moguls had expecter, the K of C will now meet the the K. of C. will now meet the Cubs to-night (Friday) at the Memorial Park field in first game of the semi-finals. This series will be a best two or three and the one who comes out on top will take on the loop leaders, St. Peters. The final setto will be a three in five affair the winner qualifying for possession of the Alderman Sullivan trophy. Cubs took this cup last year and they certainly will not yield it without a big fight.

C. S. L. schedule ended with St. Peters in the lead, having fifteen wins and seven losses. Cubs were right behind with twelve wins and ten losses. The K. of C. a strong contender for honors now, finished with seven wins and thirteen losses. St. Peters who have had a very good year have the championship practically cinched and dare the Cubs and K. of C. to come and take them. One of these teams will be wiped out in the semi-finals while the other is definitely not going to give any ground when it comes to facing the peppery saints.

The league leaders are going to be idle for about a week and there is a rumour that they are going to try for a comeback game with the top city league squad, the Plazas, in order to keep in trim providing the latter team has an open date before it goes into its finals.

More People.

Of late the crowd attending the league games at Armour Hill diamond have improved and a record crowd should be out to see the Cubs and Knights start out on their playoff series. Both teams are determined to win and a honey of a game is in prospect.

For the K. of C. there will be Flint behind the bat, Mongraw hurling, Wolff at first, Mills second, Tracy third, Anthony short, Harrington in left field, Masterson at centre and Baldwin in right. Relief hurler for the Cubs is Ray Garvey and for the Knights Anthony, both have been doing some fine chores in their alley during the season and should help plenty.

Monday night will be the second or the semi-inalists and if they go to a third it will be the following Tuesday. If the series goes to three games the finals will begin next Thursday if not they will start next Wednesday.

Cars pulling up to see the C.S.L. tussles are asked to leave the space in the right field clear for the fielders, that is, to keep well on the road and off the grass. A game can change quite easily from a victory to a loss by hindrance of ball going into right field. League had this experience last year and it is hoped drivers will make efforts to comply with the desires of the executive. It is suggested that cars be parked along Armour Road skirting the field and on Monroe Avenue from the flag up to behind the benches.

To C. Giroux's rink goes the honor of winning first place in Group No. 2 of the men's schedule—and after last night's play a deadlock was created for second money between rinks skipped by F. Dearborn and Dr. C. Fulford.

The men's schedule which commences on Thursday, May 28 and finished last night ran all through the summer nights and was completed with only one postponed game. This is truly a remarkable record.

In the ladies' section they went one better, they finished out their schedule games last evening, all on time and without one default and without one postponed game. Just 100 per cent all round.

The ladies also will have playoffs. When the two leading rinks were defeated last night it made a tie for first place between Mrs. J. Arnold and Mrs. L. Bearne — and then it also made a deadlock for third position. Mrs. H. Beatty, Mrs. J. Coursey and Mrs. F. Staunton will have to fight it out to see who will take down the third prize.

This piece of news came to us late Thursday. Down at Port Hope on Wednesday Mrs. J. Arnold's rink was successful in winning the H. Roseavear Cup and Mrs. F. Staunton's rink took high for two wins. These were 15 rinks entered, five from Peterborough. The rinks were:

Miss J. Walker	Mrs. R. Hopkins
Mrs. G Spence	Mrs. A. Heckman
Mrs. C. Renaud	Mrs. L. Bearne
Mrs. J. Arnold	Mrs. F. Staunton

Don't forget the men's doubles starts at 7 o'clock sharp this evening. Be on time.

We understand this mixed tournament next Wednesday night in aid of the Examiner British War Fund, will be thrown wide open. Everybody is invited—so please pass the word along.

The supplementary schedule gets under way on Monday evening. Skips are requested to see that their rinks are notified.

Bisons And Leafs Split Pair 2-1 and 6-4

By The Associated Press.

You may wonder why scouts say Ed Albosta is one of the best pitchers in the International League, for, judging by his won-and-lost record—six victories and six defeats—the Montreal righthander is just another hurler.

Albosta was troubled by a sore arm most of the season and only recently has he displayed the form that is making the Royals look to him to pitch them into the playoffs and possibly the Junior World Series.

Those six victories all have been scored since July 9, when he stopped Baltimore Orioles with one hit in a seven-inning game, and he has won four of his last five games.

Big Ed gained his sixth decision last night at the expense of Rochester Red Wings 4-3 despite one of his poorer performances. He was touched for six of the Wings' 11 hits, walked three and finally needed help from Ed Spaulding and Chet Kehn in the eighth inning. Still, Albosta struck out seven and contributed three hits to the Royals' total of 11.

In the only other games played, Buffalo Bisons and Toronto Maple Leafs split a double-header. Buffalo won the opener, 2-1, a pitching duel between Bud Thomas and Joe Sullivan, when Jimmy Outlaw clouted a homer in the seventh and final inning.

The second game went to Toronto, 6-4, after the Bisons had jumped off to a four-run lead in the first two innings. The Leafs tied it up in the third and won out in the seventh. After Johnny Wyrostek walked, Jimmy Ripple and Frank Colman delivered successive doubles for the winning runs.

The Syracuse-Jersey City and Newark-Baltimore games were postponed.

"Meal Ticket" For The Phils

Shown in action here is Tommy Hughes, who is now regarded as an ace pitcher of the National League. Up to June 15 Hughes had won only one game and lost nine. Since then he has won eight and lost two. Most significant is the fact that Hughes has won his games against the strong teams while back of him is the weakest hitting team in the league.

Tigers Shaded By Indians' Rally In 9th, 3-2

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National League's new rule making managers subject to a automatic fine of $200 for permitting their pitchers to blaze away at a rival's noggin is due for the acid test today when Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves collide in a doubleheader which opens a five-game series.

It will be their first meeting since they spent last Saturday afternoon ducking each other's high inside pitches.

That get-together in Boston which saw the Braves sweep a two-game series from the first-place Brooks, prompted League President Ford Frick to toss the principal responsibility for future "bean balls" squarely into the managers' laps.

Originally this was an open date for both teams, but the bargain bill at Ebbetts Field was made necessary when weather kept them apart last Sunday and yesterday.

In the only one in the National League, Chicago Cubs ended a four-game losing streak by walloping St. Louis Cardinals 13-5 and dropping the second-place Red Birds 8½ games behind the Dodgers.

Claude Passeau notched his 16th pitching victory of the season against eight defeats, although he had to weather a ninth-inning Cardinal uprising which produced four runs on as many hits.

In the American League, Cleveland Indians came from behind in the ninth inning to edge out Detroit Tigers 3-2 for their first victory in their last eight starts, one of which ended in a tie.

Virgil Trucks blanked the Indians on four hits from 8 2-3 innings, but he loaded the bases on walks in the final frame and Oris Hockett unloaded them with a double. Jim Bagby pitched six-hit ball for the Tribe and registered his 13th victory.

St. Louis Browns crushed Chicago White Sox, 8-3, largely through the efforts of Harlond Clift, who hit a home run, double and two singles and drove in four runs.

American League games between Boston and New York and Washington and Philadelphia and a National League affair between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh all were postponed.

NHL War Future To Be Decided At Toronto Meet

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The fate of professional hockey involving National League play in the United States and Canada for the 1942-43 season may be decided in Toronto, Ont., a week from today.

Representatives of the vast amateur hockey organization of Canada will meet with Canadian Government officials and learn the position Ottawa will take. Tied up with the decision is the fate of the sport in the United States.

Capt. W. G. Hardy, president of the International Ice Hockey Association, and the Canadian Amateur Hockey League, in Chicago on a speech-making tour for his government, expressed his personal belief that the game is one of the best for heightening both army and civilian moral. He said today the senior hockey association in Canada plans, if told to go ahead, to emphasize games played by teams from army and war munitions camps.

William Tobin, president of the Chicago Blackhawks, and a Canadian veteran in the first World War said the Canadian Government at present was sympathetic with the continuation of the National Hockey League.

Tobin said a canvass taken by the Canadian Government revealed that more than 1,500,000 people in the Dominion listened to radio broadcasts of hockey games in Toronto.

"The sport has a direct effect on the morale of a Canadian citizen, just as baseball's continuation helps in this country," Tobin added.

Major Frederick McLaughlin, owner of the Blackhawks and another first World War veteran, has pledged to turn over ever cent of profit from Hawks games this season to war aid funds.

Tobin believes the Blackhawks, holders of the National League attendance records, will draw as well as last season. He says advance reservations are larger than ever. The Hawks will lose only four players. Goalie Sam Lo Presti is in the United States Navy. Bill Carse and Alex Kaleta, forwards, are in the Canadian Army. Joe Cooper, defense star, will be married in Winnipeg tomorrow, but is subject to immediate military call.

BobMontgomery And Zivic Steal Fist Show

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP). —The high-and-mighty heavyweights are a dime a dozen along bashed beak boulevard these days, so it begins to look like the little men are going to have to kick up all the fuss, and right now, Fritzie Zivic and Bob Montgomery stand up as a couple of pretty fair country fuss kickers-up of recent developments.

As a matter of fact, if Uncle Mike Jacobs is open to suggestions, it wouldn't be a bad idea to match Pittsburg Fritzie, the ex-welterweight boss who still has a lot of git-up-and-go about him, to Philadelphia. Bob, who is fighting now like his puglicity wins always said he could. After their impressive respective wins over Garvey Young, of Uncle Sam's Marines, and Bobby Ruffin, the tough kid out of Long Island, in Madison Square Garden last night, Uncle Mike might do worse than to send them out after each other on the Aug. 26 card he's making up his mind to put together.

And since this week's to be open season for suggestions, it wouldn't be a bad idea to put on a return go between Cleo Shans, the half-Cherokee from Los Angeles, and Maxie Shaiiro, the all-charging clouter from the east side of our town, on the same bill. These two put on a shindig that was very hot for August in the third-rounder of last night' triple header before Shans escaped with a disputed decision.

"Uncle Mike" nowadays is concentrating on the smaller breed of welters, and in last night's black-eye prom—the third in a row featuring the little guys with lots of action—he came up with two winners who were approved by just about all of the 14,964 customers on hand.

Young, a marine out of Cleveland, made his New York debut in one 'ten-ner,' and Fritzie carved him up like a boarding house steak so fast that the fight had to be stopped at the end of six rounds. Montgomery, the Philadelphia negro lightweight who doesn't care which way he goes so long as it's forward, nearly broke Ruffin in half with his body belting to take the decision in the other top ten.

Sport Shots From Britain

By ALAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 14 (CP)—It probably never will be known whether Windsor Slipper could trim the best racehorses in England, as contended by many Eire experts.

Permission to enter the unbeaten three-year-old, sometimes regarded in Eire as the greatest Irish horse of all time, in Newmarket races has been refused by Jockey Club stewards in accordance with wartime instructions regarding travelling.

Windsor Slipper, by the Derby winner England Lad, out of Carpet Slipper, won the Irish Derby in record time several weeks ago. He is half-brother to the 1,000 Guineas and Oaks' winner Godiva. It had been planned to pit the Eire wonder against such outstanding performers as the King's colt Big Game and this year's Derby winner, Watling Street.

They used to call Jimmy Wilde "the ghost with a hammer in both hands" when the Welsh wonder was in his heyday as a flyweight. Now Jimmy has been appointed sports welfare officer in a large Bristol munition works and organizes boxing, cricket, football and general athletics for employees.

By present post-war plans, London will have a luxury gymnasium that will compare with the best in the world. Behind the scheme is Mockey Wood, undefeated lightweight wrestling champion of Britain and leading instructor in unarmed combat in the Home Guard. He forecasts an increase in big-time fights when the bigger battle ends.

Women walkers in Britain's Services can test their talent—and feet—during a forthcoming meet arranged by the London Fire Force. Any walker between the ages of 18 and 40 can enter the women's event for a shilling.

Irene Kaye, youngest trainer of racing greyhounds in the country, has left the dogs to join the WAAFS. In the last six months 18-year-old Miss Kaye trained more winners than any other trainer at the Walthamstow track. Altogether she's trained 248 runners an 47 have been winners so far.

From Sydney comes word that an 18-year-old Australian, George Campbell, stepped a mile in 4:10 2-5, which is 1 1-5 seconds better than the British Empire record set by J. W. L. Alford at the Empire Games in Sydney in 1938. The race was not run under championship conditions, however, and it is considered possible the record may not be ratified.

After a schoolboy "rag" in London, Charles Wheatley, 18-year-old cricketer hero of Eton and probably Britain's best boy bowler, was expelled. Son of Brig.-Gen. Leonard Wheatley, he immediately joined the army. He was "carpeted" by the Eton headmaster after returning from celebrating a cricket victory over Winchester in which he took four wickets for 24 runs. It was the first time Winchester had been beaten in 11 years.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—(AP)—According to Ned Irish, United States colleges aren't worrying much about transportation for their basketball teams this winter although a lot of athletic directors are keeping their fingers crossed about moving big football squads around the country . . . Ned's winter court program at Madison Square Garden and waypoints is all set and so far no team has tried to back out of a scheduled date.

Highest Bidder

Texas A. and M. has landed a double-threat athlete in Gus White, a nifty fullback and one of the best polo prospects in the state but the story they tell down there is that Hardin-Simmons gave the Aggies quite a tussle . . . Finally Gib Sandefer, Hardin-Simmons athletics manager, offered to organize a polo team and make White the captain . . . but a few days later he was moaning, "How could we compete with them? They offered to make Gus the polo coach down there."

Warren Wright, George Carroll, Jockey Alfred Robertson and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt will be awarded plaques at the Turf Writers' dinner at Saratoga next Thursday. When Ed Montgomery, sports editor of the Reno Evening Gazette, joined the Marines, the Sierra Nevada baseball league lost its secretary, the Nevada State Officials' Association lost its secretary-treasurer, Reno lost one of its five certified umpires and Nevada lost its semi-pro baseball commissioner.

Today's Guest Star

Nelson Denton, Cincinnati Times-Star: "College rules are to apply in the All-Army and Washington Redskins clash on Aug. 30. That means, apparently, that everybody will get paid."

Maxie Wilson pitched his second no-hit, no-run game for the Norfolk Naval Training Station baseballers the other day . . . Who was that Guy Feller they used to talk about? . . . Pte. Freddie Brann, former Buffalo sports scribe, can tell you what its like to be a dive bomber although he hasn't finished his training at the Miami Beach Air Force school. Freddie dived into a swimming pool and bombed the bottom; result: furlough to recover.

Cattle Market Very Firm, Hogs, Lambs Up

TORONTO, Aug. 14— (CP). — Prices advanced or were steady on all classes of livestock sold on the market here this week.

In cattle trade, heifers advanced 10 to 25 cents for the week, fed calves were 50 cents stronger, cows were 25 cents higher and all other killers sold steady to strong. Veal calves were 50 cents higher. Hogs gained 15 cents and lambs advanced 25 cents. Sheep sold steady.

Receipts of cattle totalled 10,600, one of the heaviest runs at the local yards in some years. This was due to the functioning of the wartime food corporation which paid such attractive prices that practically all cattle shipments throughout Ontario were diverted here.

In the cattle trade weighty steers sold from $9.50 to $10.50. Butcher steers were $9 to $10.25. Butcher heifers sold at $9 to $10.10. Butcher cows sold from $6 to $8.50 with canners and cutters down to $5. Export buyers held the bull market firm at $7.50 to $10.50 with a few selling as high as $11. Fed calves traded at from $10.50 to $12. Stockers were mostly $7.59 to $10.25 with light western stock calves selling up to $11.35. Good milkers and springers sold from $100 to $135 each.

After an advance of 50 cents early in the week veal calves sold steady at $14.50 to $15 for choice with other grades downward to $8. Grassers brought from $8 to $10.

Hogs sold mostly to outside buyers and local butchers at $16.25 dressed. Local packers were bidding $16.10. Sows were mostly $12.75 dressed. Feeder hogs were $11.75 liveweight, with a deduction of $2 per head.

Lambs Gain 25 Cents.

Lambs gained 25 cents for the week, closing Wednesday steady at $14.25 for good ewes and wethers with bucks at $13.25. Late Thursday bids on lambs were $13.50. Sheep were steady at $5 to $8.

The Dominion marketing service reported that with the ceiling on lambs becoming effective Aug. 16, buyers are contemplating a bid of $12 for good ewes and wethers next week. This, however will be governed by the supply available for next week's trading.

The Wartime Food Corporation purchased 7,513 head of cattle. These were purchased at the following prices: Choice weighty steers $12.50 to $13.65, those of fair to good quality $11 to $12.50; butcher steers and heifers $11 to $12.25; butcher cows $8.75 to $10 with cutters down to $8; bulls from $11 to $12.

Weekly Summary of Receipts:

Conant Charges Police Setup Is Inefficient

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 14—The present police set-up in Ontario is "archaic, wasteful and inefficient," in the opinion of Attorney-General Gordon D. Conant, who addressed the convention of the Ontario Police Association here yesterday afternoon. He said that while the present situation is not satisfactory there was no remedy, owing to the many jurisdictions under which the various police forces function, other than continuous efforts to improve the status and qualifications of all existing police.

He said that the vast majority of the people of the Province have a high regard for constituted authority and for the police as representing such authority and generally speaking, the police are well conducted and are well thought of by the people. He pointed out, however, that the real problem in connection with policing the Province is not the attitude of the public toward the police, but the multitude and conflict of jurisdictions controlling police and the attitude of some of these jurisdictions toward their police.

"The best conceivable laws are a nullity unless they are properly enforced," he said, after pointing out that police must enforce laws that are passed by municipal councils, the Provincial Legislature and the Dominion Parliament. "I am strongly opposed to the passing of laws as a gesture for any reason, without machinery for their enforcement. We have far too many dormant laws on our statute books at the present time and they encourage disrespect for all laws."

Municipal, Provincial and Dominion police are responsible for the enforcement of all laws and he estimated that ninety per cent of all prosecutions were instituted by police. "With the police occupying such a predominating position in law enforcement it becomes a matter of great concern as to the efficiency, honesty and aggressiveness of all police forces," the Attorney General stated.

Deplores Interference.

"From my experiences I am of the opinion that with a very few exceptions, our police are honest and anxious to do their full duty," he continued, "but I am equally satisfied, that in some cases, there is interference with the police by persons purporting to exercise control resulting in a breakdown in law enforcement. That is a rather serious thing to say but I think it is time it were said and that we should take stock and inventory of the situation, not for the purpose of criticizing but with a view to building better policing in this Province."

Mr. Conant said that in Ontario there are about 200 municipal police forces, controlled by municipal councils and police commissions as well as a Provincial police force and, for certain purposes, the R.C.M.P. He stated that while there are sufficient police and enough money is being spent on policing he was not satisfied that full value was being obtained for the money, because of the multitude of police jurisdictions, and the interference with police.

"In other words," he stated, "I think the taxpayers of this Province are entitled to better policing that they are getting for the money they put up."

Betting Raids.

He referred to the enforcement of the law in connection with the gaming and betting houses, saying that in some municipalities the local police simply will not proceed against such houses. In some cases the inactivity is due to interference by some person or persons so placed that the policemens job would be jeopardized if they proceed. This was one of the reasons why Mr. Conant took steps to clean up these places. Another reason for his decision was that small local forces were closely watched by the spies of the gaming and betting houses.

The Attorney-General stated emphatically that the Provincial Police are not going to police all the municipalities in the Province. He said that there was a tendency that when the Provincial Police go into a municipality on any particular work the local police authorities assume the attitude, with other laws unpleasant to enforce, "Let the Provincials do it." He said that the Provincials were not going to do it.

He said that the Provincial Police Force had a strength of 365 men, of whom 113 are on highway patrol and only 252 left for general police duties. If the Provincial Police were to go into municipalities to enforce Sunday observances, laws, liquor laws, lottery laws, and others, "as some agitators, professional and otherwise would have them do," it would take a force of about 3,500 men, and the annual cost would be between eight and nine million dollars.

50 Mile Hun Advance.

In the Caucasus, German troops driving down the Rostov-Baku railway toward the Caspian sea were within 140 miles of the Grozny oil fields after a swift 50-mile advance from Cherkessk.

The noon-day communique also disclosed that another Nazi column aimed at Novorossisk had cracked Russian positions at one point near Krasnodar, some 65 miles from the Black sea coast, forcing Soviet troops to fall back to a new line of defence.

The information bureau said the Russians had retreated only under heavy pressure of superior numbers after throwing back attack after attack. Once, it declared, large Nazi infantry and tank forces pierced the Soviet lines and wedged deeply into the defences but were thrown back after desperate fighting.

More than 300 Nazis were reported slain in this engagement. Heavy fighting also was reported continuing in the Maikop oil fields south of Krasnodar, where a Nazi spearhead is pointed at the Black sea port of Tuapse.

The German column thrusting toward Grozy was reported last night to have reached Mineralnye Vody, only 24 hours after breaking through the Soviet defences a Cherkessk, 50 miles to the west.

While the mid-day communique referred to continued fighting around Mineralnye Vody, indicating there had been no marked change in the lines there overnight, the Russians said they were greatly outnumbered and the situation appeared grave.

Mineralnye Vody is less than 175 air miles from the Caspian sea, although the distance to the coast via the railway passing through Grozny is nearly 225 miles.

Forty miles south of Mineralnye Vody lies the railway junction of Prokhladnaya, whence a spur line branching off to the southeast leads to Ordzhonikidze, a city of some 113,000.

Another Spearhead Clipped

The midnight communique indicated German attempts to push beyond Krasnodar were being frustrated, reporting the Nazis lost more than 3,000 men and 70 tanks in futile assaults upon the Soviet lines.

Russian artillery was credited with destroying two bridges which the enemy succeeded in throwing across an important river on their line of advance (presumably the Kuban.)

Heavy fighting was also reported on the approaches to Stalingrad in the Don river elbow, where the Russians said yesterday the Germans were massing vast numbers of men in apparent preparation for a new offensive against the stubbornly-defended industrial centre of the Volga.

At Kletskaya, 75 miles northwest of Stalingrad, the Russians said their troops were greatly outnumbered but were holding their own. Near Kotelnikovski, 95 miles southwest of Stalingrad, they said Soviet counter attacks had driven the Germans back at one point.

On the Upper Don Russian troops were reported to have routed a German infantry division and captured a populated place.

The Russians also announced gains in the Bryansk sector, 220 miles southwest of Moscow, where they said they had crossed a river and driven the Germans from several localities, and northwest of Moscow, where they reported they had occupied a town the Nazis had held for more than a year.

The Red Navy was credited with sinking an enemy submarine in the Gulf of Finland and three transports totalling 20,000 tons in the Barents Sea.

R.A.F. Raiders Steal German Car For A Ride Home

Fighting in the Libyan desert has developed a new type of paratrooper, according to Sergeant Pilot Bert Coles, 22-year-old member of the Royal Canadian Air Force who returned recently from a year and a half of operational flying in the Middle East. His home is at 108 Edgewood avenue, Toronto.

One night, he said, a bomber went over the enemy's lines carrying four men, who baled out near a spot where they knew an enemy airfield to be located. They carried a number of special bombs bearing time fuses.

The four men destroyed twenty-seven enemy planes that night, then walked back to their own lines. A week later they made a similar attack on the same field, destroying twenty-three more enemy machines by placing a bomb in each.

But before the second trip they had decided it was too much trouble walking back to their own lines, and arranged for a comrade to pick them up.

This man approached the enemy's sector, stole an auto which, he drove on to the field where the machines were burning, and departed again with the four who had destroyed the planes.

Sergeant Coles, himself a veteran of twenty-three operational flights in Blenheim bombers, tells another story of a Royal Air Force pilot who was shot down in the desert, stole a small German tank and drove up to his own mess that night.

"We are all taught a little bit about tanks when we were in the desert," Cole said. "This chap evidently knew something about them, too, and we certainly were surprised when this German tank drew up in front of the mess."

The young Toronto airman enlisted in July, 1940, attended initial training school at Regina, did his elementary flying at Hamilton, and graduated with his wing from service school at Brantford. Leaving for overseas in February, 1941, he went to an operational training unit in Britain, then to a Blenheim bomber outfit.

GRADUATES TODAY

In the list of Canadian and New Zealand Air Gunners graduating today at Mountain View, Bombing and Gunnery School, is the name of E. H. Alderson of Peterborough. His rank on graduation is Sergeant Air Gunner.

GETS HIS WINGS.

Bert Bethune, a former Peterborough boy, received his wings as a sergeant-pilot at Camp Borden on Thursday. He is the son of Mrs. E. Bethune, who is now living in Scotland, and the late Robert Bethune, a veteran of the South African and World Wars.

WHAT HAPPENED?

Shortly after 1.30 p.m. Thursday an alarm was turned into the Fire Department from an apartment on George Street above the United Cigar Store. Before their arrival considerable smoke was reported drifting out of one of the windows. When the trucks and the equipment arrived the firemen hurried inside but in spite of their diligent searching, could not find a trace of anything that looked like smoke. So after hanging around for a few minutes they went back to the station leaving instructions to call them again if there was any sign of smoke.

PEGS ARE DOWN

Stakes have been pegged for the new south fence of Canadian General Electric Company. The city sold a strip along the entire north side of Albert street, four feet wide tapering to a peak at Monaghan Road. Alparka lads who pretend to know something for sure are predicting that the next pegs will be along the north side of Chamberlain street. They have nothing definite about all that expansion, but that is their expectations, and they even believe a big office building will replace the chocolate milk site, and siding will be laid into the property directly from the C.P.R. It may be, of course, that some of the informants have got hold of a shot of marijuana. It is just gossip by lads who says they have material basis for prophecy.

FOR SPITFIRE FUND

Peterborough's contribution to the second Canadian Police Spitfire Fund was increased today when a cheque was received for $25 from the Peterborough Unemployed and Workers' Association. This is the fifth donation of $25 that has been made by the organization.

OSHAWA MAN FINED

Allowing a person who did not possess a drivers' license or chauffeur's permit to operate his automobile cost James Moore of Oshawa a fine of $10 and $2.50 costs when he entered a plea of guilty before Magistrate R. B. Baxter, K.C. The charge was laid by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure.

VETERANS WANTED

Lt. G. P. Brook, and two corporals of the Veterans' Guard are in the city for the next three days seeking recruits for the Veterans Guard. The corps needs 25 men at once from this district and any war veteran wishing to enlist is urged to report at the Armouries between 9 to 12 in the morning, 2 to 4.30 in the afternoon or from 7 to 9 at night.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGED

As the result of a recent accident on Highway 28, Maxwell James Tully, R.R. 3, North Monaghan is facing a charge of reckless driving laid against him by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure. The case was to have been heard this morning but was adjourned for a week when Sergt. G. T. Puffer explained that Tully had been injured and was unable to be here today.

REMANDED IN CUSTODY

After a local man had pleaded guilty in police court this morning to having been drunk on Gilchrist street yesterday Inspector J. F. Reid told the court that the accused had been drinking for a month and suggested that he be remanded for a while in custody. Magistrate Baxter, accordingly ordered a remand until Monday.

Mrs. J. Thornton Wins Neck-piece

Cash prizes failed to interest many boys and girls on Thursday evening, and a disappointing number of entries turned out for the decorated bicycle parade staged by the Peterborough Lions Club, as an opening feature for their annual Carnival.

A huge crowd turned out for the parade and the carnival and all games, booths and the merry-go-round were well patronized. J. E. Girven, retiring president of the Lions, who along with Victor Gallon, is in charge of the show, voiced appreciation for the splendid support.

Alderman James Dutton in making the draw at 11 o'clock for the ladies fur neckpiece, spoke in tribute to the Lions Club for the fine service they are doing in the community. The winning ticket was held by Mrs. Jack Thornton, 774 Armour road. Friday evening the draw will be for a bicycle, and on Saturday night, for a 1942 Chevrolet car.

The booster prize of ten dollars, given at 8.30 each evening was won by Mrs. Janet Laing, 3 Burnham Court. To qualify for this extra prize money, citizens must clip the coupon from the Examiner, deposit it in the box on the grounds and be on the grounds when the ticket is drawn.

Judging of the bicycle contest was done by Mrs. J. H. Vernor, Mrs. Paige Rowell, and Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner.

The prize-winners were as follows: 1st prize, $10.00, Jack Storey, 520 Sherbrooke street; 2nd, $5.00, Carol Corner, Western avenue; 3rd, $3.00, Terry Graham, 229 Edinburgh st.; 4th, $2.00, Helen Dummitt, 570 Romaine street; 5th, $1.00, Maureen Ann Fletcher, 213 Dalhousie street.

The judging was done on the basis on sale of stamps, that is the float which best told the story of why we should buy stamps was given the award.

During the evening, Miss Canada, as represented by Miss Mary Yelland, sold War Savings Stamps on the grounds, and other girls will take part tonight and on Saturday night, educating citizens to the unusual need for purchasing war savings stamps at this time.

Careless Driving Charge Is Dismissed

Evidence of John Laroche, New Chamberlain street, and his daughter that his car had never left his yard at any time on Civic Holiday, August 3, was enough to secure the dismissal of a charge of careless driving against Laroche in police court this morning.

The accused who was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair was charged with having been guilty of careless driving at the intersection of Charlotte and Bethune streets on Civic Holiday. F. D. Kerr, K.C., Acting Crown Attorney, prosecuted the case.

The only evidence for the Crown was given by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. He testified that at noon on Civic Holiday he had been walking west on the north side of Charlotte street and when he reached the Bethune street intersection, a car came from the south side of Charlotte street, cut the corner, passed over part of the Conger Coal Company property and then continued north on Bethune street without stopping.

"I had to step back quickly or I would have been hit," said Mr. Gordon. "There were a number of children ahead of me and the car passed between them and myself."

Mr. Gordon saiad that he had taken down the number of the car on a cigarette box and afterwards reported it to the police.

Laroche, he said, looked like the driver of the car, although he said he could not identify him positively.

"You are not a constable?" asked Mr. Fair in cross-examination.

"I am just a citizen," was the reply.

"You are more than a citizen; you are an alderman," said Mr. Fair.

"Were you reading a paper at the time?" asked the witness.

"I was not," replied Mr. Gordon. "I don't mind telling you that I have not read the morning paper for some time."

"You have been in the habit of making complaints?" Mr. Fair said.

"When people bring matters to my attention I refer them to the Board of Works or the police department," replied Mr. Gordon.

"You have complained about these Rotary cars on the street."

"No," replied the witness. "I have complained sometimes when cars from out-of-town have come in and parked all day while tickets were being sold."

Laroche swore that he had remained at home all day Civic Holiday and that his car had never left his yard and his evidence in that respect was corroborated by a daughter.

Magistrate Baxter asked Laroche who had supplied the information that Mr. Gordon had been reading a newspaper and Mr. Fair explained that there had been an incident at the corner of Bethune and Charlotte streets on July 23 in which Mr. Gordon was concerned. "We expected we might have to meet that charge to-day.

"We are not interested in what happened on the 22nd," remarked Mr. Kerr.

Magistrate Baxter then dismissed the charge against Laroche, pointing out that Mr. Gordon had not identified him as the driver and that there was the evidence of two witnesses that Laroche's car had not been near Charlotte and Bethune streets on the day mentioned in the charge.

Oil Burners Remain In Local Homes

Fuel men and plumbers agree that householders taking a chance on retaining their oil burners for winter heating are probably within the borders of safety.

Predictions seven or eight months ago that an imminent oil shortage was forcing the government to warn the public to switch back to coal have been favorably revised during the last week or two, and the big prospective job of converting furnaces has fallen through.

Peterborough householders accepted with good grace the official directions that oil would be scarce next winter, and as a precaution the grates should be put back in the furnaces for coal fires.

As summer approached the feeling of necessity and emergency abated, and intimations went out through the heating trade and other channels that tacit approval was leaning to those homes which were going to take a chance on getting oil. And that meant virtually all of them in this city and also up and down the province.

News from Ottawa this week should be greatly reassuring to the oil burning householders.

"By extraordinary measures vast quantities of fuel oil are now being transported daily to the east coast section of the United States, where temporary rationing is in effect," says one news source.

"Last week 67,000 railway tank cars were carrying oil eastward from oilfields, and delivering up to 807,000 barrels daily. In addition some 40,000 barrels are being delivered daily by pipe lines and barges. This comes close to the entire East Coast which is estimated at 1,300,000 barrels daily. The deficit, oil men say, can be efficiently convoyed by the United States and Royal navies."

According to estimates of the Petroleum Industries War Council there will be a surplus of 4,000,000 barrels of oil in the Eastern States for August and a 5,000,000 surplus for September, unless unforeseen developments occur. The expected surplus is 10,000,000 barrels for October, November and December.

On the other hand the Petroleum Council expects an oil deficit in the first three months of 1943 of 35,000,000 barrels. The point out that the U.S. Government is paying subsidies for the moving of oil products to the East Coast by rail and that scores of new tankers have been built and launched.

Mess Room Chatter From Britain

By LOUIS HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, Aug. 13—(CP).—When it comes to tangling with enemy fighters, Halifax bombers of a Canadian squadron can give as well as take it.

Two young Canadians, Sgts. Johnny Karleef of Toronto and Bob Macdonald of Shawinigan Falls, Que.—both making their second operational trip—were in the crew of a Halifax that beat off the attacks of two fighters, destroying one. A few minutes after the attack by the Junkers an ME-109 went after the bomber.

"He thought we were a sitter," Macdonald laughed. "He soon found out there was plenty of life in our limping kite. Our rear gunner, who had shot down the Junkers, gave him a single burst from his four guns, and drove him off."

The Halifax, with more than 30 holes in the fuselage, came home on two engines.

Flt. Sgt. Sid Back, 23-year-old Jewish navigator from Toronto, doesn't let little things like Flak interfere with his bomb aiming. In two sorties he laid sticks of bombs right across enemy ships and damaged one "very seriously." Damage to the second ship has not yet been announced.

Back is attached to an R.A.F. Hudson squadron of Coastal Command. He navigated a Catalina flying boat from Canada in October, 1941.

Two days after a Canadian Spitfire squadron got its first Jerry, there was another "bunch of excitement" that had nothing to do with the air war.

The squadron medical officer, Flt. Lt. R. G. Cadham of Winnipeg received word he had become a father.

Flt. Lt. Cadham, a veteran of the First Great War, played hockey for Winnipeg Victorias who won the Allan Cup way back when. He was provincial bacteriologist for Manitoba and professor at Manitoba Medical College.

U.S. Pilot Drowns

MIDLAND, Ont., Aug. 14.—(CP). Royal Canadian Air Force officials said to-day a United States pilot was the only man killed in the crash of a plane four miles northeast of here in Georgian Bay yesterday. Identity of the airman could not be revealed, pending notification of next of kin.

Fishermen were said to have seen the plane stunting and flying low before the crash, but R.C.A.F. officials said the pilot was not stunting, but doing flying sequence. Cause of the crash is unknown.

Mayor Hamilton Lauds Housing Project

Mayor James Hamilton today commented favorably upon the recent statement made in the House of Commons by the Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minuister of Finance, who announced the continuation of the National Housing Act.

"Because of the housing shortage in the city the Council has been interested in urging the encouragement of private home building," said the Mayor. "Hon. Mr. Ilsley states the Government is not only continuing the National Housing Act but also the Home Improvement loan plan in order to assist owners to turn larger houses into two-family dwellings"

"Local builders who have prospects who have been considering erecting a home for themselves in order to solve their own housing problem should immediately get active in view of Hon. Mr. Ilsley's statement," continued the Mayor.

Salient features in the Finance Minister's statement regarding home building were:

"I have recommended an increase in the appropriation available for the National Housing Act in order to assist in financing the construction of small permanent houses in congested urban areas where a serious housing shortage exists and where permanent houses can be built without threatening to create a post-war surplus and where it can be shown that "by the use of building materials which are non-essential for war purposes, or by the use of building lots already serviced by local improvements, an actual saving in labor and essential war materials can be effected through the construction of permanent homes rather than those built by Wartime Housing." The supplementary estimates which are about to be brought down will contain an appropriation of $1,000,000 for this purpose.

For Duplexes.

"In addition, we propose to carry out the recommendation of the committee for an extension or revival of the home improvement plan in order to increase the supply of housing units by the conversion of existing large houses into two and three-family apartments. The supplementary estimates will include an item which will authorize me to guarantee loans made by approved lending institutions to finance such conversion operations in congested urban areas. The aggregate of these loans will be limited to $2,000,000 and the guarantee to be given to each approved lending institution will be limited to 15 per cent of the loans made by such lending institution."

Regarding raising the limits of the National Housing Act, Mr. Ilsley explained a new policy, stating:

"This policy permits a borrower to take advantage of the 90 per cent. loan provision even if his home is eventually to cost an amount in excess of $2,500. In order to reduce the first cost he may omit some of the equipment; he may leave certain parts of the house unfinished; or he may avoid other items of expense which may be incurred later when the necessary building materials and equipment become available. We believe this to be a sound policy, particularly where the items omitted involve the use of some of the scarcer metals. The operation of this policy will reduce the first cost of a small house to the point where it may be eligible for a 90 per cent. loan, thus conserving scarce materials and labor and making it possible for the family of small income to finance the construction of a small house."

Canned Fruits Require Least Sugar

A six quart leno (heaped) basket of peaches weighing 9¾ pounds requires 7 1-3 pounds of sugar for jams and jellies and only 4¾ pounds for canning, and will produce approximately five pints of the preserved fruit.

This is one of the advisory facts in bulletin of Wartime Prices and Trade Board which assumes a neutral position as between two problems, conserving the supply of sugar and preventing waste of the big crop of fruit.

The Food Administration is primarily concerned with restricting the use of sugar to a minimum and it is not encouraging a maximum amount of home canning. At the same time the Sugar Administrator recognizes the conserving of domestic fruits for winter use in a year of tin restrictions.

"I also think the question of making jams and jellies by the pectin method should be played down as this means the use of a maximum amount of sugar in relation to fruit.

The government encourages home canning of fruits by allowing extra sugar on the following basis:

Pectin method—1¼ pounds of sugar for every pound of fruit to be used in making jams and jellies with added pectin.

To buy sugar for canning the purchaser must sign a voucher, stating the purpose for which the sugar is to be used, and giving the number of the ration card. All grocers have these voucher forms. It is not necessary to purchase sugar and fruit at one time as some fruit may be home grown, bought in markets or picked as wild fruit....

Packs of commercial fruits are restricted owing to lack of tin, and home canning helps supplement the commercial pack. Home canning eliminates delivery and distribution costs.

Half Pound Ample

The half pound allowance is sufficient for canning fruit. Sugar is not needed to keep foods from spoiling. It helps fruit to hold its color and gives flavor. The heat and time processes are important to keeping qualities.

Fruits canned without sugar need longer processing. They can be used for pies and puddings.

No allowance is made for home pickling. Pickles have a low food value. They add interest and flavor only to meals. If desired they may be sweetened with other sweetening agents such as corn syrup."

These are a few quotations from an official bulletin which is presumably an appeal to women in the homes to use the conserving method which requires the least quantity of sugar.

Here's another example: a six-quart flat basket of plums weighing 6¾ pounds calls for five pounds of sugar for jams and jellies and 3 1-3 pounds for canning, and will produce about 4 points of fruit.

Crabapples—six quart flat basket; five pounds of sugar for jams and jellies and 3 1-3 pounds for canning, yielding approximately five pints.

The information is published for the attention of women who desire to "do down" various fruits now at the peak of their season, for the long winter season. One salient fact is that the canning process recommends itself to those women who desire to co-operate by using a minimum of sugar.

Taking No Chances

LUNENBURG, N.S., Aug. 14.—(CP).—Tancook Islanders don't take chances with anyone who might be an Axis saboteur landing on their Mahon Bay Island. A party of Norwegians from the military camp here found that out the other day.

While cruising in a sailboat, the party landed on Tancook, and to their surprise they were rounded up and made prisoners. Royal Canadian Mounted Police were notified, and the men were taken back to Lunenburg and released when their identity was established.

MISSED AGAIN

One resident of the West End hasn't been getting much sleep for about a week, since the household has been invaded by an uninvited guest, named a bat. This gentleman goes after this intruder in a very organized fashion. Every evening around 10 or 11 he draws up a comfortable arm chair and gets all set with a tennis racquet at his side and settles down just waiting for Mr. Bat to poke his nose out, and when he does, there are some wild slashes made with the instrument of vengeance. So far we regret to report, that the odds are all in Mr. Bat's favour. —J.S.

Hundreds More Blood Donors Are Required

Are you anxious to do something further as a war effort—something that can be done by all healthy citizens who want to serve in some capacity and do not know how, give to your country a small portion of your own blood for overseas.

The Army, the Navy and the Air Force want blood plasma for transfusions at the scene of battle. The number of donors allotted to Peterborough is 2,000 and as yet not nearly enough have volunteered.

The Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic has been established in Peterborough with complete equipment and staff of doctors and nurses in an endeavour to secure from the city and district the amount of blood for overseas that we are expected to produce here. Only about fifteen per cent. of what is required is being shipped. Blood is taken from healthy persons between the ages of 18 and 55 years and no healthy person need be deterred from this life-saving gift by fears of harmful after-effects. The doctors in the blood donor centres know whom to take and whom to reject.

Hundreds of men in factories, offices and stores have already become blood donors, but we want hundreds more. Let your wartime effort for the time being be that of a blood donor. It is a gift, which, unlike money, unlike time or even work, is a part of yourself. A gift most literally from your heart, straight to the heart of another—to an Allied soldier, sailor or airman who may live to help save all you count precious in this world because you took one simple, generous step to help save him.

The Blood Donor Clinic is situated at 135 Brock street, just east of George street, phone 8284. Drop in and register as a blood donor and it will be greatly appreciated. Peterborough Branch Canadian Red Cross.

School Children Hold Bazaar For War Victims

The splendid work that children are doing to help the victims of air raids over Britain through the city and district fund which operates solely on their behalf, continues to feature the many and varied activities which have been carried on for that purpose. During this week no less than four different efforts have already been reported, and today this is followed by an effort by three girls, Mavis Alexander, Ethel Fine and Ruth Fine, who held a bazaar in conjunction with a draw for a large toy bunny at 551 King street, residence of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Alexander, where they sold candy, pastry and lemonade, together with a fish pond which in all netted the sum of $8.35, which is listed in their name today. The prize on this particular occasion was won by Mrs. English, 209 Margaret Ave. This marks two days in a row, when children of Mr. and Mrs. A. Fine have been credited with working on behalf of the fund.

The box at the Capitol Theatre has once more come through with quite a sizable donation for this type of fund activity, this time the amount being $11.85, maintaining the leadership that the boxes at all three Theatres have been giving.

Two personal donations are listed, both of whom have been very steady contributors to the fund, with Mrs. William Shannon, who has had a son serving in the active forces in England for some time now, making the usual monthly contribution of $3.00.

Children's Bazaar

Another effort by children will take place this Saturday at 588 George street, the residence of Gordon and Gary Gilders, who will be assisted by Donna Marie Munro, where they will have a booth for the sale of home-made cooking, flowers and apples on behalf of the fund. These children have been working for some time, and through the sale of salvage which they collected from the neighbors have already got over $5.00 on hand towards the donation they will be making at the conclusion of the effort this Saturday.

Sodium Fluoride Suggested As Ant Killer

Members of the wartime housing colony up on Park Hill Road have been having the same difficulty with red aunts as the people in many other places in Ontario. Mr. Stan Longhurst of the Wartime Housing said that he had received some kind of a solution and was passing it out to all those who reported having trouble. Those who have used it have not been heard of since, so they believe that it is working satisfactorily.

A recent article in the Horticulture and Home magazine explained that a common and troublesome household ant is the tiny redish-yellow Pharaoh's ant, which originated in the tropics, but is now widespread in Canada. According to the authorities of the Department of Agriculture, Science Service, the most satisfactory material for destroying ants is sodium fluoride, sold by drug stores in a fine white powder. This should be blown with a dust gun or similar appliance in places where the ants occur and should not be removed until the ants have disappeared. But this is a poison and should not be exposed in places to which children and pets have access.

Another method used is that of a poisoned-bait trap. This is made by punching several holes in a tin can with a light lid and placing in it a small piece of sponge and a quantity of syrup prepared by mixing four ounces of sugar and one ounce of honey in one-half pint of hot water and adding one-half gram of sodium arsenite. The worker ants are attracted to this and carry it home to the nests and thus the whole colony is wiped out. In preparing this bait though it must be remembered that sodium arsenite is very poisonous to human beings.

Rotary Plans To Support Aid Cadet Unit

Mayor Hamilton received today a letter from two boys, Peter L. Green and Bob W. Morris.

"As boys of this fair city of Peterborough we were wondering whether it would be possible to organize a branch of the Air Cadet League here," they wrote in part. "This would be an education project for the air-minded boys of Peterborough if it was possible."

In reply to his young correspondents, Mayor Hamilton wrote that he had been informed to the effect that the Rotary Club had decided to sponsor an Air Cadet League in this city, and the details of organization would be announced one of these days.

Children Are Warned To Complete Education

Parents who have children around fifteen and sixteen years of age are facing something of a problem in a number of cases now in the matter of education. Children of this age have been set afire with youth's flaming zeal and patriotic fervor and are aching to do their bit, and sitting in a "dull schoolroom" learning Latin and Geomerty doesn't seem to be worth while. Every boy and girl wants to get out and get a job on war work.

Now it is certainly true that it is a vital necessity to release men from war work for military service, but those in authority do not wish to deprive youth of a most necessary training, at least the situation has not reached such a point at the present time. Employers willingly make use of children during their vacation and those who have been helping on the farm have been doing a marvellous job.

Not only is there the idea of patriotism, but also the desire to get out on their own and start earning a living. What the young people of this age do not realize is that they are losing something that in a few years they will realize has grown into a great handicap. There is the odd person who although no longer at school continues to study in one form or another and so keeps on enlarging his or her knowledge, but after spending a hard day at work, there are not many who feel like sitting down to begin a mental struggle.

At fifteen and sixteen these youngsters have just approached the threshold of the growing-up period and all life lies before them in a glorious panorama. They have no worries and responsibilities and the world is their oyster. Things come easily and the future looks rosy. But in a short time they all have to learn the lesson, sometimes rather painfully that growing-up brings with it definite responsibilities and opportunities that they should have been preparing themselves to meet, and if they have broken school ties so abruptly and been thrust into the hustle and bustle of the business world, it is sometimes too big a gap to bridge.

This is the parents' problem. How to make these young men and women realize the necessity for learning as much as possible no matter what work they may be undertaking. No person can ever reach the stage where they have too much knowledge to be of use. Moreover, you can never afford to stop learning. The men who are at the top in any line of endeavor, and who are really successful, not just an intimation of success all tell the same story and that is that the more they know, the more they realize they have to keep on learning.

To be sure the school of life is a training in itself, but that is doing it the hard way. No matter how one prepares oneself life hands out some wallops and strict discipline, but the man who has prepared himself to some extent beforehand has a much better chance of standing up under the pressure than the one who has forged blindly ahead.

It would be wise if children discussed their problem fully with their parents before committing themselves to any action whereby they are losing something of inestimable value. It isn't easy to be patient pouring over books and doing homework when army and industry hold such a strong attraction, but a year or two extra to obtain something that may mean the difference between failure and success in later life, is a short time to spend, even though it appears endless.

The future of this country is going to rest on the youth of today and they need everything they can get to develop them into thoughtful citizens capable of meeting and carrying their responsibilities, and its rests with the parents how well prepared their children are going to be and how they will measure up.

Fall Hat Styles Reported Little Quieter

The men can take a deep breath and relax for the new fall hats, at the present time anyway are of a more conservative style with only the odd pillbox or goofy bunch of flowers in sight. The thing this fall is felt, no more nor no less and clerks say that there has not been a great deal of change in their stock due to the war restrictions.

The most popular style seems to be the wide-brimmed Stetson which has brims of varying widths, all wide. They are severely tailored and present an alluring and smart appearance. There are very few smaller hats, but the odd one crops up and usually has a wisp of veiling attached. That is another point, there do not seem to be nearly the number of veils that have been so prevalent in the last few seasons.

The colour range is fairly well restricted. There are a great many navy and dark green hats predominating, along with a few bright red and green that are extremely sirenish. Brown is another popular shade and while black is always good, it is not as prominent as the others in the colour scheme. There are a few too in pale blue shades that are most attractive.

A tailored Stetson can always add that last finished touch to a very smart outfit and it looks well with almost any type of outfit that is not too dressy. Not only that, but they wear for years and if given a reasonable amount of care keep their shape beautifully when carried over from one season to another. Now is the time that women shoppers must buy with a view have durability.

Girl Chauffeurs Appeal To Men Women Cautious

By HAZEL DEAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Aug. 14 (CP)—"One of those women drivers," they used to say—a bit derisively or maybe sympathetically—when there was a traffic jam or anything else interrupting the course of smooth motoring.

But that was before the war. Motorists today have good reason to question stories about helpless women drivers. The women filling wartime positions as service station attendants and chauffeurs in downtown parking lots have learned to do a man's job with confidence and skill.

Officials of one large store, employing women in parking service say the girls are better drivers than men. "Customers need have no apprehension when they entrust their cars to our girls. They are more careful than the men ever were." Each "parker" has her chauffeur's licence and is an experienced driver. They receive preliminary training in the company garage where they practice car placement and learn to drive to and from various floor levels on steep ramps. Besides being skilful drivers, members of the parking service staff must be courteous and well-groomed. They wear trim brown uniforms.

Customer Opinion

What does Mr. and Mrs. Motorist think of these women chauffeurs? Officials say the idea appealed to the men from the start. "But the women were a bit reluctant to hand their cars over to the girls at first. Apparently they didn't trust other women drivers very far."

Feminine service station attendants caused a stir when they took over their wartime jobs. But it did not take them long to prove their ability to "man" gasoline pumps and change customers' oil.

Pleased with the girls' success one company now employs nearly 30 women attendants in its stations in Toronto alone. Many are high school graduates and some are university students working during school holidays.

Young women replacing men as service station attendants must be handy with duster and broom. Keeping the station tidy is one of the attendants' big problems.

And how about the check-up jobs? Yes, my boy, they are learning to do that too.

For Saturday, August 15.

A DAY of high adventure and possible commotion and glamor are indicated by the unusual auguries based on lunar and mutual operations. There may be sudden, breath-taking and whirlwind developments of an unpredictable nature, these having a far-reaching effect on the future and its good fortune. It is probable that thrilling romance or dramatic adventure may give great spur to emotions and ambitions, as well as to creative urges expressed in an out of the ordinary channel. However, there are hazards and temptations demanding vigilance, self-restraint and a measure of composure and poise, in the most vivid moments as there is hint of intrigue or sinister entanglements.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter if not thrillingly enjoy a year of spectacular, exciting, adventurous and romantic events, with the faculties and forces keyed up to dramatic experiences or exceptional accomplishments. It may be a time of surprising and unpredictable visitation, having much influence in shaping the future destiny and fortune. If not a romantic or emotional circumstance, these energies may be expressed in a stroke of creative genius in art, drama or literature.

A child born on this day should have unique, audacious, sensational and curious experiences in both its romantic and creative life.

GIRL WANTS TO BE TAUGHT HOW TO WRITE LOVE LETTERS

Many An Enamored Woman Wishes She Had Never Learned to Write.

A YOUNG girl asks me whether I will tell her how to write a love letter. Good Heavens, no! A thousand times no! I would just as soon teach her how to commit hara-kiri or aid and abet her in perpetrating any other crime as to furnish her with a recipe for smearing her heart on paper.

For of all the follies that girls ever commit, of all the things they do that they blush to remember and passionately regret, of all the messes they get themselves into, their old love letters lead the rest. Many and many a woman has wished that she never had learned to write, and envied the flirtatious heroine in one of Rhoda Broughton's novels who boasted that whatever she may have said to men not one of them had a line of her handwriting.

Would that all girls followed this noble example of prudence and did their spooning by word of mouth, or over the telephone, or by telegraph or radio, which do not encourage gushing sentimentalities as does a sheet of white paper, nor leave a permanent record of how idiotic a girl can be.

For some unknown reason letter-writing is a peculiarly feminine vile. Ink goes to a woman's head like strong drink, and when she sits down before a desk and takes pen in hand she becomes just as irresponsible as any drunkard for what she does and says.

The younger she is, the more intoxicated she gets. She throws caution to the wind and lets herself go an a sentimental jag. She writes boys whom she scarcely knows and for whom she does not care a rap, how she adores them and that life is a howling wilderness without them. She entreats them to return and save her from perishing from a broken heart, though she doesn't care whether she ever sees them again. She is even besotted enough to repeat what she considered romantic details of petting parties, and she signs herself "Your loving ane," or "Your World Without End Devoted Sally," or "Your blue-eyed Susan."

Not Genuine Affection

Now these letters would be bad enough, goodness knows, if they were the genuine outpourings of affection from a girl who was in the grip of a great passion, but nine times out of ten they are no such thing. They are the vaporings of a sentimental school girl who is imagining she is her favorite movie actress and is repeating some of the sizzling avowals of love that Greta Garbo or Myrna Loy made in their great scenes.

And this poor little nitwit who is sending this impassioned document off to some boy she has never even seen, or perhaps to her screen idol, doesn't realize the portent of what she is doing or how cheap she is making herself.

Nor does she stop to consider what becomes of those love letters she writes so blithely. Perhaps she imagines that the boy regards them as a sacred treasure and keeps them tied up with blue ribbon and sleeps with them under his pillow. If she does, she knows little of boy or masculine nature. If he is a cad, he shows them around to prove what a devil he is among the girls.

Some Used For Blackmail

If he is merely careless, as most men are, he leaves them around in bureau drawers and coat pockets for his mother and sisters and house maids to read and giggle over. Worse still, if he is unprincipled, he uses them for blackmail, and many and many a father buys back at a high price the silly love letters his indiscreet daughter wrote to some scoundrel to whom she wasn't even engaged.

Some girls have the letter writing complex so badly that they not only write to a boy first, but if he doesn't answer their letters they write again and again. This is the worst possible technique to use in keeping his interest in them alive. It makes the girls seem too eager, for one thing and, it bores him to tears to be snowed under with letters that he doesn't want.

Few men are afflicted with pen paralysis, and if one wants to hear from a girl he takes the initiative in a correspondence. Furthermore, it is the letter he looked for but never comes that piques his interest and makes him want to find out what's happened to Sally.

So for these and a thousand other reasons I urge girls to be chary and choosy about writing letters. And, above all, never write to a boy anything more personal tran a discussion of the weather. I implore them when they are tempted to write love letters to sit on their hands until the impulse has passed.

Nazis Overhaul Spies

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(CP).—The Nazis have been forced to overhaul their intelligence and espionage system, disrupted by swift blows at German spies and fifth columnists in the United States and Latin America, according to Die Zeitung, Free German newspaper published in London.

"The supreme command of the German spy system now has been transferred to Hitler's headquarters from which agents' activities will be synchronized with military movements," the papers said, in an article reviewing the Nazi espionage network. Headquarters previously were centred in Berlin.

Popular People Charm by Their Manners

The Correct Thing at Movies

No wonder they like to go out together! Charming and well-mannered, each is sure that the other will do nothing awkward or embarrassing.

When it's time to leave she suggests "Shall we go?" (for that's up to the girl) and he steps into the aisle first, letting her precede him to the theatre lobby.

Taking a bus or a taxi, he precedes her too in alighting, so that he may assist her—and she lets him give her address to the taxi driver, for she knows the man plays host on a date.

That's why she's so popular—she's so utterly smooth. When given a compliment, she doesn't titter school-girl fashion, "Oh, go on!" She says simply, "Thank you" or perhaps "I'm glad you think so!"

At a dance she smiles graciously when a man cuts in, even though he's not her man of the moment. And after a dance she lets a man do the applauding, though she'll tell him that she enjoyed it, too.

You can learn these charming, correct manners. Our 32-page booklet has easy-to-remember rules for men and girls on dancing, dinner, theatre, game and party dates. Gives tips on introductions, telephone and office manners. Discusses petting.

Fortresses Waiting

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. — (CP.)— The BBC said yesterday United States' flying fortresses, manned by American crews, are waiting in Britain to raid Germany and "they'll be going any time now."

A BBC correspondent who has been visiting one of the airfields taken over by the U.S. Army Air Corps saw the fortresses lined up and talked to their crews. He said the Americans are all keen to be among the first United States units to raid Germany.

The broadcast was recorded by CBS.

Enough Teachers For Ontario

TORONTO, Aug. 13 (CP)—Dr. V. K. Greer, chief inspector of schools for Ontario, yesterday told members of the Canadian Teachers' Federation in convention here that a number of provisionally-qualified teachers would be permitted to teach in Ontario public schools this fall.

Dr. Greer explained only 20 of the teachers were without professional qualifications and no immature teachers would be permitted to enter schools. Officials of the department of education are planning to have inspectors and normal school teachers assist provisionally-qualified teachers in their work.

Three-hundred-and-eight schools with eight or less pupils have been closed in Ontario in keeping with a long-term policy carried out by the department, he said, adding the department was not asking trustees to close any school because of a shortage of teachers.

J. W. Noseworthy, C.C.F. member of parliament for York South told the federation a long step had been taken toward Dominion support of education by the recent passage of the Vocational Training Co-ordination Act.

He said a clause in the bill permits the Dominion Government to enter into an agreement under which it may share the entire costs of secondary school vocational training equally with the province.

"The Authority on Authorities"

FINESSING TWO HONORS

TRAPPING two non-touching honors by means of finessing usually requires a finesse against the lower honor on the first round and against the higher on the second round. When you hold the ace-queen-ten of a suit, with the opponents having plenty of guards to the king and jack, a lead to the ten is the normal first play, and to the queen later. This also applies if honors are split between your own hand and dummy, and you want to keep the defenders from getting a trick out of the guarded king-ten when you have the other important cards.

	♠ 5 2 ♥ J 8 6 2 ♦ K J 6 4 ♣ J 6 5
♠ A Q 7 3 ♥ A Q 5 ♦ 10 9 2 ♣ 10 9 2	N W E S	♠ J 9 8 6 ♥ K 10 4 ♦ A Q 7 ♣ A K Q
	♠ K 10 4 ♥ 9 7 3 ♦ 8 5 3 ♣ 8 7 4 3

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	5 NT	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	6 NT

East forgot one principle of play in the spade suit, after pulling himself into that risky contract, preferring No Trumps to spades because the game was match point duplicate, and he wanted the few extra points which a No Trump slam affords. He went wrong just as soon as it was possible to. After winning the club lead with the A, he led the spade 6, put on the Q from dummy, and was beaten right there.

Take note that the Q is part of the sequence of finessing against the higher of the two missing honors, the K. That is why it was the wrong play. It left South an "inside tenace" of the K-10 over the J-9. East returned to his hand with the heart K, then led the spade J. When South covered with the K, forcing the A, it left South with the high spade, the 10. East was able after that, by winning the diamond finesse, to take a total of 11 tricks, but then was beaten by the spade 9 and the third diamond.

If East had led the spade 9 to the first trick of that suit, prepared to finesse it against the 10, or the J, ready to finesse it, he would have given himself a good sound chance to make the contract, and would have succeeded, as the cards lay. To gain 12 tricks, he had to win two finesses in spades and one in diamonds, which is exactly what he could have done by playing spades correctly.

After the defenders take two spades and the heart A, and return the heart 10, how should South play this deal for 4-Hearts, doubled by East, who also had made three successive informative or takeout doubles during the auction?

Hun Not Freeing Vichy AA Crews

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Fighting French headquarters said today the Germans had rejected a Vichy plea for the release of 5,000 war prisoners for "special duties, ncluding he manning of anti-aircraft batteries at explosive factroies which are worknig for Germany."

A spokesman said the largest explosive plant is in occupied France at Bouges where "the spirit is very good from the Allied point of view.

The spokesman said the 1,000 war prisoners just returned by the Germans to France were middle-aged agricultural laborers, most of them with large families, who are less inclined to participate in anti-German activities than younger unencumbered men.

In the face of a German request for 350,000 French laborers to work in factories of the Reich, he said a report by the Comite Des Forges, large French industrialists' roganization, showed that only 20,000 had gone.

No Landing Signs Of U-Boat Crews

OTTAWA, Aug. 14. — (CP). — Navy Minister MacDonald said today that "neither our service nor the Royal Canadian Mounted Police nor the Quebec police have found any evidence of landings by U-boat crews on our shores."

The Minister was commenting at a press conference on rumors of landings by U-boat crews to purchase supplies and fuel.

There was no reason why a crew should want to land, said Mr. MacDonald. The submarines had a range of 15,000 or more miles and could carry supplies for a three months trip.

They had to return to Germany at short intervals, anyway, to rest the crews, since submarine work was a great strain on men. To make a landing would involve risk of loss of some men and risk of disclosing the position of the submarine.

Neither was there any evidence the submarines received supplies from fishing boats on the Grand Banks or from any other source on this side, he said. They did not need it.

Sketch On German Perfect Plan To Bomb Toronto

TORONTO, Aug. 14 (CP)—Flt. Lt. Dennis Witt, veteran of 65 flights over Germany and France in this war, described as a "perfect plan for a bombing attack on Toronto" a sketch of the Toronto terminals heating plant with its high stacks produced in county police court Wednesday.

Flt. Lt. Witt was testifying in the case of John Silvert Christiansen, who faces two charges under the Defence of Canada Regulations. Judgment was reserved until next Tuesday on one charge — that of having in his possession papers of value to the enemy—to which Christiansen had pleaded guilty to the other charge, failing to register as an enemy alien.

The flight lieutenant, who holds both the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Distinguished Flying Medal, said he had flown out over Lake Ontario and approached the city in a manner simulating a bombing attack making use of the sketch produced in court.

"If you went over the chimneys shown in the sketch.... You could bomb the parliament buildings," he said. "That is an ideal sketch for a surprise bombing attack."

A police guard at the terminal warehouse, Sam A. McIlroy, said he saw Christiansen making the sketch. "I grabbed the paper and he grabbed my wrist," he said. "The sketch got torn but I hung on to it. He got away on his bicycle."

At a previous hearing Aug. 8 a carbon copy of a letter allegedly sent by Christiansen to the German ministry of defence in Berlin was produced in court and Wednesday he admitted having written the letter. "Yes, I sent that," he said. The letter acompanied plans of a new type recoil rocket plane said to have been designed by Christiansen.

Truck-Driving Salesmen To Get "A" Ration Books

OTTAWA, Aug. 14—(CP)—Salesmen who drive trucks will be granted a category "A" gasoline ration book on the same basis as salesmen who drive passenger cars, it was announced yesterday by the Department of Munitions and Supply. Until now, all trucks have operated on commercial category ration books.

Recently James Stewart, services administrator of of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, issued an order prohibiting the use of a truck as a means of transportation of a salesman.

G. R. Cottrelle, oil controller, said yesterday salesmen thus deprived of light trucks for taking orders were seeking passenger cars to carry on their work.

"When we discovered this," added Mr. Cottrelle, "we decided to allow them category "A" books for such trucks, and we have reached an agreement with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board which will enable such salesmen to carry on.

"Under the new ruling the salesman who drives a truck will surrender his commercial ration book to the nearest regional office of the oil controller. In return he will receive a category "A" book. On receiving this book he may apply for a special permit from the nearest regional office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board."

Report District Crops Better Than Ever

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 14 (ENS) Forecasts of record crops in Northumberland are already coming true according to information coming from various parts of Seymour Township. Last Thursday Frank Heagle of Seymour East began threshing his crop of Banner oats at about three o'clock in the afternoon and by 6:30 the separator had poured out 900 bushels to give him an average yield of 75 bushels per acre. Even the potato crop is showing signs of exceeding that of recent years and George Lucy, who goes in for gardening on a fairly large scale, brought a sample of his produce to town this week. It was an Irish Cobbler that tipped the scale at eighteen ounces and measured 12½ inches around. Mr. Lucy put in half an acre of seed potatoes this spring and he hopes they will all be as big when he gets around to digging them.

Dodge Playboy Lies Near Death

DETROIT, August 14. — (AP) — Death approached today for John Duval Dodge, playboy son of the late multi-millionaire John F. Dodge as police investigated the escapade which led to his arrest and thence to a bed in a public hospital.

Unconscious for more than 24 hours, Dodge, 43, was being administered oxygen as receiving hospital where he had been taken following his collapse in a police station early yesterday. Dr. Donald M. Morrill, hospital superintendent, said Dodge had little chance to live.

Two policemen arrested Dodge in a Van Dyke place home at 3:30 a.m. yesterday after a neighbour reported she had seen a man pry a screen from a window of the home. At the police station Dodge collapsed and was removed to the hospital where he was found to be suffering from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Patrolman Alfred Arman, one of the arresting officers, said Dodge was intoxicated and could not explain his presence in the house beyond saying he was "a guest." Dodge himsel had opened the door to the officers.

"Dodge has been my good friend for 12 years," Lange said, "and can come to my home any time he wants to whether I'm there or not."

Miss Heagle, who is vice-president of the W.M.S., presided for this portion of the meeting in the absence of Mrs. John Rannie, and the balance of the program included a prayer by Mrs. Allie Parr, reading by Marilyn Thompson; vocal solo, Miss Muriel Heagle; reading, Joyce Spencer; prayer by Mrs. John Thompson.

Mrs. Percy Oddie was in charge of the W.A. meeting which each month is held in connection with the W.M.S. There was some discussion of fall activities of the Branch, but in view of constantly changing conditions the members decided to postpone any definite planning until their September meeting. Arrangements for obtaining a supply of quilt patches with a view to quilting for the Red Cross were discussed and it is anticipated that a quilting program will be commenced at the next meeting.

227 GAS STATIONS SHUT TAKING LOOSE COUPONS

TORONTO, Aug. 15 (CP)—Two hundred and twenty-seven gasoline stations in four large Canadian cities were closed yesterday and today for infraction of oil control regulations, it was announced this morning by Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle.

Stations closed included 96 in Montreal, 59 in Toronto, 37 in Vancouver and 35 in Winnipeg. They will be allowed to reopen at a later date, a spokesman for Mr. Cottrelle indicated.

A statement issued by Mr. Cottrelle said the stations were padlocked by police because they had accepted loose gasoline ration coupons or coupons issued for cars other than those supplied with gasoline.

"We are determined that infractions of the rationing regulations shall stop at once," said Mr. Cottrelle. "The 227 stations closed up today will be allowed to reopen. If any of these commit a second offence they will be denied the right to sell petroleum products for three months. A third offence will mean closure for the duration of the war."

A statement described the action as the "biggest enforcement sweep since wartime regulations went into effect," and said that each service station operator was served with a special order from the Oil Controller which forbids him having any dealings in petroleum products until further notice.

On one Montreal street for a distance of 17 miles not one station was open this afternoon, the Oil Controller's office said.

Mr. Cottrelle warned persons in possession of loose gasoline ration coupons to send them at once to the nearest regional office of the oil controller before Aug. 22.

"Enforcement officers are on the watch throughout Canada," he said. "If anyone is found to have loose coupons after Aug. 22 he will be denied the privilege of buying gasoline and, under certain circumstances, may be prosecuted."

A check on several of the local gas stations revealed to the Examiner that as yet there has been no action taken regarding the closing of any station in this city due to collecting loose gas coupons and others not belonging to the car obtaining the gas.

British Get 10 Hun Planes In Convoy Fight

CAIRO, Aug. 15—(AP).—The participation of United States army fighter pilots in combat over the Western desert was announced today as the R.A.F. disclosed that at least 10—probably more—Axis planes were shot down during the enemy attack on a big Mediterranean convoy this week.

The United States fighter pilots went into action with the R.A.F. yesterday amid an intensification of air fighting since Thursday.

In that period at least 12 enemy planes were shot down by Allied fighters, including two German transport planes carrying Axis personnel to Africa.

Fighters accompanying the ground-strafing bombers shot down one ME-109 and long-range R.A.F. fighters sent two JU-52's flaming into the Mediterranean.

Of the air-sea battle, the communique said:—

"During the shipping convoy operations in the Mediterranean August 13 to 14 our fighters shot down at least 10 enemy aircraft.

"Reports still are incomplete, however, and it is expected that the figure will be increased.

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 15—(AP).—The Heue Zuercher Zeitung's correspondent in Berlin said today reports in the German press gave the impression that the Rhineland city of Mainz, bombed twice in heavy force this week, "now belongs to the list of German cities which suffered great damage."

Inquest Ordered Into Dodge Mystery Death

DETROIT, Aug. 15 (AP)—Prosecutor William E. Dowling said today an inquest will be conducted next week in a new effort to determine how John Duval Dodge, son of the late multi-millionaire automobile manufacturer, suffered the 10-inch skull fracture blamed for his death.

"I am convinced that all the facts have not yet been told," Dowling said.

Dodge collapsed in a police station Wednesday morning as he was awaiting questioning concerning what Dowling said had been a drinking party that was broken up by a domestic quarrel in which his wife suffered a cut lip. He died in receiving hospital Thursday night.

Dowling said the statement of a pathologist, Dr. Plinn F. Morse, convinced him the official investigation had not exhausted the list of possible causes of Dodge's fatal injury. Mr. Morse said a man with an injury such as Dodge's had been known to keep his feet for 12 hours before collapsing.

In view of this, Dowling said, several persons not yet interrogated will be summoned at an inquest next Wednesday or Thursday to tell of their encounters with Dodge during the last escapade of a career that often had brought him into the pub-

Surprise Raid Sets Docks Afire

Big Flour Mill Major Objective On Big Italian Isle

LONDON, Aug. 15.— (CP).— A British naval squadron bombarded the town of Rhodes on the Italian island of the same name for 23 minutes early Thursday, setting fires and causing extensive damage, Reuters News Agency reported to-day.

The island lies in the extreme eastern Mediterranean, close to Turkey. It is the largest of the Dodecanese.

A dispatch from John Nixon, a Reuters correspondent with the squadron, said the shelling was accurate and perfectly timed, catching the Italians by surprise.

As the squadron steamed away a big fire and numerous smaller ones that sent up columns of black smoke could be seen on the waterfront, Nixon said.

The warships entered enemy waters and approached the target without being detected before they opened fire.

The Reuters correspondent, describing the attack, said:—

"It must have been Rhodes' brightest night since the war began.

"Orange and gold flame belched from the warships and there was a rumble of thunder as they fired. Bright flashes showed where the shells were exploding and after several minutes there came a new sound. The shore batteries were returning fire on the ships.

"The interval indicated the defenders were taken by surprise but their gunnery was fairly accurate. Several shells whistled over our heads while at least two salvos sent up splashes very close to us.

"For exactly 12 minutes the shells were hurled at shipping in the harbor and targets ashore, the chief of which was a large flour mill.

"Then the warships swept silently away leaving fire and columns of smoke as evidence of their visit. Motor torpedo boats were reported near us but they did not see us. For an hour or more as we raced away, anti-aircraft shells and bullets danced in the sky but we paid little attention. Our part of the night's work was completed.

Malta Worth All The Sacrifice Paid

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Once more the British navy has run the gauntlet of Axis warplanes and naval ships in the Mediterranean to deliver a big convoy of reinforcements and airplanes to island of Malta, and the cost of this great engagement has been heavy for both sides.

Why should it be necessary for Britain thus to risk fighting equipment more precious than rubies? Why must she jeopardize aircraft carriers, battleships, cruisers, destroyers, transports and cargo ships in order to serve an island which covers only 95 square miles and sits in the midst of an enemy-built hell?

This island is the air force observation post of the Mediterranean, crouching like a one-eyed cyclops in the middle of that sea and forever scanning the blue waters for signs of the enemy.

It is the powerful base from which, once cyclops has spotted the foe, warplanes set out on their mission of destruction.

And it's from here that airmen fly to the aid of Allied shipping which has been attacked.

Malta has been a base for untold centuries. Certainly the Phoenicians colonized it more than 1,000 years before Christ. The island was taken by Napoleon in 1798 and was captured by Britain two years later. Since then this well-placed naval base has played a vital role in advancing British power and prestige to the point where John Bull became known as the policeman of Europe.

Malta no longer can be used as a naval base, excepting for submarines, because Hitler maintains a powerful force of warplanes in Mussolini's Sicily, only 56 miles north of the British island, and makes it too hot for shipping in Malta's otherwise fine harbors. However, the Nazi chief hasn't been able to drive the Royal Air Force out of this stronghold, despite one of the fiercest and most protracted aerial bombardments the war has known. Little Malta's sturdy population of 250,000 has dived into caverns in the rocks and defied the bombs, and the R.A.F. planes have emerged from their underground hangars to do battle.

British air scouts are constantly on the move over the Mediterranean from Malta. Their chief business, of course, is to spot enemy supply ships and transports headed from Axis ports in Europe to Africa.

Hun Fan Out Toward The Volga

Force Deep Wedge In Don Bend South Of Stalingrad

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Aug. 15—(AP)—German forces in the Kotelnikovski region southwest of Stalingrad fanned out in a threatening new drive today toward Astrakhan where the Volga meets the Caspian, dispatches from the front said.

Other Nazis made fresh progress toward Stalingrad forcing a "deep wedge" in Red Army defences south of Kletskaya in the Don bend and pushing the Russians back even further to the northeast of Kotelnikovski, which lies 95 miles from Stalingrad.

The new threat to the broad Volga which is Russia's main waterway was considered as dangerous if not more so than the twin thrusts against Stalingrad, great industrial city on the river.

(At Kotenikovski, the Germans still were 245 miles away from Astrakhan, but the Germans earlier this week claimed the capture of Elista, which lies only 160 miles to the west.)

Astrakhan is one of Russia's chief food sources and is a key to the northern Caspian Sea as well as the Allied supply route from the Persian Gulf.

Paying Heavy Price

The Germans were reported suffering great losse in fighting south of Kletskaya, 7[5] miles northwest of Stalingrad, where they succeeded in driving the wedge into Russian defences and reaching the west bank of the Don River.

While the Red Army fought grimly at the approaches to Stalingrad, the struggle for the Caucasus moved on bitterly and the Russians said small forces of German automatic riflemen succeeded in crossing the Kuban River at Krasnodar in the Northwest Caucasus. Krasnodar is only 60 miles northwest of the Red Fleet's Black Sea naval base at Novorossisk.

"Fighting is now going on to exterminate the German riflemen who crossed to the south bank," the communique said.

Earlier the Germans had attempt-

Dollar-Year Men Stand High With Mitchell

OTTAWA, August 15. —(CP) — Minister Mitchell last night expressed formal appreciation of executives who are giving their services to the government as "dollar a year" men.

"There is to much cheap talk going around the country about dollar a year men." Mr. Mitchell said in making a presentation to E. R. Complin, former chief executive of the National War Labor Board who now has returned to his peacetime position with Canadian Industries Ltd.

Mr. Complin was presented with an engraved silver tray at a dinner attended by members of the National and Regional War Labor Boards.

Mr. Complin, the minister said, was an example of men in executive positions who have come to Ottawa at considerable disadvantage to themselves and assumed great responsibilities and heavy duties which meant sacrifice of most of their leisure time to aid the government in the war effort.

Mr. Mitchell made particular reference to Elliott M. Little National Selective Service Director, who, he said, had taken on very heavy duties and had refused even to accept any payment toward his expenses.

Hun Building Dummy Norse Forts

Dot Whole Coast To Discourage Any 2nd Front There

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—(AP)—The Moscow radio broadcast a Stockholm report today saying the Germans were building dummy fortifications along the Norwegian coast in an effort to dissuade the Allies from attacking to open a second front.

"In the Bergen area, the German engineers in addition to real fortifications have built quite a number of sham ones repainting antiquated structures and equipping them with dummy guns," the Moscow radio, as heard by CBS, said "German forces on the coast are greatly reduced. A single infantry regiment is now stationed in the Bergen section.

"Forces on other sectors of the coast, particularly in the south, have been similarly reduced."

The Moscow radio said today the Germans had killed 96 of 600 French war prisoners who refused to work at a camp at Stettin. Another 112 were declared wounded by machine-gun fire. CBS heard the broadcast.

EXTRA!

HASTINGS, Mich.—(AP).—Fort Custer troops today guarded the strewn wreckage of a multi-motored army plane which crashed in flames last night in a cornfield seven miles south of here with its crew of nine, none of whom survived. Parts of the big plane, which came to earth within 100 feet of the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Proefrock and tossed flaming gasoline into the back door-yard, starting grass fires, were scattered for more than a half mile, witnesses said.

Taking Few Risks

Hun Fliers Fight Only If Odds Right

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.—(CP).—German airmen are "fighting this war to win it" and take no chances on unnecessary fights in the air, Flt. Lt. Charles M. Ormston of Montreal said in an interview here to-day.

Veteran of 72 sweeps over enemy territory and winner of the Distinguished Flying Cross, Ormston is back in Canada to take on other duties, perhaps instructing new pilots, perhaps with Canada's home defence squadrons.

The offensive sweep carried out regularly by the Royal Air Force with Canadian squadrons participating are for the purpose of picking fights with the enemy, Ormston said. Usually the attackers find the enemy fighters up in the sky waiting for them. If they don't they drop a few bombs to stir them up.

The attackers start out with an advantage in the manoeuvrability of their aircraft because the Spitfire can turn more quickly than the German fighters but the Germans usually have the advantage of position as they are high up waiting for the attack and can dive on the invaders.

So it is usually the Germans who start the fight unless "you see something below you in which case it is easy to pick him off." When the German fighters get on the tail of the attackers from above the fight starts. In two or three turns a Spitfire can get behind an enemy fighter and so gain the advantage. The enemy fighters usually make off before that happens.

"One of their favorite tricks is to send down a stooge who dives through us," said Ormston. "If anyone follows him his goose is cooked as the others are right on his tail.

Pneumonia Takes Woman Who Cut Off Own Foot

JACKSONVILLE, N.C., Aug. 15—(AP). — Mrs. C. F. Thompson, hardy 32-year-old fisherwoman, died in the marine base hospital at New River Friday, losing a 10-day struggle for life which began when she stoically amputated her own foot with a saw-edged fishing knife.

Pneumonia was cause of death. It developed Tuesday night, just when Mrs. Thompson appeared to be showing improvement.

Mrs. Thompson's ankle was badly mangled when her slacks were caught in the drive shaft of a motorboat in which she had gone fishing with a 16-year-old boy hired to operate the boat. Unable to free her foot, she took the six-inch fishing knife and cut it off.

She then tore a strip of cloth from her blouse and made a tourniquet to stop the bleeding. Her boatman called a nearby boat and was taken to the marine hospital 16 miles away.

At the hospital an operation was performed to remove the leg just below the knee because the leg muscles had been injured. Mrs. Thompson remained conscious during the amputation, and made inquiries about getting an artificial leg.

Hun Try To Fire Grain Fields

LONDON, August 15. — (CP) — Nazi raiders scattered fire and explosive bombs over the East Anglian area in the hours before dawn today while enemy long-range guns on the French coast lobbed half a dozen salvos of shells across the Dover Strait.

The German radio claimed Ipswich was the main bomb target and reported fires and explosions on the waterfront.

British said merely that small groups of enemy raiders, under cover of low clouds, dropped thousands of incendiaries on south coast and East Anglian towns but caused little damage.

Reuters News Agency quoted a Berlin claim that Nazi raiders set large fires at Eastbourne and scored heavy bomb hits on Portsmouth naval dockyards in raids yesterday.

Some German night raiders made what appeared to be attempts to fire ripe grain fields near two East Anglian villages.

Parachute flares were dropped followed by hundreds of incendiaries and a few high-explosive bombs, but the fires quickly were

Say Army Muffed Chance To Wipe Out Jap Sea Force

SEATTLE, Aug. 15.—(AP).—United States bombers lost a chance to annihilate a Japanese surface force, including an aircraft carrier, off Alaska last June just because of the "unfortunate failure of army and navy co-operation," Representative Warren G. Magnuson (Dem.-Wash.) said to-day.

Magnuson, a member of the House of Representatives Naval Affairs committee, told interviewers on his return from an inspection tour of Alaska military bases that failure on the part of one army command to interpret literally standing naval orders regarding enemy contact resulted in a delay which gave the enemy an opportunity to remove itself."

The army command responsible, he added, has since been relieved of duty, "and I am glad to say that there is no possibility of this happening again." The army high command in Alaska now, he predicted, would "welcome a Japanese force at this stage of the game."

"The army command was located within operating distance of the Japanese task force," Magnuson said. "I have information that it was notified soon after the Dutch Harbor attack that navy Pby's (flying boats) had a Japanese carrier under continual observation, and that they were waiting for the arrival of land-based aircraft to make the kill.

"The army command, however, believed its orders were not sufficiently broad to warrant sending out a bombing force at this phase of the battle without definite instructions.

"As a result army planes remained on the ground, and before naval authorities could straighten the matter out, the Japs had slipped away from observation.

"Later the army did succeed in making contact, but not under as favorable circumstances as they might have found if the response had been earlier."

Army and navy officers in Alaska now are working in closest co-operation, he said.

300 French Skip Off Martinique

LONDON, Aug. 15—(CP).—The Fighting French Press Service said today that 300 French men and women who escaped from Martinique have arrived at the nearby British islands of Dominica and St. Lucia to await transportation to a place "where we can fight."

Most of the men fled in small boats at night and the last three to arrive were picked up by British fishermen 10 miles off St. Lucia, the news service said.

One young sailor was quoted by the service as saying, "Life in Martinique is hell," and declaring that the Vichy Governor, Admiral Georges Robert, and naval authorities are spreading anti-Allied propaganda. Persons listening to foreign broadcasts were sent to jail, the sailor said.

Get 7 Nazi Transports

MOSCOW, Aug. 15—(AP)— Two Russian submarines have returned to port after sinking seven German transports—one of them a 16,000-ton ship—loaded with men and munitions in the Baltic, the newspaper Pravda reported today. A brass band greeted the crews, it said.

Death and Fines

Stiff British Measures Calming India

BOMBAY, Aug. 15 (CP)—Application of severe penalties, including death and collective fines, was reported under consideration by British authorities today to put down the wave of destruction of riotous Indian followers as Mohandas K. Gandhi after he had sponsored a non-violent independence drive.

Wilful damage to railroad property and telegraph wires which has occurred in several parts of India in past days, even while most violence was subsiding, was said to have prompted the study of more drastic measures of repression.

Under one existing ordinance, sabotage of railroads and telegraph lines is punishable by death or whipping. Under another fines may be imposed on inhabitants of communities where acts of sabotage are committed.

Although normal conditions apparently had returned for the most part after almost a week of rioting and vandalism, a new flare-up occurred today at Calcutta, India's great eastern city.

Demonstrators there slashed telephone wires, wrecked fire-alarm boxes and interfered with Street Car service. Eight were wounded when police fired into one crowd.

Two members of the Bombay City Council, Dr. Ghorpure and Sa Khadir, were arrested as police prepared to meet the All-India Congress' next step. Mayor Yusud Meyerally is already under arrest. Dr. Ghorpure is believed by informed circles to be the brains of the "undercover" operations of the Congress.

Pilot Spared As Bomber Blows Up Over Cologne

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(CP).—From an R.A.F. pilot in a prison camp in Germany has come a letter telling of an almost incredible escape from death when he was hurled from an exploding bomber in mid-air with parachute pack in hand during the 1,000-plane R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. raid on Cologne May 30.

"We were set alight by Nazi fighters," the pilot wrote, "and I gave the word to jump. The second pilot handed me my parachute.

"At the same moment another attack turned us upside down and started us spinning. Suddenly there was a hell of a crash and I found myself alone in space, with my parachute in my hand.

"I clipped it on in mid-air—a difficult and alarming experience—and it opened at what seemed hardly more than tree height. I landed heavily.

"It still was raining bits of airplane, which must have come to pieces, as we were all flung out like this except the tail gunner."

The radio operator was captured with the pilot—a squadron leader—but others of the crew were killed.

AMERICAN MARINES WIDEN THEIR HOLD ALL ACROSS SOLOMONS

Yanks Clinch Hold On Beach Heads

Bombers Hit Convoy Fourth Time, Bigger Fight Due

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15—(AP)—United States Marines, supported by strong air and naval forces, have smashed back sufficient Japanese defenders to clamp a firm hold upon the strategic Solomon Islands.

As Allied bombers pounded at attempted enemy reinforcements, the Marines were "progressing satisfactorily," the Navy announced last night, in consolidating hard-won beach heads.

The terse Navy communique on the first big offensive of the United States and the United Nations gave only the barest details. But it left little doubt they were winning the early rounds of a conflict that, if successful, may lead eventually to an assault upon Japan itself.

With the Marines still in the thick of combat, Flying Fortresses and swift bombers were reported to be persistently striking at Japanese air bases and ship concentrations to protect Allied communication lines and stave off enemy reinforcements

A Japanese convoy which an Allied spokesman said was attacked three times previously, again became the target of heavy bombers off New Britain to the northwest. The convoy included transport ships bound in an easterly direction toward the Solomons.

Bad weather veiled results of the latest assault but two more Japanese fighter planes were shot down and three damaged. All Allied aircraft returned to their bases although some were damaged slightly.

Further indication of the progress in the Solomons came from a British war correspondent, who cabled his London paper from Sydney that the Americans "have or soon will have complete control of Tulagi island," a major point of attack.

So strongly entrenched were the Marines, he added, that only "the heaviest reinforcements" could dislodge them. At the same time, he said the Japanese apparently were prepared to risk a big naval action to hold the Solomons and the fighting would continue for weeks.

No Kidding

OAKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 15—(CP)—Albert Toews of Milton didn't believe it, but he was convicted in court here yesterday, after his conviction on a charge of driving without due care. "I didn't know he was a cop." Toews told the court, referring to the policeman who arrested him, "I thought he was kidding me."

10 Fliers Fight Jungle 11 Days Catch Only Steamer Of Month

NEW YORK, August 15. —(AP)—A soldier correspondent's diary told how a cigaret lighter which hasn't worked since, served as a beacon to signal a once-a-month river boat to the rescue of 10 United States army men who fought death for 11 days after their bomber made a forced belly-landing in a South American jungle.

The diary of their desperate trek through the jungle in an effort to get back to civilization was written by Sgt. Ed. Cunningham, army newspaper man who was with the nine crewmen when their B-24 bomber was forced down on a stormy flight.

Cunningham's story appeared yesterday in Yank, New United States army newspaper.

The 10 made the journey safely back to an army air force base July 24 after taking off from a port in the Caribbean July 13.

July 15—We have decided to take a chance on slashing our way through the jungle.

July 16—Our Safari starts at 8 a. m. we destroy the secret radio equipment and all secret papers....

The going gets tougher, the underbrush more dense. At each stop, Hazel (Pte. Melton Hazel of Saubus Miss.) reads from the bible.... At first we joke it a little and kid him....Later on, we quit kidding him. We're in a tough pot, and all of us get a certain satisfaction from Hazel's bible reading.

July 17—Down to one meal a day.

Food Gets Scarce

Six days now since we had a decent meal.

July 18—Now the water is deep enough to launch our rafts. It is treacherous going....

July 19—The stream widens. We pass a few scattered huts. We want to buy their pigs, but are afraid of trichindosis. We compromise on a couple of dozen oranges and take off again.

Farther downstream we meet two young native boys in canoes. They lead the way downstream, and there is the river.

Just as we are beginning to eat, a couple of canoe-loads of natives come up. They bring us oranges, coffee, corn meal, sugar and a slab of pork.

We tie the rafts together and drift. We are too tired to row farther.

About midnight, Ravey sings out, yelling about a steamboat round the bend. We yell back for him to shut up.

But he's right.

We shout, but the noise of water and the steamboat's motors drown out our voices. We search frantically for the flashlight. It's lost somewhere on the floor.

Lewis pulls out his cigaret lighter. What a flimsy device for rescue, but it works. It responds to the first snap, and bursts into a flicker that is like a beacon in the dark jungle.

We are picked up by a boat that makes the run only once a month.

And Lewis' cigaret lighter hasn't worked since.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, August 16.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds much encouragements for safe and secure conditions to further sound aims and objectives seriously developed and planned on accepted systems with attention to details and sound principles. Initiative and enterprise should attract public and community support, although financial results may be minimized by extravagant outlay or lavish use of funds.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of opportunity for sound progress on well-planned systematic development with persistent application and industry. But extravagance, careless or unwarranted use of finances may negative any desired results, although there may be promise of public and community support.

A child born on this day although enterprising and energetic, with sound ideas and principles, yet may be extravagant and subject to reversals and imposition.

For Monday, August 17.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a day of successful and pleasant dealings with superiors, employers and those in important places of authority. Those in large corporations, secret or fraternal bodies may be disposed to entertain propositions of an intriguing, strategical or secret nature.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy happy and profitable dealings with superiors, employers and those in high authority. They should also make successful contracts with large corporations, political bodies or fraternal groups if managed with tact, strategy, shrewdness or tacit agreements. But these should be handled with a view to the clearly apparent possibilities of intrigue or subtle twists of meaning

A child born on this day should have much stability of character and should find favor with its employers, superiors or elders.

Where Mrs. Dodge Caught Up

The prosecutor said he was convinced from questioning Miss Mignon Fontaine, 33-year-old interior decorator, that Dodge had not suffered the injury in the home of a friend, Howard E. Lange, where she roomed and in which the encounter with Mrs. Dodge took place.

Police seized Dodge in the Lange home after a neighbor reported a prowler. Miss Fontaine, who told Dowling she saw the arrest from a neighboring porch, told the prosecutor yesterday she admitted Dodge earlier in the evening and, Dowling said, described him as a boisterous visitor whom she and an earlier caller left to his own devices.

John Duval Dodge was a half-brother of the late Daniel G. Dodge who was drowned in Georgian Bay, near Manitoulin Island, during his honeymoon in 1938. Daniel Dodge was married to Annie Laurine McDonald, former telephone operator of Gore Bay, Ont.

He was injured in a dynamite explosion and was drowned when he fell from a boat in which he was being taken to a physician.

Mrs. Daniel Dodge later married Dr. William A. Lange who is not related to the Howard Lange at whose home John Duval Dodge was taken into custody.

Thus the Royal Air Force daily scans the sea. So thorough is this reconnaissance work that the airmen even photograph shipping in enemy harbors regularly, and by comparing pictures of the same port day by day they can tell should a ship be moved. If a vessel is missing, the R.A.F. notified British naval vessels, and starts on a hunt for the enemy ship. The chances are that it is headed across to Africa, and the chances are very fair, too, that a British bomb or shell will send it to the bottom.

3 Motor Changes Make Great Savings In Gas

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15—(AP)—By employing a simple inexpensive trick discovered years ago and forgotten in the rush for speed and power on the highways, gas-hungry motorists can get 30 to 40 per cent. more mileage from precious gallons of gasoline.

Details of the method, which involves operating passenger automomiles on half their cylinders and minor carburetor adjustments, were disclosed today by Sun Oil engineers for the benefit of some 1,500,000 car owners on the Eastern United States seaboard who are fretting over the gas problem.

"It's the start of what we think every motorist should agree to," said J. N. Pew, Sun Oil president. "It's only the beginning of things that can be accomplished."

As explained by John G. Moxey, assistant chief engineer of the company's research department, the method boils down to three steps: removing valvelifters from every other cylinder so that both intake and exhaust valves remain closed; pinching together the points on spark plugs in the non-working cylinders so there will be no ignition spark; and carburetor adjustments to cut the flow of gasoline.

Some carburetors require two new parts, a larger metering pin and a low speed jet. Other carburetors can be adjusted by blocking off half of the working unit. The two new parts, Pew said, are not available at present, but carburetor manufacturers have indicated they will stock them.

The whole operation, Pew said costs about "a day's labor and a couple of dollars for the new parts if needed."

One test car, Moxey said, ran 36 miles on a gallon of gasoline. There is some vibration when the speed falls below 16 to 18 miles an hour and this entails more gear shifting. The best speed range is between 30 and 35 miles an hour.

The company is passing along its findings and instructions to automobile manufacturers who, Pew said, have shown interest.

Mother And Son Both Die Within Two Days

Death struck twice in one family within two days this week. At midnight on Friday, Mrs. Johanna Butler, age 82, died at her home, 425 Rogers street, Peterborough, following a lengthy illness, and her oldest son, Michael Clement Butler, prominent Detroit business man, died in Detroit on Wednesday following an operation. He was 45.

The late Mrs. Butler was born in Otonabee township, a daughter of Irish pioneers, the late Cornelius Heffernan and Johanna Murray, and spent quite a number of years in Peterborough before her marriage to Pierce Butler.

Twenty-five years ago, the family moved to Montreal, after the father had died, ad it was only within the last two years that Mrs. Butler returned to Peterborough to spend the balance of her life. Just before coming to this city she lived for a few years with her son, Dr. K. C. Butler of Ottawa.

Michael Clement Butler, her son, had been in poor health for several weeks and on the advice of his physician consented to an operation, from which he failed to recover. He was a graduate in commerce and finance from University of Detroit, and received his early education at the Sacred Heart school and St. Peter's High school in Peterborough. At that time, the family lived on Perry street, directly opposite the plant of the Canadian Raybestos. He was married one year ago. The funeral was in Detroit on Friday morning.

The late Mrs. Butler is survived by three sons and one daughter, Mrs. Pearl Neill, of Akron, Ohio, Pierce Raymond Butler, of Detroit, Major Kenneth Butler, Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, Ottawa, and J. M. Butler, Montreal. One sister, Mrs. K. McGillen, and one brother, Cornelius Heffernan, both of Peterborough, also survive. Another sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Cleary, died earlier this year.

The funeral will be held on Monday morning, from the home of her sister, Mrs. K. McGillen, 6 Knox street, to the Church of the Immaculate Conception for requiem mass. Interment will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

Heirs Wanted For Big Estate

An estate of $20,000 left by two elderly women, born in Peterborough, awaits a claimant, Russell Wright of Watertown, N.Y., who was here yesterday making inquiries as to possible relatives, stated to the Examiner.

The two women, Katharine Edith and Lena Waddell, were burned to death in a fire in their residence at Watertown last December and so far no heirs have appeared to claim the estate.

Mr. Wright, who is a member of the New York Legislative Assembly, said that the two victims of the fire were born in Peterborough in the seventies, soon after their parents, William Waddell and Agnes Rae Waddell arrived here from Scotland. Some time afterward the family moved to the United States and lived in Nebraska and Indiana before going to Watertown.

Mr. Wright is acting for the administrator of the estate and is anxious to get information as to the history of the family here.

Clinic To Be Open All Monday To Blood Donors

Are you anxious to do something further as a War effort—something that can be done by all healthy citizens, who want to serve in some capacity and do not know how: give to your country a small portion of your blood for overseas.

The Army, the Navy and the Air Force want blood plasma for transfusions at the scene of battle. The number of donors alloted to Peterborough district and as yet less than half of this number has volunteered.

The Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic has been established in Peterborough, with complete equipment and staff of Doctors and Nurses, to endeavor to secure from the City and District the amount of blood for overseas that we are expected to produce here. Only about fifteen per cent of what is required is being sent. Blood is being taken from healthy persons between the ages of 18 and 55 years, and no healthy person need be deterred from this life-saving gift for fears of harmful after-effects. The doctors in the Blood Donor centres know whom to take and whom to reject.

On Monday, August 17th, the Blood Donor Clinic, situated at 136 Brock street, just east of George street, will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock in the evening without interruption for the purpose of receiving applications from those who desire to register, both men and women. Women for the present are giving local transfusions. Let your wartime effort for the time being, be that of a blood donor. It is a gift, which, unlike money, unlike time or even work, is a part of yourself. A gift most literally from your heart, straight to the heart of another—to an Allied soldier, sailor or airman, who may live to help save all you count precious in this world, because you took one simple, generous step to help save him.

Vicious Habits Like Weeds Both Can Be Controlled

REV E. R. JAMES.

JESUS SAID: SOME SEED FELL AMONG THORNS, AND THE THORNS SPRANG UP AND CHOKED THEM. St. Matthew 13;7.

"Simple yet forceful language" exclaims the farmer, the gardener. "The thorns, the weeds sprung up and choked them." You toil on your farm or your little garden and in spite of every care the weeds spring up. "They are always there" you say.

What are weeds The writer in that most famous dictionary "The Oxford English" gives this definition:—"A herbaceous plant, not valued for use or beauty, growing wild and rank and regarded as cumbering the ground or hindering the growth of superior vegetation." "Hindering the growth of superior vegetation" is the statement of a master scholar. But the greatest of all gardeners, Whose own garden never had any weeds, simply says:— "The thorns, the weeds sprung up and choked them." Every plain man in that audience could understand the choking of the good seed.

What have the weeds to teach us

1. Weeds are natural to the soil. They are found in every farm or garden. They do not need to be sown. They are in the soil. The good seed is planted in the soil. The good seed comes from without the soil The soil prodnces weeds of itself. The soil will not produce the useful seed unless the seed is put into the soil.

As we think of the weeds being natural to the soil we remember how natural it is for us to produce in our own characters bitterness, hatred, malice and other evil weeds which choke the good seed. How shocked you are when your little son barely able to talk, shows signs of bad temper and selfinshness. It is in him that is the horror. If you neglect his training you will discover how those weeds choke and spail his character.

2. Weeds grow quickly. A couple of days rain and your garden is overgrown with weeds. You marvel at their growth. Even so it is in the garden of your soul. The weeds are there. The bad habits will grow rapidly. A little neglect on your part, and lo, the habit is taking root. It takes many years to form good and wholesome habits, which form character. It takes a longer time to build a good character than anything else in this world. On the other hand a few months of neglect will produce a degredation that is surprising. The weeds have grown so fast that they have choked all those good habits.

3. The weeds are very hungry. They are always hungry. There are certain salts in the soil which are necessary for the life of the plant. The roots feed on those salts. The long roots of the weeds eat so much of those salts that there is little or nothing left for the good seed. So it withers. It is choked.

How are you to keep out the weeds? Evil desires and habits are natural to us. They cry for satisfaction. They are very hungry and they cry very loudly. The Lord Christ offers to enter into our heart and fill it with Himself. Then there will be no room for the weeds. Fill your thoughts and imagination with the picture of that lovely Character. Pray the Holy Spirit that you may see something of His Beauty in the word pictures of the Gospels. Slowly, gradually the revelation will come to you as you preserve in your regular prayers, reading of the Gospels, regular attendance on public worship. Tell Him that it is your desire to "see the King in His Beauty" and it will be so.

It may be you are hot tempered. Ask the Lord to give you a vision of His patience and self-control. Quietly, consciously fill your imagination with His patience and determination to endure and, lo, the desire to fly into a passion passes away.

Ask the Lord for the opposite characteristic of your besetting sin. Are you mean and covetous? Pray for His generosity, Who gave Himself for you. Are you bitter-tongued and malicious? Fill your mind and imagination with His love and slowly you will find yourself saying charitable things.

Above all do not try in your own strength to pull out the weeds. You will never succeed. Let His Spirit enter and do His wonderful work of forming the Christ in you. The mystery of the Incarnation must take place in you that men may see the Christ revealed in you.

MY GRACE IS SUFFICIENT FOR THEE, FOR MY STRENGTH IS MADE PERFECT IN WEAKNESS.

Isaac Practices Peace With His Neighbors

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for August 16 is Genesis 26, the Golden Text being Matt. 5:9. "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called sons of God.")

There was a famine in the land where Isaac, Abraham's son lived, so Isaac went to the land of the Philistines whose king was Abimelech. The name of the land was Gerar. The Lord had told Isaac not to go to Egypt where most people went when famine was in their land. We do not know the reason he was told not to go there, but there was probably a good one.

Th Lord told Isaac to "sojourn in s land, and I will be with thee. or unto thee and thy seed, I will give all these countries; and I will perform the oath which I sware unto Abraham thy father."

Now Rebekah, Isaac's wife, was very beautiful, and those were crude, cruel times, and Isaac was afraid that when the men of Gerar saw his wife they might want her for themselves and kill Isaac to get her, so instead of saying she was his wife, he told everyone that she was his sister. After a long time the king Abimelech saw Isaac and Rebekah together and knew from the manner in which they were acting that she was his wife, not his sister. He told Isaac he had seen them together and said, "Behold, of a surety she is thy wife: and how saidst thou, She is my sister?"

And Isaac was ashamed to confess that he had been afraid to tell the truth, even though the Lord had promised to protect him and be with him.

Isaac Becomes Rich

Isaac then sowed in the land and his crops were wonderful and he "waxed great." He had many servants and great herds, and the Philistines envied them. The wells that his father Abraham had digged there had been filled up with dirt by the Philistines, and finally Abimelech told him to leave there because "thou are much mightier than we."

"And Isaac digged again the wells of water which they had digged in the days of Abraham, his father;" And Isaac's servants digged in the valley and the wells gave out "springing water." The herdsmen of Gerar came then and fought with Isaac's men over the wells saying they were theirs. Water was very precious in this region which was dry for many months of the year. In the rainy season the rivers were full, but they dried up in the drouths that were frequent. Isaac's men must have conquered, for Isaac named the well Esek, meaning contention. He dug other wells, too, and wetn to Beersheba. There the Lord appeared to him again and again promised to bless him, and Isaac builded an altar to the Lord there.

Then Abimelech came to him with two friends and Isaac asked him why he had come, "seeing ye hate me and have sent me away from you." Abimelech answered, "we saw certainly that the Lord was with thee: and we said, Let there be now an oath betwixt us, even betwixt us and thee, and let us make a covenant with thee; that thou wilt do us no hurt, as we have not touched thee, and as we have done unto thee nothing but good, and have sent thee away in peace: thou are now the blessed of the Lord."

Isaac Makes a Feast

Isaac therefore made a feast for them and they ate and drank. And in the morning they "sware one to another: and Isaac sent them away, and they departed from him in peace."

That same day Isaac's servants dug another well, and told him they had found water. "And he called it Shebah: therefore the name of the city is Beer-sheba unto this day."

Abimelech must have been a good man, and he it was who reproved Isaac for lying to him about his wife, and how ashamed Isaac must have been that he, the blessed of the Lord, was told his fault by a man who had not the Lord's blessing, but was a heathen.

One great grief Isaac had in spite of his prosperity. His son, Esau, who was then 40 years old, took two wives, Judith and Bashemath, who were not of the chosen people, making it a crime for him to have married them. Isaac and Rebekah were greatly troubled by this. We are told it was "a grief of mind unto Isaac and to Rebekah.

Isaac, the son of Abraham and Sarah in their old age, was not a perfect man. He had faults, but he did try to live at peace with his neighbors and "Blessed are the peacemakers," said our Lord, "for they shall be called sons of God."

General Council Will Choose New Moderator Next Month

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—Election of a new Moderator to succeed the Right Rev. Dr. Aubrey S. Tuttle will be one of the first tasks facing the General Council of the United Church of Canada when it meets in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on September 9.

Dr. Tuttle was elected to the Moderatorship by the General Council when it met in Winnipeg two years ago. At that time the question of the tenure of the Moderatorship was discussed by the Commissioners, but it was felt that in the present demand for concentration upon the tremendous tasks that face church people today it was not desirable at that time to make any change in the tenure of the office. Therefore the matter was referred to the 1942 General Council for reconsideration.

Election of the new Moderator will be by nominations from the floor of the assembly. Decision on the election is decided by the majority of votes cast. The present tenure of the moderatorship is for two years. There has been some discussion that this will be changed to one year. The suggestion has been made that General Council elect two Moderators, one to serve the first year after General Council meets, and the other to serve in the second year.

Dr. Tuttle will preside over General Council until a new Moderator has been chosen. Rev. Dr. Gordon A. Sisco, secretary of General Council, will be one of the key officials guiding the proceedings of the Council. There have been 286 Commissioners appointed to Council by the 11 Conferences of the Church, from Newfoundland to British Columbia. An equal number of ministers and lay members will be present. They include a number of women ministers and lay women.

The finances of the United Church of Canada are to come under review of the General Council. A commission appointed to study the finances of the Church will report, and one of their recommendations suggests the creating of a board of finance, with separate departments, in order that the whole field of financial endeavor may be under a single oversight. The amalgamation of some departments of the Church will also be discussed.

At the last General Council meeting the Board of Christian Education was instructed to study the number of Theological colleges in the United Church (there are eight) and to present recommendations to the Tenth General Council. Many feel that in the interest of economy there should be fewer theological colleges. Each college, however, has its roots in local soil, and serves a need in a particular area. For this reason, there has been difficulty in arriving at a solution.

Shortage of ministers is another problem facing the General Council. The problem is aggravated by war conditions. A proposal to accelerate the present theological course for theological students so that the normal course of three years can be taken in two years will be presented to the Council for debate.

Keen interest is displayed in the forthcoming report of the commission appointed by the last General Council to conduct "an expert and impartial investigation" into the publishing house of the United Church. They were instructed to report as to the advisability of continuing the publishing house as a business enterprise.

The Board of Home Missions, the Board of Foreign Missions, the Board of Evangelism and Social Service, the Board of Christian Education and the Pension Board, will report to the General Council on matters of policy and submit definite recommendations for the approval of General Council.

The War Service Committee of the United Church will give a special report. The two principal Protestant chaplains of the service will speak in connection with the presentation of the report.

Three vacancies caused by the death of the late Rev. Dr. Robert Laird and Rev. Dr. Frank Langford, and the retirement of the Rev. Dr. S. Wesley Dean, will necessitate action by the General Council in filling these vacancies.

Sessions of the General Council will continue until September 18.

Tobacco and Liquor Are Partners In Crime

Miss Mary Deyell, Crescent street, was hostess to the ladies of St. James' Women's Missionary Society for their August meeting, when an encouraging attendance assured a successful program.

The president, Mrs. W. Rose, was in the chair for the opening business session which included reports from the various department secretaries.

Mrs. G. Rowe reported for Community Friendship with numerous shut-in friends being remembered.

In her temperance talk Mrs. E. Beavis spoke of alcoholic beverages and tobaccos as being "partners in crime." The brewers, she said, are making a concentrated campaign to invade the home and make beer equal bread on the pantry shelf. Only through God will this evil of intemperance be overcome.

"Living by giving" was the theme of Miss Deyell's reading on Christian Stewardship. Likening the spiritual life to the realm of nature, she cited the sugar maple, which by giving the more sweets has a more abundant life, and commended such giving to our W.M.S. and church members.

The offering was received and dedicated by the president.

The appointment of delegates to the school for leaders at Whitby was discussed when Mrs. G. Rowe, Mrs. E. M. Davis were chosen to represent St. James' W.M.S.

"Love Divine" was the hymn which opened the devotional program, led by the hostess, Miss Deyell.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. E. M. Davis and prayer offered by Mrs. W. K. Sloane.

Delightful musical selections gave variation, when Miss Gladys Langton sang "My Task," while Mrs. Alec Rosborough and Mrs. Bert Pitchford sang in duet, "I Belong to the King," all being accompanied at the piano by Miss Anne Deyell.

Lauds W.M.S.

Miss Connie Wagar in a brief address spoke upon what she termed "The greatest company in the world." Its sponsor, its inception, its formation. She gave as our investment, time, prayer, study, love and money.

As our dividends in this great company, the W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada, she claimed are the redeemed lives in our mission fields, joy, and the satisfaction of sharing the Master's task.

The service was concluded with prayer, led by Mrs. E. L. Woodley, after which a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Isaac Practices Peace — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Genesis 26.

By Alfred J. Buescher

Because of a famine, the Lord told Isaac, Abraham's son, to go to Gerar and live, but his wife, Rebekah, was "fair to look upon," so he told the men of that land she was his sister so they would not kill him and take here as he was afraid they might do.

One day, however, Abimelech, king of the Philistines, saw Isaac and his wife, Rebekah, together, and said to him, "Of a surety she is thy wife, and how saidst thou she is thy sister?" And Isaac answered, "because I said, lest I die for her."

Isaac dug wells of water in that land and pitched his tent there, but the Philistines fought with Isaac and his servants for the wells, because in that arid land wells of springing water were of inestimable value; so Isaac named the well Esek, meaning "contention."

Finally Abimelech and some of his people went to Isaac and they made a covenant, celebrated it with a feast, after which Isaac and Abimelech rose up early in the morning and parted friends, and the Philistines went away in peace.

In Durance Vile

Gandhi is now in confinement; some loose thinkers have described him as being in jail. That is not quite correct; Gandhi is living in the bungalow of the Aga Khan, who is one of the wealthiest men in the world. The bungalow, which is at Poona, was vacant, and the great Moslem ruler who is a good friend of the British begged the Imperial Government to make what use of it they would. And so they have used it as an internment camp for Gandhi.

The word "bungalow" must not be taken in its Occidental sense. The Aga Khan's bungalow is one of the most luxurious palaces in the world. And so, by one of those ironic twists which Fate delights in, India's most widely advertised ascetic is imprisoned in the gorgeous pavilion of India's best known potentate.

We have examined pictures of the bungalow carefully, and we are happy to tell the Mahatma's friends and sympathizers that he will probably be all right there. If we ever have to go to jail we hope the Aga Khan will let the Government use his bungalow for us; we have been looking for a jail like that for years. Those extensive gardens, those exquisite pagodas and summer bowers, that large, many-roomed dungeon filled with luxurious hangings and carpets would subject us to just the sort of punishment we need.

But Gandhi has been in jail before, and he is pernickety. He has made a complaint about the quality of the mosquito netting on the verandah where he spends most of his time, and he doesn't like the Aga Khan's napkins because they are not homespun Indian cloth. The goat's milk, herbs and fruit appear to suit his dainty palate, however, and he seems to be getting a lot of meditating done.

Stone walls do not a prison make,
Nor iron bars a cage,
Minds innocent and quiet take
That for an hermitage.

So wrote an English poet. Has Gandhi an innocent and quiet mind? We wonder. Those who thought him a messiah have now either changed their minds or are keeping quiet; those who think him a hypocrite and a Judas are vociferous. Personally we think that he probably represents the muddled Indian mind raised to a high degree, and that mysticism, malice and mess combine in equal parts to shape his soul.

Telling Brick Bradford

Relaxing briefly with the Examiner's comics page yesterday we noticed a development which, after we had considered it for a while, filled us with alarm. As his devotees know, Brick Bradford has recently been made king of a savage tribe, and the redoubtable Bradford, who specializes in brawn rather than brain, has been worrying about his new duties. Yesterday the poor boob hit on what he thought was a happy solution. "I've got it," he cried, "I'll civilize them; I'll rebuild their nation—teach them agriculture, sanitation, the industrial arts..." and so his dream goes on.

Take our advice Bradford, and leave those savages alone. They dance a lot, and loaf a lot, and are so uncivilized that they can only kill one man at a time, and with an axe at that. Leave them alone, or inside a year they'll be tearing up the plumbing to make guns, and their industrial arts will be largely devoted to nasty and destructive manufactures. We have enough civilization right here, thank you, without thick-necks like you introducing it into the funny papers... And now let us see what that sterling fellow Li'l Abner is doing.

Triumph Of Hamilton Fish

It was surprising to see that the notorious isolationist Hamilton Fish had won the nomination for Congress from the congressional district in which the President lives, during the recent preliminaries in the United States. Some papers have taken a serious view of this matter; they think that it indicates an unhealthy attitude toward the war effort of the U.S.; many American and a few Canadian editors have spoken their minds. And on the face of it it does seem astounding that Fish, who is known to have connived and canoodled with the enemies of his country, who makes no secret of his hatred for the President and all his works, and who was vigorously opposed by Wendell Willkie and the Republican party, should once again be nominated for public office.

But there are always people to whom politics is a local affair; they do not know and do not care about national or international issues. Politics for them is a mere outlet for their sides-taking instinct; nor are they always uninfluential or apparently ill-informed people. They are to be found everywhere, sometimes in great numbers and, because we accept democracy with all its faults as well as all its virtues, we have to abide by their decisions when they are in the majority, even when it is perfectly clear that they are wrong.

For such groups men like Ham Fish have a peculiar and unwholesome fascination. Even though his complicity with Axis agents is on record, Fish can still find men to back him up; even though his political blindness and incompetence has been amply demonstrated, he still has the base sort of political influence necessary to swing a nomination. Every day we read of all the noble things that our soldiers are fighting for and they are the things which we cherish; but there is another side of the picture, and it may be salutary to dwell on it briefly; those men are fighting for our right to be wantonly, criminally stupid and blind; they are fighting for our right to nominate men like Hamilton Fish for public office. No wonder democracy is the hardest of all governmental systems.

A Forgotten Principle

The inheritance taxes in this country have been increased to a point where poisoning your rich uncle, once a path to ease and fortune, has actually become the quickest road to ruin. It is decidedly not profitable to come into money these days, and we advise our readers to get themselves cut out of their relatives' wills as quickly as possible. Under the present arrangement a man who is earning $50 a week, and who inherits enough money to bring him an additional $2,000 a year will find that he has to pay a combined inheritance and income tax of $5,097 for four years! He is, in fact, $497 worse off than if he had no income at all. It seems that the meanest trick you can play on a man these days is to leave him your money.

Remembering this curious Canadian situation (and how can we forget it) it is interesting to read of a debate which recently engaged the attention of the Tynwald, the legislative body of the Isle of Man. The discussion was on inheritance taxes, and the legislators refused even to consider the matter on the ground that "the foundation of justice was one law for everyone, rich and poor. All graduated taxes like this outraged this principle." The principle of a single law for rich and poor no longer operates in the economic sphere; St. Francis himself can hardly have adored poverty more, or striven harder to promote it, than our strange inheritance taxes. There are no more rich men as we once understood the term, and the government is taking pains to punish the relatives and friends of those who arrive at Death's door with a few dollars still in their pockets; it is positively unsafe to know anyone nowadays who has an income of more than $5,000 a year. "A good man leaveth an inheritance to his children's children," said Solomon, but the modern good man will be well advised to see that his bounty is not transmuted by our inheritance law into a complicated form of beggary.

Provincially Owned Lignite

The Province of Ontario is going into the lignite, or brown coal business. There are extremely large deposits of this cheap, low-grade fuel about 175 miles north of Cochrane, and the T. & N.O. railway provides a convenient means of bringing it down to the industrial area. Mr. W. G. Nixon will be in charge of this new provincial project.

Premier Hepburn seems to be one of those unusual politicians who are better at deeds than at words. How bad he is at words we all know, but this decision to develop our lignite is another instance of his practical foresight in matters concerning the good of the Province. The substance has been in Northern Ontario, apparently not worth bothering with until this moment, when better sorts of fuel are scarce; but it takes initiative to enter upon a project of this kind in the midst of war. There are 8,500,000 tons of lignite ready to bring south, and 100,000,000 tons have been marked for future use. The development of the lignite fields will be a public utility, and there seems to be every likelihood that it will become a big thing for Ontario.

Lord Elton — Modern Jeremiah

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IF A reviewer is able to approve a book wholeheartedly, his work is easy; if he is able to condemn it wholeheartedly his task becomes positively delightful. But when he agrees in part and disagrees in part he is in a pickle, and nothing will extricate him save a considerable amount of hard work. A book which, for the present reviewer, comes in this difficult class is "Saint George Or The Dragon," the work of Lord Elton, which is published in this country by the firm of Collins.

Lord Elton is discussing England as it is now and as he hopes to see it after the war. There are some things which he says which almost every reader will agree to. But there are other very doubtful passages in the book and some which are downright irritating. Lord Elton is a man of superior intelligence, extensive education and cultivation, and considerable skill as a writer. But there are some matters on which he appears to be incorrigibly wrong-headed and philistine, and his lack of humor is a sad defect in his equipment as a critic of world affairs.

THE qualities which are most desirable in a warring nation, says he, are loyalty, courage, endurance and discipline; these he calls soldierly qualities. And yet, he complains, these are the very qualities which were mocked and decried in England in the period between the last war and this one. The man who was patriotic and who was prepared to 'do his bit' for the Empire which he loved and admired, was the butt of every wag and every agitator. Leaders were wanted who combined intelligence with character, and yet when such men arose they were savagely criticised by the press and by intellectuals who sought only to discredit the soldierly qualities which Lord Elton admires.

The author makes an ingenious attack upon the cartoonist, David Low, who created the famous Col. Blimp as a symbol of outworn, unintelligent, oppressive, arrogant imperialism. Blimp, says Lord Elton, was the butt of the nation, but Blimp proved in the long run to be right; he said that we should make ready for war, and sure enough, war caught us unawares. But Lord Elton has missed the point that the war for which Blimp was preparing was another Boer War, and that it was his sort of military intelligence which made the British army the unseasoned expeditionary force which went to Norway to fight the Nazis.

LORD ELTON has a strong dislike of intellectuals, which the present reviewer shares wholeheartedly. But Lord Elton does not appear to be able to distinguish between an 'intellectual' and a man of intellect. He accuses the intellectuals of beginning, as soon as the last war was over, to make fun of the soldierly virtues which they lacked, because they were ashamed of the fear which they had shown during the war! This is simply fantastic. True it is that bitter condemnations of that war were written by British writers, but by far the bitterest came from men of undoubted courage who had been through it. Richard Aldington and Osbert Sitwell among the novelists had fought bravely, and they knew what they were talking about; so did Siegfried Sassoon. Aldous Huxley, of whom Lord Elton disapproves, was almost blind then as he is now, and post-war shallowness has never had a fiercer critic. Robert Graves is not a man to be accused of cowardice. Lord Elton knows these things perfectly well, and he should not abuse his reader's intelligence by pretending that he does not.

It is imposible to forget, as one reads this book, that Lord Elton was one of the greatest friends of the late Ramsay Macdonald; he has some of Macdonald's ponderous intolerance of anyone who disagres with him. He has also the trick—very popular in writers on political and social matters nowadays—of proclaiming himself a Christian and then shooting off his moralistic arrows from under the Christian banner. Being a Christian certainly does not involve sharing Lord Elton's prejudices, nor is it fair of him to dismiss as 'agnostic materialism' the protest of the last twenty years against the soured remains of the puritan tradition in England. Obviously Lord Elton believes that the present war is a judgment on us for our wickedness. He says: "Pain (when the war is ended) will have performed its ancient remedial function, unmasking for us our sins and errors, and shattering our illusion of self-sufficiency." That is one way of looking at it; there are others.

BUT the author is not always on his moralistic horse. His demand that the 'rights' which so many groups are demanding today be balanced by correspnding duties is good sense, and he scores the craven desire for 'security' before all else in good set terms. This is a book to read, even if you disagree with it, for it demonstrates many of the things which are wrong with our modern world, sometimes by intention and sometimes by unconscious demonstration.

Unconsidered Trifles

Bump: "Has your wife learned to drive the car yet?"

Bumper: "Yes. In an advisory capacity."

Robbie: "So he told me."

Corporal (to cavalry recruit on stable guard for the first time): "Now, you've got to patrol these 'ere lines, and 'ammer any tent pegs that come loose, and look after the 'orses."

Recruit (whose knowledge of horses is of the slightest): "And what time do I wake the horses in the morning?"

The Minister had called on the widow of a man who had died suddenly, and after comforting her he thought he would put in a word to her to prepare herself for a visit from the Gleaner, whose visit was often unexpected. Then he became dramatic and recited: "Time, like an ever-rolling stream, bears all its sons away. They fly forgotten, as a dream dies at the opening day."

"Oh, aye a'," replied the widow, calmly, we're just like the travelling circus—here the day an' awa' the morn!"

THE THRILL THAT COMES ONLY ONCE

Solomon Silence Upsets Japs

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON, Associated Press War Analyst

GAUGED by previous Japanese practice, Tokyo claims of heavy damage dealt Allied forces in the Solomon Islands battle are perhaps the most encouraging word yet from that first Allied offensive operation in the Pacific.

They suggest that, as was the case in the Coral Sea and Midway fights, Japanese propagandists are busy concealing a developing and serious defeat from the Japanese public with a fictitious "victory" smoke screen.

It is also possible that Tokyo hopes to pry loose some information as to United States fleet dispositions in that area. Denials from Washington of the repeated and amplified Japanese assertions that thirty-five "Allied" combat ship and transports have been sunk might afford enemy naval experts some intimation of the size and nature of the forces involved or deployed for follow-up action. Washington is following well proved British Admiralty methods in ignoring the Japanese claims.

NEED INFORMATION BADLY

Certainly it is urgent for Japanese naval authorities to get some information as to the whereabouts of such American, British and Australian warcraft as may be in Pacific waters but have not yet been identified in action. The Japanese Naval High Command is being openly challenged to major action in the Solomon Islands area; but may not be certain yet that the attack there is not to some extent a diversion. It could be intended, aside from seizing the Tulagi Harbor vantage point, to draw the main force of the Japanese fleet southward, while heavier Allied air and sea forces were held in readiness to strike behind it at Truk or other bases in the insular outpost screen the Japanese have established covering Japan itself and north and south approaches to the China Sea.

Whatever may be the real composition of the attacking forces which have been hammering at the Japanese by land, sea and air for more than a week, however, the Battle of the Solomons has already blasted Japan's claim that she is mistress of the Western Pacific. The United States has launched a powerful attack in waters Tokyo has informed its people it ruled virtually unchallenged.

TOKYO MISCALCULATED

Washington silence tends to keep the Japanese on the anxious seat in reaching a decision as to where to concentrate to meet the threat. There is some evidence that both Washington and Allied headquarters in Australia know more than they have yet revealed. The first skirmishes of a fight that could widely change the war picture in the Pacific, and even influence the war trends in Russia, are developing favorably according to every sign.

Perhaps the greatest Allied asset yet to be discerned in that seething combat afloat, ashore and in the air is that Allied ability to hit back has been demonstrated before Tokyo believed it could be. The Tokyo warlords utterly miscalculated and underestimated Allied defensive resourcefulness in the Coral Sea and Midway operations. They burned their fingers badly in those Japanese disasters.

Tokyo now is confronted with no less convincing evidence that it may have also miscalculated the time necessary for American offensive power in the Pacific to be brought up to the striking point. If that is true—and the final outcome of the action in the Solomons could make it clear—not only the whole Japanese conquest timetable; but the Axis master-schedule could be upset.

Capital Closeups

By JOHN DAUPHINEE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 15 (CP)—Growth of this capital's diplomatic corps, mostly through arrival of new United Nations ministers, is considered officially one of the big developments of the war for Canada—an indication of the Dominion's increasing stature as a nation and the weight of her war effort.

The expanded facilities for international dealings are expected to be of high importance when peace comes.

Before the war the United States, France, the Netherlands, Belgium and Japan maintained legations here. Now the Japanese legation is closed but added—or about to be added—to the list are Russia, China, Norway, Poland, Yugoslavia, Czecho-Slovakia, Chile, Brazil and Argentina.

Trade considerations entered largely into the exchange of ministers with South American countries. As for the governments functioning in London, Canada has taken on new importance as a training ground for their troops.

There is still much speculation over who will go to Russia as first Canadian minister. There are growing rumors that Prime Minister Mackenzie King does not wish to weaken the civil service here by sending one of his key men.

And in some quarters there is talk that he has been negotiating with a man in Montreal, whose name isn't even breathed in closest government circles.

The Russian government has instructed its agents in New York to obtain Ottawa quarters for the new legation by Sept. 15. Presumably the Soviet Minister, Fyodor Gusev, will be here by then.

ODDS AND ENDS

As rubber and gasoline shortages force more and more cars off the road, additional restrictions are going to be placed on bus and street car travel so existing transit facilities can meet requirements....

Silver used to be a precious metal but the war has made it much more ultilitarian as a substitute for tin and other metals....Consideration is being given to use of silver in the plate needed for the canning industry....And platinum is "certain" to be controlled so far as civilian use is concerned, say the experts....Lead will be rationed because of increasing war demands and its use as a substitute for copper and brass.

"Good heavens! A bandit?"

Metals Controller George C. Bateman's name is usually connected with the shortages of such metals as steel, tin and copper, but those are only part of his worries. Some of the little-known minerals are just as vital to the war effort and harder to find.

Corundum—known deposits of this abrasive in Ontario are being investigated with a view to production;

Fluorspar—tests are being made at Madoc, Ont., on two old deposits of this mineral which is important in steel and aluminum production; the aim is to replace imports now required by Ontario steel mills;

Graphite—negotiations are going ahead toward establishment of one or more mills to produce graphite for crucibles;

Vanadium—so scarce that ash residues from oil-burning ships is being collected at both coasts and their vanadium content recovered; and experiments on Newfoundland iron or slag are being conducted with prospects of success.

ABOUT PEOPLE

Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald—It's not often folk choose an airplane to recuperate in but the United Kingdom High Commissioner did....He recently underwent an operation which required him to take it easy for a time....He's convalescing on a flight through the Northwest Territories.

G. G. (Gerry McGeer—The Liberal member for Vancouver Buarrard stayed in Ottawa after the House adjourned and can be seen just about anytime with a big map folo under his arm.... He's boosting the Prince George-Alaska Railway with all the enthusiasm he used to concentrate on monetary reform.

Labor Minister Mitchell—He and Secretary George Greene combined business and pleasure on a trip to the Maritimes....You won't find better suntans anywhere.

Increased Liquor Consumption

THE increase in consumption of alcoholic liquors in Canada is becoming a problem in economics, apart altogether from the questions of temperance or abstention. The House of Commons held a discussion on the subject in the closing days of the recent session and various expressions of concern have been heard from public personages from time to time.

Any consideration of the subject must take into account the fact that liquor taxes form a substantial part of governmental revenues. That point is not advanced as an argument for promoting the sale of spirits, but if this source of revenue were to be drastically curtailed or cut off, other sources would have to be found. The major concern, however, centres on whether or not the purchasing public can or should afford the amounts of liquor now being bought. The statistics clearly indicate a steady rise in liquor consumption, and some observers appear to be apprehensive over the situation, not so much on the ground of "morals" as of the national economy.

In this regard it may be helpful to note what has been done in Newfoundland. There the Commission of Government has decided upon certain restrictions in the sale of spirits. Its object has been to conserve present stocks and to reduce demands for shipping space. The solution arrived at entailed the issuing, on August 10, of a new form of liquor permit. This will not allow more than three bottles of spirits to be bought at a specified store of the Board of Liquor Control in St. John's or Corner Brook by or for any one purchaser in any one week. By no stretch of the imagination could this be called "prohibition," but it does afford a measure of curtailment, actual and perhaps psychological. At any rate it would appear to be a sensible beginning of a process of conservation.

In Canada the situation somewhat resembles that so often applying to the weather. A lot of people talk about it but nobody in authority seems to do anything about it. Liquor control or restriction would appear to be a matter for the Federal Government. In any case, if restriction becomes a wartime necessity, the Federal Government should acquire the powers necessary to insure fair and uniform liquor disposal.—Brantford Expositor.

Behold the days shall come, saith the Lord, that the plowman shall overtake the reaper, and the treader of grapes him that soweth seed; and the mountains shall drop sweet wine and all the hills shall melt.

And I will bring again the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens and eat the fruit of them.

And I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be pulled up out of their land which I have given them, saith the Lord thy God.—Amos 9: 13-15.

52nd Anniversary Observed At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 16. — (ENS).—Two long time residents of this town, Mr. and Mrs. John Peeling, Centre street, celebrated their 52nd wedding anniversary here on Friday. They were married at the home of Mrs. Peeling's parents only a few doors from where they are living to-day. Mrs. Peeling was formerly Fannie Blue and she was born at Picton, coming to Campbellford as a young girl, while Mr. Peeling was born in Seymour township and in his early life he was a sawyer with the Rathburn Lumber Company. Though he is 72 years old, and his wife slightly younger, Mr. Peeling is still going strong, looking after an acre of garden and usually in the afternoon spending a couple of hours helping out his son-in-law, Mr. F. F. Long in his confectionery store. They spent the day quietly at their home carrying on much as usual receeiving messages of congratulations from their three daughters, Mrs. F. F. Long, Campbellford, Mrs. John Haig of Seymour and Mrs. T. B. Robinson of Toronto and from their three sons, Mr. Morely Peeling of St. Catharines, Mrs. W. J. (Bill) Peeling of Montreal, and Mr. Percy Peeling of town.

New Activities Open To Women

For those married women who are in a position to do so, there are some new ideas being brought forward to help in the war effort. First and foremost there is the shortage of help at the canneries which has hit a high level this season, and women are wanted to come from one to eight weeks, in cases where their families are in a position to manage without them for a short time.

The canners provide the transportation and the only uniform necessary is a house dress and an apron. Arrangements are being made with housewives of the district to board out the women workers for the period of their stay. For those ladies who happen to live reasonably close to the cannery, those in charge, are trying to arrange about bus transportation so that they can get home at nights and lessen the strain on accommodation.

The rates of pay are something again and have not as yet been announced publicly. But it is understood that the amount per person is made according to the individual ability of each woman. It is to be expected that there will be a minimum, and after that it is up to each woman herself as to just how much she can pull down.

Another plan that has been working very successfully in the states and that is worthy of consideration by Canadian women is the "block mother" system. This is an arrangement by which women who cannot go out of their home — yet feel they would like to do something for the war effort—volunteer to look after children of mothers engaged in war work or to take charge of groups of children during an air raid, or any other case of emergency. Mothers of older children and women without children are being encouraged to take on this work in the States. The mastery of First Aid is not essential but its usefulness is stressed and from 60 to 70 per cent. of those in this work have taken courses.

This plan of "block mothers" has enabled mothers of young children to carry on their war work this summer with contented minds, knowing that their children have a safe place in which to be cared for. This is along the same plan as the day nurseries that are being organized, but in this fashion more children might receive care than in the nurseries, because there would be more of them

Many married women have been heard to sigh with regret over the way they were doing things in the last war, and now that they seem to be out of it altogether. Where they are free to do so, it is in things like these where they can give very essential service, and they are just as important as the other activities that occupied their time in the last war. So ladies let's organize.

Churchill Fund Great Success

One of the most worthwhile war funds being operated in Peterborough is the Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund, under the direction of the Y.W.C.A. After war broke out, the British government asked the British Y.W.C.A. to be responsible for the women in the permanent forces and Mrs. Churchill graciously offered to head it up. Thereupon other branches of this organization throughout the Empire began to sponsor the Fund.

This city's first allocation of $1,500 was met in the early spring and already the fund has $500 on the way to the next $1500. The money is sent in smaller amounts as it comes in. The money has been raised in various ways. The ladies in Lindsay by a series of Vanishing Teas handed in $164, the local Y.W.C.A. Girls Council sponsored a dance early this spring and got $125, many of the music teachers giving recitals at the Y.W. and at their homes have turned over the proceeds, and then there are private subscriptions.

Recently the government in Britain realized that the girls in industry needed someone to take an interest in them and so the Y.W.C.A. was asked to take that on too. One of the business firms has donated a large building for the use of war workers as a club house. This club was opened up by Mrs. Churchill, who has such unflagging interest in this work. Already there are six hundred members, and it is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. There are all kinds of indoor games at the club, dancing, gym classes, a library and many other facilities.

Women With Lot Of Personality Sell Insurance

By HAZEL DEAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, August 15. —(CP) — Canadian saleswomen will move into the life insurance field during the war with increasing success, in the opinion of several insurance company officials in Toronto— and they should know.

For more than 10 years, women insurance representatives have worked quietly and efficiently beside their male colleagues. They have blazed a trail for newcomers who soon will fill wartime postions left vacant by insurance salesmen of military age.

Statistics compiled by one company show clients enjoy the women's sales talks. Few have turned down the woman representative in favor of a male agent. Saleswomen themselves discount as nonsense stories of women barred from the insurance business by masculine prejudice. Men who know their insurance believe saleswomen will have a full-time job during and after the war.

Business Sense.

What do personnel managers look for in prospective insurance representatives? First, sound business sense combined with a pleasing personality. But thumbs down on glamor. Feminine wiles alone will never sell a life insurance policy, the experts say. Unusual educational standards are not essential. Women between 25 and 40 with broad social contacts, perseverence and initiative are generally preferred. Enthusiasm for work and ability to "like people" are important qualifications.

Careful selection and improved training methods have decreased the possibility of misfits in the insurance business. All applicants must try an aptitude index test before their future as representatives is considered. For instance: "Do you like musical comedies?" "Are you ever late for an oppointment." "Are you easily discouraged." Only the insurance saleswoman can answer these —and 78 similar questions—satisfactorily.

In It 14 Years.

One saleswoman who knows the answers is Jane Knowling of Toronto. A successful insurance representative for 14 years, she believes in adding a feminine touch to her sales talk; does much of her business over a friendly cup of tea. Mrs. Knowling recently was admitted to her company's "Millian Dollar Club." Entrance requirement is sale of $1,000,000 in insurance policies.

Mrs. Knowling admits she entered the insurance business "because it looked easy." Now she advises would-be saleswomen to expect their share of hard work. "It takes courage and perseverence for a woman to make a career in this field." But she finds her work exciting and enjoys the keen competition it offers.

Dear Miss Dix.—Will you please explain why the girls who were the biggest dumbbells in school are the first to get married. Also, why do the great majority of men prefer to go out with and marry the girls with inferior intelligence and character rather than the superior girls? Of course men assert that they admire and respect the superior girls, but they don't date them or show any haste to marry them. Why?

—Marian.

Answer.—A serpent on a rock and the way of a man with a maid have been set down in Holy Writ as two of the inscrutable mysteries of life; so we have to let it go at that and can only guess the answer.

Certainly no one can deny that men, taking them by and large, seem to relish feminine brains only when they are scrambled. It is a matter or record that a college degree is a definite matrimonial handicap, and that for a girl to have a reputation of being a high-brow scares the men off quicker than would a scandal. Nobody, in recommending a girl to a boy, would be foolish enough to tell him how smart and well educated she was. He or she would praise the outside of her head and descant on her beautiful eyes and peaches and cream complexion and golden hair, and say nothing about what is inside it.

Undeniably, before marriage men prefer nitwits, but after marriage it is a different story. When, after having picked out a silly little goose for a wife, the husband expects her to turn into an owl and to be wise enough to entertain him and manage her affairs with intelligence. And it's because men marry little sillies and expect them to act like Hetty Greens that we have so many whining husbands going around complaining that their wives do not understand them and that they are mismated.

Easy To Understand If—

If all the little sillies were beauties and all the intellectual girls were homely, it would be easy to understand why the Dumb Doras win out, but such is not the case. Nature is a pretty just old dame, after all, and she distributes her supply of soulful eyes and naturally curly hair and Grecian profiles with an even hand between the smart and the dull, so that the girl with brains is just as likely to look like a bathng beauty as the one without.

Indeed, if there is any favoritism, the girl who has brains gets the advantage, for no clever woman ever can be as ugly as a stupid one. There is always something in her face that redeems it, no matter what kind of features she has.

Hence, the mystery of why men prefer little Flossie Addlepate to Miss Minerva can't be explained on the grounds of looks, so we have to fall back upon the theory that little Flossie's appeal is to men's vanity and that they choose her instead of her superior sister because they like women they can look down upon better than women they have to look up to.

Little Flossie's vocabularly may consist of only one phrase: "Oh, how big and strong and wonderful you are," but it's enough. It gets her man, and that's why she can marry all around the intelligent girl who knows as much or more than the boy friend.

Complain About Bossy Mother

Dear Miss Dix—Will you give your advice to two sisters, 28 and 23, a brother, 26 years old, who are tired of their mother's tyranny. We never have been permitted to have friends, or to ask anyone to our home, although we support it. We paid for an automobile, but are never permitted to use it. She requires us to tell her who is talking to us over the telephone and what he or she says. We cannot go in or out of the house at night without her giving us a tongue lashing. We have no real home, no pleasures, no freedom, no anything, and we are desperate. What shall we do?

—Three Miserable Children.

Answer.—People in their twenties are no longer children; they are adult, and entitled to live their lives in their own way. When they have the misfortune of having a tyrannical mother, they are just as weak and cowardly to let her dominate them as they would be if they submitted to slavery.

The remedy for your case is in your own hands. Just tell her that you have stood her domination as long as you intend to, and that you are going to put her in a boarding house where you will pay her board and see that she has every comfort, but that you will not let her ruin your lives any longer by bossing you.

Old In Years, Young In Ideas

Dear Miss Dix.—Underage children are required to get the consent of their parents before they are allowed to marry. Do you not think that average parents should be required to get the permission of their children before they are permitted to marry again? Our father is 75 years old, very well off, and he wants to marry a woman much his junior, who obviously is marrying him for his money. We children are devoted to our father, and we would welcome him in our homes and give him every care and attention, whereas he can expect nothing from his Number Two wife.

—Headaches and Heartaches.

Answer.—There is nothing more pitiful than an old man being shanghaied into marriage by a little gold digger young enough to be his granddaughter, who has persuaded him that she loves him for himself alone, but there's nothing that his children can do about it. There certainly should be some law to supervise the marriages in second childhood as well as the first.

LUCKIES FORCED OUT OF PLAY-OFF PICTURE BY ROYALS' RALLY

Royals Meet Plazas In Final Series

Luckies passed out of the City League playoff picture Friday night when Royals once again came from behind to defeat Manager Griffin's club 11 to 7 in the second game of their semi-final series, thus taking the round in two straight games. Royals will now meet Plazas in a best-of-seven series for the City League title, the first game scheduled for next Wednesday night.

It was a benefit game for the O.A.S.A. Bat and Ball fund and $40 was raised to help supply sporting equipment for Canada's armed forces.

Bill Fraser went the route for the Royals. Luckies greeted him with four straight hits in the opening frame but he squared away after that bad start and had the losers' hitters pretty well under control for the rest of the journey.

Southpaw Bill Lewis started for Luckies but he was wild and Royals mixed hits with misplays by the Luckies to wipe out the three-run lead the losers established in the first and to go well out in front themselves. Lewis was finally chased out of the box in the fifth when Royals scored five runs and Frank McCormick finished the game which was called for darkness at the end of the eighth.

It was a loosely-played affair but there were some fielding gems in spite of that fact. The feature play was turned in by Frank McCormick in left field for Luckies when he tore in to make a beautiful catch of Smith's low liner to left and then doubled McNabb out at the plate with a perfect throw to Mowry when he tried to score from third after the catch. Al Courneya had a circus catch of a line drive that bounded high in the air off his glove. He ran back and grabbed the ball before it reached the ground.

Luckies Start Well

Luckies got away to a good start. Courneya singled on a hard drive that Hawks knocked down but could not field in time. McCormick singled to right sending Courneya to third and when Don Holmes made a low throw to first, trying to get McCormick, Courneya scored on the miscue. Lewis lined to right and when Lionel Holmes tried to make a shoestring catch of the drive, the ball shot past him for a homer, McCormick scoring in front of Lewis. Stewart bounced a single over third for the fourth consecutive hit but was forced at second on Mowry's tap to McNabb. Moorhead flied to Parnell and after M. Caccavella was safe on Smith's error he was forced at second by A. Caccavella.

Royals got one back in the second. Pat Calladine bounced a single over Courneya's head and advanced to third on a passed ball and a wild pitch. Pryde struck out but Parnell walked and when he pulled a delayed steal of second and Mowry threw down A. Caccavella made a wide throw to third trying to nail Calladine and the Royals' catcher ran home. Lionel Holmes walked but Fraser flied to M. Caccavella and Courneya tossed out McNabb.

Don Holmes opened the Royals third with a single, Smith bunted for a sacrifice but Lewis made a high throw to first and Holmes went to third and the batter to second. Courneya tossed out Hawks, the runners being held. Calladine also hit to Courneya and Holmes scored while he was being thrown out. Pryde flied to Stewart.

The winners got three easy counters in the fourth. Parnell opened with a triple to right. Lionel Holmes walked and Fraser beat out a bunt, filling the bases. Lewis passed McNabb, forcing in Parnell. D. Holmes rolled to Courneya who fired to the plate and when Mowry dropped the ball, Holmes and Fraser scored on the error. Smith lined to left and McCormick after a fine running catch doubled McNabb at the plate. Hawks was thrown out by Courneya.

Royals' Big Inning

Royals delivered their big blow of the pastime in the fifth. Pat Calladine started with a homer over McCormick's head. The drive was not played too well by the left fielder. Pryde walked but was forced at second Parnell's tap to Jameson. Lionel Holmes walked for the third time and he and Parnell both scored on Fraser's triple between Stewart and Moorhead. McNabb flied to McCormick whose quick throw in held Fraser at third. D. Holmes was safe on Courneya's fumble, Fraser scoring. Smith walked and Lewis was replaced on the mound by Frank McCormick, the two changing places. The relief pitcher passed Hawks to load up the sacks and then handed Calladine a walk, forcing in D. Holmes. Calladine was forced at second on Pryde's tap to Courneya.

That made it 10 to 3. Luckies picked up one in their half. With one out Lewis was safe when McNabb's throw pulled Smith off first. He was forced at second by Stewart. The latter went to second on a passed ball. Mowry was safe on McNabb's fumble, Stewart going to third. When Calladine threw down to first to pick Mowry off his toss hit the runner and Stewart ran in on the play. Moorhead popped to Smith to end the inning.

There was no more scoring until the seventh when Luckies scored twice. Lewis started with a single to short, and went to second on a wild pitch. Stewart singled to centre scoring Lewis and taking second on the throw to the plate. Mowry lined to Hawks. Stewart went to third on a passed ball and scored when Taylor, batting for Moorhead rolled to D. Holmes. M. Caccavella struct out.

Royals got a run in the eighth. Lionel Holmes reached second when Lewis dropped his fly to left. Fraser singled to right to send the run in.

In their half Luckies got a marker after two were out. Al Courneya tripled to centre and scored on a passed ball. McCormick and Lewis walked but Stewart forced the former at third on a roller to McNabb.

ATHLETES AT WAR

By MIKE GREENSTEIN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

(News of Canadian athletes in the armed forces will be welcomed for inclusion in this weekly feature and should be sent to "Athletes at War", The Canadian Press, 44 Victoria street, Toronto.)

TORONTO, Aug. 15—(CP)—From Fort William, Irvin Rechtshaffen of the Times-Journal writes about Sgt. George Nyberg, at present stationed with an Army Training Centre there. George apparently glorifies the life athletic and believes in lengthy route marches as one good way of keeping fit. A former pro boxer with an enviable record before his enlistment—Nyberg won 33 bouts, lost four and drew three—he was well-known in boxing circles in and around Chicago.

Recently he won a fight over Curly Martin of St. Paul, Minn., in a fight sponsored by the Port Arthur Junior Hockey Club. He had to get up at 5 a.m. every morning to train for the bout. George and his brother Alfred used to fight on amateur cards at Port Arthur, their home town.

Airwoman Ethel Boyce, formerly of Vancouver, where she was well known in softball circles now is stationed at Ottawa where she still keeps up her extra-curricular activities on the diamond . . . Tennis Dolores Main, another Coast girl, is a typist in the R.C.A.F. Women's Division.

Tony Desmarais, flashy forward with the Calgary Stampeders, has joined the army and now is posted with the Royal Canadian Artillery at Currie Barracks, Calgary.

Clayton Browne of the St. Catharines Standard passes on the information that Bob Groombridge, Russ Kennedy and Jack Reid, three former rowing stars with the St. Catharines Rowing Club, now sail under the colors of the Royal Navy.

A former all-round athlete, Sgt. Jack Lutes of Moncton is serving overseas with the R.C.A.F. He played basketball, baseball and hockey at Moncton and later starred in rugby, hockey and basketball teams at St. Joseph's University. George Bell, another Maritimes product in the air force, is a former front-line star for Moncton Maroons, three times Maritime senior hockey champions.

Capt. Walter McGregor of Windsor, Ont., with the Essex Scottish overseas, took part in the recent extensive manoeuvres held by the Canadian Army overseas. Walt captained the University of Toronto senior basketball team in his final year at Varsity and was one of the outstanding cage guards of the intercollegiate wars.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Nearly all of the greens were occupied Friday night, when the boys came out to play in the weekly tournament. This time it was doubles. It was a grand night for bowling and with the greens just newly cut and rolled it helped the bowling a lot. Three 10-end games were played. The winning pairs were:

1—R. Burns and Nels Routley; 2—C. Renaud and P. Spence; 3—H. Martin and G. Soulby; 4—T. McMillan and L. Heath; 5—M. Levine and I. Moldaver.

All receive War Savings Stamps.

The men of our club are not the only bowlers who can score eight ends. It seems that down at Port Hope the other afternoon one of our ladies rinks turned the trick.

Tonight will be the usual weekend mixed tournament at 7:30 o'clock.

It is with regret that we read in this morning's paper of the death of one of our bowlers, Hugh Young. Coming to Peterborough only about two months ago he joined our club and associated himself with John Sedgewick's rink. Of a quiet disposition he soon became well known among the bowlers and was fast making a name for himself as a real bowler. Although it was known that he was in poor health for some time nevertheless the news of his death was quite a shock. Our club members extend to the members of his family, their deepest sympathy.

Our supplementary schedule starts on Monday evening. By this time, we believe all of our bowlers have in their possession the new printed forms. It is to be hoped that the skips will see to it that their rinks are out to play. Please don't default.

Monday Night's Draw

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

With Westclox leading the series by two straight wins the third game in the Girls' Softball League will be staged this evening and it should be a honey. Generals cannot afford to drop another game and they will work their heads off to grab off tonight's tilt and get back into the contention. On the other hand the Westclock hope to wind up the best four-of-seven game series as soon as possible in order to get a breathing spell before going into action against the Toronto winners in the provincial playdowns next Wednesday. Marg Watson who started the two winning games for the Big Bens will get the assignment again tonight and either Bea McDowell or Marilyn McCarthy will be called upon by Generals. This is the crucial game of the series. If the Generals lose they would be facing the task of beating Westclockers four games in a row, an almost hopeless proposition. Both teams will be at full strength and with so much at stake the battle should be a thriller from beginning to end. It will get under way sharp at 7 o'clock and the biggest crowd of the year to see a girls' game is expected.

* * * * * *

The Girls' League executive, realizing that the time for getting a winner was short endeavored to secure a week's delay and for a while yesterday thought that they had succeedd in their effort. However later a wire was received from President M. Rae to the effect that a winner would have to be ready to play in Toronto Wednesday, even if a sudden death game had to be called to select Peterborough's representatives. The local league however plans to stage games tonight, Monday and Tuesday and if the series is not completed then, the team that is in front will represent the city in the provincial playdowns and the remaining games of the series will be played later to decide the city championship. The City League is co-operating by not starting its final series until Wednesday, giving the girls the right-of-way on Monday and a chance to get some much-needed funds. Westclox lead the series with two straight wins.

The Luckies Are Out

Manager Fred Griffin's Luckies have joined the Soldiers and Juveniles in the City League's eliminated list. Royals who couldn't win a game from Luckies all season until the playoffs grabbed off their second victory in succession last night in a loose battle and thus have taken the City League semi-final round in two straight battles. History repeated itself last night. As in the first game Luckies got away to a flying start by scoring three runs in the opening frame. Royals kept hammering away, however, and scoring single runs in the second and third, added three in the fourth and broke the game wide open with five in the next inning. Bill Fraser, fast ball pitcher, who has been missing from the Royals lineup for some time was back on the hill top and after a bad start pitched fine ball. Bill Lewis was handed the task of holding the Royals but the Luckies' southpaw suffered from lack of control and he was finally driven to shelter in the big fifth. Luckies have played good ball all season and have done their share in making the City League campaign one of the most successful in years.

* * * * * *

Now it is up to the Plazas and Royals to battle it out for the league title and it should be a hectic series before one club or the other wins four games. The playoffs have run true to form in as much as the team in the higher bracket in each case came through with straight wins. The Plazas who topped the league eliminated the fourth place Soldiers and the Royals who finished second took care of Luckies who ended the regular schedule in the third slot. Now the first and second clubs are left to fight it out for the championship. Incidentally two of the three games lost by the Plazas this season have been dropped to the Royals. The playoff series opens next Wednesday and it should produce plenty of excitement. Plazas have lots of power and team spirit and two reliable pitchers in Tom Parsons and Dave Wilson, and in addition have a fast-fielding crew. Royals who finished two games behind the leaders have a good pitching staff in Fraser, Akers and Bob Crowe and considerable batting strength as well and every game in the playoffs should be a real argument.

Ken Colling has the following softball dope in his Belleville sport column: "Providing fine weather continues to prevail and even if the City Softball finals go to the limit of five games there are exactly enough alternate playing dates left on the calendar to allow the series to be concluded before the provincial O.A.S.A. playdowns open. Harry Rollins, vice present of the O.A.S.A., announced today that Belleville and Trenton would open their annual Intermediate "A" playoffs here on Aug. 26th and back in Trenton for the second game on the 28th of the month. The Trenton league elected to play in the "A" series again this year after rubbing Belleville out of the softball picture rather easily in 1941. "Slugger Barney" McColl, a bane to Belleville pitching last year, Jim Steacy, their ace moundsman, and such tried and proven players as Austin and Carm Cook still go along to make up a strong softball nine. Oshawa and Peterborough and Kingston are other Intermediate "A" category teams in Eastern Ontario.

Brooklyn Dodgers, sailing along in front of the National League parade really looked like leaders yesterday when they handed the Boston Braves two one-sided trimmings. The Bums cracking out fifteen hits off three Beantown pitchers in the first game 10 to 0 with Curt Davis handling the whitewash brush and allowing seven scattered hits in grabbing off his 12th victory of the season. Whit Wyatt picked up his 14th triumph of the campaign in the second game which the Dodgers won without much trouble by 8 to 3. Dolph Camilli was teeing off in both games. He walloped his 18th homer of the season in the first and came back with No. 19 in the nightcap affair. Pete Reiser also banged out a four-master in the second game. The double win represented the gain of a full game by the Dodgers as the Cards were idle. Chicago Cubs also had thir batting togs on yesterday. They hammered out 18 hits including Bill Nicholson's 12th and Stan Hack's 6th homers of the year to win easily 7 to 1 with Lon Warneke the winning pitcher.

Old Carl Hubbell has still a lot of stuff left as the Phils found yesterday. The veteran screw-baller held the Philadelphia outfit to four hits and the Giants came through with a neat 5 to 2 victory with Johnston going down in the records as the losing pitcher. Litwiler and Northey hit homers for the losers to rob Hubbell of a shutout. In the only American League game played in the afternoon Hal White, former Buffalo Bison showed a nice spot of pitching when he held the Chicago White Sox to four hits and the Tigers won handily 7 to 1. Rudy York whammed his 18th homer of the season and Jim Bloodworth came through with No. 12 to make White's task the easier. The losing pitcher was Thornton Lee who won his first game of the campaign a short time ago.

The Yanks set a new double-play record last night reeling off seven twin-killings in a nine innings game against the Athletics.... The American League leaders defeated the A's 11 to 2.... It looks as if the A's should be given credit for an assist or two in setting up the new mark.... Bad base-running made several of the double-plays possible.... Mort Cooper of the Cards who has been having a little difficulty lately managed to grab off his 14th win last night, holding the Cincinnati Reds to two hits as St. Louis won 4 to 0. Not a Red touched second base.... Bill Fraser wasn't satisfied with pitching a good game last night. He also punched out four hits in five trips to the plate and drove in three runs which isn't a bad night for a twirler.... Courneya's catch of a line drive that he chased back and caught after it had bounced off his hands was one for the book .... When the ball was seen high in the air above the third baseman's head the scorer started to mark down a hit.... Then a roar from the crowd called attention to the fact that the third baseman had dashed back and caught the ball.... Toronto Maple Leafs handed Buffalo a real trimming last night. The final score was 8 to 1 and Nick Strincevich won his ninth victory of the season.

Lifer Signed, But Can't Pitch

Warden George C. Alexander of the Oregon state prison at Salem, has given Keith "Big Luke" Crosswhite, penitentiary lifer, permission to play "home" ball with the Salem Senators of the Western International League but it is doubtful that Crosswhite will accept because of refusal of the National Association of Minor Professional Baseball Leagues to sanction it. Crosswhite, who has been pitching for the prison nine for 11 years, was to hurl in an exhibition game.

Hogan Maintains 5-Stroke Lead

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Aug. 15 — (AP).—Although lacking his first-round putting magic, little Ben Hogan had enough other shots yesterday for a sparkling two-under-par 68—good for a five-stroke lead at the half-way mark in the $5,000 Times-Union open golf tournament.

Unmindful of the big gallery which followed him, the Texas shot-maker fashioned 34's on the outgoing and incoming nines, which, combined with Thursday's six-under-par 64, gave him a 36-hole total of 132, five strokes ahead of Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Philadelphia.

McSpaden turned in a 34-34—68 for a two-day total of 137, three better than the 140 of Sammy Byrd, Ardmore, Pa., and Chick Harbert, Battle Creek, Mich., who shared third spot.

Byrd joined a 72 yesterday to Thursday's 68, while Harbert was even par 70's for the second successive round.

Bunched in fourth place with 141 were Horton Smith, Springfield, Mo.; Dutch Harrison, Sand Hill, Pa.; Clay Heafner, Linville, N.C.; and Jimmy Demaret, Detroit.

Bringing up the list of leaders with 142 were Jimmy Thomson, Chicopee, Mass.; Ky Laffoon, Miami, Okla; and Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, Canadian open champion.

Cubs Snatch Win With Home Run

In a hard fought game last night that started off the semi-finals in the C.S.L. in the Armour Road ball park, the K. of C. took it on the chin in the last minute of play. The Cubs chased the winning counter over the plate when F. O'Toole pounded out a million dollar home run over the centre fielder's head. With two runs following his the East City crew took the contest 15-12.

Mucker Legrow, who was handling the fray from the home plate lookout, called the game momentarily at the end of the fifth to ask the teams if they wished to play another inning because it was getting dark. The teams agreed and when O'Toole came through with his four-bagger the game was in the bag for the Cubs, as they were the home team. About whether it was a legal contest was disputed immediately upon the umpire-in-chief's calling the game on account of darkness. He awarded the game to the Cubs and the executive has backed up his decision.

K. of C. who were first at bat, started things off by chalking up a trio of markers and in the same frame Cubs swarmed right back with nine big runs. This gave them a big edge. Both squads were scoreless in the second while the Knights accounted for one more in the third to make it 9-4. The Cubs, however, pulled away out in front again by putting their hooks on three in their half of the same column, making it 12-4. This was just about enough for the battling K. of C.'s and in the upper portion of the fourth put on the power which netted them a big eight, sewing the game up at 12 all. For the fifth and six frames Knights couldn't do a thing, while the victors carried home the bacon when they rallied for three runs.

Brady at third for the Cubs contributed a spectacular over-shoulder catch to his team's defence when he caught Mattucci's deep fly which would have been foul.

Military Sports Attracts Heavy Entry

TORONTO, Aug. 15 (CP)—Athletes representing all military districts in Ontario and all services stationed in the province except the Women's division of the R.C.A.F. were in competition here today for the first Ontario military track and field championship.

Military District No. 2, with headquarters in Toronto, was favored to win the title pennant mainly because of such favored athletes as Cpl. Larry O'Connor, former Olympic hurdler, but the opposition was expected to be strong.

Although most of the meet's 20 events are confined to army men, track and field stars representing the Canadian Navy and Air Force, the R.A.F. and the Royal Norwegian Air Force were entered in open competitions.

Preliminary events were scheduled for this morning at Varsity Stadium, with the main competitions to be completed before an admission-free crowd in the stadium this afternoon.

Each military district team was limited to 25 male competitors and eight members of the C.W.A.C.—six entered in track events and two in the tire-changing competition, a feature of the afternoon program.

Pete Taylor of Oakville, Ont., representing Petawawa, was expected to provide O'Connor's main competition in the 100 and 220-yard sprints. Among other outstanding athletes entered in the sprints were Lieut. N. S. Boyd, Hamilton; Pte. W. J. McClelland, London, Ont.; and QMS. Marty Swords, Ottawa.

Lieut. A. J. Hodgen of Windsor, Ont., was entered from M.D. 3 (Kingston) in the middle-distance track events, with Pte. J. Janz, Winnipeg, a favored miler, also representing M.D. 3. Kingston district also was expected to have an edge in the pole vault event through entry of Pte. G. M. Paul, former Queen's University star.

Frank Calder's N.H.L. Case Before Little

OTTAWA, Aug. 15—(CP).—President Frank Calder's case for wartime continuance of the National Hockey League has reached the desk of Elliott M. Little, director of National Selective Service, but has not yet been dealt with, it was learned yesterday.

As word came from Chicago that representatives of the Canadian Amateur Hockey organization will meet in Toronto next Friday to learn Ottawa's position on the wartime hockey question, Calder's brief seemed likely to go soon before the Selective Service Committee here for consideration.

Hockey Of Some Kind.

Contents of the brief have not been made public. A week ago official spokesmen said the hockey mentor was asked to submit a picture of the league's manpower situation, with a full list of Canadians playing in the league, their age, marital status and eligibility for armed service.

There has been no decision on how Canada's war requirements will cut into the manpower available for the National League. That will await a close study of Calder's submission. But Little recently authorized this quotation:

"It may be necessary to give some consideration to maintaining the N. H. L. in some form, or on some basis, or else we would face the problem of replacing what it at present means to hundreds of thousands of Canadians in entertainment and maintenance of morale."

His office intimated the selective service director is inclined to think the N.H.L. should go ahead for the coming season at least.

There was no immediate indication what—if any—Government officials would attend the forthcoming Toronto hockey meeting. A spokesman at Little's office said any reply to Calder's brief likely would go direct to the N.H.L. president rather than to a meeting.

Terry Confesses Dodgers Hot

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 15—(AP)—Bill Terry, general manager of New York Giants, who once wondered if Brooklyn was in the National League cocked his foot on the back of a hotel chair today and allowed as how the Dodgers had a right smart ball club.

Terry, who came here to look over the fielding and batting wares of one Luis Olmo of Richmond Colts, said Brooklyn had more than a "chance" to whip New York Yankees if they meet in the World Series.

The Dodgers can get a lot out of their players, he added. "That town really makes a player hustle. Leo Durocher has done a remarkable job handling those players.

"Of course somebody had to get them together, and you've got to give Larry McPhail credit there. They've got some fine players. Pee Wee Reese can go at short, and Pete Reiser has the earmarks of a great ball player.

Rescued At Sea, Then Stars In Track Meet

Few of the spectators at a recent R.C.A.F. sports meet in England realized that one of the stars of the afternoon had spent a harrowing 20 minutes bobbing around in the North Sea the night before. A mishap to his aircraft gave Sgt. Pilot Martin A. Naylor of Vancouver no time to float his dinghy when the machine hit the water and he was forced to rely on his Mae West until rescuers picked him up. Sgt. Naylor suffered no ill effects and the next day he scored the third highest individual points of the meet with victories in the hop-step and jump, the broad jump and a second in the 200-yard dash. He is shown here receiving his awards from Group Captain A. P. Campbell of Hamilton.

Syracuse Chiefs Shutout Record Ends At 54 Innings

By The Associated Press

The worm turned—but it was a short turn. Syracuse Chiefs suffered what they had been administering to International League opponents—a shutout — but also applied one in a double-header.

Before the contest, the Chiefs had registered five straight shutout victories and had a string of 49 consecutive scoreless innings. Tom Delacruz extended the streak to 54 before the Giants broke through with three runs in the sixth inning.

The Chiefs reverted to their old form in the nightcap, however, as Ewell Blackwell hurled them to an 11-inning 2-0 victory. In registering his 11th triumph of the campaign. Blackwell gave up only six hits and struck out five.

Thus the Chiefs have been scored on only in one of the last 67 innings—and that lone outburst cost them a ball game.

Jolting Erv Dusak and Ray Pflegger smashed seven hits between them as Rochester Red Wings walloped Montreal Royals, 14-6. One of Dusak's hits was his 15th homer of the season. Rochester took a commanding lead in the first with a four-run blast and then scored nine times on six hits, three walks and an error in the fourth after two were out.

For the fifth straight game, Baltimore Orioles failed to score a run. The whitewash was applied by Lefty Joe Page of Newark Bears, who set down the Orioles with four hits while his mates pounded three hurlers for 12 in annexing a 9-0 triumph.

Nick Strincevich turned in his ninth victory as Toronto Maple Leafs Leafs smashed 10 hits off four Buffalo twirlers for an 8-1 triumph.

Johnny Wryostek gave the Leafs an early lead by cracking an inside-the-park home run with Burgess Whitehead on base in the first. Toronto scored all its eight runs before Buffalo counted its lone tally.

Wallop A's 11-2, Now Have 150 In 111 Games

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Arc-light baseball has no greater foe than the New York Yankees, but the absence of the sun doesn't seem to bother the world champions when they begin wiping runners off the base paths with their defensive specialty, the double play.

Holders of the major league record for twin killings in a season, the Yankees established a new mark for a single game last night when they completed seven while walloping Philadelphia Athletics, 11-2.

The old record for nine innings was six, set by Cincinnati Reds in 1925, and tied by four other teams. Washington Senators, only American leaguers sharing in the record, were the last to tie it in 1933.

By "killing two birds" with one play in every inning except two, the Yankees stretched their total two-ply executions to 150 for 11 games.

With 43 games in front of them, they need only 47 more double plays to crack the record of 196 for a 154-game season which they set last year.

Even with the help of seven double plays and a 15-hit Yankees attack, Lefty Gomez had to have help from his old standby, Johnny Murphy, to hang up his sixth pitching victory again four defeats. Tommy Henrich drove in four Yankee runs, two of them with his 10th homer.

The record-breaking defensive feat was the standout performance of a baseball day that produced other sparkling jobs, particularly among the pitching stars.

Cooper Blanks Reds

In another night contest, Mort Cooper hurled St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-0 decision over Cincinnati, blanking the Reds on two hits.

The shutout, 13th of the year for the Cards, was Cooper's seventh and his third two-hitter. It brought his record to 14 victories, against half a dozen defeats. He fanned six batters and walked none.

At New York, King Carl Hubbell tossed a four-hitter at Philadelphia Phils as New York Giants triumphed, 5-2. Two Philadelphia hits were homers by Danny Litwhiler and Ron Northey, but the Giants got Hubbell more than enough runs to give him his seventh triumph in a victory string that is the longest in the National League.

"Bean balls" were forgotten at Brooklyn, where the Dodgers walloped Boston Braves, 10-0 and 7-3, in the first meeting of the two teams since their "duster" throwing provoked a new league rule against the practice.

Curt Davis hurled a seven-hit shutout in the opener, while the Dodgers banged three Boston pitchers for 15 blows. Whitlow Wyatt pitched the nightcap for the National League leaders, but he had to weather ninth-inning uprising in which the Braves got half of their eight hits and two of their runs.

Dolph Camilli hit a home run in each game, with two mates on base in the first and one in the second, to bring this total to 19 and tie Johnny Mize of the Giants for the league lead.

Chicago Cubs downed Pittsburg Pirates, 7-1, backing up Lon Warneke's seven-hit pitching with an 18-blow attack, including homers by Bill Nicholson and Stan Hack.

Sports Snapshots Across Canada

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Aug. 15 (CP)—Canadian sport is confronted with a situation that is unusual in the extreme, even for wrestling. Wild Bill Longson, recognized as heavyweight champion by the no doubt world-renowned National Wrestling Association, will wrestle Yvon Robert in Montreal next Wednesday and Whipper Billy Watson in Toronto next Thursday for the same title.

It is unnecessary to go into some of the vagaries preceding these two matches, but other points are too remarkable to pass. For instance, fans in Toronto and Montreal have been informed at considerable length of the amazing opportunity thus presented to each local hero. But in Montreal, promotion does not mention the Toronto bout, and vice versa.

In short, wrestling fans have been given to believe that Longson is making this trip to Canada for the sole purpose of meeting (so goes Montreal publicity) Yvon Notre Gars, or (in Toronto publicity) our boy Billy.

This is a singular situation, one that may be understood with practically no deep thought. Taking absolutely the most charitable view of the affair, it makes a joke of the pride and joy of Montreal Yvon Robert, because the inference (again most charitable of several presented) is that Longson will still have his title when he finishes his Wednesday bout in Montreal.

Still writing charitably, it also is an insult to the intelligence of wrestling fans in two cities who separately have been poured full of the importance of each bout. And it is a poke in the eye with a sharp stick for anyone who ever has tried to scoff at the widely-supported contention that wrestling is not sport, but vaudeville.

Incidentally:

Clarence Wallace, sponsor of the Wallace's in coast boxla, offered $10 a goal for all goals in the last period of a game in which Wallaces and Norvans were tied 10-10 at the end of the third...but he couldn't even buy the game...Norvans scored seven, Wallaces none, in the final frame...Vince (Winnipeg Tribune) Leah deplores the decrease in numbers of organizations supporting teen-age sport, and to emphasize its importance points to an increase of 50 per cent in juvenile delinquincy in England because of playgrounds lack during wartime...Don Metz was hero of Regina's army team in the second game of its playoff with the favored Regina Red Sox, socking a triple in the last inning and scoring the tying run...Among other hockey stars on the army squad are Murray Armstrong and Red Tilson.

ACTION APLENTY ABOARD R.C.N. DESTROYER EVEN WHEN YOU CAN'T FIND ENEMY

By Lieut. A. O. TATE, RCNVR

Ten days at sea in a destroyer, constantly battling the violent elements, is an experience to make even the most ardent naval man think fondly of that farm in the country with chickens and things. Yet the lure of the sea, the desire to be out where the wind is fresh and keen, where the ever-changing picture presents adventure and excitement, are considerations which quickly eclipse recollections of any previous hardships.

Protection First Job

When the escorting destroyers go out there is more than the stormy sea to contend with. First and foremost is the protection of the convoy of merchant ships—protection against undersea and surface ships, protection against aircraft. There is the work of keeping the convoy together. There is the never-finished job of maintaining your ship at a high point of seagoing and fighting efficiency. There is always the possibility you will be detached to dash off on a submarine h... or to locate a handful of small lifeboats bobbing around at some mathematical point on the sea with survivors from some torpedoed merchantman.

Imagine yourself confined to your own home for 10 days. How would you feel at the end of a week if, during every minute of every day, your house was rolling, tossing, pitching, corkscrewing? You walk from your front door, for instance, to your kitchen—and you make it only because you have become expert at hanging on to the right things at precisely the right moment. Even at that it isn't likely a few tons of ice cold sea water are going to unexpectedly rush in the front door with a roar and sweep your out through the back. Get used to the idea of your living quarters pirouetting without a moment's cessation, then consider the possibility of torpedoes or bombs.

During the 10-day session when it seemed as if the elements could not maintain their savage performance, the destroyer was rolling violently. It was night. Zig-zagging on its course as it screened the convoy, the destroyer made a turn just as a great sea caught her. The ship went into a roll to port that began like any other roll. But this roll continued and continued until maintaining ourselves on the bridge at a standing position, we were looking almost directly in to the ocean.

Might As Well Stay

"I was in my bunk at the time," a former merchant navy officer said the next morning, "and when I realized the degree of the roll I thought of jumping out and running up on deck. But when I figured the ship was going to roll right over so I said to myself, 'what's the use! I haven't got time. I might as well stay right where I am'."

'Twas a Long Moment

The destroyer leaned far over until it appeared as if the bridge itself would ship water. In fact, it seemed to those on the bridge as if she would lie right down on her side in the mountainous seas. Finally this slim, sturdy destroyer paused and there was a long, static moment during which she seemed to be gathering her strength to heave herself back to an upright position. The officers and men on the bridge hung on and waited and someone shouted something down the voice tube to the helmsman. At last the long journey back to reality and safety began and before the tense grips of the men relaxed the ship was rolling in a moderate, civilized roll to starboard.

Down in the mess decks, men, sitting or lying on lockers, were piled in a heap against the bulkheads. Lockers, dishes, gear — many things believed to be thoroughly secured — broke loose and clattered across the deck. Only a voice on the radio was undisturbed by it all. Aft in the wardroom, a table and its legs were soon parted. A couple of officers said that one moment they were sitting reading, figured they were pretty well braced against rolls, and suddenly found themselves scudding across the deck in sitting positions, their books still held in reading positions. Men in the engine room hung on for dear life, expecting to see their boilers rip off their mountings, crash through the bulkheads and into the sea. The masthead look-out found himself in a lying position against the side of his crow's nest.

This was the day of the big roll. It was the highlight of the voyage. The experience provided an interesting and endless topic of conversation, along with the greater roll of the night before, for the rest of the trip — and later in the pubs and restaurants ashore.

Skylarking on Leave

From the moment the destroyer was tied up alongside another destroyer, skylarking began in various degrees. In two or three or, with luck, in four days, they would be off to sea again. But in front of them now was shore leave. There were companions from other Canadian destroyers to meet ashore, with whom to talk and swap stories. They would hope for calmer weather, but if they had to go out to sea again and face gales and violent seas, they'd grin and bear it — these hearty, husky lads from all over Canada.

GETTING READY FOR ANOTHER CRACK AT ADOLF

Towering and slender, the bow of a Royal Canadian Navy destroyer dwarfs the dockyard workers as she undergoes her annual refit. Months of convoy work in the storm-swept Atlantic, on their relentless patrols against enemy attack, necessitates periodic overhauling of these vital fighting ships. (R.C.N. Photo)

Montcalm Downs 2 Hun Planes

OTTAWA, Aug. 15—(CP).—During her recent trip to Murmansk to be turned over to Russian authorities the Canadian icebreaker Montcalm was under successve Nazi bombing attack for three days but escaped damage and "assisted in downing two of the attacking aircraft," the Transport Department announced to-day.

Two aerial torpedoes narrowly missed the craft.

The Department's statement was based on a report from Captain Fred S. Slocombe of Toronto, who commanded the Montcalm on her long voyage and reported back to the Transport Department only yesterday.

In regard to one of the two German planes shot down by the convoy in which the Montcalm travelled, Captain Clocombe said tracer bullets from his ship's guns could be seen hitting the aircraft just before it broke into flames and crashed into the sea.

"But," he said, "it is pretty difficult to claim credit for downing these planes, because of the heavy anti-aircraft fire from a number of ships converging on one plane."

The attacks were usually made during the half light of the midnight sun, he said.

Two torpedoes, released from aircraft, barely missed his ship, but one of them hit a merchant vessel in the convoy. Captain Slocombe said he saw the wake of one torpedo cross the Montcalm's bow, missing it by only a few yards. Members of his crew reported seeing the wake of another torpedo crossing the stern.

All In Good Shape

Captain Slocombe reported that he turned over the Moncalm to the Soviet Government in good condition. While most of the crew were immediately repatriated, Captain Slocombe stayed in Murmansk for a while until all formalities had been completed. While he was stationed in a hotel, Murmansk was repeatedly bombed. Explosives fell on both sides of the building shattering windows and knocking down plaster.

Captain Slocombe praised members of the Montcalm's crew of 27 Canadians and 32 Britons, some of whom had no previous experience of enemy action. All displayed "excellent behavior and good morale" despite three days aerial attack.

Captain Slocombe, an official of the Department of Transport, has been supervising examiner of masters and mates (inland waters division) at Toronto since 1937. He is a native of Cardiff, Wales, and has been at sea since 1919. He came to Canada in 1930.

The Montcalm is a steel, twin-screw steamship specially constructed for the Canadian Government in 1904 as an ice-breaker. Se has seen much service in ice-breaking work in the St. Lawrence River and was operated by the transport department until transferred to the Soviet Government early this year.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

CARS DAMAGED.

Cars owned by William Garnett, Pickering and Ross Guntin, Coe Hill, were damaged last night when they collided at London and George streets. Garnett was travelling east on London street and Guntin south on George when the vehicles came into contact at the intersection. No one was hurt.

100 BUSHELS TO ACRE.

Irvin Eby is threshing a record oat crop of 100 bushels to the acre in Waterloo county. The Kitchener Record refers to the yield as "something unheard of around here for years. Usually a good oats yield is only 60 bushels."

WITH FIRE CHIEFS.

Fire Chief George Gimblett returned today from Kitchener, where he attended the convention of the Dominion Fire Chiefs. Alderman Sullivan, chairman of th Fire and Light Committee, attended some of the earlier sessions.

TO ATTEND CONVENTION

International Y's Men's Clubs from all parts of the North and South American continents will send delegates to the convention being held in London, Ontario from Aug. 16 to 20. Roland Krant, president of the Peterborough club is official delegate and it is expected that four other club members, Bill Saunders, Jack Stuart, Bill Moorhead and Harry McGinnis will be able to attend the convention also.

THREW NAILS ON ROAD.

Five small boys, living in North Monghan township, were slated to appear to-day in juvenile court before Magistrate E. A. Gee, charged with throwing a quantity of nails on Knox street and causing damage to the tires of a number of passing automobiles.

DECAPITALIZED.

A Philadelphia newspaper has begun decapitalizing the Axis outfit. No longer will such words as germany, japan, italy, muss. hirohito rate the dignity and respect of capital letters. They are reduced to the same level as hell, devil, cutthroat and so on. Analogy, too, would be rat and skunk, but those domestic animals don't deserve mention with the japs and huns and italians.

GRATEFUL LETTERS

Thanks from the Red Cross for providing a gas heater for boiling water at the Blood Donors Clinic was received by the Utilities Commission yesterday. The Y.M.C.A. Vacation Club also expressed their appreciation of the arrangements made for the visit of its group of one hundred boys to the filtration plant and water works.

No Rabbit At Zoo For Eager Youngster

A small boy named Jimmy who had visions of getting a rabbit from the Dobbin Zoo at the waterworks was disappointed in his quest by connivance of his mother and the Utilities manager. And that's a sad story for all those who understand the normal small boy's depth of sympathy for such pets as dogs and rabbits.

One day Mr. Dobbin received a telephone call from a woman who said: "Our Jimmy is going up there (to the waterworks) for a rabbit, and for goodness sake don't give him one."

Presumably other boys had got rabbits at the filtration plant, and this lad wanted one, too. Small boys have a strong appeal to Ross Dobbin, but this one instance in which he just had to say No, thinking up some way of softening the refusal to a youngster who had set his heart on a rabbit. Some day he will understand his mother's opposition if her ever learns how the telephone headed him off.

Water Pumpage Reaches New High Figure

Daily pumpage of water at the filtration plant in July averaged 4,093,000 gallons as compared with 3,640,000 gallons as the daily average for July last year, R. L. Dobbin, manager, informed the Utilities Commission Friday afternoon.

"On July 13 we pumped 5,653,000 gallons as the maximum day to date this year. The maximum day last year was June 27 for a total of 6,-058,000 gallons.

"To the end of June, for the first six months of the year, the total pumpage was 574,628,000 gallons as against 538,188,000 gallons for the corresponding period last year, an increase of more than 36,000,000 gallons. This was in spite of much more rain in 1942."

Peterborough's steadily increasing population is placing a heavier demand on the pumping station, Mr. Dobbin remarked. He told the Commission he had written to the metals controller at Ottawa for permission to buy 1,800 feet of eighteen-inch iron pipe for the north-end link of the new water main on Bethune Street This link will extend from the corner of Park Hill Road and Bethune Street to the pumping station.

"It was suggested that we might consider the use of stave pipe. I wrote Johns Manville Company about an asbestos pipe they make, but their price was $6.34 as compared with $5.70 for cast iron. They also said they could not supply us for three or four months, and that would bring us into the winter."

G. S. Matthews, chairman, commented that the mounting consumption of water in the city demanded completion of the northern stretch of the new main. "The daily increase in pumpage is almost half a million gallons more than a year ago.

"We could get the cast iron pipe in less than a month, probably, if the government would give us permission to buy it," Mr. Dobbin said.

"We can tell them that the increase has been very largely caused by the city's war industries," G. A. Macdonald said.

Fred Hills agreed with his associates that the work should be proceeded with as protection against an approaching day when local demand will have caught up with present capacity of consumer supply. Mr. Dobbin was instructed to renew the Commission's appdication for iron pipe.

Other Activities.

Other observations in Mr. Dobbin's report of the waterworks department last month were:

It is evident that increased domestic and industrial use will soon force us to complete the projected new force main, in order to keep up with the demand for water.

The 18-inch force main was completed to about 140 feet north of King Street on Bethune Street. This makes a total of 4,500 feet, leaving about 500 feet yet to lay.

The undercrossing of the creek and Canadian National Railway was accomplished on July 15, and the 18-inch main was then in use to Hunter Street, and to Charlotte Street on July 29.

During the month 468 feet of 6-inch and 8-inch mains were laid to serve the new Wartime Housing project on the Hatton estate.

An extension of 347 feet of 8-inch main was constructed for the fire line system at the Brinton Carpet Company.

Ten water services were laid for new dwellings in the city.

Gas Department.

Total gas made at the plant was a very little more in quantity than the corresponding month last year.

Electric Department.

The peak for July, 1942, was 11,600 horsepower which compares equally with the peak for July, 1941, of 11,-600 horsepower. The kilowatt hours delivered from the sub station are down 8 per cent. This is probably because last year at this time, the Quaker Oats Company was taking power in considerable amount.

Considerable radio interference developed during the month. On one occasion, after looking for two days, the source was finally discovered to be a private radio aerial wire which had dropped down over our primary. Another time the trouble was found to be an apparatus connected to the C.G.E. primary lines.

Some tree trimming was done, and more will be undertaken by the Hydro tree trimmers when they can get here.

SORT OF A BLITZ

One Peterborough man was so excited Friday night that he was almost beyond holding. In the afternoon he received word that his son had landed in Quebec from overseas and he immediately made arrangements to go and meet him. As he drove along London street last evening he nearly collided with a second machine and to avoid a crash he swerved, and his car jumped about a foot up onto the sidewalk, slid along and took a small gouge out of the Lewis Grocery store, then swerved over and hit a telephone post, with no wasted movements. Did this shake his determination to get going and keep going? It did not and without wasting any time or words this excited man just kept on going Quebecwards.—J.S.

Draw On Afghan Nets $26 For War Victims

Many afghans have been utilized for the purpose of raising money for war funds, among which the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund has benefitted on many occasions. In a sense they seem to find favour both as a means of making a donation in kind, at some considerable labor and expense of material on the part of the donor, and as a popular favourite in the matter of making a draw possible.

Mrs. Mary Hurry has on a number of occasions made and donated articles of this type on behalf of war efforts from which this fund has on more than one occasion benefitted, and the latest of these was an afghan made and donated by her, for which purposes the Star of Bethlehem L.O.B.A. No. 650 with Mrs. R. Tait of 133 Romaine St. as convener, sponsored the sale of tickets for a draw, which was made on Aug. 8th at the Orange Hall on Brock street when the winner proved to be Mrs. Post with ticket No. 259.

From this effort the nice sum of $26.81 was made, and it appears in this days' acknowledgements on behalf of the fund.

Continuing the fine work already done by children for the fund, this column is able to report the sixth effort in as many days by them, this time by Lilian, Audrey and Paul Rose and Margaret Minicola who sold lemonade, orange and grape juice on Hunter St. just east of the bridge to make the nice sum of $6.50 for the fund. They were not stopping at that, and will be heard from again in a future report for the fund.

The amount of money now needed at this time to complete the 19th donation of £500 is under the $750.00 mark and as soon as this is forthcoming, it will be cabled to the Lord Mayor for the Empire National Air Raid Distress Fund.

Carnival Next Friday

The farm grounds of Arthur Sayer adjoining the Rifle Range on R.R. No. 7, Peterborough, will be the scene of a Carnival, sponsored by the Range Pals, next Friday August 21 on behalf of the fund. Last year a similar event by the same group netted over $40.00 for the fund, and they hope to considerably enlarge on that this time.

For this particular occasion, there will be games of bingo, a fortune wheel, a sale of home needlework, moving pictures, a Fish Pond, and refreshments, winding up the evening with a dance on an outdoor platform erected for the occasion.

In connection also with this event, the draw will be made for a beautiful afghan made and donated by Mrs. P. W. Hagerman of 555 Water St. on which she herself has sold a considerable number of tickets, and which the Range Pals have added considerably to. The Afghan is now on display in the Robt. Fair Ltd. store on George St.

HELENA, Montana, Aug. 15.—In this valley in rolling foothills of the Rockies, young Canadians representing every province and every regiment in Canada, and Americans from every state in the union, led by young officers with a vision, are training for a new kind of warfare which was undreamed of only two years ago.

Youth, adventure and high training characterize this first "super-commando" unit of American and Canadian troops, known officially as the First Special Service Force.

Signals, artillery mechanized units, tank corps, riflemen—everyone is represented here. Now and then there is the swinging kilt of an officer, and here and there a patch indicating an overseas division.

Most of the Canadian boys here for special training are non-commissioned officers. Each army unit in the Dominion, the boys say, was asked to subscribe volunteers. All offered overwhelming lists, from which selections were made. Most of the men were instructors.

"We're just darn lucky," say the lads.

Many United Represented

Down the streets move Canadians, arm in arm with their American bunk-mates. Helena citizens grin at the motley variety of caps and uniforms. These caps would interest even Canadians, because probably at no other place in the world are so many Canadian units represented.

"Tell them back home the American boys are swell," said 23-year-old Sergeant A. H. Boot, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Boot, Brantford. He grinned, as he spoke, towards a new-found "pal" from New York.

When the call for volunteers for the commandos came, Sergeant Boot was a sergeant instructor at Border. Until he enlisted in Nov., 1940, with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, he had worked at the National Steel Car Corp., at Malton.

In the same tent with Sergeant Boot is Sergeant Alex Chess, of Barrie, who also instructed at Borden. He was in the permanent force several years before the outbreak of war.

Jumping "Got" Them

"Jumping is the thing that has got all the boys," said 21-year-old Scotty Moir of Tillsonburg. Until he enlisted Scotty worked in a hardware store.

Many of the Canadian boys mentioned the "lack of side" of American officers.

"They don't know what 'uppish' means. They slap you on the back like buddies, and when they meet you, none of this looking down their nose. They grin and say, "Hi, Mack'," said Sgt. J. E. McCaul, Woodstock. Both he and Scotty Moir are from the Oxford Rifles, and are bunking with two men from California.

McCaul's wife, "the sweetest girl in the world," he said, is living at Woodstock. Before he joined up he was with the Woodstock Dominion bank.

Instructed at Brockville

Sgt Jack Glenn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Glenn, Brockville, 20, was an instructor at the O.T.C. in Brockville. He is quartered with Sgt. William Sarley, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sarley of Belleville, who wears the black tam of the armored corps. Sarley enlisted in 1940, and also was instructing at Brockville when he and Glenn decided to try the new unit. "Gsch, and do we like it!" said Sarley. He is 24, and his wife lives at Rednorville.

"This is going to be one of the finest outfits in the Canadian army" said Corp. M. I. Dougherty, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dougherty of Onondaga. His wife lives on West Ave. S., Hamilton.

He was a toolmaker in Hamilton before he enlisted with the Sixth Division of the R.C.A.S.C. He also instructed at Newmarket before he came here.

"Best Camp Ever Struck"

"This is the best camp we ever struck—everything fine from every point of view," said Sergt. Jack Waterhouse, R.C.A., from Guelph. He is a graduate of the O.A.C.½ and farmed before he joined up

Sergt. Bill Sunderland, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sunderland, Belleville, is here, too. His brother, Frank, is at the basic training centre in Ottawa. Also here from the Prince of Wales Rangers is Sergt. H. W. Kennedy, Havelock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Kennedy. He worked in the Canadian General Electric at Peterborough before enlisting in April after two years in the P.W.R. reserve.

To take his post with the Canadians, Lieut.-Col. J. G McQueen of Medicine Hat, one of the youngest colonels in the Canadian army, flew from England, where he had been second-in-command of the Calgary Highlanders

"I had just two days in Ottawa, where my wife met me, and then I flew to Lethbridge and down down here," he said.

So speedy was the trip that his father, J. B. McQueen, chief of police at Medicine Hat, and his mother, had to drive from Medicine Hat to the Lethbridge airport to see, for a few minutes only, the son who had been overseas sinee early last year.

Sgt. Emmett Guerin of Peterborough and Sergt. E. P. Morin of Lakefield, both well known in Peterborough, are two more members of the Prince of Wales Rangers training at this Commando centre in the hills of Montana. Corporal R. Keating of Cobourg is also in the crowd.

B. Hamlin, RR 11 Wins Prize

Record crowds are attending the Lions Club Carnival at the Riverside Park in Ashburnham, and the big show winds up Saturday night when the draw will be made for the 1942 Chevrolet car at 11 o'clock.

On Friday evening, Alderman Bob Cotton was called on by J. E. Girven to make the draw for the bicycle, and the lucky winner is B. Hamlin, R.R. 11 Peterborough. The winner of the $10.00 booster prize on Friday evening was James Sutherland, 197 McGill street, who qualified because he was on the grounds when the draw was made.

A great many citizens who heard the 30 piece boys' band on Thursday evening, heading the decorated bicycle parade have voiced appreciation of the fine music. This band consists of the Omemee Boys' Band, and the Prince of Wales Rangers Boys' Band, and is under the direction of Sgt. Henry Parnell. The tremendous amount of time and care which this competent musician has put into the training of these boys, is now bearing fruit, and Peterborough and district can boast a junior band that stands with the best in the province.

Two Accidents Mar Campaign

Ian McRae, works manager, wound up the safety week campaign at the Canadian General Electric Company Friday with a final appeal for care and precaution against accidents. His brief speech was made to about 2,500 employees at 1 p.m. on the big cntral lawn.

Mr. McRae stressed the seriousness of lost time in its eventual effect of loss in plant operations and production. Employees could contribute the utmost accomplishment in safety planning by thoughtfulness and safeguarding themselves by use of safety devices.

Promoters of safety week were hoping to present a clean sheet today, but two accidents were chalked up on the score boards on the side of the enemy.

Electric clocks were presented by Mr. McRae to the winners of the slogan competition, Mrs. Mary McIntosh and Fred Gray.

Utilities Seeks To Control Tree Trimming

The Utilities Commission may supply the solution to the City Council's problem of effecting a settled policy of trimming and removing trees. And that's a long standing problem that has been tossed about from Board of Works to Parks committee and back again with many a muff and boot accompanied by hoots from the sidelines of the ratepayers.

Only this month the council decided to assign one of its employees to the Hydro or Utilities Commission to learn the "art" of cutting down trees without damaging nearby telephone and other electric power lines. Any time the council's removers undertook to cut down a tree, the Utilities Commission sent one of their men "to see that our wires were protected."

Since the council meeting on August 3 someone suggested that the commission might consider assuming entire responsibility for the entire range of tree jobs.

"A good idea if someone took it over," remarked G. A. Macdonald from his experience as former mayor and alderman.

G. S Matthews and Fred Hills were also willing to relieve the council of this bothersome detail of municipal routine.

"There has been nothing more said about it since the suggestion was made," Mr. Matthews said. He was authorized to inform the council that the commission was willing to do the cutting and trimming work at cost and on order. That would leave control in the hands of the council who would simply give the instructions as to what they wanted done.

'Dode' LaPlante War Veteran Dies Suddenly

Employed on the maintenance staff of the Trent Canal for twenty years, Roland (Dode) LaPlante was stricken and died at his work Friday afternoon.

Mr. LaPlante was the goungest son of the late Thomas LaPlante and his wife, Margaret McGrath. He joined the Trent Canal staff shortly after his return from overseas in the last war, and had been continuously employed with the Department since then. He enlisted for service with the 52nd Battery of the Canadian Artillery in the German war of 1914-18, and actually spent about four years and a half in the service before he returned to his home after the enemy was defeated.

Mr. Laplante is survived by his widow, the former Ethel McKinley, and three sons, John of the Royal Canadian Navy on the "Cornwallis" out of Halifax; Thomas and Frederick at home; also by two sisters, Mrs. R. M. Glover and Mrs. M. C. Goodwin of this city.

The funeral will take place Monday at 8.45 a.m. from the family home at 292 Westcott Street, to the Church of the Sacred Heart, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

The government is urging communities to form Citizens' Committees to coordinate services for troops on leave. This Toronto depot sends out 100,000 magazines monthly.

In game room of Mrs. M. T. Elliott's Toronto home two airmen shoot snooker with a pretty blonde. Wholesome recreation in a homelike atmosphere for troops away from camp is the aim of the Citizens' Committee which eagerly accepts Mrs. Elliott's offer to entertain troops for weekend. Note the Norwegian flag on wall.

Provision of wholesome meals at cost to men away from camp is important Citizens' Committee work. Plan is to finance essential expenses from community salvage work.

Another Citizens' Committee activity is operation of checking depots at bus terminals and stations where men in uniform may leave their bags while on leave. Wives of Great War Veterans who staff this Toronto depot can also direct troops to centres where clean wholesome recreation is provided by joint effort.

Men from all services are welcome in hostels like this one in Toronto where homelike atmosphere is provided for troops on leave at little cost. All staff members are volunteers who co-operate with the Citizens' Committee in assuming a community responsibility in providing necessary recreation facilities.

In addition to recreational facilities this hostel in Toronto has 50 beds to accommodate troops on leave. Coordination of all war service activity within communities to avoid duplication and waste is object of Citizens' Committees.

In the same Toronto hostel volunteer worker washes dishes after meal. Citizens' Committees survey needs, then provide facilities for entertainment of troops.

June Elliott helps entertain at her mother's home, where often 14 men spend leave at no charge. Citizens' Committee refers thousands of servicemen to Toronto families who provide well-cooked meals, welcome homelike atmosphere.

Wasps Taking Sting Out Of War Knots

Women's Ambulance Safety Patrol of Rockford, Ill., are shown carrying an "air raid casualty" during a recent drill. The girls are wearing gas masks in the realistic workout. This organization was started in 1940 with eight members. It now has 200 and is growing fast. The women learn first aid, military drill, map reading. And, in addition to all this and ambulance driving, they are taught to take auto motors apart and reassemble them.

Christmas Socks Ready To Mail Overseas

ROSENEATH, Aug. 15—(ENS).—A business meeting, a quilting, and a "Little Helpers" picnic combined, resulted in a busy afternoon on Wednesday for the members of St. James' Anglican Church W.A. Mrs. E. Timlin's home and lawn provided the setting for the afternoon's activities.

During the business period with the president, Mrs. Ross McCracken in charge, letters of thanks for overseas parcels were read from Lieut. J. C. Arber, Battery Sgt.-Maj. Ednel Blodgett, Gnr. Ewart Tucker and Ptes. Frank and Vernal Linton.

Blocks for a Red Cross quilt were turned in and it was decided to have a quilting at the next regular meeting. It was announced that the majority of socks for Christmas parcels were knitted.

The company, numbering fifty, moved out to the lawn and the adults quilted a quilt in the shade of the trees, while the Little Helpers had their picnic. The committee in charge included the secretary of this department, Mrs. E. Timlin and Mrs. James L. Timlin, Mrs. Earl Braithwaite and Mrs. T. Coyle.

Among the winners in races and games were Helen Braithwaite who won the 50-yard dash and the walking race; Theodore McCracken, the smaller children's race, and Mrs. Bruce Arthur, the apple eating contest.

A candy scramble for the tiny tots, and a fish pond for young and older were other attractions, the latter netted the society $2.00.

A picnic supper concluded the party, the hostess was tendered a vote of thanks and the rector, Rev. A. C. Herbert closed the meeting with prayer.

Must Hold To Nov. 1

Halifax, Aug. 15 (CP). CAPT Bernard Newman, of the British Ministry of Information, told a meeting of service clubs here yesterday that "if by Nov. 1 we are still fighting hard, if by Nov. 1 we still hold Egypt, I think we shall have won the war."

Capt. Newman warned enemy propaganda is being spread by unthinking people passing along ill-founded rumors. "We have a lot of it in Britain and I regret to say you have it in Canada. I met a lot of it in my journey here from Vancouver."

Dogged By Wolf Pack

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(CP.)— Allied seamen arriving at a British port reported Friday that a submarine "wolf pack" repeatedly attacked and attempted to destroy a large convoy returning from a Russian port.

The men, whose ship was sunk and who were rescued by escorting naval vessels, said the submarines attacked three times and dogged the convoy constantly.

See 'Peg Lawyer Taking Bracken's Post

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG, Aug. 15 (CP).—John Bracken's recent suggestion that it is time for his followers to look around for a likely successor to him as premier of Manitoba caught the political quarterbacks by surprise. They apparently had thought this veteran of 20 years' continuous premiership would go on indefinitely.

Speaking at a dinner in his honor here Aug. 9 on his 20th anniversary as premier, Mr. Bracken said it is time to look for a man to follow up.

Political observers agree almost unanimously that Mr. Bracken's interest in his government and his province will not permit him to retire for some time although they concede he would probably be quite happy to spend his remaining years on one of his several farms.

Now 59, and in good health, Mr. Bracken loses no opportunity to slip away from the burden of government for a few days on the farm where he busies himself at the chores or in the fields. Born on a farm at Ellisville, Leeds County, Ont., agriculture remains his first love and profitable hobby.

Although Mr. Bracken suggested a man trained in agriculture, it is generally agreed that Provincial Treasurer Stuart Garson, 44-year-old Winnipeg lawyer, is the premier's right-hand man and most likely successor. First elected to the legislature from Fairford in 1927, he was appointed to the government in 1936 and his administration of the treasury is highly regarded.

The agriculture minister, Hon. D. L. Campbell, 47, was asuccessful farmer in the High Bluff district before he was elected as a Progressive in 1922 and would answer the premier's demand in that respect. With Mr. Bracken and Labor Minister S. J. Farmer, he is the government's oldest member in point of legislature service.

New York, Aug. 15 (CP). BBC today said more than 76,000 members of the National Fascist Party in Italy have been expelled. The broadcast was heard here by CBS.

The purge was announced in Rome today, at a meeting of the directorate of the party. Mussolini presided. Reasons for the expulsion included infringement of the rationing regulations, refusal to take part in voluntary militia for national safety, omission to wear the Fascist badge and luke-warm interest in party affairs.

Angler Pursuing Fifty-Pounder In Stoco River

TWEED, Aug. 15—ENS). — Ross Fetterly, Toronto, inveterate angler, is still gunning for big muskies, and he reports two this week. The first to come out of Stoco Lake was a twenty-two pounder on a jitterbug lure near the mouth of the Stoco River, while the second was a twenty-five pounder. His last fish was caught on a small crazy crawler.

Ross is still after that big one which he says will go fifty pounds. It makes its headquarters near the mouth of Ross's favorite grounds, the Stoco River.

Increased Pay

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—(CP).— Increased pay for men taking pre-enlistment training under the Royal Canadian Air Force, to take effect Aug. 15, was announced Friday by R.C.A.F. officials.

Previously those taking the course under the direction of the war emergency training plan receieved weekly pay varying from $8 to $15, depending on their marital status.

After Aug. 16, the men will be paid by the R.C.A.F. at the rate of $1.30 daily plus $1 subsistence per day, or a total of $16.10 a week, exclusive of dependants' allowance.

Salvage Plan Avoids Enormous Waste In Our Ships

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 15 —(CP)— The Royal Canadian Navy never wastes a shot—or an empty shell case.

When the fight is over the shell cases are collected along with the empty ammunition boxes, and returned for the naval ordnance depot for re-use.

A. B. Coulter, acting director of the directorate of naval stores, told a House of Commons committee on war expenditures of the Navy's widespread organization to ensure that equipment is used many times when possible and waste is avoided.

As the naval service pays a kit upkeep allowance to each rating after 12 months' service, rather than issue new, for worn clothing, the problem of salvaging clothing and boots does not arise to the same extent as in the other services. The bulk of the part-worn clothing recovered from ratings discharged under 12 months' service is re-issued to ships as clothing for shipwreck survivors.

A civilian salvage officer in each dockyard has the responsibility of ensuring all unused material is reported for disposal, and he arranges for repair or conversion. Lists of disposal material are circulated among other dockyards and outports to see whether any part of it is required elsewhere.

The Navy salvage program has been encouraged by the issue of circulars showing what the Army has achieved in the repair, cleaning and recovery of from 200,000 to 250,000 pieces of clothing a month and in other salvage and conversion operations.

Surplus Reported

Under a new stock control card system set up by the Navy, a red blank card indicates, at monthly stock-taking, items not being issued. These are reported to the naval stores officer. If, after six months, slow-moving stock remains on the shelves, it is surveyed to determine serviceable, obsolete, convertible or unserviceable articles.

For many years ships and establishments were credited through a cost-accounting system with the depreciated value of all articles surveyed and taken on the dockyard charge as "scrap". This was merely a bookkeeping entry and as the money for material when sold went to the receiver-general, this credit system was abolished. Returns now are recorded for quantity only and financial statistical returns are considered the duty of the treasury.

The navy has always considered its officials should have as little dealing as possible with the scrap merchants, and material listed for disposal is only issued to a dealer or another department on a salvage instruction from the salvage officer of the treasury department. The navy's responsibility is to obtain a clear receipt for the quantities authorized for disposal and in some cases to ensure that the money is fully collected before the goods are handed over.

Small, active committees are being set up at each naval establishment to check on salvage possibilities and to see that present equipment, tools and other supplies are conserved. Officers will report to these committees on returned articles and the use which might be made of them locally.

Service Men Are Showing Their Desire For Culture

By AGATHA PALMER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX, Aug. 15.—(CP)—A soldier at Camp Debert, N.S., knows how to put his education into practical use. After taking a course in poultry raising from the Canadian Legion Educational Services, he converted theory into practice by raising chickens outside the camp confines, thus providing himself and friends with fresh eggs for breakfast.

This is one of the stories told by Dr. R. A. Simpson, region secretary for the C.L.E.S., and his temporary assistant, Mrs. Kinsey, concerning the group of service men and seamen—now numbering more than 1,000—who take the correspondence courses with the Legion in Military District No 6.

A variety of interests have appeared in the different branches. Mathematics, English, and French are the courses most in demand with the airmen. But some lads in the air force are going right on with their Latin, and are now wading Virgil's Aeneid. Many of these students are high school graduates who planned to go to university, and in this way are getting a start on their college work.

Practical Sailors

The army, which leads in the all-Canada registration for Legion courses, although outnumbered by the navy in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, likes technical courses best, but also favors mathematics, music and social studies.

Naval men are practical in their choice of courses in engineering, radio and mathematics, and are evidently studying with an eye to promotion. Also, they are interested in poultry raising. Of the total number taking courses issued by the district in this subject, all but one are naval men. This exception is the soldier rearing chicken at Debert.

Seamen in the merchant navy are taking these courses too. Engineering and radio are their favorites, but the colored sailors—mostly greasers in tankers—have a distinct preference for music. In all the branches, introductory courses in reading and writing, English and mathematics rank high.

They Move About

Sometimes, says Mrs. Kinsey, the officials are hard pressed to keep track of its students, who may be shifting from one side of the Dominion to the other or sailing to foreign countries. Casualty cards, too, sprinkle the records of the Legion.

"We had one merchant seaman," related Mrs. Kinsey, "who was reported missing after his ship—a tanker—was sunk in the Caribbean Sea. We returned his books to Ottawa. The other day he walked calmly into our office. He still wants to that course! But he brought word of one of our students who won't come back."

"A naval reserve man registered for a course last September. Just afterwards his boat went to Scotland. He came back two days ago, and brought us lessons four to 14 inclusive, all completed. As there were 20 lessons in the course, we wondered why he hadn't done them all. But in looking over his booklet we found a Greenwich telephone number with the name 'Irene' scribbled after it. We decided among ourselves to blame his failure to finish upon 'Irene'."

(30) THE MATILDA TANK

Sand-ridden Libya was the proving ground of the "Waltzing" Matilda tank. It is one of the slower tanks, travelling at approximately 10 miles per hour, but it proved itself effective in desert warfare. Now it is being used by Canadians for training purposes only.

EMPLOYERS

If you have not received your copies of Table of Tax Deductions and Instructions, communicate with the office of your local Inspector of Income Tax at once.

Income Tax is Fair to All

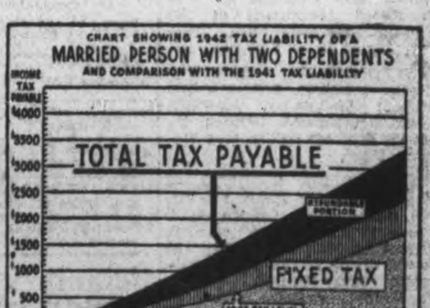
In the fourth year of war, Canada will need almost four billion dollars. This is the equivalent of nearly $350 from every man, woman and child in the country.

Even with the highest income tax in history, 52% only of the money Canada needs will be raised by taxation. The rest will have to be borrowed by means of War Savings Stamps, Certificates and Victory Bonds.

Starting with the first pay period in September representing September earnings only, your employer is required by law to deduct your income tax from your wages or salary, and send it promptly to the Government. Everybody will pay his share as he goes along.

It's going to be tough . . . but not too tough! Here are some good features:

1. You will pay as you earn, so that you will not be faced with a large lump sum payment next year.
2. The National Defence Tax already deducted during the first 8 months of this year has been taken into account in the Table of Tax Deductions.
3. Though the income tax rates show a sharp increase over last year, a large portion of this increase is actually savings, to be paid back to you with interest after the war.
4. The money you are paying for life insurance premiums, annuities, principal repayments on your home, or into a pension fund may be deducted (up to a certain maximum) from the savings portion of your income tax. In many cases this may be sufficient to make payment of the savings portion of the tax unnecessary.



Unless you are single, without dependents, and not making payments of the types mentioned in paragraph 4 above, you should file Form TD-1 with your employer. Otherwise, you may not be allowed the credits to which you are entitled. DO NOT DELAY. File Form TD-1 with your employer at once so that you mav get the full allowances from the start.

Liquor Cases Headline Heavy Docket

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 16 (ENS) —A half dozen cases were heard by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., of Peterborough, in one of the longest police court sessions here in some weeks. John Trask 35, of Toronto, had come down to Hastings on August 2nd for a fishing trip and he collided with a railroad wig-wag on Bridge street, doing $75.00 damage to his car. Unfortunately Mr. Trask had four quarts of wine and a partially consumed bottle of beer in his car when Constable W. Wellman arrived on the scene. He pleaded guilty to charges of reckless driving and having liquor in an illegal place. On the first charge he paid $25.00 and $4.25 costs and on the second he contributed the same fine with $7.50 costs and was also prohibited from driving for the next three months.

Malcolm Ross, also of Toronto, had a bottle of beer in his pocket when he was picked up by police in Hastings. He didn't appear in court but sent a written plea of guilty to Provincial Constable D. M. Carruthers who laid the charge. As a result he was assessed $10.00 and costs.

Two charges faced William McArthur, 21, of Campbellford, who also ran foul of the law in Hastings. He got into an argument with Iden Bond, a beverage room attendant, and according to the evidence of the plaintiff "he bit me on the arm" during the fracas in which Bond attempted to eject McArthur from the hotel. This resulted in a charge of common assault to which the accused pleaded guilty. "We've got to make these people learn to conduct themselves properly when they are in these beverage rooms" commented the Magistrate, adding "A little term in jail might be the best thing for you." He reconsidered however, and let the accused go with a fine of $15.00 plus $4.50 costs. McArthur also pleaded guilty to creating a disturbance in a public place and was touched for another $10.00 and $3.50 costs. Crown Attorney H. R. Deymen conducted the prosecution.

Laura Redcliffe, 19, of Campbellford, was also brought into court on a common assault charge as the result of a squabble with a fifteen year old girl. She entered a plea of Not Guilty, but after hearing the evidence the Magistrate decided there was sufficint proof of the alleged assault to warrant a fine and the accused contributed $5.00 but was not assessed for the costs.

Rural People Urged To Back Health Services

"Our job is to build up such overwhelming public opinion behind the Municipal Health Services plan that it will sweep rural Ontario," said Kenneth Betzner, chairman of the Provincial Health committee in Toronto recently. "It begins to look as though we had put the cart before the horse in asking for legislation. Perhaps the technique used in St. Joseph's Island is the right one. We must carry forward an educational and action program that will create Municipal Health Services.

This statement was the keynote of the meeting of the Health Committee of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture held in Toronto all day Saturday, August 1st. Representatives from ten counties took part in the discussion and definite plans were made for promoting Municipal Health Service.

By means of County Health Committees, local speakers, radio forums pamphlets, film strips and pictorialm aterial the people may be aroused and awakened to the great need of municipal health.

The Canadian farmer is one of the defenders of democracy. His job is to feed the fighters and the civilian workers of the United Nations and some day he will help to build up the young bodies of those who will work in peace for the new world.

To face the rigors of this task the farmers must have health as well as spirit.

The broadcast in the National Farm Radio Forum, Monday, Aug. 17, will tell the story of the Municipal Health Service which is in operation in the municipality of McKillop, Saskatchewan.

37-Lb. Muskie Caught In Trent

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 15 (ENS) —After a lull in the catching of big game fish that has lasted for the past two weeks there came news on Friday of no less than eight muskies being caught by American guests at Taite's Lodge, Percy Boom, during the past two days. The fish really began to bite on Tuesday when K. B. Mayer of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, came in with a nine and ten pounder. On Wednesday Mr. Mayer went out again and this time returned with a muskie tipping the scales at twenty pounds, and the following day H. L. McCartney brought in a 17 pounder and an 8 pounder, while the honor of catching the biggest fish of all went to another Youngston man, F. T. Blackwell, who landed one that weighed 37 pounds and was 52 inches long. He had his wife with him at the time and was fishing only a short distance away from his friend, Dr. J. D. Chessrown and Mrs. Chessrown. This proved to be a fortunate coincidence because when he started to pull the fish in he suddenly remembered there was no gaff hook in the boat. Having only an eighteen pound test line he signalled frantically to the Chessrown's who rowed over, and the Dr. landed a deft blow with a monkey wrench before the fish was boated. Dr. Chessrown had been fishing in almost identically the same place on the Bay the preceding evening when he landed a 35 pound muskie while trolling with a red and white basserino.

This Week In Radio

The second in a series of C.B.C. broadcasts, "Men of War," dealing with various phases of the Canadian Army will be heard on Sunday, August 16, at 7.00 p.m. "Men of War," a series which will appeal to men in uniform, in addition to civilians, commenced August 9 and will be heard each Sunday at the same time for the next seven weeks.

This entertaining radio program will army as the Signals, Artillery, Ordnance, armyas the Signals, Artillery, Ordnance, Infantry, etc.

On Sunday the 16th, the Ordnance Corps will take the salute, and the historical sketch of this particular branch of the army, during a war that is bringing mechanized fighting equipment to the fore, is very interesting. The Ordnance Corps was formed under Henry V., and up to the present time, the fine traditions of this unit have been upheld in true Empire fashion.

This week, too, on Tuesday at 9:30 p.m., Ted Husing, ace American interviewer and announcer, will highlight the program, "Cheers from the Camps," over station CHEX. The broadcast originating at Fort Custer, Michigan, will have enlisted men only during the show.

On Sunday night, over CBL, from Montreal, between 10.15 and 11.00, there will be an entertaining musical variety from Montreal, with Allan McIver as conductor. The broadcast will take the program theme from Hollywood successes, and music by Ralph Ranger and Leo Robbin will be featured.

"Impressions by Gruen" is a program that will appeal to lovers of the classics, and it will be heard from 8.30 to 9.00 on Friday. This musical program will be directed by Harold Green from Winnipeg and will feature "Tales from the Vienna Woods," along with a medley of Jerome Kearns' favorites.

The "Vox Pop" program over CFRB-C.B.S. comes from Mare Island Navy Yard out in San Francisco Bay, where 35,000 American workers are busy turning out boats. Glamorous Carole Landis takes the spotlight as substitute interviewer. This will be heard on Monday night at 8.

Song favorites, old and new, will come winging over the air waves during the American Melody Hour on Tuesday, August 18, at 7.30, from WABC. Vivien Della Chiesa, soprano; Conrad Thibault, baritone; Evelyn McGregor, contralto, and Nemo Bolognini, violinist, will all take part, leading a galaxy of musical stars in a program that should delight all music-lovers.

Another interesting Sunday program this week, is "Womanpower," which is heard from WABC at 12.15. On this show, Lieut. Commander Mildred McAfee, U.S.N.R., head of the women's naval reserve, will be the speaker. She will explain plans for the new "Waves" organization.

Guard Your Children's Eyes
Before school opening be sure to have your children's eyes examined. Prepair them for the long year of close study which is ahead.
If the examination shows that lenses are needed we can prescribe correctly— if it is just exercise treatment to strengthen the eyes, we have the proper equipment—and if your child does not need lenses we will tell you
Proper lenses may mean the difference between high marks and just a pass—don't put it off—make an appointment today.

Good Grooming By Short-Cut Way

Well-Turned Out Girl Gets Job

"Where does SHE get the time to look so glamorous?" unsuccessful job-seekers grumble. "I don't stand a chance."

Yet, in all likelihood, the beautifully groomed girl doesn't "get the time." No one does today!

But if you know short-cut methods, in about 35 minutes a day you can not only care for grooming essentials — like bathing—but can care for the little extras that make all the difference.

For instance, you brush your hair of course, but dust WILL collect, giving a dingy look. To keep your hair clean and shining between shampoos, just rub OFF the dust with a towel—every few brush strokes.

Then, if you apply face cream with both hands instead of one, you can cream face and neck in the time it may take now to cream just the face.

With the well-groomed girl, you know, a lovely complexion doesn't stop at the chin line!

To schedule your time for grooming, see our new 32-page booklet. It tells quick, efficient ways to care for skin, hair, nails, hands and feet. Also suggests time-saving grooming routines for business girls, home women.

For your copy of "The Quick Way To Smart Grooming" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

SOME LIKE FIREWORKS

COMPLEX methods seem to be preferred by some players, even when a simpler course of action is in sight. In a number of cases, they merely do not see the ordinary means of achieving their objective. In others it is fairly certain that they choose the fancier course for the sake of enjoying the fireworks, even in cases where that method involves greater risk than the more fundamental one.

Certainly funny bidding, especially by South, but nothing to be excited about when compared with his play. After the spade K and A took the first two tricks, East disliked every return, so chose the heart A and the 10. Then began South's fancy work. Simple figuring should have shown he could ruff out both of his spades and then run the hearts if he was going to try to squeeze East between diamonds and clubs. The heart Q on the fourth trick, a spade ruffed by the K, the diamond 7 sent to the A, the last spade ruffed by the J and then the heart 6 to the 8, followed by the 9 and 7, would have squeezed East, who could have retained only three cards and so could not possibly have protected both the third club and the diamond J.

That, however, was too simple for South. He had to build a repeated or progressive squeeze, swearing later that he did not see the other play. After winning the fourth trick with the heart Q, he ruffed one spade, but kept the 9 for his squeezing. He thereupon ran three more hearts, feeling sure he had East marked for all missing honors, from the bidding. The last heart was on the eighth trick. East could keep only five cards, so had to discard from the spade J, diamond K-Q and club Q-J-A. Between these evils, he picked the diamond Q. Thereupon the diamond A dropped his K and the J squeezed him between his spade and the three clubs. He picked a club, whereupon the dummy's three clubs finished the hand.

If East on that eighth trick had trashed a club, the third club would have squeezed him between diamonds and spades. If he had tossed the spade J, the spade 9 then would have squeezed him between clubs and diamonds.

Your Week-End Lesson

Why is it often wise to "split your honors" and play one of them from a guarded two-card sequence such as a K-Q, Q-J or J-10, instead of playing low, when a small card is led through you by your right-hand opponent? Can you give an example of what can happen to you for your failure to do this at the right time?

War Priority Gobbles 4 Water Pipes

Four of the big 18-inch pipes for the new water main on Bethune street were intercepted by a priority order and rushed away to some other city, R. L. Dobbin told the Utilities Commisison Friday afternoon.

"Possibly to Halifax," Mr. Dobbin said. "That's about the only city I know of where cast iron pipe of that size might be needed right now."

To all appearance the work on Bethune street is finished, and connection made with the old pipes on Sherbrooke street, but the last four pipes did not reach Peterborough. They may not be delivered for another three or four weeks.

Pipes for the job on Bethune street south from Park Hill road were brought to Peterborough and unloaded along the trench as the work progressed. All but the last four had been laid when the Federal Metals Controller issued an order switching these pipes to some other place. Mr. Dobbin said he did not know where they had gone.

"All we could do was put in a reducer connection and temporarily finish the job with five-inch pipe, rather than leave the trench open until we got the rest of our order," the Utilities manager informed the Commission.

Tokyo Seeking American Lord Haw Haw

By RELMAN MORIN

They are combing the Far East for a typical American voice to sell Japanese propaganda to American radio listeners in typical American phrases.

The speaker will be called upon to emphasize that he is broadcasting voluntarily, that no force or coercion have been used to get him before the microphone and that his only object is to acquaint the home folks with "the true situation" in the Far East.

In Tokyo, five American correspondents, Max Hill, Joseph Dynan, Otto Tolischus, Robert Bellaire and Thomas Chrichton, were slugged, slapped and choked when they refused to make electrical transcriptions for radio use on designated Japanese propaganda topics.

In Shanghai, American correspondents received similar "requests" which were translated into attempted force when they refused. The majority were able to talk fast enough to escape, but a few are known to have made recordings for Japanese radios.

In Saigon, French Indo-China, the proposition was placed before both newspapermen and consular officers interned there.

It was broached to me as "a peace project." Would I broadcast Japan's desire for immediate peace with the United States? At that time Japanese arms had taken the Philippines, Malaya, Burma, the Netherlands Indies, Singapore and Hong Kong. Maybe the Japanese would have liked to cease firing.

It was sufficiently crude and blatant to be interesting. I asked for details. The Japanese Intelligence gave me a list of prepared topics to be phrased in homely little chats for American radio listeners. Word for word, the first three were:

First, Japan's armed might makes further opposition useless.

Third, why America and Britain can't win.

When I suggested that, for an American, such talk was seditious if not downright treasonable, the celebrated Japanese "persuasion" began.

Money, they said, was no object—"Name your own figure." Besides, Tokyo would take me straight to its bosom. Every luxury, comfort and enticement the heart might desire would be provided. I said I thought luxuries were a little scarce in Japan and unpatriotic anyway.

The cheerful atmosphere of our little conference suddenly evaporated. Then an officer said: "Of course, we have our own methods of forcing you to undertake this work."

This was not so good. Kid gloves seldom are used in Japanese prisons. Later they threatened to refuse to exchange me on the grounds of espionage prior to the war.

"So you might as well work for us as to spend your time in prison," they said.

They also sought to coerce three consular officers: Sidney Brown of Baltimore; Oliver Club of Minneapolis, Minn., and Kingsley Hamilton of Wooster, Ohio. The angle the Japanese used with them was that American diplomats in the Far East had sanctioned such talk. An officer blandly asserted that even Ambassador Grew in Tokyo had been on their airlanes — a complete untruth.

The Japanese may find their American mouthpiece. If they do, listen — and pity the person who is speaking.

To Ease Eastern Oil Shortage

The first weld on the important 550-mile oil pipeline from Longview, Tex., to Norris City, Ill., was made recently and here you see first sections of the great 24-inch pipe that will carry vital oil to relieve the shortage on the eastern seaboard being laid. At TOP, welders lining up sections for welding. BELOW, roll welding a section. Pipe is laid in the trench as soon as welds are completed. The $35,000,000 line is expected to be in service by Christmas.

Lakefield, Smith Parties Honor Sailor, Soldier

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 15.—(ENS).—Over one hundred friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Charlton, of Smith, on Thursday evening in honour of their son, Rifleman Lawrence Charlton and his bride, who were recently married in British Columbia. Mrs. Charlton was formerly Helen Miles of Clarina.

The gathering, a complete surprise to the bride and groom, took the form of a miscellaneous shower. They were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts which were brought into the room in three large, prettily-decorated baskets by Miss Marjorie Miles and Miss Lillian Calberry.

After the gifts were opened and the happy couple expressed their appreciation, the evening was spent in dancing.

Prior to his departure for Kingston, where he will enter the Naval Academy, Arnold Jackman was the guest of honour at a gathering of the young people of the village. The affair took the form of a weiner roast at Millar's Creek. During the evening a fountain pen was presented to Arnold as a remembrance from the group. An enjoyable evening was spent around the fire.

32 Cubans Killed

KEY WEST, Fla., Aug. 15 (AP)—Thirty-two men were lost when an Axis submarine torpedoed two small Cuban ships, the Santiago de Cuba and the Manazanillos in the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday morning.

They were the second and third Cuban vessels to fall prey to U-boats. A small fishing boat previously was sunk.

A United States vessel picked up 27 survivors about 15 minutes after the Santiago de Cuba and the Manazanillos were sent to the bottom within less than two minutes.

Crisis For The Nazis

New York, Aug. 15 (AP)

THE Stockhom paper Dagens Nyheter suggested today that a Russian offensive northwest of Moscow had confronted the Germans with a "crisis," the Swedish radio reported in a broadcast heard in New York by CBS.

Only fragmentary reports on an offensive in that area have come from Moscow, bu t the Swedish broadcaster said, "the situation on the eastern front has now developed into a crisis for both the belligerents, the Dagens Nyeter's military correspondent writes today."

ed to move tanks and mechanized infantry across the Kuban, the bulletin declared, but Russian planes came to the aid of the harried ground defenders, knocked out the Germans' pontoon bridge and struck heavy blows at German troop concentrations.

The communique reported that, in addition to dispersing three battalions of infantry and German cavalry units, the Red fliers destroyed 16 tanks, 20 trucks and 17 guns.

Making Slow Time

The German drive in the Maikop region and elsewhere in the Caucasian foothills was reported by the army newspaper, Red Star, to be moving more slowly. Fighting was heavy, however, at Mineralnye Vody, 140 miles from the Grozny oil fields toward whinch the Germans are heading.

The bitter fighting in the Don Bend in which the Germans now have reached the one important natural obstacle on the road to Stalingrad—the Don River—was accompanied by sharp fighting in many sectors of the long front stretching northward to Leningrad.

At Bryansk, 200 miles southwest of Moscow, the Russians attacked and expelled the Germans from an advantageous height and then repulsed a German counter-attack by superior forces, the mid-day communique said.

South of Voronezh, on the upper Don, the Germans launched sharp attacks in an effort to regain lost position and succeeded in pushing the Russians back in one sector, Red Star reported.

The Russians recovered quickly, however, and threw the Germans back to their original positions, it was reported.

The Russian midnight communique also told of an attack by "considerable forces of tanks and motorized infantry" in another sector of the Kletskaya region, but said Red Army tanks and infantry had absorbed this blow, killing more than 800 Germans and throwing the attacking force back to its original positions.

Hun In Superior Strength

On their drive southeastward along the Caucasian foothills, the Germans were meeting stern resistance at Mineralnye Vody, 140 miles from the Grozny oil fields. The Russian communique said the Red Army had repelled several attacks there, killing some 700 Germans. The German forces here, however, were reported numerically superior to the Russian defenders at Krasnodar, where the Russians are attempting to check the German drive toward the Black Sea naval base of Novorssisk, 60 miles to the southwest, the Russians said that in one sector, "the enemy at the cost of large forces was able to advance into the depths of our defences."

The communique reported no changes on other sectors of the front, but earlier dispatches told of sharp Russian counter attacks at Voronezh and brisk Red Army action on the long battle line to the north. (One Stockholm newspaper suggested Russian action in the north might even create a crisis for the far-extended German army.)

An artillery duel was reported in progess at Leningrad, where it was said Russian snipers were exceptionally busy.

Cuts In Lighting Coming For September

ABOARD THE S.S. ASSINIBOIA, Port McNicoll, Aug. 15 (Special) — Restrictions which take effect next month on the use of electric power were outlined here yesterday by J. Albert Smith of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

First to suffer will be show windows, both exterior and interior; show cases; outline or ornamental lighting for outdoor advertising; flood lighting, including sports and amusements; air heaters; electric grates in stores or office buildings, and certain street light installations.

The occasion of Mr. Smith's address was the pleasure cruise of the Georgian Bay Municipal Electric Association, meeting for their annual convention.

Mr. Smith promised that restrictions will not be imposed indiscriminately, but could give no assurance as to just how far the curtailment of power might go.

"Hydro power is fighting power," said Mr. Smith, adding that it had become imperative to adopt restrictions in view of the shortage expected by December—an estimated 250,000 h.p. deficiency. Total primary demand then was expected to reach 2,197,000 h.p., he said, which was an increase of 275,000 h.p. over the December, 1941, primary requirements.

"Consumers engaged in war work will be given the preference over civilian producers," Commission members were told. Eleven hundred of them, with their families and friends, listened attentively while Mr. Smith described the services and facilities that would be affected by the limitations.

No indication was given as to how soon the conservative measures would be introduced.

"Upwards of $50,000,000 has been expended by the Commission on war expansion in Southern Ontario," Mr. Smith stated. "War industries and our fighting forces depend on Hydro-Electric power."

Herman Denif of Hanover was elected secretary-treasurer for the tenth time, his resignation being unanimously rejected. Others elected to office are: R. D. Boyes, Alliston, president; R. Beaulieu, Penetanguishene, and W. Brown, Meaford, vice-presidents; directors, J. Logie, Paisley; Mayor W. Garfield, Owen Sound; Dr. J. F. Marcus, Kincardine; G. F. Hutchinson, Huntsville; C. J. Halliday, Chesley; W. Dixon, Arthur; D. Hurry, Midland.

Others who addressed the convention were: R. T. Jeffries, chief engineer of the O.M.E.A.; T. C. James, district engineer; K. Christie, K.C., president of the Provincial body.

A communique of the German high command today, however, claimed 15 merchant ships totalling about 180,000 tons—and including all tankers in the 21-ship convoy—as sunk along with the British aircraft carrier Eagle, two cruisers and three destroyers.

Of the remainder, it said, several reached Malta, including some which were damaged.

(There is no confirmation of this Axis claim which, in itself, is a drastic scaling down of previous reports from Berlin and Rome. The British Admiralty has announced only the loss of the Eagle and one of the two claimed cruisers, the 9,400-ton Manchester.)

In addition to the ships announced as sunk, the report issued this list of damaged vessels: two aircraft carriers, of the "Illustrious" and "Furious" types, three cruisers, three destroyers and several merchant ships.

Nazi Patrol Boat Sunk

3 Others Damaged In Channel Action

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(CP)—A light German patrol boat was sunk and three others severely damaged in a spirited clash with British light coastal craft in the Straits of Dover last night, the Admiralty announced today.

All the British craft engaged in the clash returned to their base, but there were a few casualties aboard, the Admiral said.

The German force consisted of "five or six enemy R-boats," the communique said.

British sailors set one afire and saw it sink. The German commanding officer was killed and 15 German sailors were picked up.

Another enemy boat was rammed and so seriously damaged it was believed to have failed to reach its base.

Two more "R-boats" were severely damaged by gunfire, the Admiralty added.

Coastal batteries engaged in the action, the Admiralty said, explaining the mystery of gunfire heard in the Channel and cross-Channel duels of German and British heavy artillery last night.

The "R-boat" is a German motor minesweeper, which usually is larger than the motor torpedo boat used by Germans in the Channel. The designation was adopted from the German "Raumen," meaning to clear the way.

(The German high command said its heaviest type coastal artillery shelled "military targets in the area of Dover.")

EXTRA!

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Sinking of a United States merchant vessel off the coast of South America, officially disclosed today, brought the Associated Press total of announced sinkings in the Western Atlantic since Dec. 7 to 427 after a week in which losses dropped to their lowest in 16 weeks.

Greatest U.S. Victory Yet Against Nipponese Hinted In Dispatch On Solomon Campaign

LONDON, Aug. 17—(CP).—Selwyn Speight, the London Star's correspondent in Sydney, Australia, said today that despite the cautious tone of United Nations' communiques "it seems clear the Allies have already won in land, sea and air operations in the Solomons the greatest victory yet achieved against the Japanese."

"The United States Marines have achieved their major initial objectives. Apparently by seizing control of Tulagi harbor and of the big air base on Guadalcanal Island which was nearly ready for use by the Japanese when it was taken," he said.

WabashCrackup Kills Engineer

ADRIAN, Mich., Aug. 17—(AP).—One trainman was killed and another critically injured today when a westbound Wabash railroad passenger train struck a northbound New York Central freight train at a crossing near Raisin Centre, eight miles northeast of Adrian.

First reports were that none of the more than 100 passengers on the Wabash train were injured. None of eight passenger coaches left the rails.

The passenger train, en route from Detroit to St. Louis, struck about the middle of the 15-car freight train which was en route to Jackson.

The Wabash locomotive sliced through a box car, splinters of which were spread for about 300 feet along the right-of-way. One coal car on the freight train was overturned.

The passenger train's locomotive turned on its side, blocking the double-track line, and the baggage car was upended on top of one of one of the coal cars in the freight train.

Engineer J. A. Henrich of Peru, Ind., piloting the Wabash train, was reported dead, and the fireman, Herbert Altman, of Peru, was taken in a critical condition to Bixby Hospital in Adrian.

Banks Of Clouds Spare Germany

LONDON, August 17 — (CP). — R.A.F. fighters and bombers, flying at such altitudes they could not be seen through the haze roared out over the Channel to-day, presumably to make another foray over the occupied coast.

On the south coast a lone German raider dropped a few bombs which caused some property damage and a few casualties.

Some enemy raiders stabbed inland as far as the North Midlands and bombs fell at one point on the East Coast but damage was slight and there were no casualties reported.

A moderate-sized R.A.F. bomber force struck at Western Germany on Saturday night and despite thick clouds, the Air Ministry said, some of the crews found their targets. Five bombers were listed as missing.

A squadron of R.C.A.F. veterans shepherded United States Army fighters in one long sweep over France during the week-end but the operation apparently was routine and a terse United States Headquarters communique gave no details. Spitfires continued the aerial assault on occupied France yesterday with a tree-top run over a railroad with Belgian pilots participating. A freight train was damaged.

No Black Market

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 —(AP)— Investigation into the charges of Higgins Industries, Inc., New Orleans shipbuilder, of a "block market" in steel has developed no evidence of black market operations "as the term is common understood in this country and England," the compliance branch of the United States war production board reported today.

Premiers Draft Formula For Victory And 2nd Front

Arrived Wednesday 20 In 3 Bombers

By ROBERT BUNNELLE

LONDON, Aug. 17—(AP). — The announcement that "definite decisions" had been reached at Prime Minister Churchill's conference with Premier Stalin in Moscow was regarded in London today as evidence that the Soviet Union, Great Britain and the United States had reached a definite formula on how to beat the Axis and when to open a second front.

The announcement issued through the Ministry of Information said Mr. Churchill's visit August 12-15 could not be disclosed earlier "for reasons of safety."

The text of the announcement said:

"The Prime Minister has paid a visit to Moscow.

"For reasons of safety no announcement of the visit could be announced until today.

"Negotiations have taken place in Moscow between the President of the Council of Peoples' Commissars of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, J. V. Stalin, and the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, Mr. Winston Churchill, in which Mr. Harriman, representing the President of the United States, participated.

Important Chiefs There

"There took part in these discussions:

"Peoples' Commissar for Foreign Affairs, V. M. Molotov; and the Procureur General, Marshal K. E. Voroshilov, from the Soviet side; the British Ambassador, Sir A. Clark Kerr, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, Sir A. Brooke, and other responsible representatives of Brit-

MOSCOW, Aug. 17—(AP).—Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain has concluded a four-day trip to Moscow in which he and Joseph Stalin reached secret decisions on stopping and defeating the Germans, it was disclosed officially today.

The Prime Minister and his Anglo-American party of 20 were flown to Moscow in three big Consolidated Liberator bombers. They arrived on the afternoon of August 12 and departed yesterday morning.

Communiques issued here and in London this afternoon, following Mr. Churchill's departure from Soviet soil, said the conferences had resulted in a number of decisions on the conduct of the war and that the existing understandings between Russia, Great Britain and the United States had been reaffirmed in an atmosphere of cordiality and complete sincerity."

A source close to the Prime Minister, when asked what the conferences were about, replied:

"Any child in the street should know the answer to that."

The fact that Britain, Russia and the United States were in agreement on the urgency of establishing a second front in Europe this year was announced this spring following Soviet Commissar Molotov's trips to London and Washington.

Twenty persons — including six Americans—were in the Churchill party on this first journey by a British Prime Minister to the Soviet Union.

They included Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, Commander-in-Chief in India, and Maj.-Gen. Russell Maxwell United States Commanded in

LONDON, Aug. 17—(CP).—A number of Greek patriots on the Island of Crete who mistook German parachute practice for a British invasion and tried to help by seizing Candia airdrome, have paid with their lives, reports reaching the Greek Government today said.

Three hundred were said to have been arrested, and an undisclosed number shot.

These reports said that fishermen's stories of large ship movements off Crete prompted rumors that a British invasion flotilla was approaching the island and when the patriots saw German parachutists making practice jumps they assumed the hour of liberation had come.

Hoarding Scrap Made Illegal

OTTAWA, August 17. —(CP) — Steel Controller F. B. Kilbourn, faced with demands from war industry for vast quantities of scrap metal, has issued a drastic order making it illegal to hoard iron and steel whether in the form of machinery or scrap, it was announced today by the Munitions and Supply Department.

Without a permit, no person except a scrap dealer or scrap consumer, may keep possession after September 15 of any scrap metal weighing more than 500 pounds. For purposes of the order scrap metal includes machinery, structural steel or any other article or commodity containing iron or steel, if it is not serving "an immediate vital purpose."

"The time has come when the shortage of steel calls for drastic measures," Mr. Kilbourn said in the statement. "Nearly 1,000,000 tons of scrap now are needed for ships, guns, tanks, planes and other war supplies. It is essential that we obtain that scrap."

"Although the definition (in the order) is broad enough to take in passenger cars and trucks not now in essential use, it is not our intention to order the disposal of such vehicles," he said. "We will, however, insist on the application of the order to vehicles which are in automobile graveyards."

Fences, steel in partly-completed buildings and machinery now in actual operation in non-war plants are covered by the order, but will not at present be affected.

"The object of the order," said Mr. Kilborn, "is to compel the disposal of old or obsolute machinery or scrap metal, which has been held for a better price or because of some imaginary future needs.

Rommel Supply Ships Shot Up

CAIRO, Aug. 17—(AP).—British light bombers, battering away at Axis Marshal Erwin Rommel's vital supply lines, attacked enemy shipping off the North African coast again yesterday and scored direct hits on lighters, a British communique announced today.

R.A.F. bombers also attacked Rommel's lines of communication in the desert, successfully bombing motor convoys despite attempts of Axis fighters to drive them off, the bulletin said.

Land activity was said to have been limited to night patrol clashes, during which British troops attacked enemy positions and harassed working parties in the northern and central sectors west of El Alamein.

The aerial forays carried out yesterday swelled the record of successes credited to the R.A.F. in the last week, both in battering the Axis ashore and in sending out waves of land-based fighters to drive off enemy planes attacking a big British Mediterranean convoy.

R.A.F spokesman said 13 enemy bombers were shot down by fighters swiming into the battle from island bases and the R.A.F. Spitfires' superiority over Malta gave the convoy comparative freedom for the last leg of the voyage to that island base with vital new supplies. Malta went through yesterday and last

Nazis Grind Closer To Grozny Fields

MOSCOW, August 17 — (AP).— The German offensive in the Don Bend flared to full force to-day in a powerful new drive toward Stalingrad while in the Caucasus the Russians fell back from the ruins of the Maikop oil fields toward their next petroleum producing area at Grozny.

The German high command claimed to-day that the entire bend of the Don River guarding the approaches to Stalingrad now is in the hands of German troops as the result of heavy defeats inflicted upon the Red Army.

Battlefront dispatches said the Germans rolled forward at tremendous cost in the Kletskaya salient, 75 miles north-west of Stalingrad, but were held firmly at the Kotelnikovski flank, 95 miles south-west of Stalingrad.

A Russian communique reported a terrific toll of new Nazi manpower and material thrown into the assault south-east of Keltskaya and north-east of Kotelnikovski against the flanks of the fortified line guarding Stalingrad.

In the Caucasus, extending Axis lines appeared checked on the Krasnodar flank where the Germans are thrusting toward the port of Novorossisk, but they stretched ever farther to the south-east along the rail and oil pipe line toward Grozny and the Caspian.

The Russians had plenty of time to destroy the oil installations at Maikop, and an announcement that oil supplies had been removed and "oil establishments themselves made completely unuseable" was taken here to mean that a typically thorough job of destruction had been performed. (The Germans claimed the capture of Maikop August 9).

At Krasnodar, North of Maikop and 60 miles northwest of the Black Sea naval base of Novorossisk, the Russians repulsed heavy attacks by German tanks and infantry, killing more than 300 Germans.

Planes Spoil Aim of Huns After Convoy

By ARTHUR A. THORPE

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 16 (AP)—Today I heard details of the terrific air attacks launched against the convoy of merchant ships on its way to succor gallant Malta.

Hundreds of Axis planes were flung into the fight to prevent the much-needed supplies and reinforcements from reaching the island. But only a small proportion sent their bombs and torpedoes at the great armada owing to the magnificent work of the fleet air arm fighter planes.

High-level bombers, torpedo planes and Stukas came out in huge formations from air bases in Sardinia and Sicily, but a cordon of constantly-circling fighters smashed up attack after attack and sent the bombers scurrying to their bases, their bombs exploding harmlessly in the sea many miles from the ships.

I was in the Eagle, a unit of one of the largest British warship forces ever to sail down the Mediterranean. Merchant ships plodded resolutely along over the blue sunlit waters of the Mediterranean.

Battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers and many destroyers enclosed them in outer and inner rings of long and short range anti-aircraft guns, while the carriers' fighters roared around out of sight awaiting an enemy onslaught.

The Eagle was sunk when we were nearing the edge of the battle zone. Some of her fighters were in the air at the time and flew onto

FORT BENNING, Ga., August 17. —(CP)— Hardy tanned sons of Canada and several hundred Americans began training today in a course that marked another expansion of the Canadian army's training and another example of the co-operation between the two countries in the fight against the common enemy.

The Americans are another class of the hundreds that have entered the parachute infantry school at this ruge United Stites army vost, but the 27 officers and men from the Dominion are Canada's first paratroopers. 11 Days With Little News Leaves US Cold on Solomons

Associated Press War Analyst

The progress of the battle in the Solomon Islands remains an untold story as the operation enters its 11th day, though an unofficial report from Allied headquarters in Australia says the United States Marines are believed to be extending bridgeheads won in hard fighting.

Washington is giving us what it can about this adventure, but communications and other circumstances connected with this isolated action are not such that we can have the tale red-hot as it unfolds. However, Jap resistance has been fierce and considerable casualties are likely.

Still, it would be a builder of war morale in the United States if detailed dispatches from the front could move the people in spirit right out among the fighters on those torrid isles.

The trouble in the United States is that the people are so far removed from the actual theatres of war that they haven't yet got the "feel" of this world conflict upon which their very survival depends. Allied civilians who are close to the battle-fields, and in many instances become an actual part of the bloody turmoil, have the acrid smell of powder in their nostrils and constantly rub shoulders with death. Their worry isn't whether they are to be inconvenienced by lack of gasoline for their cars, but whether their own hearts will come through this upheaval safely.

Meanwhile the fact that the United States has taken the offensive in the Solomons remains an event of vast importance—win, draw or lose. It's even of greater importance than the strategic value of these islands, for it is an exhibition of the spirit of initiative which is essential if battles are to be won.

It's constant initiative and reasonable daring that does it, as witness Hitler's successes thus far. The Nazi chief is a gambler, and that has been true of all the conquerors of history.

It is clearly evident that the spirit of initiative is growing in the Allied ranks as our resources increase. The Allies will be taking their chances as well as Hitler, but with this difference: he has no regard whatever for human life, whereas the Allied high command never will sacrifice its men unnecessarily. The Allies can win without such bloody-mindedness as that.

As to progress of the fight in the Solomons, Australian circles are said to maintain a quiet confidence. The Japs are making wide claims of victory in the operation, though at the same time they admit the fighting continues. They are such colossal liars that we shall have to wait word from Allied sources to learn the truth.

New Canadian Guns

Improved .30 Go on Own, UK, Red Tanks

OTTAWA, August 17 — (CP). — Canada has begun production of a "new and improved" rapid-firing tank machine gun, the Browning .30 calibre, it was announced today by Munitions Minister Howe.

"The new weapon is being made according to the latest design of United States Army experts," the minister's statement said. "It will be fitted into tanks for Canadian as well as British and Russian use."

Simultaneously Mr. Howe announced a speed-up in monthly output of the Browning aircraft machine gun.

"Now that we have completed most of our plant expansion, we are fast approaching allout production," he said.

"Evidence of this is contained in the production figures for the Browning aircraft machine gun. More than half the total quantity of these machine guns, so far produced in Canada were turned out during the past three months.

The Browning aircraft machine gun is stanadrd equipment for Empire aircraft. Two, four, six, eight or 12 of the guns maye be mounted on a single plane depending on the size of the plane and its tactical use. Three different types are produced in Canada two for use in turrets and one for a fixed wing position.

Firing from belts containing 300 to 500 rounds, the Browning is said to have the greatest destructive power of any weapon of its calibre. In actual combat it has literally sawn planes in two, and on more than one occasion has sunk 5,000-ton merchant ships by concentrated fire along the water line.

After U.S. Labor Hoarders

Claim Plants Corraling Men For Future Needs

WASHINGTON, August 17 — (AP)—The United States Congress may be called upon to set up an authority with extensive control over the country's manpower when it returns to work next month after its informal August vacation, informed sources said today.

Establishment of a commission to direct the flow of workers into essential war tasks is reported under consideration as an attempted solution of one of half a dozen pressing material problems on which legislative or executive action is planned.

In other quarters it is learned the war manpower commission is planning to ask the war and navy departments and the maritime commission to place inspectors in plants suspected of "hoarding" labor.

Such plants, operating on a "cost-plus" basis which means their payrolls are charged off to the government, have been reported corralling workers and holding them in anticipation of future needs.

Other problems generally regarded as likely to be unsolved when Congress resumes includes proposals for greater control over wages and prices, expansion of synthetic rubber production, possible country-wide rationing of gasoline and fuel oils.

PARTY MUDDLE GROWS MORE CONFUSED AS INDIA UNITS WARM UP

Britain Gets Appeal And Threat

Moslem Head Tips Against Peace Move With Congress

BOMBAY, August 17 — (CP). — An appeal to Britain to make peace with the All-India Congress Party —and a warning against such a step —left the issue over Indian independence apparently as far as ever from a solution to-day.

Although nine persons were injured by police fire yesterday at Calcutta, India's biggest city, the country generally was peaceful after the week of violence touched off by the Congress' mass civil disobedience movement under Mohandas K. Gandhi and the swift arrest of the leader and his lieutenants.

The spokesman for reconciliation was Sir Tej Bahadar Sapru one of India's most prominent lawyers, who urged at Allahabad that Britain send a parliamentary delegation to India to discuss a settlement.

Sapru, who has served before as an intermediary, is understood to be planning to visit the Viceroy Lord Linlithgow.

On the other side was Mohammed Alo Jinnah who threatened that any peace-seeking with the Hindu-dominated Congress would be regarded by 80,000,000 Moslems as a sacrifice of their interests.

Held a Betrayal.

"If the British now seek peace with the Congress," declared Jinnah, president of the All-India Moslem League. "we would consider that a betrayal of the Moslems who have been holding out a helping hand to Britain."

(In London, Arthur Greenwood, former Minister without portfolio in the Churchill Cabinet, lent the voice of the British Labor Party to an appeal to the Government to make clear that "on abandonment of civil disobedience it would be ready to resume free and friendly discussions" looking to Indian self-government.)

Jinnah spoke as a leader of India's biggest minority and of a people whose men make up 60 per cent of the Indian Army.

Jinnah contended the Moslem League repeatedly has been shunted aside because it had agreed to co-operate in the war effort. Asked if he would tell the Moslems to resist any Hindu Government Britain might set up, he answered:

'I would do it even if it meant my death."

one of the other carriers.

The first air attack came five hours after the Eagle was sunk. An officer in a battleship which returned to Gibraltar told me that four Junkers 88's evaded fighters and dived on his ship. An intense barrage of shells pumped up at them spoiled their aim and their bombs exploded in the sea.

"We knew that large formations were all around us," the officer said, "but the carriers' fighters were wonderful in splitting up enemy formations and driving them off.

"Axis planes never managed to reach us in really strong numbers. Wednesday about 9.30 a.m. 20 big twin-engined bombers carried out a high-level attack. They all dropped bombs. One fell very near a merchant ship. She was damaged and her engines stopped. (Soon afterwards she started again.)

"Then we saw about a dozen torpedo bombers coming in on the starboard side close to the sea. We had a surprise for them which they showed no liking for. We put up a barrage with high explosive shells. I have never seen anything like it. Our shells were exploding in a high wall of flame, smoke and flying splinters. The planes made no attempt to face such a colossal barrage. They turned away. We saw no torpedo tracks.

"Later 20 Stukas broke through and screamed down at the ships. One dived down at us. Tracer shells and pom poms were pumped at him in red streams. I could see pieces flying off the plane. But the pilot kept on and a big bomb plunged in the sea very near to us.

"A few minutes later seven dive-bombers appeared suddenly out of the blue and dive-bombed a carrier. They roared down one after another and she disappeared from our sight behind climbing spires of water. But she was still steaming along when she came into our view again."

Two "Block-Busters" Did This

The British Air Ministry released this air view of the German industrial city of Saarbrucken to reveal the potency of the huge, new "block-buster" bombs which are now being used by the R.A.F. in its sweep to wipe out Hitler's munitions centres. All the damage in the ABOVE was caused by two of these missiles which landed in spots "A" and "B." The white, bare patches cover an area of 2½ acres which are completely levelled. Closer examination shows that virtually every building in the photo is roofless. The Air Ministry claims that the total area affected by the two bombs is approximately 16 acres.

Met by Molotov.

The Prime Minister, flying with W. Averell Harriman, President Roosevelt's personal envoy, was met at the airport by Molotov and Russian military dignitaries.

On Wednesday evening, the day of his arrival, Mr. Churchill went to the Kremlin and saw Stalin immediately.

They talked for three hours and 40 minutes.

Again on Thursday night they had three long talks.

British Generals attended the Stalin-Churchill conversations, while Gen. Maxwell and Brig.-Gen. S. P. Spalding, charged with Russian lease-lend affairs in Washington, conferred with Marshall Klementi Voroshilov, commander of the Red armies in reserve.

All three powers of the meetings were fairly secret, but newspapermen got their first inkling of them when they saw three liberators soaring over Moscow, escorted by a number of Russian fighter planes.

Mr. Churchill's plane was piloted by two American members of the British ferry command —William Vanderklott, 28, of Sarasota, Fla., and Jack Ruggles, 27, the co-pilot San Francisco, Calif.

Imperial Chief There

Among the British conferees were Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the imperial general staff, who flew with Mr. Churchill to the United States in the spring, and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, commander-in-chief of the R.A.F. in the Middle East.

Also, Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent under-secretary of state for foreign affairs and Mr. Churchill's physician, Sir Charles Wilson.

Roy Henderson, assistant chief of European affairs in the state department, was in the American group.

The visit was climaxed with a state dinner at the Kremlin on Friday night. Persons who attended it said both the prime minister and Stalin were in the highest spirits.

Houses Look Very Thin

Before alighting from the plane, Mr. Churchill looked down upon Moscow and commented on his first impression that "the houses from the top look very thin."

As the prime minister and Mr. Harriman stepped into the warm sunshine a Russian band played the British and United States national anthems.

Mr. Churchill and Mr. Harriman were greeted warmly by Molotov. Both spoke briefly into the microphone of a record machine for later broadcast.

Stalin was not among the Russians who made the prime minister and American representative welcome at the airport. He was busy at the Kremlin.

The four days or negotiations, from Wednesday until Saturday, brought the British and Soviet war leaders together for the first time.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden last winter paid a visit to the Soviet Union, and Foreign Commissar Vyachesav Molotov repaid the visit in May, when he signed the British-Soviet alliance on May 26.

Subsequently Molotov journeyed to Washington, where he saw President Roosevelt, and after he had returned to Moscow simultaneous announcements in London and Washington disclosed that the alliance had been signed and that the leaders of Britain, Russia and the United States were in agreement on the urgency of establishing a second front against Hitler in 1942.

In the Moscow conferences Britain was also represented by Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, and Sir Alexander Cardogan, permanent Under-Secretary of the Foreign Office.

On the Soviet side Molotov and Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, former defence commissar and now a Commander of Soviet Reserve armies, assisted Stalin in the discussions.

Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, British Commander-in-Chief in India, also took part.

Meighen Calls For Master Manpower Plan

TORONTO, Aug. 17.—(CP).—Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Dominion Conservative leader, yesterday appealed to the Canadian people to "move and move now to enforce the mandate of total, limitless war," and called for a master manpower plan spread over the whole nation "with no favoritism, no sectionalism and no racialism."

"Train, train, train right here in Canada—let that be the universal command—and train for the kind of war we have to fight," said Mr. Meighen addressing 2,000 persons at the annual memorial service for Sir Adam Beck, founder of the Ontario Hydro-electric system.

"Fight, fight, fight whatever the enemy is," he declared. "Let every voice ring out. Let everything be sacrificed to those ends without a tear or murmur. It is only the clear-eyed and super-heroic who will survive this war."

The Conservative leader said no person "has the right to say whether he fights or when he fights, or where he fights."

"No, the individual has no such right," he continued, "and what is more, everybody in his heart knows he has no such right...These decisions are the function of the state."

MONTREAL, August 17 — (CP). —Louis Daoust, boot and shoe administrator for Canada said to-day that 4,000 shoe workers are on strike in Montreal.

"By nightfall or to-morrow all of the some 7,000 Montreal shoe workers may be affected and possibilities are that it becomes province-wide causing 15,000 workers to walk out," said Mr. Daoust, who is co-proprietor of the Daoust-Lalonde & Company shoe factory here where on Saturday the strike started when 300 employees staged a walkout, complaining their employees had failed to pay them a cost-of-living bonus decreed by the Regional Labor Council for Shoe Industry Workers.

"The whole matter is a misunderstanding," Mr. Daoust said. "In some cases the raises given to employees exceed the $1.80 bonus. Income Forms For Tax Not Yet Here

The new income tax form, officially designated as T.D. 1, has not yet arrived in Peterborough—to the uneasiness of office management upon whom rests the responsibility of distributing these forms and, from their information preparing the tax reduction from payrolls, effective on September 1.

From the post office and three or four of the larger industrial plants it was learned this morning that the blank forms were still on the way.

"The department heads at Ottawa have been talking about this for the last six weeks or two months, and we have been assured that the blanks would be along in good time," said one official; 'but there is no sign of them yet. Telephone calls to Toronto failed to get any trace of them there, and we are assuming that they are not yet on the way."

Form T.D. 1 is devised for the guidance of employers in making tax deductions from the employee's pay cheques. On it are to be set forth whether the employee is married or single, whether his wife has an income of more than $600 apart from wages and salary. Also are to be listed the employee's dependents for whom he is claiming deductions from tax, and the amount of his savings as recognized by the Department of National Revenue.

"We may have to put in a lot of night work," was the opinion of Tom Glover, C.G.E. works accountant, when asked today how the management was planning to absorb this new deal. "We don't know whether we may have to take on additional help. Our office staff has grown to a large number, and we may be able to handle the new forms and deductions from payrolls without taking in more help."

With only two weeks left of August it is becoming imperative that the official forms should be received at once.

To Meet War Bills

Employees will have to realize, it was said, that the income tax is solely for the purpose of helping to raise funds to meet the war bills. Some of the information sought relates to personal affairs such as mortgages and other obligations which may be deducted from the basic bill.

Employees will also be informed that their filling out the forms is now obligatory, but if they fail to do so they will be assessed the full tax of single persons.

"When you enlist in the army you no longer have any privacy," said an official of one of Peterborough's industries. "When you have the option of staying at home in safety and employment surely there should be no objection by any person to official and confidential enquiry into income affairs affecting this new war tax. The average man should consider himself lucky that he is far back in the industrial lines and not up on the front with the fighters. At least that is one way of looking at it. Another is that we are not going to win this war until we have more people keenly desiring to kill Germans, Japs and Italians. It is either them or us. So they tell us. And I can't see why we should take any course that would let us be the victims."

What May Be Listed

In listing his insurance, annuity, or mortgage payments for 1942 as an offset against compulsory savings, the employee is not required to have an official receipt from the company or companies with which he holds policies. These receipts must be obtained, however, when the employee files his final 1942 income tax return, which must be sent in to the Receiver-General not later than September 30, 1943.

On the new form, employees will total their savings of the year and divide the sum by the number of pay periods (i.e. weekly, semi-monthly, or monthly), and put down the amount of savings claimed if the savings exceed the normal compulsory savings per pay period amount, the employer wil simply allow the maximum savings portion, per pay period.

If a man or woman has more than one employer, he or she is required to file a separate form for each employer. In cases of this kind, under-deductions are likely, and must be squared up at the end of the end of the taxation year.

To allow for donations to charitable institutions and other possible exemptions, the Income Tax Branch is collecting only 90 percent of the total tax and savings payable by the employee. The balance falls due when the 1942 tax return is filed in September 1943.

Credits are being allowed by the employer for the National Defence Tax already paid by employees during the first eight months of the year.

Allied Fliers Keep Japs Off Solomons

Australia Confidence Grows Over Battle Progress

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Aug. 17—(CP).—Allied airmen maintained ceaseless vigil over the waters northeast of Australia to prevent Japanese reinforcements from reaching the Solomon Islands as the battle for control of vital bases there entered its 11th day today.

While United States Marines were believed to be extending bridgeheads already won in hard fighting in the Solomons, actual developments in that theatre were hidden by official silence both here and in Washington.

No reference to the situation was contained in the daily communique from Allied headquarters, which was devoted to a brief report of a new Allied bombing attack on Japanese-occupied Timor and to continued patrol skirmishes in the Kokoda area of southeastern New Guinea, 60 miles from the Allied base at Port Moresby.

There was evidence, however, of quiet confidence in Australian circles whose attitude was reflected by William H. Hughes, a member of the Pacific War Council, in a speech at Sydney yesterday in which he acclaimed the Solomon Islands offensive as "a revelation of the strength of our ally, America."

"It has been shown" he said, "that man for man the Japanese are not equal to the United States Marines."

The Japanese radio continued to broadcast sweeping claims of victory in the Solomons, which it failed to reconcile with the admission "the battle is continuing between our forces and American Marines who

For Tuesday, August 18

THE LUNAR transits for this day emphasize the prospect of attaining the high and happy goals of fulfilled ambitions and aspirations in both the business, cultural and private life. It is a time for concentrating the energies and prerogatives toward this end, with the thrill of attained hopes and wishes to be banked upon. Finances, credit, enhanced position in the good graces of those in high places, may flourish with personal popularity counting for much of an expansive, generous nature.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which the most cherished goals of fulfilled hopes and wishes may swing wide to bring a combination of progress, achievement, expansion, growth and personal prestige and popularity. The social and friendly element may figure in reaching the desired objectives, with those in high places co-operative but with some public or group collaboration withheld. Business, credits, domestic funds should increase and give pleasure. And the social, romantic and convivial enjoyments of life may be accelerated.

A child born on this day should have much creative ability, versatility and ambition. It should have a successful, honored and happy life.

Rhodes "A Flash From Hell" As Fleet Leaves

By LARRY ALLEN

Aboard a Cruiser with the British Mediterranean Fleet, Bombarding Rhodes, Aug. 13 (Delayed)—(AP)—The long sleek guns of Britain's Mediterranean warships, spouting sheets of white flame, poured ton after ton of high explosive shells into Mussolini's Dodecanesan stronghold of Rhodes early today.

They left behind on this Eastern Mediterranean island huge fires, battered seaplane bases and broken barracks and harbor installations.

The squadron of warships, commanded by Rear Admiral Philip L. Vian, swept into the mine-laden waters off Rhodes just before 1 a.m. Thursday and plastered the harbor for twelve minutes in one of the most thrilling surprise bombardments I have ever witnessed.

The Rhodes heavy shore batteries and anti-aircraft guns and Italian torpedo boats flung everything at the fleet they could muster. My heart crashed against my ribs as big enemy shells sprayed over this cruiser and near misses made huge geysers, while fire gushed through the air under the starlit skies and exploded with shattering force ashore.

In this most spectacular bombardment of the war since the fleet pumped thousands of armor-piercing shells into Tripoli on April 24, 1941, the Nazis and Fascists in Rhodes sent up thousands of multi-colored "flaming onions" in an effort to trace the attacking force while British and American bombers pounded the airdromes and other targets ashore both before and after the sea shelling.

Rhodes looked like a maze of Christmas tree lights when the fleet sailed up to a broadside position. It looked like a flash from hell when the warships moved safely away.

The aggressive and daring Vian, who tried to whip Italian battleships with 5.25 guns in a Malta convoy operation last March, pushed his squadron through a wide sweep in the eastern Merditerrean.

Where Vian goes, action follows. He shoved the muzzles of his big naval guns close to Rhodes and gave the Axis one of the biggest scares of this war.

I paced the quarter-deck with the ship's officers and talked with the gun crew in one of the six-inch turrets and found them eager to start the rain of hot steel on Rhodes.

There's a saying in the British fleet: "If a shell has your name on it you are going to catch it."

So I wrote in pencil "Benito Mussolini" upon one of the shells and asked the gunner to deliver it that night. He did.

Waiting For The Show.

As the fleet splashed steadily closer to Rhodes two other correspondents and myself sat in the paymaster commander's cabin under the four-inch gun turret and spent the time until zero hour swatting brown cockroaches the sizes of small General Grant tanks.

As midnight approached the leaden cloud banks seemed to merge into grotesque humps on the horizon. A marine bugler sounded "All hands to action stations."

On the bridge the captain and gunnery officer checked last-minute preparations for the big shooting. The guns were tested for readiness. Officers jammed cotton wool in their ears to deaden the concussion when the firing started.

With long white gauntlets pulled over my hands and a white helmet over my head, and a rubber-banded white mesh over my face covering all but my eyes and wearing my new American tinhelmet, I climbed the ten-foot steel ladder with the commander to the after steering tower and searchlight deck.

Ammunition hoists were rushing big shells up to the gun turrets from lockers deep in the warship.

Seven minutes to one. The big show in Rhodes had already started. Flares fell from British aircraft illuminating the targets. The Italians had started firing hundreds of anti-aircraft shells.

Searchlight beams descended seaward. My heart pounded madly as the light swept the sea and I saw the flagship of this squadron caught in the ray. I thought now we have been discovered. The heavy shore batteries would open fire on us before the warships could turn into a broadside position. The searchlight suddenly switched off. Nothing happened.

Five minutes to one. "What time is it?" asked the commander. I glanced at my oil-stained luminous watch, the same one I wore when I went down with this cruiser's sister ship Galatea off Alexander December 16 last.

"We are due to fire now," the commander said when I told him the hour.

At that moment the first salvo of heavy high explosive shells leaped from the muzzles of this warship's guns.

Deafening, blinding salvoes hurtled the big shells shoreward. More anti-aircraft fire from the enemy on shore broke out, then their heavy batteries swung into action. Projectile after projectile swished overhead and splashed into the sea on the portside of our ship. Three big shells smashed into the sea a few feet to our starboard.

On shore the enemy was raising a big smokescreen over the harbor.

A shelling to me has always been the most chilling of naval experiences, but tonight the Nazis and Fascists added an extra attraction—the torpedo boats.

"Two enemy E-boats off starboard aft," a sailor reported to the commander. The four-inch batteries roared. Shell after shell poured into the blackened waters where the torpedo boats were racing toward our warships.

There were great splashes of water, but it could not be seen whether any of the torpedo boats had been hit. But neither were we. Another torpedo boat skirted to our portside, but couldn't get across a torpedo before a four-incher began raking the sea.

More anti-aircraft fire and more flaming onions. The fleet fired a few parting shots while the heavy British and American bombers took over the job of beating up the airdrome and harbor works—at least what was left of them.

Ashore in Rhodes, the Italians and Germans were getting hotter every minute as the pathway of flame streaked along the waterfront. In Rhodes they know now that a Rome broadcast stating that the British Fleet had been chased out of the Eastern Mediterranean is a little off-color.

This was the fourth bombardment of Rhodes, since Italy entered the war. The captain of this warship in typically conservative British fashion commented: "We threw a scare into them and did what we set out to do."

En route back to port, there were several reports that enemy aircraft were about, but they failed to catch up with the bombardment fleet and every British warship safely reached its base. The only casualty in this shelling was myself. I stepped into an open hatchway in the blackout and fell five feet before catching a handgrip on the steel railing. I wound up with a badly sprained ankle and contusions.

Where Leathernecks Write New History

Here is a map of the group of islands that comprise the Solomons, where the United States marine corps is writing another glorious chapter in its history. The marines have made landings in Japanese-held islands and have dug in to hold what they've taken while grabbing some more. First objective was the Japanese naval base at Tulagi, just north of Guadalcanal. It is reported in London that the Japs have lost control of Tulagi to the American fighting men.

Slap Strabolgi For Defamations

LONDON, Aug. 17—(CP Cable).—The Sunday Times political correspondent Sunday termed criticism of the British army which Lord Strabolgi wrote for Collier's magazine "defamatious" which "will bring on him the contempt of his countrymen."

The correspondent referred to the Labor peer's statement that the army has a "dismal record of failures" and that this was due to the fact it was controlled by decadent members of the British ruling class.

The Sunday Time man added:—"When Strabolgi speaks in the House of Lords he gets a good hearing even when he is a variance with his brother peers. This is a free country. If Strabolgi wishes to slander the British army he may do it here in safety. To send his defamations across the Atlantic and have them distributed throughout the United States and Canada is an unworthy action that will bring on him the contempt of his countrymen."

A short program consisted of a piano solo by Miss Jean McAdam; a reading, "St. Peter at the Golden Gate," by Mrs. Carman McMillan; an instrumental selection by Messrs. Randall, Ellis and Alfred Aulthouse, and two appropriate readings, "To Husband and Wife" and "The My Man," by Mrs. William Ketchen.

An address was read by Mrs. William Anderson, to which the groom suitably replied. The young couple received many beautiful and useful gifts, consisting of silver, linen, pyrexware, china and kitchen utensils.

The remainder of the evening was spent in round and square dancing to music supplied by volunteer musicians.

Utilities Dept. Instals New Furnace

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 17 (ENS)—Though paint to go on the exterior of the town-owned powerhouse has already been purchased the manager, P. C. Denyes, has not found anyone with time to apply it. He reported this to members of the Water and Light Commission at their August meeting when he also told them that work of re-painting the Commission building on Front street is progressing and that one new window sash had been installed according to the authority given at the July meeting. Resulting from the recently announced Hydro order forbidding the use of electricity for heating, Manager Denyes reported that he had let the contract for a hot air furnace to Burgiss Brothers of Campbellford. He said it would be necessary to excavate a portion of the cellar under the centre of the building and that this work would be done by Commission employees. As a result of this same ruling he revealed that a number of Hydro-owned employees houses were being similarly equipped with furnaces this fall. During the discussion of the furnace question Mayor Long hopefully suggested that it might be more economical to instal stoves to heat the building since the furnace would in all probability be discarded at the conclusion of the war when demands for electricity were not so heavy. However, to this the manager replied that heating by electricity had never been entirely satisfactory and that the furnace would continue to be used even after the war's end. He admitted however that during the early fall and spring electricity would be practical. Since there is only one floor of the building to be heated, Chairman J. O. Benor felt that a $135 blower was hardy essential.

They're not ashamed of SHINY ELBOWS in Britain!

IN Britain they have to get along on 51 clothing coupons a year. Of these, a woman's woollen dress takes 11, a man's suit 26, his pyjamas 8, shirts 5, leather gloves 2. Everything is rationed even handkerchiefs.

But in Britain they would rather be free than fashionable, safe than smart. Wouldn't you?

Before you buy anything new, ask yourself if that money isn't more needed for weapons and warriors to keep your home safe from Nazis and Japs. By going without — by making what you have last longer — you can buy War Savings Stamps and Certificates.

Avoiding Patronage

It is entirely right and commendable that our American friends should be excited about their war effort and that they should sometimes err on the side of exaggeration in speaking of it. But it would be unfortunate if we in Canada were to accept their enthusiasm without reserve and were to adopt their idea of themselves as the most important sharers in that community of interests which we call the United Nations. Of course each of the four principal countries in the United Nations considers itself the most important of the group, China because she has endured so long, Russia because she has fought and succeeded where others failed, Britain because she held out for more than a year against the Axis, virtually single-handed and the U.S. because her resources of manpower and production are so great. It is important that these opinions should not cause bad feeling within the United Nations.

It is particularly important that bad feeling should not arise between the two great English-speaking groups. Our American friends, with the best will in the world, have tended to take the attitude that, now that they have joined the fray, everything will be all right, and even the recent icy douche which they received from their own Mr. Elmer Davis does not appear to have sobered them. Informed Americans know what is what, and they know that we have no time for conceit, but as in every country a great part of the population is not informed, and tends to show its patriotism by running down other nations.

We should have hesitated to approach this very ticklish subject if that admirable American publication, the Atlantic Monthly, had not given its countrymen a rap over the knuckles about Lease-Lend. It is not generally recognized that Lease-Lend works two ways and that, for instance, the British rushed anti-aircraft guns to the protection of the Panama Canal directly after Pearl Harbor. It is not known that the British radio-locator, so effective in driving off night-bombers, has been made available to U.S. defence. It is not known that the balloon barrages now in use on the U.S. Pacific coast are British and are manned by British technicians. Indeed the Associated Press actually reported that they were much superior to the British type. The British Navy is giving great aid to American shipping. But we do not hear of these things. We hear of the wonders of American production and the much-praised Yankee ingenuity, but until the end of 1941 Britain was out-producing the U.S. in every respect.

It is most important that we hold the balance straight in these matters, and that we should avoid either patronizing, or being patronized by, our allies. A recent issue of the newsmagazine Time records the astonishment of American visitors in Britain at the ignorance of American geography and institutions shown by British schoolchildren. We do not doubt that it was astonishing, but are American children any better informed about Britain? Some of the views which were expressed by Congressmen in the days before Pearl Harbor were purest fantasy. It is a simple fact that because both British and American peoples use variants of the same language they expect a greater unity of feeling than can ever exist between them. They are agreed on principles; on less important matters they could hardly be more dissimilar.

We in Canada should bear these things, in mind, and do our utmost to keep the record straight. It is essential that the English-speaking members of the United Nations should not begin patronizing one another; nothing but vexation can result.

Don't Pity Pellatt

Every visitor to Toronto has, at some time or other, seen the imposing house called Casa Loma, which was built by the late Sir Henry Pellatt. It is a remarkable spectacle. It has something the appearance of a castle, for it is set on a hill, and it has towers, battlements and terraces, and it is liberally sprinkled with ramping lions, couchant dragons, escutcheons, ornamental drainpipes and other appurtenances of greatness. It has been used as an hotel, a restaurant and a dance-palace; it has been called "Pellatt's Folly." It has been held up to at least two generations of Toronto children as a symbol of that pride which goeth before a fall.

Alas for the legend, it appears that Sir Henry did very well out of his castle. He built it as a "come-on" in an extremely shrewd real-estate deal. Mr. Frederick Griffin has recently published a pamphlet in which he relates the story of Sir Henry's expansive and entertaining life, and this is what he has to say about Casa Loma:

"Sensing the northward extension of the city Sir Henry purchased several hundred acres of land at farm prices on what was then known as Wells Hill, the site being to the north of the city limits, and he sub-divided this land for sale. The public was apathetic and sales were slow. He then and there decided to build Casa Loma in order to awaken interest in his subdivision and as a suitable site for his dream castle. In 1906 the magnificent stables were completed and popular attention was awakened. Sales in the district were brisk, and by the time the walls of Casa Loma were up the subdivision had been disposed of at a profit said to be some $1,000,000 over and above the cost of the castle itself. Thus he created values by a spectacular challenge to all who had doubted his wisdom in buying land in this district so far beyond the city limits."

That is Mr. Griffin's version of the story, and there are good reasons why he should know better than the Sunday-afternoon moralists who have leaned on the battlements of Casa Loma and told the story of the rich man who ruined himself building a big house. The unfortunate thing is that Casa Loma appears to be quite useless, and has stood empty for many years, its 36-year-old battlements frowning down upon an adjacent steam laundry.

Nation Of Shopkeepers

It was Napoleon who called the English a nation of shopkeepers and with characteristic unpredictability they have gloried in that name ever since. Now they have taken steps to see that they may remain a nation of shopkeepers.

Here in Canada we have heard much talk, some of it ill-advised, about the number of small retailers and non-essential producers who will be forced out of business by the shortages of materials and manpower caused by the war. Britain, faced with the same problem, means to set the small shopkeeper on his legs again when the war is over. This is how it is to be done: a tax will be levied on all retailers on a basis of their yearly turnover; small shopkeepers need not accept this tax unless they want to, but if they refuse to pay it they will be unable to benefit by it. Merchants who have been in business for twelve months or longer are eligible for the scheme. Then, if a shopkeeper has to go out of business, he will receive a sum equal to five per cent. of his turnover which will enable him to meet some of his obligations and keep afloat until the war is over.

Of course this scheme means that there will be some regulation of retail trade after the war. People who have had shops which were war casualties will have first right to re-open. It also means that a heavy burden is placed upon the already overburdened big shops; they are literally going to carry the small-fry until the war is over. They cannot be expected to be cheerful about this, but in the long run the scheme is designed to keep trade healthy and the benefit will be general.

We think that Britain is wise thus to protect her small shops and allay the fears of those who depend upon them for livelihood. Whenever we hear big talk in Canada about the number of small businesses which are going to be wrecked by this war we think of the ruined hopes which will result from their dissolution, and we cannot be cheerful about it. Should we look into the British plan?

Pink Gauze

We commend the forthright action of an Alderman of Woodstock who recently bought a basket of deliciously ripe peaches. That is, he thought that they were deliciously ripe as he looked at them where they lay blushing in their basket, lightly covered with the pink gauze or netting which is the traditional covering of peach baskets. But when he got his peaches home he found that they were green as grass and hard as Pharaoh's heart.

The alderman thereupon made a to-do in the city council. He was told that the gauze was put over the peaches to keep off flies and to prevent prospective purchasers from pinching them. His retort was that a piece of white gauze would do just as well, and he denounced the pink gauze as a snare and a delusion. As a result a resolution was passed preventing the sale of baskets of fruit under colored gauze in Woodstock.

It is possible that this action may be repeated elsewhere, and the pink gauze on the top of the peach basket may follow the strawberry box with the raised bottom into oblivion.

Letters To The Editor

BEATING THE GAME

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I agree with Mrs. Verny that our rationing boards have been inefficient and that the tea ration seems rather drastic. The board attempted some weeks ago to ration tea and coffee by the "honor" system, and evidently this did not work. I wonder why?

However, things aren't so bad. We are, or rather were, heavy tea drinkers at our house (we even drink beer sometimes) and I used to drink four cups of strong tea at breakfast. By government request I reduced this to two, and now I get two cups of weak tea. Soon I expect to cut out tea altogether because I have discovered that I am feeling better lately and believe it is because of less tea.

Mrs. Verny is making a mountain out of a mole-hill. She even begrudges the British people one extra cup of tea a day. Should I say British or English? After all we are all British. However, I suppose she doesn't mind how many German bombs they get. If her husband had been among those butchered on the streets of Hong Kong perhaps she would not think so much about tea.

My wife seems to find enough sugar to bake once a week and supplements this with cheap biscuits, cookies etc., from the baker.

The other day I met a young man who had had a month's training and was called up a second time. By then he had been "put-wise" by a friend and was turned down with a "bad heart." He also told me that his mother only had a little tea on hand when rationing came, but that "if she had known" things would have been different. The thing most people resent is that it came so suddenly. They didn't get a chance to stock up. The poor things. I wonder what they will ration next? Gee, if we only knew!

SHOE ON OTHER FOOT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I have seen letters in the papers about the liquor question from people who complained in the same letter about tea and coffee rationing. I don't say that conditions in the beverage rooms are good now, but I do say that rationing is giving the tea and coffee people a taste of rationing in something they have been used to and are fond of, and it seems that some of them don't like it. It makes a big difference whose ox is being gored, don't it?

Best respects, Mr. Editor, from

MODERATION IN EVERYTHING (INCLUDING REFORM).

CUT OUT LIQUOR AND TOBACCO

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—We have heard that word 'temperance' used so much lately that we have tried to think out just what it means. Used in connection with the liquor traffic it seems to be one of the highest qualifications to which one may attain. It seems to rank higher than honesty, unselfishness, kindliness, etc., and those who seem to have gained the right to be called 'temperate' are so inordinately proud of it. They boast about it and shout it out on all the street corners, and even write about it in the newspapers.

'Temperance,' it seems, is the ability to drink a glass or two of beer, champagne, or whisky, the stronger the better, and—then, stop right there. Sounds rather silly, doesn't it?

Granted that one may perform that feat, not once but a dozen times, just what is it worth? Why does it place the performer on a level away above the poor beggar who goes right on drinking? Why is this superman not even in the same class with the poor weakling, the total-abstainer? Perhaps the glass or two which he does drink, affects his imagination, his judgment, and his common sense.

Another puzzle is this: Why, with so many so-called temperate drinkers in the country, does the amount of liquor consumed keep going up? Is temperance only temporary

I read the other day that the people of Canada do not want prohibition. Who knows what the people want? We have never had a chance to show it! It may be that those who control the giving of the right of the people to vote on such a question, have not the interests of the people of Canada at heart. Too many of them may not have children of their own who will have to live in a country becoming more sodden in liquor every year. It may be that personal gain, wealth, and the power money brings, mean more to them than anything else. We are heartily disgusted at the cheap political manoeuvring in tossing the blame for the present deplorable conditions back and forth from one government to another.

We would prefer that the people of Canada as a whole would agree to cut out drinking for the duration. It might be that the chains of slavery are stronger than we think, but I believe all who drink have the courage and strength to do it. It is no easy matter to stop smoking either, once the habit is formed, but millions more of dollars might be saved that way.

The advantage of this method over legislation is that the government would not be asked to pay large sums to 'compensate' the owners or shareholders of liquor industries. They are the kind who would squeal loudest over their losses, forgetting all their gains.

I hope the discussion of this question keeps up. We don't like the ominous silence on a matter which is of such great interest to al of us.

This seemed to annoy the bridegroom.

Real Crisis By November

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON, Associated Press War Analyst

THE second Great War, more terrible and far-spreading than its 1914-18 predecessor, will be three years old in another two weeks. Yet there is a good basis for the assertion of high-placed British spokesmen that it is only now verging toward its crisis.

From two British sources a prediction has come within the week that by Nov. 1 the flood crest of Axis attacking power will have been reached. Speaking in London, Oliver Lyttleton, Minister of Production, admitted a "sombre" outlook, and said Britain would face the gravest hours of her history within the "next eighty days."

Captain Bernard Newman of the British Ministry of Information, was even more specific. Speaking in Halifax, he said:

"If by Nov. 1 we are still fighting hard, if by Nov. 1 we still hold Egypt, I think we will have won the war."

Here is the same thought, the same critical date setting, but differently expressed. What can be traced in both statements is the belief that Hitler and his Axis accomplices must reach a decisive victory before winter sets in again in Russia, or not at all. And grave as are the war reports from the Caucasus, there seems yet no possibility that Russia can be crushed or forced to her knees in that time.

CUMULATIVE PRESSURE

On the contrary, even by German victory claims, Hitler's armies are now on the defensive from Leningrad to southwest of Moscow, from the Baltic to the upper reaches of the Don. Russian armies are being battered in the Central Caucasus, but the ramparts of the towering Caucasus range to the south still guard the Baku oilfields. That difficult terrain, well suited to defense against Nazi lightning war methods, is offered by Berlin as an advance explanation for an expected slowing down of the victory march in the south.

By contrast, Russian offensives at crucial points from Veronezh on the Upper Don, to north of the Valdai Plateau are reported by the Germans. Moscow gives them only passing mention, yet they may indicate a vast and cumulative attack pressure building up all along the north segment of the long Russian battle line now that Nazi forces in the south are badly extended. Berlin styles these thrusts as "relief" attacks and claims they have all been bloodily repulsed.

Nevertheless, with less than 90 days intervening before Russia's ancient ally, winter, again comes to her aid, Hitler's armies are still far from having set up a short winter line across Russia from the Baltic to the Caspian.

CRISIS BEFORE WINTER

Tremendous new German advances to take Leningrad, Moscow and the Volga front below Stalingrad must be made before November if Hitler is to stand on a shortened winter line in Russia and be prepared to face westward against Anglo-American power gathering across the English Channel. Failing that or a Russian collapse—of which there is no faint suggestion even in German propaganda—he will be more greatly extended in Russia next winter than he was last, when he fell back.

There has been continuous expectation in London and in China that Japan would step into the European war theatre by attacking Russia from the rear at an opportune moment.

With United States sea and air forces at last on the offensive in the Southwest Pacific, however, a revision of the Japanese plan for Axis co-operation well may be in the making. That the stroke in the Solomons was in part timed by Washington to that end seems almost certain.

Nor can it be doubted that Japan, if she is to move at all against Russia this year, must move well before Nov. 1. The Siberian theatre offers limited time for major action before winter takes over.

On all counts, therefore, the British view that the three-year-old war will reach its crisis before November seems well founded. It probably affords a key to the timing of possible Allied moves in Egypt or in the west.

Dickens In the Directory

The name "Boffin" appearing in the personal column of the "mail" recently set me wondering how many others there may be in Birmingham which revive recollections of Dickensian characters (writes a correspondent). A glance at the director revealed quite a number, and a careful search would reveal many more. There are five Wellers, but apparently no Pickwick, though the name supplies the title for at least one club. A Snodgrass, however, is to be found in a southern suburb.

Humphreys are naturally most numerous, though not all "old." Mould, the cheerful undertaker in "Martin Chuzzlewit," is the name of at least eight householders, and there is a Bazzard. Brownlow (the protector of Oliver Twist) is to be found at King's Heath and elsewhere, and a Guppy at King's Norton.

"Martin Chuzzlewit" recalls Pecksniff, Tom Pinch and Mark Tapley. Happily nobody in Birmingham is burdened with the name of the arch-hypocrite, but a Tapley—doubtless true to type as the great optimist—is to be found, and a Pinch. Jaggers was the lawyer in "Great Expectations" with a great reputation in the criminal court, and the name is to be met with in a northern suburb. Minns also is to be found in the city.—Birmingham Mail.

"We Are Entrusted"

(From an Address by the Archbishop of Canterbury)

The service of a great cause is entrusted to us, in resistance to an enemy who has deliberately reverted to the standards of barbarism of scientific civilization, so that in the result a monster of evil is let loose in the world. We must defeat and chain that monster so that there may be no repetition of the horrors which we have witnessed.

Where Hitler Loses

Foolish as it would be to gloss over the defects in generalship that lost Tobruk, it is just as foolish to magnify this battle into a decisive action, and more foolish to lose sight of the all-important fact that if Hitler's military machine is still capable of powerful drives, he has lost the political battle for Europe. He cannot hold what his arms conquer, even against the unarmed.

The high strategists of the United Nations have dispersed their military strength for political reasons, and this is a mistake which Hitler never makes and which they cannot afford to make again until his striking power is definitely weakened.

But because the war can never be won if military conquest is not matched by political conquest, there is sustaining comfort in the thought that the political power wielded by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill is even now as superior to the enemy's as their military power will soon be.—New York Times.

Hamsun Boycotted

Every day Knut Hamsun, one of the few prominent Norwegian writers who support the Nazis, receives by post scores of his books, which the Norwegians no longer want to keep in their houses. Tens of thousands of volumes have been sent back to Hamsun in the month of May alone. Not only private citizens but also schools and libraries have cleared their shelves of Hamsun's works. The post office in the village where Hamsun lives has had to ask for extra help, as it can no longer deal with the flood of parcels. Every morning Hamsun's garden is full of books, as many people from the neighborhood simply throw them over the hedge.—Central European Observer.

A Bible Message For Today

And as he entered into a certain village, there met him ten men that were lepers, which stood afar off: and they lifted up their voices, and said, Jesus, Master, have mercy on us. And when he saw them, he said unto them, Go shew yourselves unto the priests. And it came to pass, that, as they went, they were cleansed.

And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God, and fell down on his face at his feet, giving him thanks: and he was a Samaritan.

And Jesus answering said, Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine? There are not found that returned to give glory to God, save this stranger. And he said unto him, Arise, go they way: thy faith hath made thee whole.—Luke xvii, 12-19.

Poor Man's Smoke

Speaking of the revolutionary aspects of this global war, has anybody noticed what it has done to the once lordly cigar? At one fell swoop it has toppled it from its pedestal and replaced it with the tailor-made cigarette. Once the trade-mark of the idle rich and bloated plutocracy, the cigar has become a poor man's smoke while the smoker of boughten cigarettes is marked by that fact as a person of wealth and substance.

In rural Manitoba, a colleague reports, the hired men are now smoking cigars while the squires of the plantation smoke ready-made cigarettes. This aroused our colleague's inquisitiveness, and here are the economics of tobacco consumption:

Cigarette taxes have been increased several times since the war began. Smokes which once cost a penny each now sell 16 for a quarter. The normal or average smoker consumes about 20 cigarettes a day. Thus it now costs him about 32 cents a day for his cigarettes. Few cigar smokers, on the other hand, destroy more than four or five of their noxious weeds a day. The price of cigars remains today what it was before the war. A nickel will still buy a cigar. The Government doesn't care what it does to cigarette smokers, but it has been careful of the cigar smokers. It now happens that a normal cigar smoker, if any cigar smokers are normal of which there is some doubt, can get by with twenty cents or twenty-five cents a day for his nicotine ration.

Ergo: It is cheaper to smoke cigars than cigarettes, and cigars have become the poor man's smoke.—Winnipeg Free Press.

War Teaches Us Much

Still another revelation of what can be done without as the war imposes its exaction is reflected in the manner in which glass is replacing metals as a familiar domestic commodity. Man's ingenuity is finding many uses for the product which are astounding to those of us who are apt to think of glass as only a transparent, brittle material that has to be handled with the utmost care. But what do we find Glass is replacing steel, tin, aluminum, synthetic plastics, cork, asbestos, silk, rubber, nickel copper, to mention only a few strategic materials. It is being used to reinforce concrete, to cover the wings of training planes, for paratroops—the details of which, of course, are a military secret—for barless prisons, for plumbing pipes.—Victoria Times.

Ten Sisters Take Vows In Ceremony On Saturday

On Saturday, August 15, the annual ceremony of reception and profession was held in the chapel of Mount St. Joseph, Peterborough.

The beautiful chapel with its altar resplendent in delicate shades of gladioli and lighted tapers, made a magnificent setting for the solemn ceremony.

At nine o'clock, three young ladies in bridal robes, attended by charming little flower-girls, entered the chapel and proceeded to the altar amid low, sweet strains of organ music. After the holy sacrifice of the mass had been celebrated, His Excellency the Most Rev. Denis O'Connor, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Peterborough, having been assured that the one desire of these young aspirants was to abandon the world and enter upon the life of a poor religious, permitted them to receive the holy habit. An appropriate hymn, "Go Ye Forth, O Zion's Daughter," was sung by Sisters' Choir as the young ladies left the chapel to return later as Sister of St. Joseph. These are; Miss Doris Cooney, Quyon, Quebec, in religion Sister M. Christina; Miss Teresa Moher, Douro, in religion Sister M. Teresita; Miss Joan Trudeau, Britt, in religion Sister M. Hilary.

Immediately at the conclusion of this ceremony, seven young sisters, who for two years had been experiencing religious life in the Novitiate asked to be permitted to make first vows. Proceeding within the sanctuary they pronounced their vows for one year. These Sisters are: Sister M. St. Jude, Sister M. St. Thomas, Sister M. Catherine, Sister Marie, Sister M. Kathleen, Sister M. Agnes, Sister M. Isabel.

As a closing ceremony, three sisters, Sister M. Aidan, Sister M. Stephanie, Sister M. Benedicta, after a Novitiate of five years, pronounced final vows in the hands of the Most Reverend Bishop.

Rev. R. J. Conway, C. SS. R. of London, Ontario, who had just completed two eight-day retreats with the Sisters of Mount St. Joseph, gave an inspiring sermon for this occasion. He likened the lives of religious to the lives of the Apostles. The latter had engaged in domestic life, enjoying the pleasures of the world prior to abandoning all to follow the Master. So these young women, though they, too, might have enjoyed the pleasures of an alluring world, chose, instead, a life where sometimes they may taste the sweetness of Thabor, but must, as well, experience the bitterness of Calvary. He congratulated them on having courageously made the choice of this sublime life of renunciation, consecration and immolation.

The following clergy were present in the sanctuary: Right Rev. J. McRae, P.A., Superior General of China Mission Seminary, Toronto; Rev. Father Belanger, St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto; Rev. J. T. Finn, rector; Rev. G. A. Wolff, Rev. K. Malane, Rev. J. A. Greenan of St. Peter's Cathedral; Rev. J. J. O'Brien, P.P., and Rev. J. Houlihan of Sacred Heart Parish; Rev. V. J. Corkery, Chancellor, Peterborough; Rev. J. V. McAuley, P.P., Campbellford; Rev. J. J. Garvey, P.P., Hastings; Rev. C. J. Carroll, P.P., Norwood; Rev. J. J. McCarthy, P.P., Douro; Rev. L. Rishea, P.P., Wooler; Rev. J. V. Masterson, D.D., P.P., and Rev. J. M. Lynch of Lakefield.

Girls Must Have "What It Takes" To Be Officers

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STE ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que., Aug. 15—(CP).—You have to have "what it takes" to be an officer in the Canadian Women's Army Corps. That's the verdict of Captain Mary Dover of Calgary, commandant of the training school at Macdonald College here.

Any girl who enters the Corps has the opportunity to become an officer, said Capt. Dover, who has some 44 in the cadet training corps here.

"An officer has to have certain standards of educational background," she added. "But the main necessary quality is 'what it takes'—an indefinable quality of character that anyone has to have to be a leader of women."

All C.W.A.C. officers now in training come up from the ranks. They have to take the basic training course as well. Most of them enlisted in the corps to do quite humble tasks.

For instance take Janet Beatty of of Toronto who joined as a switchboard operator. After her basic training she was chosen as an instructor and made a corporal. It wasn't long before she was a sergeant and recently she left Macdonald College as a second lieutenant for Vermilion, Alta., where she will an officer of the new C.W.A.C. training school there.

Another Example

With her went Violet Hagan of Calgary, who worked in a garment factory in Lethbridge before she enlisted as a clerk-stenographer in the army. She's only five feet tall but she was made a sergeant, stationed at Calgary. Recently she finished her officer training, and now she's a second lieutenant at Vermilion.

There's a great contrast between the girls in the cadet training corps and the young, raw recruits who have only been in the corps a few days. The cadets swing down the road on route marches like clockwork and they're the pride and joy of Capt. H. C. Brennan's heart. Capt. Brennan who until recently was commanding officer of a unit at Huntingdon, Que., is in charge of the four weeks' training course.

"I'm trying to take those corporals, sergeants and privates and give them qualities of leadership," he said. "I want to give them the mental attitude of officers without making them bossy and arrogant. But they're a fine lot of girls—being officers won't spoil them."

Marches and Office Work

Capt. Brennan has an ambitious course for his girls. They must have 180 periods of study. These include drill, physical training, military law, rules, regulations and customs of the Canadian army, leadership and morale. They must make four five-mile marches, and know how to lead others, from squads to regiments. They study army office procedure, administrations and documentation, filing, orderly room duties.

On this reporter's visit Cpl. Gwen C. Prattis of Toronto was giving a lecture. Most of the other cadets were busily taking notes, all except Sgt.-Maj. Marian Muir of Calgary who said she "sat in on classes as a buffer between the captain and the students."

L. Cpl. Margaret Robertson of Calgary admitted the course was stiff, as did L. Cpl. Gerda Forsland, also from Calgary. Acting Sgt. Kathleen Belcher of Winnipeg prefers military law, and Sergeant Mary Marr of Saint John, N.B., likes the course so well she has no favorite subject. Neither has Acting Sgt. Geraldine O'Mearer of Montreal or L. Cpl. Joyce Gooding of Victoria.

WAR MAY INDUCE WOMEN TO WEAR DRESSES AGAIN

Draftees Say They Are Much in Favor of Girls in Ruffled Frocks.

ONE of the problems of human behavior which is ever good for a hot argument is whether women dress to attract men, or to make other women envious. Personally, I have always belonged to the feminine school of thought in the controversy, for it has seemed obvious to me that no member of the fair sex could be so ignorant of the tastes and habits of men as to believe that there was anything about a dofunny hat that would make one get up and follow it, or that they would be intrigued by the sight of high-water skirts or shorts that disclosed their wearer's every anatomical blunder to the public gaze.

Of course, you might account for women wearing fashions that make them look like figures of fun on al-

Mitchell-Murray Wedding Of Campbellford Interest

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 17. — (ENS).—A wedding of wide interest took place on Saturday afternoon at Burnbrae Presbyterian Church when Miss Marjorie Jean Murray, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Murray, became the bride of Gerald J. Mitchell, only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Mitchell of Seymour Township. Rev. Donald McKay officiated at the nuptial ceremony which began at 3 o'clock before the altar, which was banked with a profusion of white gladioli and ferns.

Te bride entered the church on the arm of her father and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Donald McKay, while during the singing of the register Mrs. William Craighead sang "Because." The bride's gown was of white crepe over taffeta with [illegible] bodice and high neckline. The sleeves were long and full and her tulle veil fell in a long train from a heart-shaped bride's cap trimmed with seed pearls and she wore a triple strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a white prayer book with a shower of red rosebuds.

Miss Helen Murray was her sister's maid of honor, and her dress was also of white crepe over taffeta and cut on similar lines to that worn by the bride. Her shoulder length veil was held in place by a narrow white velvet ribbon which formed a bow at the back and fell in streamers. She carried a cascade bouquet of Better Times roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Thelma Ketcheson of Toronto and Miss Vera Ketcheson of Stirling, wore matching floor length gowns of white crepe over taffeta and their head dress was similar to that worn by the maid of honor. Mr. Kenneth Oddie of Seymour assisted the groom and LAC Ross Bailey and Mr. Maurice Smith were the ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where a buffet luncheon was served to about 60 guests. Mrs. Murray wore a 2-piece black British wool suit with black fox trim with black felt wide brim hat and matching accessories. Her corsage was of Better Times roses and fern. Mrs. Mitchell, the bridegroom's mother, wore a self-trimmed blue redingote with black accessories with corsage of Briar Cliff roses and baby's breath. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell later left for a trip to Quebec City. For travelling the bride wore a brown velvet suit with off-the-face fur felt hat of matching shade and corsage of Talisman roses. The couple will live in Seymour Township.

Among those from a distance who attended the wedding were Mrs. Annie Oddie, St. Catharines; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Brown, Belleville; Mr. David Russell, Belleville; Mr. Jack Hopkins, Toronto; Mr. Jos. O'Sullivan, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ketcheson and Miss Marie Ketcheson, Stirling; Mrs. Emma Summers, Stirling; Mr. Roy Oddie, Calabogie; Cpl. Roy Conley, R.C.A.F., Camp Borden; Mrs. Melville Fitzgerald, Springbrook.

Miscellaneous Shower

Miss Marjorie Wilson was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous lawn shower held on Monday evening August 10, at the home of Miss Blanche Rose, 413 Albany Avenue, Ogdensburg, N.Y. The bride received many costly and beautiful gifts and the very best wishes of her many friends follow her to her future home in Parry Sound, Ontario.

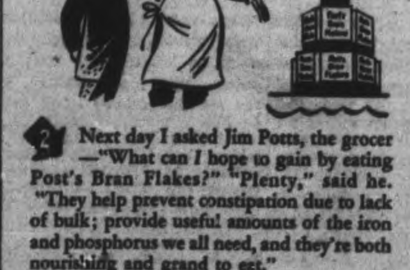
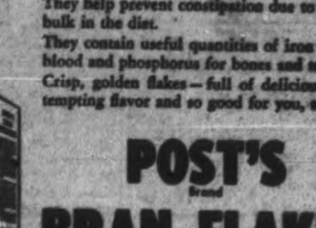
BORING GUN BARRELS IS NO CHILD'S PLAY!



1 Coming off night shift I met our milkman. "You look all in, Mister." he said. "When you feel as low and dopey as I do," I growled, "night work is no fun!" "Sounds to me," he ventured, "as though you need Post's Bran Flakes—the cereal with three benefits."

2 Next day I asked Jim Potts, the grocer —"What can I hope to gain by eating Post's Bran Flakes?" "Plenty," said he. "They help prevent constipation due to lack of bulk; provide useful amounts of the iron and phosphorus we all need, and they're both nourishing and grand to eat."



3 I eat Post's Bran Flakes every day now. They're the grandest cereal I ever tried . . . delicious in bran muffins, too. But the great thing is I'm feeling fine. "I've upped my output at the factory again this week."

Eat Them for 3 Important Benefits

They help prevent constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet.

They contain useful quantities of iron for the blood and phosphorus for bones and teeth.

Crisp, golden flakes — full of delicious taste-tempting flavor and so good for you, too.

WESTCLOX GIRLS TAKE STRANGLEHOLD ON SOFTBALL LAURELS

Defeat Generals Third Time In Final Series

The fast-travelling Westclox team made it three straight over Generals in the Girls' Softball League playoffs Saturday night, winning 9 to 3, and are now in a position to capture the league title and the Taylor Cup by a victory in the fourth game of the best four-of-seven series at the Bowl tonight.

Saturday's win was the easiest of the series for the Big Bens. They chased five runs over in the second inning and the ball game was virtually settled then and there. Marg. Watson, who went the route for the winners, had the Generals' batters well under control, aided by fast fielding by her teammates, and they failed to cross the plate at all until the seventh when they managed to get a single counter over. Eleanor Craig's homer in the eighth with a runner on the bases accounted for the only other Generals' runs.

Westclox's effective pitcher kept ten hits by the losers well spaced and she did not issue a single base on balls.

On the contrary, Marilyn McCarthy, who pitched for Generals, issued six passes and half of them blossomed into counters. She allowed nine hits, including homers by Eunice Armstrong and Marg. Watson, the first coming with two on bases.

Aggie Anderson, in centre field for Westclox, was the fielding star, covering a lot of ground in the outfield. Her running catch of a fly from the bat of Eleanor Craig in the sixth when she dashed far to her left to gather in the ball on the dead run was one of the best of the season. In addition she threw a runner out at the plate, trying to score from second on an outfield hit. "Toots" McLean at second for the winners also shone with some classy fielding.

Westclox won the ball game in the second when they scored five runs. Marg Watson, first up, reached second when May Wade threw high to first after knocking down her liner. Barbara Rome singled in the run, but was out at second trying to stretch her hit into a double. V. Patterson walked, but was forced at second on Doris Walker's tap to May Wade. The runner advanced on a wild pitch. Aggie Anderson beat out a hit to short and Doris Walker scored when Annette DeCarlo dropped the ball in tagging her at the plate. V. McLean drew a pass and she and Aggie Anderson scored ahead of Eunice Armstrong when the latter slashed a homer through the infield and between right and centre field. Marg. Hawthorne singled to left, but Isobel Bullock rolled out.

Westclox got another in the third when Marilyn McCarthy tossed high to first after fielding Barbara Rome's roller. The hitter stole second, and when Ruth Hewitt threw high to third came in with the run.

With one out, a pass to Eunice Armstrong turned into a run. M. Hawthorne drove a fly to left and Irma Perdue dropped the ball, giving the runner a life. Isobel Bullock flied to centre and Eunice Armstrong scored after the catch.

That was all for Westclox until the seventh when they got two. Marg. Watson started it by poling one to the cars in left for a homer. Barbara Rome rolled out, but V. Patterson singled to right, advanced when May Wade was tossing out Doris Walker and scored on Aggie Anderson's single through short.

Generals wasted two hits in the third and fourth and failed to score until the seventh. In that frame Ruth Hewitt was safe on an error, but was out trying to make second on the play. Irma Perdue beat out an infield hit and advanced on a wide throw to first. Phyllis McQuade rolled out, Irma Perdue going to third. She scored from there when Annette DeCarlo was called safe on a tap to first. The batter was forced by May Wade at second.

With one out in the eighth, Phyllis Bigelow singled. Marilyn McCarthy flied out to centre, but Eleanor Craig drove a homer to deep right field, scoring Phyllis Bigelow ahead of her. Ruth Hewitt rolled to second to end the inning. The game was called at that stage on account of darkness.

Makes Two-Fisted Bid For U.S. Title

Using his tennis racquet like a baseball bat, Francisco (Pancho) Segura, Ecuador's tennis star, has flashed brilliant form in his U.S. tennis engagements and, on his record, is expected to be a threat for the national title in September. Sagura has won several eastern titles. His double-handed play has amazed tennis experts.

New Mark Added By Gloria Callen

NEENAH, Wis., August 17. —(AP) —Gloria Callen, New York swimming star, today had one more national record to add to her long list of new marks, the only one established in the 1942 Women's National Amateur Athletic Union three day swimming meet.

Sharing honors with the young New York back stroke specialist was Betty Bemis, Indianapolis, who won two events and finished second in a third to amass 16 of her team's 53 points and win individual high point honors. Her team successfully defended its title without serious threats, piling up a total of 53 points, 20 more than the runners-up team.

Miss Callen, a member of the Women's Swimming Association of New York, set the new record while swimming the 100 metre first lap of the 300 metre medley relay, negotiating the distance in 1:17.1, four-tenths of a second under her old mark. Although she gave her team a record start, the event was won by the Multnomah club of Portland, Ore.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

It was just about a year ago that we made an appeal through this column to our bowlers for support of the mixed tournament in aid of the British War Victims Fund. Today we again make an appeal for support of the mixed tournament to be held on Wednesday evening in aid of this very worthy fund.

During the past year many towns and cities of the British Isles have been heavily bombed—homes have been completely demolished, families have been separated, children have been left orphans, many have been killed many others maimed for life while we over here have been privileged to carry on in every walk of life just as if nothing serious was happening. Let's put ourselves in the position of the people of some town in England. Supposing some night when we have all of our greens occupied that suddenly out of the sky should come that mad maniac and drop one of his infernal high explosive bombs right in the centre of our greens. We're wondering just what would happen. We're wondering how much of the Dominion Woollens factory would be left standing. We're wondering how many of the beautiful homes that surround our grounds would stand up under the onslaught—and how about the people who live in them. We're wondering what would happen to Mount St. Joseph and its faithful occupants. We're wondering how many of us would be left to know what happened. We're just wondering. Can you see the picture? And having all this in mind our hearts go out to those gallant people who are taking it on the chin without a whimper. And that is why we are staging this mixed tournament to help in a small way those "over there."

Surely it's not too much to ask that our bowlers and their friends lay aside this night and come out and help those who would willingly lay down their lives in order that we might live.

The fee is only 25 cents, but all may contribute as much as they desire. No gift is too small and none too big.

Our supplementary schedule starts this evening. The draw appeared in Saturday's issue of the Peterborough Examiner.

The entries closed on Saturday night for the Globe and Mail Scotch Doubles. As far as the men's section is concerned we have only three pairs. This means that there will have to be a playoff to determine which two pairs will represent our club. The entries are:

Nels Routley and R. F. Downey.
C. Giroux and partner.
C. Renaud and partner.

R.A.F. Cricketers Defeat Whitaker Club

The Peterborough-Whitaker v. R.A.F., Picton, match played at Picton Saturday, resulting in a third win this season for the Air Force men, the final score being P.-W., 113; R.A.F. 123 for two wickets.

The local team kept their engagement under great difficulties. They could only muster nine players and two cars, but the Picton men have made so many trips here that they decided to make the journey and were able to enlist the services of two R.A.F. men to complete the team. The first match this season, played here on May 20, had resulted in a local win by 62 to 33.

The P.-W. team batted first and thanks to good play by A. Pagett, 30, F. Dyer, 25, and Hefferley (an R.A.F. man), 21 put up the respectable total of 113

Pagett has been playing particularly well this season and is now the most reliable batsman on the side. He heads the batting figures with an average of 16 runs per innings. The Pagett-Dyer partnership produced 34 runs.

The local men made a fair start when two wickets fell to Colbran for a total of 45. The local bowlers had no further success, for Pollard 53 and Mounsey 24 won the match and took the total to 123 without being parted. The latter is a new comer to the side, an Englishman from the Argentine.

The bowlers had a hard time, as the analysis shows. They felt severely the absence of any adequate relief. To show how the game goes, on Saturday Dyer got no wickets for 25, while on the previous Saturday, playing for Oshawa against the some opposition, he got 5 for 9.

Apart from the result the local men had a most enjoyable trip and were most hospitably entertained.

A match has been arranged between the R.A.F. and a combined Oshawa-Peterborough team which will be played either here or in Oshawa. This should make a great game. Date and venue will be announced later.

The proposed soccer match here for the benefit of the local War Victims' Fund, between the Picton R.A.F. and some other Air Force team, probably Kingston, is still under consideration, and a definite statement will be made later.

Dahlgren, Rowe Join Royals

MONTREAL, August 17. —Montreal Royals will swing through the home stretch in the 1942 International League baseball derby with two formidable recruits.

On the deadline date for a major league club to ship reinforcements to its minor league farms, the Brooklyn Dodgers turned over Schoolboy Rowe and Babe Dahlgren to the Montrealers.

A few years back Rowe was one of the greatest right-handers in the American League, the toast of Detroit and its Tigers. His arm went wrong and he spent part of a season with Beaumont. Then he returned to resume his major career, but with only average success. Tigers sold him to Brooklyn early this season.

Dahlgren, former first-baseman for the Yanks, has been bouncing from club to club in recent seasons.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

Generals will be fighting in the last ditch tonight when they meet Westclox at the Bowl in the fourth game of the Girls' Softball League playoff series. The Westclockers who finished a close up second to the Generals in the regular schedule have made a runaway of the final round, winning three games in a row from the C.G.E. and making each win more decisive than their previous victory. However Generals maintain that they have no license to lose the final round without at least one triumph and they are hopeful of grabbing off tonight's game and extending the series for the league championship. Saturday night's victory for Westclox made it certain that the Big Bens would be Peterborough's representatives in the provincial playdowns, commencing with a game in Toronto Wednesday, with the return here Saturday, for it was decided last week that the team in front Tuesday, even if the series were not completed, would enter the Ontario series. That would have to be Westclox now, even if the Generals won tonight and tomorrow night. But regardless of who represents the loop in the provincial playdowns the league championship and possession of the Bond Cup still remain to be settled. Generals can remain in the running with a victory tonight. Bea McDowell will likely pitch for the C.G.E. outfit and as usual Marg Watson for the Big Bens. The game is called for 6.45 o'clock, fifteen minutes earlier than usual.

There was nothing uncertain about the Westclox's 9 to 3 win Saturday. The Big Bens played confidently and smartly and looked like winners all the way. They broke up the struggle early by getting five runs in the second and they had the faculty of mixing hits with G.G.E. misplays to send in the markers. On the contrary Generals found difficulty in solving Marg Watson's delivery with runners in scoring position and they did not help their cause much by their poor base-running. Fielding of Aggie Anderson in centre field for the winners was a standout feature. She had to sprint a long way to nab a drive from the bat of Eleanor Craig but she gathered in the ball on the dead run, for the picture catch of the game. Toots McLean's work at second for Westclox was another factor in the team's victory. Westclockers as a whole have improved remarkably since their first few games and that is demonstrated of course by the fact that they have won ten out of their last eleven starts. Both defensively and offensively their playing has noticeably bettered since early season and that explains why they have been able to win three games in row from a club that had been spread-eagling the field in the opening phases of the campaign.

The City League finals will get under way Wednesday night when the winners of the two semi-final rounds, the Plazas who ousted the Soldiers in two straight games will meet Royals, who did the same thing to Luckies, in the first tilt of a best four-of-seven series to decide the league championship and the right to continue in the Ontario intermediate A series. Both outfits will be at full strength for the opening clash, each anxious to get the jump on the opposition by grabbing the initial tussle. Jim Ellis, Eddie Starr and Art Heal of Plazas are holidaying in Haliburton this week but they will be down for Wednesday evening's battle and both clubs will have a full array of talent for the opener. So far as the pitching selections go it will be likely Tom Parsons for Plazas and Akers or Fraser for Royals in Wednesday night's game. The second game of the series will be staged Friday night. The City League finals are attracting a lot of interest and the largest attendance of the season will see the two battles scheduled for this week. Incidentally the games will start at 6.45 o'clock. Darkness is closing in quickly these nights and an earlier start is necessary.

Fowler Shows The Way

Phil Marchildon has had no luck against the New York Yanks this season and has yet to secure a win from the league leaders. However, there is one Ontario-born pitcher who doesn't find the Yanks so tough. He is young Dick Fowler, Toronto product, who has beaten the world champions the last two times out. Saturday, Fowler, pitching for the Philadelphia Athletics held the New Yorkers to eight well scattered hits and the A's won 3 to 1. Fowler was pitted against Spud Chandler, consistent Yank winner this season, but that did not seem to bother him much; in fact he would have had a shutout if it had not been for pitching a home-run ball to Charlie Keller who crashed out his 19th homer of the season. New York won the second game of the double-header and also had an easy win in an abbreviated game with the A's on Sunday. At that however the Yanks lost a game and a half margin over the week-end to the Boston Red Sox.

* * * * * *

Boston made a clean sweep of two double-headers with Washington Senators. The quartette of Red Sox wins was featured by Tex Hughson's 15th win of the year as against three losses, and Ted Williams' 25th homer. Hughson, Dobson, Butland and Yank Terry were the four winning Boston pitchers. Other features of the week-end menu in the American loop was the first defeat the veteran Ted Lyons had suffered in eight starts. Detroit Tigers managed to squeeze out a 3 to 2 win in eleven innings over the grand old White Sox veteran who has won ten games and lost six so far this season. In the second game of the double-header Detroit also won and the victim was unlucky Edgar Smith, one of the American League's better pitchers a year ago and this year piling up a record number of defeats. Yesterday's in fact was his 19th loss of the season and he has won but three to offset that huge total of disasters.

Another Thriller

Another sizzler of a ball game is in the offing in the Catholic League playoffs at Memorial Park when Knights of Columbus will be at home to the Cubs in the second game of their series. The Cubs who won the Sullivan Trophy last season are determined to make it two straight. They grabbed off the first game of the semi-final series Friday night from the Knights in a red-hot battle that was not won until the final innings. On the other hand the Knights are equally confident as to the outcome of today's tilt, and as to which club will ultimately meet St. Peter's in the finals. Of course the Saints, waiting for the result of the semi-finals are expecting to beat either of the outfits in the last dash for the cup. Knights expect a strong lineup tonight and are counting on Len Anthony as pitcher. Another big crowd is expected at this tussle as the teams have been dishing out good ball.

* * * * * *

Nels Foster, well known local hockey and ball player who is with the Canadian Navy has been making quite a hit in softball. He has been playing with the Navy team at Dartmouth, N.S., his team winning the city league championship, Nels pitched the final game and allowed only two hits while he had ten strikeouts. A Dartmouth paper has the following about a recent game in which the Peterborough boy starred: "Royal Canadian Navy went two games to the fore in their series with the Dartmouth Boys' Club by smashing out a 15-5 win over the locals on the Navy Recreation Centre field last night. Nels Foster, star Navy hurler who last night turned in a great game on the initial sack, won the match figuratively speaking, in the second canto when he crashed a home run into deep left field with the sacks loaded. Navy had already scored a run in that inning, and his round-tripper made it five. They scored three more in the third frame, and really went to town in the fifth when they batted home seven markers. Foster was the outstanding Navy hitter with two hits—a homer and a double—and 2 walks in four trips to the platter."

* * * * * *

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Ted Williams boosted his batting average 11 points over the week-end and is now hitting .352. The Boston Star also registered his 100th run, the only player in either loop anyway near that total....Giants had four unearned runs in a game with the Phillies. They make those mistakes even in the big show....Plenty of softball for everybody this week with playoffs in full swing in three local loops....Schoolboy Rowe and Babe Dahlgren are joining the Montreal Royals. They should help in the swing down the stretch....Westclox win Saturday night was the most decisive of the season.

Army District 3 Wins Track Field Pennant

TORONTO, August 17. —(CP) —The Ontario Military Track and Field Championship pennant belongs to military district No. 3 today, with a gunner from Petawawa and a lieutenant from Kingston individual stars in a track and field team so good it didn't really need individual stars.

Gnr. Pete Taylor won both the 100 and 200-yard sprints and Lieut. H. V. Bailey the discus throw and the shot put for the only double victories in the meet. Soldier-athletes from Eastern Ontario training stations won four of the five field events and three of the four sprints. The weight of points gathered in field events and sprints overcame the district's disadvantage of having no first-place material in the relays and the distance track events. M. D. 3's winning point total was 160. M. D. 2 had 133, M. D. 1 finishing with 66.

In addition to Gnr. Taylor's sprint victories, Pte. Fern Hodgson of Kingston took the C. W. A. C.'s 75-yard dash event. To Lieut. Bailey's shot and discus victories were added first-place points from Spr. E. M. Powell of Petawawa in the high jump and Pte. G. M. Paul of Kingston in the pole vault.

Second to Gnr. Taylor in the sprints was Cpl. Larry O'Connor of Newmarket, Ont., representing M. D. 2. O'Connor was another leading individual star in the meet. His closing dash in the 440 relay brought the Newmarket team from third to first— a feat a similarly fine finish in the hurdle relay failed to do. He also won an exhibition 120-yard hurdle race against a slow field. The time of 15.3 seconds was off his own Canadian record of 14.4 seconds.

Another Real Athlete.

One of the most unusual athletes was Pte. Gerard Roy, who came third in the mile and first in the three-mile. Stationed at London, Ont., and representing M. D. 1, Pte. Roy weights only 118 pounds and has been running for about a year. He started to work out on a track one day in London because he was without money between paydays and had nothing else to do. He finished both his races fresh and full of run.

Point scoring in the event was on a 6-5-4-3-2-1 basis in all events but the relays for which a 12-10-8-6-4-2 scale was used.

A commando-training exhibition by units from No. 20 Basic Training Centre at Brantford, Ont., and No. 23 Basic Training Centre at Newmarket, Ont., was enjoyed by the crowd of about 1,500. A popular C. W. A. C. competition was the tire-changing race, won by an M. D. 2 team, Ptes. A. E. Allender of Toronto and Helen Birkett of Niagara Falls.

Shut Out Grabs Soft $17,815 In Travers Stake

SARATOGA, N.Y., August 17.—There was so little competition in the seventy-third running of the ancient Travers Stakes on Saturday that Shut Out probably could have run backwards and still won.

Packed 130 Pounds.

As it was, the winner of the Kentucky Derby the Belmont and the Arlington Classic—chief claimant to the throne of the three-year-olds—toted 130 pounds, the heaviest load of his career, ran the conventional way, and waltzed in by four lengths before a crowd of 14,998, biggest of the Saratoga meeting to late.

Passes Man o' War.

As a horse race, there was nothing to it once Shut Out got the word from Eddie Arcaro. For the work involved he was considerably overpaid for the 2 minutes 4 2-5 seconds of effort he had to put out in this renewal of the nation's oldest horse race. His purse was $17,825 — biggest Travers pay-cheque since Inlander won eight years ago.

With this amount Shut Out boosted his earnings for a year and a half of racing to $253,482 to climb up past Man o' War and Exterminator on the all-time money-winning list and to take a spot among the top twenty breadwinners the world has ever known.

But while he was overpaid, the bettors weren't, although in his class and against the brand of galopers he had to face on Saturday he should have been 1 to 100.

Minimum Payoff.

Backed by virtually every one on the race track, Shut Out paid off at the absolute minimum of $2.10 to $2. There was no place and show betting.

Arcaro kept Shut Out off the early pace, set first by Buckskin and then by Trierarch for about a mile. Rounding the stretch turn, Arcaro clucked "let's go" and away they went. Before the field straightened out for home, Shut Out was four lengths on top and from the sixteenth pole home Arcaro was easing him up.

Second in Row.

Roy Martin's Own Page, a bay daughter of Blue Larkspur, made it two straight for her brief racing career by taking the fifty-first running of the Spinaway Stakes, six-furlong dash for 2-year-old fillies. Under Conn McCreary's ride the filly bounced in by half a length in 1:12 3-5 to pick up the $8,825 winner's end of the money. At the finish she was three-quarters of a length in front of Hal Price's Headley's Askmenow, with Tom Howell's Wuskenin third and Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmon's favored three-horse entry of Navigating, Flight, and Adventurous out of the money.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Ned Harris, Tigers—His 11th inning single drove in winning run in first game as White Sox were defeated twice.

Jeff Heath, Indians—Hit double and three singles and scored twice in even break with Browns.

Orioles Score After Six Blanks In Row

(By The Associated Press)

All was calm in baseball's Valhalla today as Hughie Jennings, John McGraw, Wilbert Robertson, Wee Willie Keeler and other baseball immortals who once wore the uniform of the Baltimore Orioles quit writhing — the present day Orioles of the International League finally have scored a run.

Since Aug. 8 the 1942 Orioles have lost six straight games and in doing so failed to dent the plate, going 53 consecutive innings before breaking the drought in the first frame of yesterday's nightcap.

Milkman Jim Turner applied the whitewash brush in the first game as Newark Bears defeated them, 4-0. Russ Derry hammered his 19th home run for the Bears in the fourth inning.

Behind the three-hit pitching of Clyde Smoll, however, Baltimore came through in the finale, 3-1. Bob Repass, recently acquired from Washington Senators, led the seven-hit attack on Al Gerheauser and Phil Page with a double and a single in four trips.

As you might have guessed, the Syracuse Chiefs were involved in another shutout. This time the Chiefs dropped a 1-0 decision to Jersey City Giants.

The Giants now have blanked the Chiefs five times and in turn have been held scoreless by Syracuse on six occasions. Syracuse has blanked its opponents seven times in its last nine games and has been shut out in the remaining two.

Rochester Red Wings split with Montreal Royals, copping the opener, 5-3, and dropping the aftermath, 3-2.

Emmett O'Neill was touched for 12 hits, but three double plays helped him hang up a 7-2 triumph for Toronto Maple Leafs over Buffalo Bisons. Al Rubeling was the big noise in the Leaf attack, hammering a homer, triple and single in five trips to the plate.

In Saturday's games Montreal slugged out an easy 9-3 victory over the cellar-dwelling Rochester Red Wings, while Toronto lost a pair of games at home to Buffalo, 2-1 and 4-0. Syracuse downed Jersey City 2-0 and the Newark-Baltimore clash was postponed.

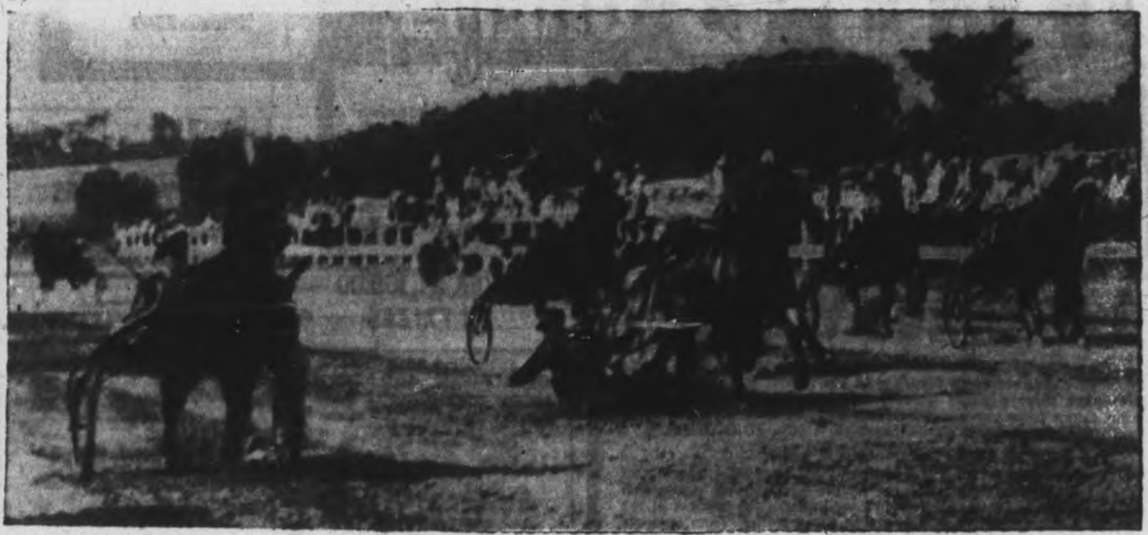
Spill At New Hamburg Thrills Thousands



The Canadian derby field coming to the barrier, eight fleet pacers almost abreast at New Hamburg when a quirk of fate started the buggy drawn by Miss Vera Bars rolling on one wheel. Next instant, while a crowd of several thousand gaped, Driver Chapman "hit the deck," roled like a spilled jockey, to avoid hoofs and wheels. Ensued a sensational man versus horse duel that ended when Morley McDonald, driving Bob Lee, took Miss Vera in flight, tamed her into submission.

Maj. Forsyth won the 800-yard and mile runs and Bruce scored victories in the 100-yard dash and the 16-pound shot put. In addition, Maj. Forsyth was a member of the winning one-mile relay team, while Bruce was on the team which won the 400-yard relay.

Sports Snapshots Across Canada

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

TORONTO August 17—CP). — Error of the week: When Stu (Vancouver Province) Keate handed a story to a telegrapher at Kelowna, B.C., during its regatta the yarn described certain gal swimmers as "built like water seals." When the story reached print, the theme had varied, and much for the worse. It said the gals were built like water heaters.

Biceps Boulevard:

Calgary's Jack Singer writes that he is willing to promote a bout in Calgary between Al Lust and Dave Castilloux, put up guarantees pay for publicity and incidental expenses, and donate all proceeds but the fighters' purses to a war charity....It's a generous offer....Castilloux said last week, he would turn personal profits of any such bout to an R.C.A.F. fund and his acceptance of a bout with Lust on Singer's basis would make it official.

Incidentally:

PO. Bobby Coulter, one of Toronto Argus' most celebrated backs, is in charge of physical training at the new flying instructors' school at Arnprior, Ont......Jim (London Free Press) Burns and Tom (Kenora Miner) Johnston have drawn public attention to a resolution considered but not passed by the Native Sons of Canada convention in Kenora....It read: "Be it resolved, that a purely amateur hockey cup be sponsored by the Native Sons of Canada as the Allan Cup now competed for is in our opinion no longer an amateur trophy." As you may guess, there was no argument regarding truth of the resolution's precept, but it wasn't passed because the organization didn't feel it was proper to start an amateur-pro controversy in wartime.... The Native Sons could get an argument on that, because the sooner our so-called amateur hockey is redefined the better.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—(AP). — This one comes by a roundabout route, but, if true, it sounds like good news for football fans...The story is that of Office of Defence Transportation has assured college representatives that they'll be able to get transportation for their teams this Fall...Looks as if Dixie Parsons might be the Tigers' only catcher the rest of the season. Birdie Tebbetts is on his way to the U.S. army and the word is that young Harvey Riebe, just bought from Beaumont, may be called any day.

Tattle Tale

Clyde Milan, the Washington coach, tells this Walter Johnson yarn that's new to this corner.... Seems that back in 1910 the Big Train pitched an exhibition against the Cubs and the first time up Johnny Evers slapped a single.... "So that's your great Walter Johnson," Johnny chortled to Milan. "We've got a dozen pitchers in the National League with more speed" ....The next three times up Evers couldn't get a loud foul and after the third whiffing he encountered Clyde again...."Damn you, Milan," Johnny crabbed, "you told Johnson what I said."

Postman's Paragraph

John McGill, Jr., of the Ashland, Ky., Daily Independents sends in a suggestion that the movie folks make a film story of Babe Ruth's life...."After all," McGill points out, "thousands of Ruth fans never had the opporunity to see him in action."

Bill Strang, who never bets money on his trotting horses, lost two suits of clothes to friends who had more confidence than Bill did in the Ambassador as a Hambletonian candidate.

Fydell Sets Up Two New Marks

VERDUN, Que., August 17—(CP) —Fourteen records fell by the wayside in the Quebec Provincial swimming and diving championships here on Saturday.

William Fydell of Toronto High Park Swimming Club was the individual star of the meet setting new standards in two of the three junior events in which he participated, the 50-yard and 100-yard free style races.

Aurele Thomas of Ste. Adele, Que., was the top man in the senior men's division, breaking the 100-yard breast stroke mark and retaining his provincial diving honors. Alan Waites of Toronto won the 100-yard free style race and was third in the 100-yard breast stroke.

In the senior ladies' division Jean Mowat of Toronto Dolphinets was first in the 100-yard back stroke and 150-yard medley and placed second in the 100-yard breast stroke.

J. Cawthray, Ottawa placed second to Thomas in the diving event. Another Ottawa entrant Len Greenough, did not place.

Etobicoke To Pay $100 Fine

By HAL WALKER

TORONTO, Aug. 17.—Bleeding internally from the wounds they claim the Ontario Lacrosse Association has inflicted on them, the lacrosse Indians of Etobicoke held an indignation meeting yesterday afternoon and decided they will see their "persecution" through to the bitter end, viz., the final game of the league schedule.

The Etobicoke players huddled with their officers and coaxed their backers to pay the $100 fine the O.L.A. has levied against the suburbanites for their using Gordie Gair in a game at St. Catharines Friday night.

"The $100 will be paid before Monday noon, the deadline set by the O.L.A." quoth Murray Scruton, team manager. "We will carry on although we believe we have been persecuted from the commencement of the season."

The Etobicokes, in a statement prepared by Manager Scruton, said they will ask for an immediate investigation as to who ordered the "fine tacked on an amateur team." They feel, the statement outlines, that the $100 fine is but "temporary" and cannot be official until the O.L.A. executive passes on it at a regular meeting.

Murray Changes Mind

Murray Scruton, who had proclaimed his retirement from lacrosse in Saturday's editions, reversed the field last night and said he was going to keep pitching for the rest of this season. "The boys are keen to play and I want to stick with them," he said.

The Indians are not sure they'll have enough players to finish out the season. Jack Gair, Grant Gillespie and Duke Henson are headed for the R.C.A.F., expect to be in any time now. Scruton will drive to Orangeville today to pick up Gillespie and drive him to Sunnyside for to-night's game against St. Catharines.

Gordie Gair will not play with the club any more this season, Scruton said. Unless, in some way, he gets permission from the powers that be Which is entirely unlikely.

Blanks Dodgers 2-0 Sunday; Cards Grab Pair

By GAHLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

After what happened to their pitchers in last month's All-Star game, the National League master minds should be giving themselves a good mental kicking every time they read Al Javery's name in a box score these days.

The Boston Braves' String Bean is about the hottest pitching proposition in either league, fast living up to Manager Casey Stengel's Spring prediction that he would be recognized as one of the game's great hurlers before the season ended. On his present form, Al would have been a real ornament to the Nationals' All-Star line-up.

When he blanked the Dodgers 2-0 in seven innings yesterday, setting the league leaders down with a single hit, Javery completed his 19th consecutive inning without having allowed a run. In his last four games he has given up exactly one run. Five of his 10 victories this year have been shutouts, tall pitching for a seventh place outfit.

The decisive setback at Javery's hand did not exactly place the Dodgers' leadership in jeopardy, but taken in conjunction with St. Louis Cardinals' double victory over Cincinnati, 10-5 and 6-3, it breathed a little life into the National League race. The Cards were back within eight games of the top today.

After absorbing a double licking the previous day, Chicago Cubs came back from behind some tight pitching by Bill Lee and Les Fleming to hand Pittsburg the same dose, 5-1 and 4-1. Fleming allowed only two hits in the second.

Giants Sweep 4-Game Round

Mel Ott's Giants tightened their hold on third place in the National by trimming the Phils 6-5 and sweeping the four-game series.

The Boston Red Sox took a firmer grip on second place in the American League as they swept their second doubleheader with Washington in as many days, 6-4, and 10-3. They held a three-game lead over Cleveland today. Bill Butland and Yank Terry each went the route for the Sox.

Home runs by Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon, each with a man on base, pased the Yankees to an 11-2 victory over the Athletics in a six-inning affair at Shibe Park. After the game Tommy Henrich, Yankee rightfielder, left the team temporarily and headed for Cleveland to take a physical examination for enlistment in the Coast Guard.

Detroit came from behind twice to win two decisions over Chicago White Sox, 3-2 and 7-3, the first game going 11 innings before Hal Newhouser bested Ted Lyons in a pitching duel.

Cleveland and the St. Louis battled all afternoon to a stand-off, the Indians winning the first game 3-2 in 11 innings and the scrapping Browns coming back behind Al Hollingsworth to take the second 6-1.

In Saturday's National League games, Captain Dolf Camilli of Brooklyn blasted his 20th home run of the campaign, with two out in the ninth inning and his team trailing by a run, to score Joe Medwick ahead of him and snatch a 5-4 victory for Brooklyn over Boston.

Pittsburg took both games from Chicago, 8-5 and 8-7, the second game going 11 innings. New York Giants took a pair from Philadelphia, 5-3 and 4-3. The Cincinnati-St. Louis game was postponed.

In the American League, big Ernie Bonham pitched his fifth straight victory and 14th for the season against four losses as the Yankees beat Philadelphia 5-3 in the second game. The A's won the first 3-1 on a fine pitching exhibition by tall Dick Fowler, one of Connie Mack's two young Canadian hurlers.

Chicago beat Detroit 4-2 and Boston took a pair from Washington, 2-1 and 7-6. St. Louis-Cleveland was postponed.

NewHunBomber Ocean-Crosser

LONDON, Aug. 17—Wing Commander Max Aitken, Lord Beaverbrook's son, revealed in a broadcast last night his Czech squadron had shot down a German "super-bomber"—the Heinkel 177—believed able to carry a 1,000-pound bomb load from Brest to New York and make the return trip to France.

The new Heinkel is Germany's heaviest plane, Aitken said, comparable to British Lancaster and Sterling types. It has a range of 2,000 miles with a bomb load of 3,000 pounds but is believed capable of a round-trip flight to New York with "miles to spare" when the load is lightened.

The Heinkel has a wingspread of 103 feet compared with the Lancaster's 102 and the Stirling's 99, Aitken revealed.

British experts believed production of the big Heinkel still was on a small scale, perhaps because of the devastating raid by the R.A.F. on the Heinkel main plant at Rostock two months ago. It has not been listed in any of the official reports on planes shot down over Britain.

Jane's manual, "All the World's Aircraft," has only scanty information on the super-Heinkel, listing its maximum bomb load at 8,000 pounds and speed at 300 miles per hour.

The revelation that Germany possessed such long-range monsters awakened the belief in some quarters that the German Air Force might attempt "psychological raids" on the American Atlantic coast.

The games were supervised by James and Max Humphries and J. Davidson, assisted by other young men of the community.

The prizes were all donated by the ladies and others.

Special prizes were won by Miss Isabel Beamish, Miss Kathleen Cameron and Mr. Wilbert Graham.

The booth which was attended by the ladies did a thriving business, serving ice cream, pie, sandwiches, etc. $13.85 was realized from a candlewick bedspread, made by Miss Lillian Humphries, and won by Mrs. E. Lamey of the Cobourg Road.

RED BANK, N.J., Aug. 17—(AP)—The little red school house at River Plaza near here "will no longer be available as a love nest." David Schmoor, member of the Middletown township Board of Education, investigated a report that the front door was seldom locked at night and the school was often used as a rendezvous. "The situation is in hand, the door is locked and will be kept locked," he reported.

No Word

LONDON, Aug. 17 — (CP). — The Netherlands Government waited in vain today for word of whether the Germans had carried out their threat to kill a number of hostages in reprisal for the wrecking of a Nazi troop train a week ago.

The deadline after which the Germans said they would execute hostages if the saboteurs were not surrendered passed at midnight. Nazi broadcasts last night omitted warnings of the deadline.

Hun Using Toulon

Moscow, Aug. 17 (AP).

TASS. Soviet News Agency, quoted diplomatic circles in Lisbon today as saying that the Germans had ordered construction started on a 7,000-ton cruiser, seven submarines and two destroyers at dockyards in unoccupied France.

(Since the entire Atlantic coast of France is under German occupation, the reference to unoccupied France would mean the Mediterranean. The French have a large naval base at Toulon.)

DOING THEIR BIT.

An American car was noticed on George street Saturday and on the rear window of the car was a small poster with three stars, indicating that three members of the family were serving in the American Army. The owner was also a voluntary blood donor to the Red Cross as a tiny plate on the license indicated.

DESPATCH RIDERS

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Cooper of Nicholls Oval have received a letter from their sons, Tpr. George Cooper, and Tpr. C. R. Cooper who are serving overseas, informing them that both have been made Duty Despatch Riders. George celebrated his 22nd birthday on Friday, August 14. It was his third birthday since going overseas.

WATCH FOR THIEVES.

Car owners of this district would be well advised to make certain that their cars are locked when they leave them, if only for a few minutes. Several drivers report leaving their cars parked outside their homes for a few minutes and then when they returned found that someone had helped themselves to articles in the machine.

A THIRSTY WEEK-END

This seemed to have been a rather thirsty week-end. At all events an array of liquor cases greeted Magistrate Gee in police court this morning. There were two pleas of guilty to first offence drunk charges with the usual $10 fines, another youth pleaded guilty to having liquor in a place other than a residence and received the same fine, and another man succeeded in getting a week's adjournment on a not guilty plea.

A SAD CASE

Pleading guilty to a charge of consuming liquor while on the interdicted list, the wife of a soldier who is in England on active service was remanded for a week in police court this morning at the request of the police. Authorities say that while the woman was absent Saturday night, three of her small children were left at home, and Miss Rachel Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, and Constable Leo Murphy rounded up three more of the family at the Lions' carnival. The children were placed in the Shelter.

BELLEVILLE PRICES

Top grade eggs were 40 cents a dozen on the Belleville market Saturday; No. 1 peaches, 70c a basket; Burbank plums, 60c for six quarts; tomatoes, 60c for six quarts; apples, 40 and 50 cents a basket.

R. C. A. F. GRADUATES.

Two local boys were among members of the graduating class of wireless air gunners at No. 1 Bombing and Gunnery School, R. C. A. F., Jarvis, Saturday afternoon. They were J. M. Bruce, Peterborough and E. C. Baker, Campbellford.

SMALL FIRE

The fire department received an alarm about 7:40 p.m. Saturday from the home of W. P. Hetherington, 191 King street, when a mattress caught fire. The only damage was to the mattress, which was pretty well burned.

FINE IS FIFTY DOLLARS.

Alex Knott, Curve Lake pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of having been drunk Saturday. He also admitted a previous conviction in April and as a result he was treated as a second offender and fined $50 or a month in jail by Magistrate E. A. Gee.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Arthur King was committed for trial by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning on a serious charge involving an eleven-year-old boy. King pleaded not guilty and elected trial by judge and jury. The case was heard in camera and Magistrate Gee committed the accused after hearing the evidence of the boy.

ABSENT-MINDED

Perhaps it is the rationing and the food regulations. Anyway police say Peterborough marketeers are getting absent-minded. As proof there are a number of articles awaiting owners at the police station that were left by visitors to the market Saturday. Some one left a parcel of corn and a quantity of honey on a table; somebody else bought and paid for a paper bag of apples and failed to return for the fruit; and a third party forgot to call for some cucumbers. The market-gardeners turned the articles over to the police.

Elderly Woman Seriously Hurt

Knocked down by a taxi cab as she was crossing George street, north of Edinburgh street, shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday night, Mrs. Lily Stuart, 76, of 578 Division street, is in a critical condition in Nicholls Hospital.

Mrs. Stuart's right arm sustained a compound fracture and was so badly injured that it had to be amputated above the elbow, her right leg broken, and her nose fractured.

The accident happened when Ellsworth Ingall, 582 Rogers street, driving a taxi owned by Thompson Huggins south on George street approached just as Mr. Stuart, accompanied by two small nieces, Iris Crown, 11 and Moira Crown, 8 of R.R. 1, Reaboro, started to cross the street from the east side. As the automobile drew near the children stopped but according to police Mrs. Stuart continued to walk toward the west curb in the path of the taxi cab and was struck and knocked down.

Ingall told the police that he endeavored to avoid the accident by slamming on his brakes but with three pedestrians on the road he was unable to keep from striking the elderly woman.

Belmont Group Donates $15 To War Victims

In Belmont, near Havelock, a group who have banded together under the name of the Belmont Lake Cottagers Association under the presidency of William Prest who works at the C. G. E. have come forward with a donation of $15.00 for the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund.

The ladies of this group have a weekly afternoon get-together with games of bridge, knitting, etc., at the cottages of the various members, and charge themselves 25 cents a time, all of which is given for the war effort, and in forwarding this money, Mrs. W. Prest, secretary for the group adds they hope to send more later on.

In centres of this kind, the holiday spirit must naturally be prevalent, so when in the midst of it, they can think of other much less fortunate people, and do something about it in a practical way, there can be no doubt that their own pleasure is thereby greatly enhanced.

On Saturday, this column carried the report of the effort of four children, Lilian, Audrey and Paul Rose and Margaret Minicola, who had made $6.50 from a stand just east of the Hunter Street Bridge, and who did not stop at that, but went back to the same job of selling home-made drinks of lemon, orange and grapefruit to make a further $1.45 which is credited in their name today. In this they are displaying that type of stick at it, which will be so necessary to win this war, and much credit goes to them for it.

Two regular contributors among the penny boxes are listed to-day, that at the Bell Telephone Co., Ltd. office producing $2.40 for the fund, and the one in Loblaws adding a further $3.65 to its previous good record. Both these boxes have been good contributors to the fund.

Bowling Club Helps.

Next Wednesday, the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club will conclude the sale of tickets which commenced when Mrs. W. Wheeler donated a really very fine afghan for the purposes of raising money for the fund, which the ladies section of this club has been sponsoring.

In addition to this, four other prizes of a crystal cake plate, and Italian pottery relish dish, embroidered pillow cases and a cake have been donated, and tickets are two for 25 cents, with five chances on each ticket of winning a prize.

There will be mixed rinks draw from the board and the social committee will serve refreshments, using the last of their stock of tea on hand before rationing came into effect, and any person not a member of the club from the city or district will be very welcome to attend and participate at 7.30 p.m.

Two Soldiers Fined In Court

Failure to remain at the scene of an accident resulted in a fine of $25 and costs for Pte. Clare Trew, Peterborough, member of the Canadian Army Service Corps, Cornwall, when he entered a plea of guilty to the charge before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning.

Trew and another Peterborough soldier, Harold Blodgett, were arrested by Constables Murphy and Hardy last night after a complaint had been received of a hit-and-run driver sideswiping a parked car, damaging the fender and then driving off without stopping.

Trew and Blodgett both admitted in court this morning that they were absent without leave from their unit since Saturday night. They had just arrived at Cornwall Friday in a draft.

Neither Trew who was fined $25 and costs and Blodgett who was fined $10 and costs on a drunk charge, could pay his fine. The alternative in the first case was fifteen days in jail and in the latter ten days.

OBITUARY

JOAN MARGARET OTTEWELL

Friends will mourn the passing of Joan M. Ottewell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Ottewell, 460 Monaghan Road, who died suddenly at her residence, Sunday, at the age of 23.

She was well known around the Peterborough Collegiate Institute for her interest and prowess in athletics. During the years spent at the high school she was a member of many championship basketball teams who owed their success in no little measure to her efforts. She was also prominent in the Field Day events.

After leaving the Collegiate Institute, she attended the Margaret Eaton School for some time and since then has been a physical instructress for the Y.W.C.A. in Quebec City, and she had recently submitted her application for service with the Women's Naval forces. She was a member of St. John's Anglican Church.

The body will rest at the Comstock Funeral Home, until Tuesday when the service will be held at St. John's Church at 2 p.m. The Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson will officiate and interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

ChemongCouple Fined On Beer Count

While conditions at the Government wharf in Chemong Park on an August night are undoubtedly very pleasant a young man and two women discovered in police court this morning that as a spot in which to indulge in a clandestine glass of beer it has distinct drawbacks.

Constable English of Chemong Park happened to arrive on the scene and as a result three members of the party—it was a foursome, but one man got away—appeared before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning and entered pleas of guilty to illegal consumption of liquor.

"I happen to live at Chemong Park in the summer," said Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., "and conditions there are serious. When people drink and then drive their cars they are a menace to the safety of every one who has to travel on the Chemong Road."

Magistrate Gee fined the young man and the two women offenders $10 each, with costs of $3.50.

Stoney Lake Man Dies In Toronto

For the past thirty years, the late Mr. Carveth has been a familiar figure around McCracken's Landing, where he ran a boat livery, and was well-known to hundreds of tourists. He was also a carpenter and did a lot of that work around the lake. He was born in Dummer township and had lived there practically all his life. He had been in Peterborough only about two weeks before his death, and was taken to Toronto Friday for an operation, from which he did not survive.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Carveth and was a member of Zion United Church, near McCracken's Landing. He was also a prominent member of the Lakefield Masonic Order.

Surviving are his wife, the former Bella Russell; one son, Russell, at home; four sisters: Mrs. William Hamlin, Mrs. Alec Darling, Mrs. Arthur Payne and Mrs. Roland Payne, and three brothers: Archie of Lakefield, Arthur of Smith, and Melvin of Dummer Township.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday at 3.30 p.m., from the family residence at McCracken's Landing. The Rev. Mr. Snelgrove of Warsaw and the Rev. Mr. Stovell of Toronto will conduct the services. Interment will be in Warsaw Cemetery.

Soothing Lullaby Of Peace In Canada Contrasts Nightmare Of Crucified Europe

An old man shaking grains of feed out of his straw hat for a flock of kowtowing pigeons.... a stout middle aged woman in black, reclining comfortably on a bench in the sun, with her bulging shopping bag on the ground beside her.... a group of young airmen, laughing and looking over the passers-by....

The spirit of contentment lay deep over King Square, wrapping shoppers, loungers, pigeons, flowers and the waters of the fountain in a sleepy golden mist of sun.

Farther along down the walk a plump, taffy-colored cocker spaniel puppy was making friends with a soldier while his young master floated a match-box boat in the fountain.

"Peaceful, isnt' it?"

"Mmm," agreed her neighbor, perhaps thinking of a similar once-peaceful spot in Czecho-Slovakia. "Makes a person glad to be here instead of in Europe. Not like that Lidishy place...."

No, not at all like devastated Lidice, the observer thought, by now approaching the flower-surrounded Young Monument at the east side of the square. Crimson, orange, yellow and mauve, the blaze of flowers moved gently in the light breeze.

On the benches around the memorial, a few placid citizens sat sunning. Above in the sky a cruising plane zoomed distantly, but the only dive bomber was a fat yellow bee executing manoeuvres in the flower bed.

Very far from crucified Europe, thought the observer, blessedly far. And fervently he hoped that he would never have cause to change that thought.

It was not altogether by mere chance that he, a few minutes later cashing his pay check at a nearby bank, set aside enough "to get by on" for the present month's needs, and bought war saving certificates with what was left.

Urges Farmers To Buy Grain From West Now

With oats and barley almost at the "floor" prices set by the Federal Government, Ontario farmers are being urged to buy now supplies of feed grain for prospective needs in the likelihood of saving $100 a car by Jan. 15, assuming a market movement corresponding with the records of the last three or four years.

On the other and immediate hand, farmers of Peterborough district are up to their necks in their own harvest of feeds, grasses and grains. They are almost overwhelmed by the job of handling the stocks their lands have grown. So busy are they these days that they have hardly any time to think in terms of futures.

They have their hands full of labor at home. Days are too short, and the season's job is a long way from being done. Some of them are managing to get the plows going again for the seeding of fall wheat, but scarcity of labor is holding up that operation on many a farm.

Farmers will tell you they have their backs to the industrial wall, but even so, they are being urged to consider the immediate buying of western grains for feed uses next winter and spring.

Should Buy Now.

"We are advising farmers to buy oats and barley now, even if they are not likely to need the grain until next April," said R. M. Peirson, manager of Peterborough Cooperative Services today in the office of F. C. Paterson. An Examiner reporter interrupted what seemed to be a discussion of way and means of encouraging farmers to get in on the ground floor of grain prices.

"We are interested in the farmer's income," Mr. Peirson said, "and we are advising them to buy now their requirements of oats and barley. They don't need to take delivery until September, October of thereabouts. The prices are at the floor and can't go any lower. Looking back over the price trends for the last four years we believe that the farmer buying a car of thirty tons of feed grain can save himself $100 by putting in his order at once.

He will not only be helping himself, but he will be helping the country by taking western grain off the hands of the nation, providing home bins and thereby relieving the government of providing space for the tremendous quantity of grain that has to be held in some storage."

Mr. Peirson said that helping the government in the storing problem was only a secondary motive for the farmer. The main attraction should be the probability of a personal saving.

Burdened With Feed.

Farmers have so much hay on their hands, and pretty fair harvest of their own grain that they thought of future grain needs may be pushed away into the background.

"We are emphasizing the prospect of saving money by buying now, the help it would be in lightening the country's storage problem if a lot of farmers would place their orders now, and finally the certainty of delivery in contrast with the doubt that rests upon the future of transportation in the long hauls from the west by reason of the exceedingly heavy wartime demands that have been piling up on Canada's railways."

12-Year-Old Boy Hurt At Omemee

OMEMEE, Aug. 17 (ENS)—Grant Brown, 12, son of William Brown, suffered injuries that were reported to be painful but not serious in a traffic accident on No. 7 Highway within the village at 9.30 o'clock this morning.

The boy on his bicycle rode out onto the main street and was in collision with an automobile driven by Police Magistrate Gee on his way to Peterborough. The accident happened in front of the Brown residence. Magistrate Gee took the boy to a doctor's office nearby.

New Age Limit Set For Veterans Guard

The Veteran Guard is in Peterborough recruiting for the week and they hope to raise 25 men from this city alone to help make up the quota for the six new companies being raised in the Dominion. There will be recruiting rallies in the following places: Monday night, Hastings; Tuesday, Port Hope; Wednesday, Cobourg; Thursday, Campbellford; and Saturday, Peterborough. Lieut. G. P. Brook of the Veterans Guard Recruiting staff will be accompanied by some member of the C.W.A.C. forces.

It has just been announced that the age limit for veterans has been raised from 50 to 55 and those who are accepted and are above C category help guard German prisoners in this country. Those veterans who are eligible must be veterans of the 1914-18 war and not of the present conflict.

At the present time there is a very definite need for every medically qualified veteran of the last war and it is hoped that there will be a fair response to this campaign that is on at the present time.

Grove School Master Loses Father

A well known scholar, George Oswald Smith, M.A., Oxon., who has been on the staff of the University of Toronto for over forty years, passed away Saturday in Peterborough.

This 67-year-old man was born in Brenzitt, England and was an honor graduate in classics of Oxford University. He came to Canada in 1901 and his first position was on the staff of Bishops College, Lennoxville, Quebec. While there he married Mary Florence Winder. In 1902, he went to Trinity College, Toronto, and taught until 1906 when he was attached to the staff of University College, University of Toronto, where he has been ever since.

Mr. Smith was keenly interested in the Grove School, Lakefield, and the students there have lost a valued friend and advisor. The late Dr. MacKenzie, former headmaster of the Grove School also found in him a devoted and worth-while friend.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Mary Florence Winder, three sons, J. F. Winder Smith, of Montreal, G. Winder Smith, headmaster of the Grove School, Lakefield, Lieut.-Col. N. J. Winder Smith of the R.C.E., overseas and two grandchildren Gordon W. Smith and Owen Jackson Smith.

The funeral will take place Tuesday at 2 p.m. from the Grove Chapel, Lakefield. Those in charge of the service will be Professor the Rev. B. W. Horan, University of Toronto, Provost of University College, F. J. Cosgrove, the Rev. E. C. Moore, Young's Point, and the Rev. S. A. R. Wood, Rector of St. John's, Lakefield.

Bob Goodfellow Wins Lions Car

Climaxing the most successful carnival in the history of the Peterborough Lions' Club, the draw for the 1942 Chevrolet car on Saturday night brought a generous meed of luck to Bob Goodfellow, 583 Park street north, who was the lucky winner.

Goodfellow is well known in the city, and is employed at the Outboard Marine as foreman. He is an expert on repairs to outboard motors.

The ten dollars in cash given as a booster prize as drawn by Roland Krant, president of the Y's Men's Club and was won by Sheila Airey, 46 Jackson avenue.

Ideal weather prevailed during the three nights of the carnival, and the Lions reaped a harvest for their war charities and local service work. It was apparent that the people had plenty of money to spend, for the bumper crowd that attended on Saturday night was a spending crowd, and stayed until well past 11 o'clock.

Bear Bounty Set For This District

A bear bounty of $10 a hide is planned by the provincial government in an effort to increase protection of herds of sheep and encourage farmers to establish new flocks. The bounty will apply to townships having at least 25 per cent of agricultural land. Peterborough townships which are being proposed for the bounty area are Harvey, Belmont, Dummer, North Monaghan, Otonabee, Smith, Asphodel and Ennismore.

The bounty will be paid for the whole hide which will be marked with an official stamp. It will be returned to the owner for sale.

Police Officer Solves Store Burglary

Alertness and quick action on the part of Constable Leo Murphy early Sunday morning prevented a burglary and was responsible for solving a break-in of several weeks ago.

The officer was patrolling his beat on Hunter street when his attention was attracted by what he thought were suspicious actions by a couple of youths in the neighborhood of the Peterborough Automotive Supply Ltd., and checked that property. When he reached the street again he saw the same two boys emerge from the doorway of the premises of John W. Steinkrauss, wholesale tobacconist, and saunter toward George street. As he walked by the doorway Constable Murphy turned on his flashlight and saw that the lock had been tampered with.

Quietly walking after the youths he caught up to them on George street and placed them under arrest. At the police station the boys who were only 15 years of age admitted, according to police, their intention of robbing the Steinkrauss place and one of them confessed to robbing the tobacco store of Vernon Fisk on Hunter street, some weeks ago. He led Officers Murphy and Archie Menzies to a spot on the east bank of the Otonabee River, south of the Quaker Oats dam where the loot from the Fish store had been hidden in the roots of a tree, close to the water's edge. The officers recovered a quantity of tobacco, cigarettes and cigars and a number of leather wallets that had been stolen at that time.

The two youngsters appeared in juvenile court charged with the Steinkrauss job and were demanded.

Two girls and six boys made this great contribution to Canada's war effort by selling War Savings stamps to their customers. Bill Edgar, winner of the prize trophy for May again made first place. There are now two contenders for sole personal possession of this Gold Trophy, Nancy Leith and this same Bill Edgar, and the battle for its possession will be fought out during the fall months when these energetic young salesmen get into their stride again. A few dark horses among the former prize-winners will add interest to the contest for high sales. In second place is Keith Orde with $206.25 Jack Harris $187.25, Nancy Leith $111.25, George Clark $94.50, Don Pagett $74.00, Elva Laing $56.50. Gerald Rose a newcomer among the leaders with sales of $49.75.

Bob Sugden $17.25, Bertha Bradley $16.00, Dan McIsaac $16.00 Dick Pulford $15.00, Bob Shadgett $13.00, Jack Edwards $12.00. Jack Frise $10.00.

Repay out of income

Suppose you need $100 for an emergency or to pay off debts. You get the money in a quick, simple transaction. Then you may repay on a regular monthly payment plan. At the end of a definite time, you are entirely in the clear. The payment plan thus becomes a personal debt-paying program.

The cost of this service is reasonable. Suppose you borrow $100 and repay in six monthly instalments of $17.85 each, a total of $107.10. The cost of your loan is just $7.10. A $50 loan, repaid in six monthly instalments of $8.93 each, a total of $53.58, costs only $3.58.

You need no endorsers or guarantors to borrow at Household. And at no time do we question friends or relatives about your credit. The principal requirement for getting a loan is a steady position or other source of income. We consider character and regular income far more important than the value of your security. You can get your loan quickly—usually in twenty-four hours or even sooner.

Loans for many purposes

People borrow at Household to pay a doctor or dentist bill, general expenses, insurance, mortgage payments, down payments on homes, old store bills, car repairs, a training course, tools, moving expenses, coal for winter—and for expenses of many other kinds.

You may repay your loan on almost any plan you wish. The table shows how loans may be repaid in 2 to 15 payments. The sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. Look in the table now for the loan you need. See how you may repay out of income.

If you can make good use of a loan, see us at once. Or just phone and tell us how much you need.

truistic ground. You might say that they desire to be amusing and to give men a good laugh in a world that is overfull of depression, but this theory falls flat because men have no sense of humor where women are concerned. No man would step out with a living caricature, and while one might stick to a girl friend, even if her character was aspersed, he would fade out of the picture the first time someone snickered at her appearance.

If further proof were needed that women pay scant attention to the tastes of men in selecting their clothes, we could adduce the testimony of thousands of husbands whose wives do not even make a pretense of trying to please them in the choice of their wardrobes. Mrs. Smith makes no attempt to hold her husband's affections by means of wearing the pinks and blues he admires. Indeed, only after married men learn by experience that if they criticize their wives' hats and gowns they will have to buy them new ones do they become wise enough to suppress their opinions about them.

Women are so keen to please men in all other ways that it renders inexplicable their indifference to men's opinion about how they dress, as is exemplified, for instance, in their getting themselves up like imitation men. All nature is against this.

To begin with, women are built with a beet-like figure that is not adapted to the wearing of pants. Then, when they cast away the garments that flatter them, they throw into the discard their one best bet. Even a homely woman looks pretty in a pretty gown, but it takes Miss America, herself, to get by in slacks. And, most important of all, the thing that attracts a man to a woman is the attraction of opposites. He wants a woman to be different from him, not his understudy.

Women understand this feeling in themselves. No woman can imagine herself feeling anything except repulsion for a man who went about dressed in a decollete satin evening gown and covered with jewels and gewgaws. But she expects him to like her in breeches.

This feminine yearning for masculine habiliments has had some interesting, and perhaps revolutionary, side-lights thrown upon it in the present war. According to the statistics gathered on the subject, the responuse of women to the call for volunteers for war work has depended largely upon whether a uniform went with the job. If there was a chance at brass buttons and perchance a Sam Browne belt, they flocked to their country's defense. If not, they were not so hot about it.

But, on the other hand, the draftees with almost one voice have cried out: "Send us girls in ruffled frocks for our parties. We are sick of looking at uniforms."

Now one of the most famous designers of women's clothes in this country has announced that she is concocting the most feminine styles she can think of and making nothing but frills and furbelows for the duration, because that is the kind of clothes that men want to see women wearing. That is what men like, and the way a man wants to remember the girl he left behind him.

So maybe, after all, one of the reformations that the war is going to bring about is to get women back into dresses. They are so much easier on our eyes.

CLEVER HAND-MADE GIFTS YOUR FRIENDS WILL LOVE

Bathroom Utility Box Easy

A dainty bathroom box for soaps and tissues—one that's splash-proof and gaily patterned! And all you need to make this welcome gift is an ordinary cardboard box with cover, oilcloth in pretty flower colors—rose, blue, orchid.

Cut separate pieces of oilcloth for front, back, sides, cover facing and bottom—each piece about ⅝ inch wider than the box. If cover has a flap, cut in one piece.

Now bind all edges with bias tape in white or in one of the colors in your pattern, then fit pieces to box and whip edges together along binding as the diagram shows. With a snap fastener your pretty box is complete.

You can as easily and inexpensively make other delightful gifts. The round wooden box your grocer gets cheese in can be painted and lined with cretonne for a sewing stand.

From a brick and odds and ends of bright-colored felt you can make a jolly doorstop with a gay Mexican motif.

Get complete directions for these and other pretty gifts from our 32-page booklet. Tells how to make dainty covers for lingerie and dishes, adorable toy chests, pretty knitting bags, many more items.

Send 15 cents in coins or samps for your copy of "Hand-Made Gift Novelties" to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service Club. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

SPLIT THOSE HONORS

THROUGH you comes the lead of a small card from the opponent at your right. You hold a pair of touching honors, the king-queen or queen-jack of the suit. Most of the time—not all, but at least 80 per cent—you should cover that lead by playing one of your two honors, instead of a small card. Failure to do that may enable the hand at your left to take the trick very cheaply, with the card ranking just beneath your honors.

North: ♠ A 9 7 6 ♥ K 9 3 ♦ J 9 5 ♣ 7 6 5

West: ♠ 8 3 2 ♥ Q J 6 ♦ A 8 7 ♣ 10 9 3 2

East: ♠ J 4 ♥ 8 5 4 2 ♦ K 10 4 ♣ K Q 8 4

South: ♠ K Q 10 5 ♥ A 10 7 ♦ Q 6 3 2 ♣ A J

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 NT	Pass	4 ♠

Bidding was exactly like that at two tables of a duplicate tournament, except that in one case South jumped from the 2-Spades directly to 4-Spades. Both methods of bidding showed abundant confidence by South, to say the least. One of the declarers was set two tricks and the other made his contract, by virtue of two mistakes by the defense in failure to "split honors."

Where the contract was beaten, West led the spade 2, the J falling to the Q, and two more spade tricks scoring. The heart 7 was led and West split honors, playing his J and forcing the K. The club 5 came back, East putting on the Q and pushing out the A. This left the defenders in a position to get a trick in clubs and one in hearts. When the diamond 2 was sent to the J and K, East cashed the club K and returned the heart 2, the 10 losing to the Q. Later the defenders took two more tricks in diamonds, beating the contract two.

At the other table, the deal started with three spade tricks. This declarer didn't play diamonds next either, but led the same heart 7 to the fourth trick. West played low, and the 9 picked up a gratuitous trick. The club 5 came back, East also failing to split honors and putting on the 8. The J therefore won that trick—a gift. Thereafter the defenders could take nothing but three diamond tricks, so the contract was made, due to a double violation of the principle of splitting honors.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ Q 10 8 ♥ J 8 6 ♦ A 10 4 ♣ K 10 9 3

West: ♠ K 7 6 4 3 2 ♥ K 6 4 ♦ 5 2 ♣ 6 4

East: ♠ 9 5 ♥ Q ♦ Q J 8 7 6 ♣ Q J 7 5 2

South: ♠ A J ♥ A 10 9 7 4 3 ♦ K 9 3 ♣ A 8

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If South gets into an overbid contract of 6-Hearts, how should he play this hand after the fortuitous lead of the spade 4?

Changing Their Minds

BERLIN (from German Broadcasts), Aug. 17—(AP).—The German high command corrected its broadcasted report of August 13 that the 14,700-ton United States aircraft carrier Wasp had been hit by six bombs and set afire in the Mediterranean and claimed the damaged warship was a British aircraft carrier of the Illustrious type.

Not Too Long Either

CHUNGKING, Aug. 17—(AP):—Col. Merian C. Cooper, Chief of Staff of the United States Army Air Forces in China, told an Air Force dinner gathering Friday that the Americans "won't leave China until the last Japanese has been driven from Chinese soil." And that, he added, "won't be so long, either."

Buying Spree Hits Farmers' Market

Eggs were firm at an advance and potatoes steady at a slight decline on the produce market Saturday.

The new crop tomatoes arrived in red tide all the way from Trenton to Bowmanville and up around Omemee and Reaboro.

The several grades of eggs were clustered around the 40-cent level as actively as they used to buzz about the 30 cent price some months ago. Potatoes were $1.75 a bag and 40 to 60 cents a peck. Tomatoes generally were 50 cents the six quart basket.

Absent from the Peterborough market for many months was Harry Fiske of Colborne, only three weeks out of hospital after a series of mishaps. He arrived Saturday morning with a truck load of tomatoes and Yellow Transparent apples. At 11.30 he had two or three baskets of tomatoes left on hand and a few more apples which he probably disposed of by noon. That was one example of how the local market has been absorbing additional stock and without any unloading. It is just active business.

What No Spinach.

If the market reflects the households of Peterborough in their dietary habits then it can be authentically proclaimed that as spinach eaters we rate far down the scale; in fact, we are hardly on the scale at all. Fred Clifford of North Monaghan has been faithfully bringing in Swiss Chard for the folks who remember the advice about leafy vegetables. For nearly a month the Examiner has been noticing the comparative absence of spinach. About one hamper a week end was all that could be found displayed at the counters. Possibly some of the growers were keeping a supply out of sight; but that is unlikely. There have been recent week ends when you cannot find a peck of spinach about the place.

Somebody may call out: so what? And nothing remains but to retreat from the market and leave those chaps to the few folks who know their vitamins and the special virtue of leafy vegetables. But the humorists who hang some of their jokes on spinach and the small boy's objection to it as food should not get much reception around here, because there can't be any persons eating it.

The Upstairs Market.

Only two baskets of butter were seen upstairs, and the price tag on each was 38 cents. The bulk of the egg sales were at 37 to 40 cents the dozen, and even up to 42 cents. The range downward was to 28 cents for pullet's eggs.

Chickens were 30 to 32 cents a pound and hens 27 to 28 cents. Some of the women upstairs were asking 38 cents a pound for chickens.

The supply of eggs and poultry was fairly heavy. The market has been suffled back to a secondary position until the harvest is over. That comment however does not apply to the gardeners.

Gladioli were 25 cents a dozen in the hall and up to 50 and 60 cents the dozen outdoors.

Potatoes Plentiful.

M. H. Johnston & Son asked $1.75 for Irish Cobbler and Warba potatoes; their price was also 40c a peck. D. Olan of Cavan asked that price too for his Cobblers. Ken Dawson of Bailieboro showed a 35-cents a peck sign, but one grower from the Campbellcroft district seemed to be holding out for 60c the peck and $1.80 a bag.

Thimbleberries were 30 cents a quart; plums 10 cents the quart and chokecherries 5c the quart box. Moncrief apples were 60 cents the peck for Yellow Transparents and Duchess and 70 cents for Red Astrakans. Nature must have intended some special benefit in those early Reds. That is generally its way to its own ends, and endowing the Astrakhan with high appeal to the palate must have been more than accident. Just now the harvest time varieties are moving freely. Arthur Stinson labelled his Duchess at 40c the peck and Reds at 45c.

Green peppers were 75c the 11-quart basket at Herb Doig's stand; also potatoes 40c, apples 40c, cucumbers 75c for 11 quarts; tomatoes 50c; cauliflowers 15c.

Some of the thimbleberries outdoors were 35 cents the quart.

Pleasant View Gardens, Bowmanville, quoted apples, Duchess, Transparent and Alexanders 50c a peck; cucumbers at 65c for six quarts; cabbages 5 and 8 cents; green beans two pounds for 25c; silver skin onions 25c a quart.

Carrots, beets, onions, parsnips, chards, and so on down the standard list were unchanged from a week ago.

have succeeded in landing."

Usual Tokyo Claims

Relegating this fact to the background, a Tokyo broadcast this morning made much of an imperial headquarters communique claiming that Japanese submarines had sunk 10 Allied vessels totalling 90,000 tons in Australian waters during the latter part of July and the first part of August.

(There was no confirmation of the Japanese claim from any Allied source.)

The communique, the Japanese announcer said, made it evident Australia has "become the orphan of the Pacific and the possibility of launching a counter-attack against Japan with Australia as a base of operations is absolutely gone."

The Allied announcement of the air attack on Timor yesterday said merely that large fires had been started in a Japanese-occupied town on the southeast coast and that all planes participating had returned safely to base, despite heavy fire from enemy anti-aircraft batteries.

The Melbourne Herald reported that Allied troops still are operating in the interior of Timor, and speculated that the almost daily Allied bombing attacks were intended partly to assist them.

An Allied spokesman said the land skirmishes in the Kokoda area of New Guinea were "not of particular importance," though the Japanese were reported to have been reinforced there of late.

Famed Herd Sold No Help At Hand

GUELPH, Aug. 17—(Special). — Shortage of farm help has forced the sale of James Bowman's internationally famous herd of pure-bred Aberdeen Angus cattle, it was announced here Friday. Purchasers were Godfrey Smith of Guelph and W. L. Ham of Fergus. Reported price was in the neighborhood of $50,000.

The 54 animals comprising the herd have strains of the stock with which Mr. Bowman built up an enviable reputation in his 51 years of breeding prize-winners.

Mr. Bowman's record for breeding Suffolk sheep in North America will not be broken, however. He has bred them longer than anyone else on the Continent, and will continue to maintain his flocks.

Sale of the cattle to Ontario breeders dispelled fears that the stock might be sold to far-distant cattlemen, and ensures fine stock in this section of Ontario.

Bethany WI Aims To Drop Lunches

BETHANY, Aug. 17—(ENS)—The August meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Morton.

Seventeen members answered to the roll call by naming a flag of the Allies and giving the description. On account of the tea and sugar rationing it was decided to withdraw in future the usual lunch. Mrs. Price was work convener, reported the work accomplished already. In the first seven months of this year the Manver's ladies in co-operation with the Institute had sent 141 quilts to headquarters. Ditty bags are now being asked for as well as books for the men of the navy.

Mrs. Mason convener of group three took charge of the following program: A beautiful solo, "Guard Well the Land Which God Hath Given Thee", by Laura Morton guest of the evening; Talk about the origin of the Flag by Mrs. Mason; all sang "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall", "The Maple Leaf" and "O Canada". Miss Katherine Morton presided at the piano, accompanist for the numbers.

An interesting contest, naming the country from a very brief description given concluded the meeting. Mrs. Morton, hostess, with members of Group 3 served tea and sandwiches and a social half hour was enjoyed. The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. L. Rowan.

Hun In Maikop

The Red Army's most critical front seemed to be that in the Don Bend northwest of Stallingrad, especially in the Keltskaya sector, where the Germans were applying extreme pressure night and day in an effort to reach the important industrial and strategic centre of Stalingrad on the Volga.

The midnight communique reported "fierce defensive engagements with the enemy" there. Northeast of Kotelnikovski, on the southwestern approaches to Stalingrad, the invaders were likewise aggressive, but their attacks were reported repulsed with the routing of a Rumanian regiment.

The Russian position at Voronezh, on the Don some 300 miles southeast of Moscow, took a turn for the worse as large German forces launched an attack and broke into a village on the west bank of the river held by the Russians. Street fighting was reported in progress there.

The midnight communique said 369 German planes were destroyed in the week ended August 15, against loss of 241 Russian aircraft.

Reds Retake Wood.

New and savage German attacks in a sector of the Voronezh front were reported in a Pravda dispatch which said the Russians were subjected to a severe hammering. The Germans forced them to withdraw from a large wooded area, the newspaper said, but the Soviet troops regrouped and wrested the wood from the Germans in a counter-attack.

The momentum of the Soviet drive took the Russians beyond the wooded land to an important height, which was captured, Pravda said.

The mid-day communique added little to the picture outside Stalingrad and in the Caucasus, but it said the Germans had suffered severe losses in the fighting northeast of Kotelnikovski and were "throwing in reserves."

The heavy fighting southeast of Kletskaya continued, the communique said, and a Pravda dispatch said the Germans were continuing to move forward despite heavy losses.

"The main problem of our fighters is to increase their counterblows tenfold and not let the enemy into the depths of the defence," Pravda said.

There was no indication yet of a decisive turn in the struggle, dispatches reported.

Russian seaplanes operating in the Baltic area raided enemy bases and ships and caused widespread damage, Pravda said. One 3,000-ton German transport carrying munitions was sunk and the dispatch said 20 fires were observed after a raid on one enemy port.

The late Mr. Skuce was in poor health for a number of years, but was confined to his bed for only two weeks before his death. He was born in Ireland, and came to Canada at the age of 18 years, and has resided in Omemee and vicinity since then.

Interment was made in Emily Cemetery.

Ontario, Quebec Beer Prices Up

TORONTO, Aug 17.—Beer prices have been increased effective today, in Ontario and Quebec pursuant to a ruling of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board permitting increases because of the higher duty imposed on malt used in beer manufacture. The malt duty was increased from 12 to 16 cents a pound in the June 23 budget.

In Ontario hotels are permitted to charge an extra cent for bottled beer, and may sell nine ounces of draught beer instead of nine and one-half ounces for 10 cents. An approved nine-ounce glass must be put in use as soon as possible, the Ontario Liquor Control Board ruled.

Ontario beer warehouses will charge an additional 5 cents for a carton of six small bottles, an extra 10 cents for a carton of six large bottles, and 25 cents for a carton of two dozen small bottles or a carton of one dozen large bottles. The refund on empty bottles has been increased so that the net increase per carton of six small bottles is 3 cents, with other-sized cartons in proportion. "Such net increases are less than the additional Dominion taxation," the board announced.

In Quebec the price increases are 9 cents per dozen of pints and 16 cents per dozen of quarts. The present retail price charged by retailers is 20 cents a quart.

Saskatchewan authorities said any increase in beer prices there would be decided by Order-in-Council. No increase was announced by other provinces.

any class of people in this country which has inherited these special, fanciful prerogatives is monstrous and absurd. We are all on the same level in this matter of duty, and it is the business of the Government of Canada, accountable as it will be to the end of time for the safety of this nation, to supplant what is futile and unfair by what is strong and just and to establish now in practical effect, equality of service, equality under the law."

It would be fatal for the country "if we are so weak as to permit the dregs of isolationism...to poison or debilitate the national effort on this crisis. Isolationism in Europe, in America, in Canada is the parent of our calamities.'

Special Symphony

LENOX, Mass., Aug. 17—(AP).—The first concert performance in the Western hemisphere of Dmitri Shostakovitch's seventh symphony was given tonight by Serge Koyssevitzky and his student orchestra at a special Russian relief benefit concert attended by Maxim Litvinoff, Russian ambassador. The symphony, composed during the attacks on Moscow, was greeted with tremendous enthusiasm by nearly 5,000 persons, assembled in the famed music shed at Tanglewood.

Thresher Badly Crushed Near Millbrook

MILLBROOK, August 17—(ENS)—Leslie Graham, who lives on the 4th Line, on the former Campbell farm homestead, met with a serious accident on Thursday evening when driving a tractor and drawing his threshing machine after it down Armstrong's steep hill. The bolt holding the tongue of the threshing machine somehow came out letting the heavy machine run forward and crushing Mr. Graham so badly that one intestine was severed and other injuries sustained.

Edwin Hutchinson who lives on the Line, was the first to bring assistance to the injured man, taking him immediately to the Clinic at Peterborough. Removal to the hospital followed.

Miss Mary Widdis, who lives on the family homestead a short distance east of the village, met with a painful accident, and one fraught with considerable danger while gathering eggs on Thursday in the late afternoon. Climbing a ladder from the basement of the barn, a sudden slip caused her to take a sharp hold on the ladder's side, and in the resulting fall her right hand was badly torn, requiring fourteen stitches when Dr. M. E. Hobbs was called. The nature and location of the wound made it also necessary to give the serum for prevention of lockjaw. Miss Widdis lives with her uncle, George Widdis, who is well advanced into the eighties. Her sisters Mrs. J. J. Powell and Mrs. Norman Trew, have been with her in turn, giving assistance with the housework and nursing. Walter Widdis works the farm.

RED STROKE SWINGS TIDE SOUTH OF STALINGRAD

Brazil At War Fever Over Loss Of Five Ships

Early Winter For Europe To Hit Plans

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 18 — (AP)—Signs of an unusually early winter have been reported from central and northern Europe, giving rise to widespread concern over the continent's inadequate fuel supplies.

An early winter, it was pointed out, also would have a direct bearing on military campaigns. Along northern sectors of the east front early freezing would be a substantial aid to the Russians, accustomed to wintry conditions.

Military observers stressed the fact that certain Russian Arctic ports remain free of ice, while harbors in the German - controlled Baltic freeze.

Newspapers reaching here brought reports of early frosts in villages of northern Sweden. In the region of Taasjoe potato plants were nipped by frost and the growth of grain was retarded. In the province of Jamtland, a Stockholm dispatch stated, extensive damage was done to crops by snow.

Storks on their southern migration from Germany have already reached Marseille in large numbers, other dispatches stated. In suburbs of Berne leaves are beginning to fall.

Fuel is a vital concern to many European nations, with indications that there will be considerably less than a normal supply of coal. Germany and occupied countries have had heatless days in previous war winters, and prospects are that fuel rationing will have to be more stringent than ever to conserve scanty supplies.

Shortage of labor to work Polish mines and transport difficulties were held responsible for coal shortages. An important factor was the use of tremendous quantities of coal by German war industries to manufacture gasoline and rubber.

Russia-Bound Convoy Upsets Trondheim Rats
Quislings Ditch Badges And Bolt The City

LONDON, Aug. 18—(CP).—Advices reaching the Norwegian Government here today declared German forces in Norway experienced an "invasion scare" when a British convoy was recently sighted off the Trondheim coast.

It was said the Germans occupied the Trondheim telephone exchange and locked the operators in a room where they were held overnight.

Many followers of pro-Nazi Premier Vidkun Quisling removed their party emblems, burned confidential papers and hurriedly left town amid fears of a British attack. The British convoy presumably was en route to Northern Russia.

42nd Raid Adds Osnabrueck Ruin

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(CP).—British bombers struck at Osnabrueck, railroad and industrial centre in Northwestern Germany, last night in the eighth attack on Germany this month. Five bombers were reported missing on the mission, indicating a raid of moderate strength.

While Osnabrueck was under attack, other bombers and fighters bombed airfields in German-occupied territory, destroying one enemy bomber. Another enemy aircraft was shot down by the bombers attacking Osnabrueck.

Osnabrueck, one of the main railroad outlets for the German arsenals in the Ruhr Valley, has big steel works and other factories. It already had been raided once this month, on the night of Aug. 9, when the R.A.F. bombed it for the 40th time since start of the war.

Britain meanwhile was attacked by a small number of enemy aircraft which crossed the south coast and dropped bombs at a few points in the south and west of England.

Some damage was done and casualties were reported, but two German bombers were destroyed, one over Britain and the other near its base in France by a fighter pilot.

Mighty U.S. Fleet Harrying Japs

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, August 18 — (CP).—United States marines have won solid toeholds in the Solomon Islands, the first step to victory in the first Allied offensive in the Pacific, while Allied airmen comb the southern seas to blast the Japanese in their ships and harbors wherever they may be trying to go to the rescue.

That was the broad picture today over thousands of square miles of the South Pacific where the fighting forces of the United Nations have begun to roll back the enemy in a campaign of growing magnitude.

It was the official story of the United States Navy and of Allied Headquarters.

A Navy communique issued in Washington showed the attack 12 days ago on the Solomons to have been a mighty onslaught which caught the Japanese flat-footed in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area, one of their most valuable bases.

The harbor of Tulagi is one of the best in the south-west Pacific, and the airfield on Guadalcanal makes that island a gigantic aircraft carrier anchored athwart the sea lane from America to Australia.

Victory Assured.

Without divulging details of the still-continuing and still-growing battle, the communique gave these assurances that the first phase has ended in defeat for the Japanese:

1. The marines have made several landings in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area, "rapidly" overcoming enemy resistance, and their captured shore positions "have since been developed and are now well established."

2. Japanese naval forces closed in for action with the Allied fleet

Wild Street Scenes In Rio As Crowds Yell Vengeance

RIO DE JANEIRO, August 18 — (AP). — Street demonstrations spread war fever in Rio de Janeiro to-day as resentment rose over Axis submarine sinking of five Brazilian ships in the last three days.

The Brazilian steamships Bage and Cuyaba, due to take Axis diplomats to Europe, were held in port.

Just before noon a crowd tore Brazilian flags from the offices of two pro-Axis newspapers and marched to the Foreign Ministry, where a spokesman for the demonstrators declared:

"This demonstration is to show the Brazilian Government that the people will follow the Government anywhere."

A functionary of the Foreign Ministry accepted the flags, and then the demonstrators, estimated to number 2,000, observed one minute's silence "in memory of all who have died throughout the world in the struggle against aggressors."

Special police prevented damage to the newspaper buildings but there were other cases of attacks on German property by enraged Brazilians.

There was one attempt to attack a suburban German hospital. A German bar was sacked. Demonstrations occurred against various business house known to be German-controlled.

Stronglyworded editorials in the Brazilian press fanned the public feelings. It was learned that the five sunken ships carried 836 persons, including 274 soldiers. Government information up to noon showed 157 had reached the Brazilian coast, leaving 679 to be accounted for.

Large crowds gathered at the offices of the Lloyd Brasiliero Navigation Lines to learn the fate of relatives on the ships.

A Brazilian announcement said the Baependy was carrying an army unit "with reduced number of forces," but added that "rumors dispersed about high military losses have not the slightest foundation."

Churchill Siren Suit Getup Puzzler at Red State Dinner

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Aug 18—(AP).—The two chief riddles remaining after Prime Minister Churchill's visit so far as newsmen are concerned are: What did he say to Premier Stalin about a second front and why did he wear a flying suit to the State dinner in the Kremlin?

For obvious reasons details of the conversation between the statesmen are kept secret, but to date no one here has figured out the blue, jumperlike suit under which the Prime Minister wore no shirt.

"But that's Mr. Churchill," correspondents were told. "He's individual, you know."

(Although puzzling to Eddy Gilmore and his colleagues in Moscow, that strange costume Mr. Churchill wore was recognized in Britain, Canada and the United States as a "siren suit." A zipper cover-all to be donned quickly in the event of air raid alarms. Mr. Churchill wore the suit when he visited Washington.)

In the wake of Mr. Churchill's dramatic visit to Moscow with President Roosevelt's personal representative, W. Averell Harriman, this story quickly made the rounds here:

Upon alighting at the Moscow airport, Mr. Churchill, as he has done frequently in many parts of the world, raised two fingers in the "V"-for-Victory sign.

"See that," said a man in the crowd, "he's got up two fingers. Catch on—that means two fronts."

When the Kremlin dinner crowd first sighted Mr. Churchill in his curious suit, someone asked if that was the kind worn by British parachutists on commando raids.

"It would serve for such a purpose," a British officer answered jocularly.

One of the more trying experiences the Prime Minister had to undergo was in store for him at the airport when the party was leaving the capital. A band played several National Anthems, and became so enthusiastic that several were played twice. The Prime Minister and others stood with bared heads in a soft rain. But if it bothered, he let nobody hear about it.

Mr. Churchill missed the famous Russian ballet, although he had been invited to see it.

He said he was too busy, remarking, "I never let pleasure interfere with my movements."

The Prime Minister lunched several times at the British Embassy country house called, in Russian, Dacha. It is situated in a garden near a small stream.

British Subs Snipe 3 More In Mediterranean
Cruiser Fleeing Convoy Loses 60 Feet Of Bow

LONDON, Aug. 18—(CP).—The Admiralty announced today a large Axis supply vessel had been sunk in the Mediterranean by a British submarine, while two supply ships were "considered sunk" also by submarines off the coast of Norway.

These announcements were part of a summary of recent successes of British undersea craft.

The statement said one of two Italian cruisers hit by torpedoes during last week's convoy battle in the Mediterranean had 60 feet of her bows missing. It added that another Axis supply ship almost certainly had been sunk in the Mediterranean and still another torpedoed and left sinking.

Brens, No. 4 Rifle Hit New Peaks

OTTAWA, Aug. 18—(CP). — For the second successive day, Munitions Minister Howe today reported progress in Canadian small arms production, in a statement saying the Bren light machine gun and the "No. 4" rifle were produced in record volume during the past three months.

These weapons are described as "two of Canada's most important small arms."

Mr. Howe said Bren gun production during the second quarter of the year was almost one-third of the total output of these guns up to June 30. Cost of this weapon has been reduced from $390 in the first quarter of 1941 to $192 in the first quarter of this year. The Canadian-built gun is in use on all battlefronts.

"For every four No. 4 rifles turned out in June, an extra one was turned out in July," said Mr. Howe. "The present rate of production is twice what it was in April."

The No. 4 rifle is equipped with a new, short-style bayonet and simplified back sight. The magazine holds a charge of five rounds and 15 aimed shots can be fired in a minute by trained personnel. Some of these rifles, especially selected for accuracy, are equipped with telescopic sights for snipers.

Yesterday Mr. Howe announced that Canada has begun production of a "new and improved" rapid-fire tank machine gun, the Browning .30 calibre, and said there has been a speed-up in monthly output of the Browning Aircraft machine gun.

Indict 7 Chiefs Of Slave Ring

CLEVELAND, O., August 18. — (AP)—A United States Grand Jury today indicted seven persons as ringleaders in what District Attorney Don C. Miller termed "one of the greatest white slave rings ever uncovered" in the United States.

Miller and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents said the ring's operations centred in Canton, O., and included New York City, Saratoga Springs and Glen Falls, N. Y., Meadville, Pa., Miami, Fla., Little Rock Ark., Cleveland, Lorain, Akron and Zanesville, O.

Naming the seven as conspirators, the indictment charged they placed "women and girls in fear of physical injury by giving or administering physical punishment ....for the purpose of making them continue in the practice of prostitution and debauchery and other immoral practices, to wit, illicit sexual intercourse."

F. B. I. men said scores of girls were involved in the asserted operations, covering the period from Jan. 1, 1940, to July 1, 1942.

"The girls would be sent to Saratoga Springs in the racing season, and to Miami in the winter season," Miller asserted.

Nazis Force Kuban In 2 Places

MOSCOW, August 18. —(AP) — Red Army troops counter attacking south west of Stalingrad were reported today to have thrown the Germans into retreat and reoccupied an important line. The invaders however, wedged into Don Bend defences north of that area and forced two more crossings of the Kuban river in the Krasnodar sector.

Military dispatches said the Russian forces generally improved their positions in the area above Kotelnikovski, where a German force has been striking up the Stalingrad-Novorossisk rail line toward the Volga.

The counter attack appeared the strongest Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's men had undertaken since the invaders crossed the lower reaches of the Don.

Several miles lost by the Russians were regained in assaults upon enemy-occupied hills and the army newspaper Red Star said several invasion firing points were destroyed.

While shock troops occupied a defence section which has been hurriedly erected by the Germans and Rumanians, other Red Army forces strengthend their postions guarding the lower Volga and Stalingrad.

Implying street engagements within Krasnodar (a farming and factory centre of more than 200,000 population on the Kuban which the Germans claimed Aug. 9), a communique said the Russians fought in that city "against enemy tanks and motorized infantry."

In the Kotelnikovski area, Red army men countering a drive toward Stalingrad from the southwest were said to have routed a battalion of Rumanian infantry, capturing prisoners and was supplies, and killed more than 300 Germans.

The Russians were reported to have taken the initiative on the Count Rallying Anti-Fascists

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, August 18.—(AP) — Count Carlo Sforza, a foreign minister in pre-Fascist Italy undertook today the task of creating an Italian National Council for unification of anti-Fascist Italians in a movement against Fascism.

Count Sforza was selected to lead the movement at the first Pan-American Conference of Free Italy which closed here last night.

The conference recommended that Cmdr. Randolfo Pacciardi organize as soon as possible a military unit for participation in the war "for victory, freedom and democracy."

It also declared that "in view of the perpetual links of complicity between Fascism and Monarchy, we deeply desire that the Monarchy (in Italy) be replaced by a Democratic Social Republic."

Yanks Test Eye Bombing Tobruk

CAIRO, Aug. 18—(AP). — Middle East headquarters of the United States army air forces announced today another series of operations by heavy bombers against Tobruk and in the Mediterranean August 14 and 15 and disclosed that for the first time American medium bombers had gone into action with a raid on Matruh.

The heavy bombers set fire to an Axis merchantman guarded by two destroyers, and hit Tobruk harbor installations and a wreck which was being used to moor torpedo-boats.

"All our airplanes returned safely" from all missions, the announcement said.

Use of the medium bombers which scored several hits at Matruh brought to within a step of fruition full participation of the United States army heavy bomber, medium bomber and fighter air forces in the Egyptian fighting.

Cagey On Fronts

By GLENN BABB,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

For Russia this is still a one-front war. She wants a second front, but she wants it in the right place. The Churchill-Stalin Conference at Moscow while reaffirming the alliance of three great powers whose lands girdle the globe and whose forces fight the enemy on all the seas and all but one of the continents, emphasized once more the Soviet Union's anxiety to confine her share in the war to one front until the Allies can marshall the power and choose the time and place for the second.

Japan was not mentioned by name in the communique which announced the results of the Moscow conclave. But the care taken, obviously at the insistence of Joseph Stalin, to exclude Japan from the announced scope of the decisions showed clearly that the threat of Hirohito's army in Manchuria was never far from the minds of the conferees even as they grappled with the deadly urgent problem of stopping Hitler.

For the second time in 10 weeks the leaders of the United Nations have made this pointed exception. Yesterday's announcement declared again that the agreements concluded early in June were against "Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe."

The United States and Britain, much as they may hope to see Eastern Siberia ultimately avalable as a base of operations against Japan, are compelled to accept their Ally's single-front stand with sympathy and understanding. One of the great dangers confronting the United Nations is that the much-debated second front will be opened by Japan before Britain and the United States are ready to strike, that it will come at the eastern extremity of the great

Curtin Thinks Japs Tipped Off

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 18 (CP)—Prime Minister John Curtin, replying to criticism of censorship, declared in a speech today, "I am more than ever convinced that the Japanese had some knowledge of the Solomons attack.

"There were men yelling for offensives when they knew they were being undertaken."

Mr. Curtin's further remarks suggested that censorship is an internal political issue between the Labor party and the oppositon.

Australian circles said it is believed Mr. Curtin is considering calling an election if parliament adopts what he deems harassing tactics, and that this is to be seen in his challenge to the opposition to try to defeat the government on the censorship issue.

Long Faces in Igloo and Tent As Rations Hit the Kettle

OTTAWA, Aug. 18—(CP). — Although ration cards have yet to penetrate the barrens, officials forecast today that there would be long faces in tents and igloos and non-stop boiling of the tea kettle would become a thing of the past.

In the Yukon, Mackenzie district and Eastern Arctic—an area of 1,300,000 square miles with about 15,000 residents—Mountie and Eskimo, missionary and Indian, will tear no tickets from a ration book when they obtain tea, coffee or sugar. But a record will be kept of everything they buy, and it was expected rationing would be almost as effective as among the residents of the nine provinces.

Trading post managers and storekeepers are authorized to provide their customers with rationed commodities for such periods as are required and to keep an exact record of such sales.

Eskimo buyers will have to show the storekeeper their identity which carries a serial number. And, when the record opposite the number shows that the master of the igloo has drunk as much as his ration permits, there will be no more tea.

The allowance for each Northern will be based on the ration allowance for other Canadians—one-half pound of sugar and one ounce of tea or four ounces of coffee a week.

Little Sign of Desperation In Happy Stalin Banquet

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(CP)—New York's leading morning newspapers today welcomed the announcement that Prime Minister Churchill had conferred with Premier Stalin.

Said the New York Times: "In one of the great crises of the war Mr. Churchill has visited Moscow, as he had twice previously visited Washington, for the purpose of direct personal consultation with the leaders of an ally. "Time alone can reveal what decisions have been made. Whatever they are, they can hardly be more important than this fresh evidence of the close and friendly understanding now prevailing between the Government of Russia and the two great democracies of the West."

The Herald Tribune: "Short of the announcement of a major victory, it is difficult to imagine better news than that conveyed in the communique reporting Mr. Churchill's visit to Moscow....

"We know that the Russian situation is extremely grave. But that 'jocular' final banquet in Moscow does not suggest that it is desperate. It implies that behind the events in Russia there is a plan of action, a broad concept of the war, which still sees a definite road to ultimate victory, however tragic the losses that must be sustained."

FLYING FORTRESSES MAKE INITIAL DAYLIGHT RAID OVER FRANCE

Britons Look For Multi-Front Drive After Moscow Talks

Japan Omitted In Few Details Of Session
Press Sees Nothing But Good Of Outcome

LONDON, Aug. 18—(CP).—Britons expressed belief today that the Churchill-Stalin talks last week initiated a new phase of the war which would swing the United Nations into a multi-front offensive that could end only in Germany's utter defeat.

Prime Minister Churchill, flown to and from Moscow with British and United States officers in three four-motored Liberator bombers, himself messaged Premier Stalin "I am certain that our contact will play a useful part in furthering our cause."

A Pravda dispatch broadcas by the Moscow radio said the result of the conversations was a "great political defeat for Hitlerite Germany."

Official announcements said the decisions concerned the "war against Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe"—a phrase specifically omitting Japan.

Secrecy veiled the details, but the Daily Sketch said "the final decision must have been made" on the question of establishment of a second European front in 1942, and suggested this should stop ill-informed agitation on the subject.

The historic Kremlin conferences, the smooth execution of the first of the promised daylight raids on Nazi-occupied Europe by United States bombers and indications the Solomo Islands offensive is progressing well all helped to show the start of what Britain regards as the victory trail after almost three years of defensive fighting.

Newspapers played up the visit of Mr. Churchill and the comment of the Daily Mail that "nothing but good can come of this conference" was typical.

The BBC, in an English-language broadcast beamed to the millions of men and women dominated by Hitler, said the joint Moscow-London announcement "inaugurates the final phase of the war which will see the decline and end of Germany's offensive power and the swift sequel of an Allied offensive."

"The death throes (of Germany) may be prolonged," it said, "but every possible measure to curtail them was considered in Moscow."

The Times said the meeting "should ensure that any cobwebs which may have hitherto obscured corners of the military situation are swept away and that the two countries face together, with the fullest confidence on both sides, the dangers of the most urgently critical months which this war has yet witnessed."

The Daily Express commented: "It is realized on every hand that Britain and America must not only furnish Russia with all the aid she requires to hold fast now, but make ready for the day when we shall counterattack together.

"We can be sure," said the News Chronicle, "that decisions of the conference have been made in the spirit to launch an all-out offensive against Germany as soon as circumstances permit."

Cagey On Front

Eurasian land mass instead of the western.

Certainly this is no time for Russia to challenge the Mikado's Kwantung army, which reports from any quarters described as growing steadily in numbers and striking power, ranged along the Amur and Ussuri Rivers, ready to thrust deep into Siberia in the fine autumn weather that begins in a week or two in northeastern Asia.

Russian-Japanese regulations are regulated, according to repeated official statements, by the neutrality treaty the two powers signed at Easter, 1941, in Moscow. Although Japan has been at war for nearly nine months against her two principal allies, Russia insists on holding with rigid correctness to the letter of her engagement.

Does the Kremlin really believe that Japan will honor her pledge a day longer than it fits her purposes? Or is Stalin trying merely to avoid giving the provocation that might be all the eager Kwantung army would need to send against Vladivostok?

What Russia hopes for or expects from Japan remains one of this war's great mysteries. Obviously, however, that is not the time from Russia's or her allies' points of view to complete the global nature of the war by turning Siberia and Manchuria into a battleground.

That may come later, when the German phase of the war gives way to the Japanese. A signs now point to this conflict—assuming that we win it being a two-chapter affair, with the decision in the Orient postponed until Hitler is disposed of. One of the most convincing of such signs is that phrase in yesterday's communique—"Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe."

Meanwhile it may be that a faraway third front is playing a telling part in the United Nations' urgent effort to ensure that they and not Japan shall open the second front. The battle of the Solomon Islands remains obscured in the murk of tropical rains and official secrecy, but indications grow that this may become a vortex which will draw an increasing share of Japan's naval and air strength into battle.

She dares not let this contest go by default. She confronts the danger that in the Solomons the Allies may definitely reverse the tide which Japan set in train with her December 8 assaults on the Philippines and Malaya and carried to the flood in New Guinea and at the gates of India.

War Savings Campaign Raises $368.51

After a strenuous three-day campaign, the Miss Canada girls put their effort across the top, having raised the amount of $368.51 as their complete total from Thursday to Saturday night.

The great success of this effort was due to the whole-hearted cooperation of the women of the C.W.V.S. in whose hands all the arrangements were left. They picked the girls to act as Miss Canada sales girls and they apparently picked some winners, for the sales mounted up steadily. Those in charge said that the proceeds raised here compare very favorably with the results achieved in other places.

Jack Gillespie Named Supt. New Staff House

The staff houses being built behind the Canadian General Electric are coming along nicely and Mr. Stan Longhurst, Administrator of the War Time Housing, announced today that he had appointed Mr. Jack Gillespie, Superintendent of the Staff Houses.

These buildings are for war workers or munitions workers and 95 per cent of the residents will probably be from Genelco, but there may be other war workers from places like the Johnson Motors and the Westclox Company making use of them. It will take a staff of 35 people to keep things running smoothly and efficiently.

There are 4 buildings. The front one is their recreation hall and eating place. There is a rotunda, a mezzanine floor and the dining room will accomodate 388 at one time. Since the men are coming and going in different shifts it will not likely be necessary to handle more than that at one time, and a schedule will be worked out to accommodate the workers at their different hours. In the basement of this same building there are eight bowling alleys for recreational purposes.

As for the other buildings, there are three dormitories and there are a total of 229 double rooms with two single beds in each, and 51 single rooms, making a total of 280 rooms. At the present time they expect to have 500 single beds, Mr. Longhurst said, and there will be an official opening some time later on.

Japs Fail To Shut Kiangsi Rail Gap

CHUNGKING, Aug. 18 —(AP)—A determined Japanese attack aimed at closing the gap in the Kiangsi province railway front has been hurled back after thrusting westward 12 miles from Shangjao, a Chinese army spokesman announced today.

The Japanese objective was Hengfeng, 24 miles from Shangjao, he said.

Simultaneously the Japanese drove wedges northwest and southwest from Shangjao to protect their central column from flank attacks, the spokesman reported.

The Japanese recently have transferred 1,000 or 2,000 soldiers from Haipong to Langson, in French Indo-China near the Kwangsi province border, but this was "a minor activity without any special significance," the spokesman added.

The Chinese communique today, describing the same Kiangsi province fighting on which the spokesman reported, said the Japanese had captured four townships in central Kiwangsi.

Gets Promotion

Captain Lionel Sorby, Peterborough, has been named acting first intelligence officer on the staff of General MacNaughton. His wife is the former Margaret Rogers and she lives with the baby daughter, Mary Elizabeth, whom the father has never seen, as the child was born the day he left Halifax. Captain Sorby was formerly a member of the Prince of Wales Rangers.

RAF Bombs Clear 135 Acres Across Mainz

LONDON, Aug. 18. — The Air Ministry asserted today that aerial photographs show that 135 acres of the German city of Mainz were laid waste in heavy R.A.F. raids Aug. 11 and 12, and heavy damage was spread throughout the city's industrial suburbs.

"In the town itself great patches were devastated by fire and high explosives," the Air Ministry said. "Two of these areas each cover fifty acres."

Bombs wrought heavy damage to industrial factory buildings in the suburban Biebrich district, the Ministry said. An important chemical factory producing dyestuffs, bakelite and synthetic shellac was hit by a heavy bomb. Most of it was destroyed and the remainder badly damaged by the explosion.

A large cement plant was hit, warehouses and silos in the main goods station were burned out and many permanent barracks for the large garrison usually stationed at Mainz "suffered severely," the announcement said. Six barracks in the ordnance depot in the Kastel district were destroyed and several others in different parts of the city were gutted.

At Amoneburg, industrial city sixty miles north and slightly east of Mainz, R.A.F. bombs razed shipbuilding yards and warehouses, knocked down supply sheds and demolished the south railway station, the Air Minstry asserted.

Dodge Inquest Sees 40 Called

DETROIT, August 18. —(CP) — Prosecutor William E. Dowling today sought the solution to the mysterious death of John Duval Dodge, 43-year-old son of the late multi-millionaire automobile manufacturer, from new witnesses produced by police in an all-night roundup.

Dowling was to add their statements to those of more than a score of persons, already questioned, who saw Dodge during the 48 hours preceding his collapse in a police station last Wednesday of a hemorrhage which an autopsy indicated was the result of a 10-inch skull fracture.

More than 40 persons are under subpoena to appear at a Coroner's inquest Thursday mornings. At least eight are men under detention in the Precinct Station where Dodge collapsed after refusing to explin his presence in a home later shown to be that of a friend.

Drunk Parade Graces Police Court

There must be something in the August atmosphere that is making Peterborough folk thirsty. At all events the number of liquor cases on the docket in the local police court has been sharply increasing and this morning most of the ten cases to come before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., just back from his holidays, involved liquor charges.

A guard from the explosives plant at Pickering, in uniform at that, paid Peterborough a visit last night and fell by the wayside. He was arrested on Water street for being drunk and after he had reached the cells ran into further trouble by smashing a window valued at $5.

This morning he pleaded guilty to the intoxication charge and also to damaging public property. He was fined $10 and costs on the first count and $5 on the second.

A local man who was similarly charged pleaded not guilty to being drunk and also to damaging public property and his plea for an adjournment was successful. The case will be aired on Saturday.

There were two women offenders, both charged with being drunk and both admitted that the charge was correct. The fine in each case was $10 and $2.50 costs.

One of the women had been arrested in the vicinity of Victoria Park last night in company with a soldier and a civilian, brothers by the way, after a number of complaints had been received as to the disturbance caused by a fight. Officer Leo Murphy rounded up the three and drove them to the police station.

This morning the two men pleaded not guilty and secured an adjournment.

Canuck Fitness Impresses Chief

OTTAWA, August 18. —(CP) — Impressed by the increasing confidence of Canada's army overseas, Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of the General Staff, is back in Canada after a trip to Britain which included talks with ranking British and Canadian military leaders.

Gen. Stuart stepped out of a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane which brought him here from Montreal last night and almost his first words were in praise of Canada's fighting men overseas.

"I am very pleased with the condition of the Canadian army overseas," he said in an interview after he landed at nearby Uplands Airport with Col. L. M. Chesley, Director of Staff Duties, who accompanied him to Britain by air a fortnight ago.

"They have been through the most difficult and trying forms of training," he said. "They have taken the training in their stride and their confidence has increased accordingly. This confidence and the knowledge that they are fit for what may lie ahead of them is expressed in their appearance."

Gen. Stuart, who made a tour of Canadian army units while in the United Kingdom, had a word for the Canadian people.

"May I say to the Canadian people and in particular to those who have dear ones overseas," he said, "that what I saw of the appearance, bearing and behaviour of all ranks of the Canadian Army Oversas, both on duty and off duty, made me appreciate my privilege of wearing same uniform and made me very proud of being a Canadian."

The fitness and youthful appearance of the battalion and equivalent commanders impressed him particularly, said Gen. Stuart, adding that he found their average age was about 32.

CAPE CHARLES, Va., August 18 —(AP).—Wing-Cmdr. J. A. Newton of Montreal said last night that four fliers were killed in the crash last Friday of a British plane near Port Custis, Va. He said it was estimated the plane exploded in altitude estimated between 1,000 and 2,000 feet.

Radio Operator Henry Thomas Moores of Blackhead, Newfoundland.

Sweden's coal imports have been so inadequate, Stockholm dispatches stated, that the government is undertaking the biggest timber cutting program in the country's history. Efforts are being made to recruit 32,000 additional laborers to work in forests and the transport services.

Editor, Writer Stick To Story

CHICAGO, August 18—(AP) — (AP)—J. Loy Maloney, managing editor of the Chicago Tribune, appeared at the Federal Building today to testify before a Grand Jury investigating publication of allegedly confidential naval information.

Before he entered the office of William D. Mitchell, the special assistant to the Attorney General who is directing the inquiry Maloney said he was willing to sign an immunity waiver and added:— —

"I am going to tell the truth. If any one thinks that I gave information to the Japs against my country they're crazy." Maloney served during the last war with Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's air squadron.

Stanley Johnston, a Tribune war correspondent arrived a few minutes after Maloney with the declaration: "I'm going to tell the same bloody story I told to the admirals in Washington. I signed an immunity waiver there, and I'll sign one here."

Johnston apparently referred to a flying visit to Washington he made late in June to tell his story to naval authorities.

The newspaper story under investigation, an article which estimated the size of the Japanese fleet which sailed on Midway, was based on material gathered by Johnston and was published June 7 in the Tribune, the New York Daily News and the Washington Times Herald.

LONDON — (CP). — The Fighting French Government announced to-day that Felix Gouin, former member of the French Chamber of Deputies and "unswerving opponent of the Vichy Government and of collaboration with Germany," has arrived in England.

LONDON — (CP). — Sqdn. Ldr. Don Blakeslee of the Eagle Squadron shot down a Focke-Wulf 190, one of Germany's newest and swiftest fighting planes, in a clash over Northern France to-day.

Three farmers were fined 5,000 francs each for yielding.

U.S. Bombers Blast Rouen

Pulverize Rail Key With R.A.F. Guard

By WES GALLAGHER,
Associated Press Staff Writer

AN AMERICAN BOMBER STATION IN BRITAIN, Aug. 18—(AP) —A growing American bombing offensive to smash at Nazi strongholds in Germany and occupied Europe in co-ordination with the R.A.F. until the war is won was under way today after a highly-successful bombing attack on the German-held railway yards at Rouen, France.

Twelve Flying Fortresses, with Brig.-Gen. Ira C. Eaker, Chief of the United States Air Force Bomber Command, in one of the leading planes and screened by an escort of R.C.A.F. and R.A.F. fighters, mastered the best of Germany's fighter planes yesterday and left their target under "a great pall of smoke and sand."

Six other Flying Fortresses executed diversion attacks on Dunkirk and Cherbourg All bombers returned safely to their bases, but two escorting fighters were lost..

Canadian Spitfire pilots are credited with destruction of one Nazi fighter, probable destruction of four and damage to two others. A squadron commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. Bob Morrow of Toronto shot down the fighter and damaged another.

Flying at heights where tank-supplied oxygen was almost constantly necessary, the Fortresses hardly broke formation throughout the run.

The bombs which tangled up the railroad yards at historic Rouen, 87 miles northwest of Paris, poured out of ships bearing such designations as "Baby Doll," "Peggy D," "Johnny Reb," "Birmingham Blitzkrieg," "Big Punk" and "Berlin Sleeper." Gen. Eaker's plane was labelled "Yankee Doddle."

Maj.-Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of the United States Air Forces in the European theatre, was plainly enthusiastic.

"We will bomb Germany as fast

Y's Men's Rally Features On War Role

LONDON, Ont., August 18—(CP). —The war role of youth of the Americas formed a serious background to-day as business sessions of the international convention of Y's Men Clubs opened here. About 200 delegates were registered from Canada, the United States, and as far away as Valparaiso, Chile.

"During these critical times you cannot overestimate the value of your work," declared J. D. Buchanan, president of the London Young Men's Christian Association.

Of the bonds between Canada and the United States, and growing accord with South America, Tilmon Edwards of Erwin, Tenn., and director of the South-east Region, said: "Friendship is the world's greatest leader."

Final Tribute Is Paid Mrs. J. E. Birks

CAMPBELLFORD, August 18. — (ENS) — The large number of citizens who came to express their sympathy and pay final respect to the memory of Alice Mary Houlihan bore tangible evidence of the high esteem in which she was held by the people of this community. Wife of J. Ernest Birks. She was born in Trenton about fifty years ago, a daughter of Mrs. John Budger and the late Michael Houlihan. She spent her early life in Trenton later going to Toronto where she was engaged for several year sas a milinery designer. In September 1915 she married her now sorrowing husband in Lady of Lourdes Church, Toronto. They lived for about three years in Orillia before coming to Campbellford in 1919 when Mr. Birks purchased a drug business here.

Her sudden death while in Toronto on a brief holiday on Thursday evening last was a great shock both to her immediate family and many friends and relatives. A faithful member of St. Mary's Church, the many mass cards, floral tributes and other expressions of sympathy attested to the high esteem in which she was held. Surviving besides her husband is her mother, Mrs. John Bulger, Westmount Avenue, Toronto; one sister, Mrs. P. J. Morton of Toronto and one brother Arthur L. Houlihan of Outremont, P. Q.

The funeral took place from Bennett's Funeral parlour at 9.30 Monday morning to St. Mary's Church where Solemn Requiem High Mass was offered by Rev. J. V. McAuley. Racing Pigeons Are Released

COBOURG, Aug. 18 — (ENS). — Cobourg is becoming a major take-off place for racing pigeons. The birds are shipped here in crates by rail and at a specified time the stationmaster opens the crates and the pigeons soar aloft, get their bearings and then fly away on their course. At one time there were several lofts in Cobourg which had pigeons entered in the various races but interest has died down. For some time, however, birds were shipped here for release to fly back, but even that petered away. But during the past weeks there has been an increase in the number racing from here and this past week-end saw 70 crates of young birds, about 3,000 in all, which were released on Sunday morning at C.N.R. Station. Their destination was Toronto.

Jap Pictures Show Surrender at Corregidor

Plenty Of Cash, Real Sense Of Thrift Needed In War Affected London

LONDON, August 18. —(CP) — You need a fist-full of cash and a dash of thrift to live in this Empire capital these days when things not only are hard to come by but more than anyone dreamed of in peacetime.

Asparagus, for instance, costs the equivalent of 75 cents a bunch, a double whiskey and soda $1 a throw and a workingman's pint of ale about 25 cents. But that's only a starter for persons who live, eat and work here. Fun costs more in London than anything else.

The Government has pegged meals at $1.25 for a three-course dinner. But that doesn't mean anything in Soho or the big hotels where extras are charged for service, entertainment and surroundings. Add a few drinks, a theatre or movie and a couple of "quick ones" for the road and the night out will cost at least $15 and sometimes $20.

It's the fellow—usually single and in the army—who wants to keep going after the pubs close who takes a beating. He's got to have about $25 more in the kitty. Entrance fees to "bottle parties"—equivalent to night clubs—run about $3.75 a couple plus about $13 for a bottle of spirits. Then there are tips, taxis and incidentals.

Furnished flats run anywhere from $10 weekly for two rooms to $40 for a pretentious apartment with four bedrooms, two bathrooms, kitchen, dining room and living room.

$10 a Week For Four.

For a family of four the weekly expenditure for food averages about $10. Then there's gas, light, coal, other household necessities plus cigarets at 50 cents for 20, and whatever is spent for a nightly ale at the local pub.

Rationing has worked fairly because it allows rich and poor alike to have the same quantity and the same right to controlled articles. It's the extras and uncontrolled goods that cost money.

Most housewives spend long and tiresome hours shopping in an effort to obtain uncontrolled goods to supplement the regular rations.

If they want a chicken, even a scrawny boiler, they have to place an order weeks in advance and pay $5 or more for the bird. They line up for a rabbit and pay as much as $1.50 for a skinny and boney bunny.

Peaches—when they are obtainable—cost about $1.50 each; grapes 85 cents a pound; cherries 35 cents a pound, and berries 50 cents for a small basket. Carrots, peas, potatoes and lettuce are cheap and plentiful.

Under the rationing scheme each person is assured tea, cheese, sugar, cooking fats, eggs, milk, bacon and jam—and 20 "points" coupons each month to buy canned goods. It takes the wisdom of Solomon to apportion the points so they will last one month.

Three Out Of 17 Survive Crash

PERU, Mass., Aug. 18—(AP). — Three soldiers today were given a better than even chance to recover —the only survivors of a plane crash that took the lives of 17 others.

All three—Sgt. Robert Lee, 23, of Columbus, O.; Cpl. Alonzo Pearson of Somerset County, Pa., and Pte. James Fern of Abington, Ca.—suffered serious burns when a United States army transport plane plunged into Peru Mountain in this Berkshire Hills town Saturday night while on a routine mission out of Pope Field, Fort Bragg, N.C.

In laconic language, the army told of the heroism of Sgt. Lee:—"With his clothes completely burned from his body, he climbed from the wreckaged plane and succeeded in dragging two of his fellow passengers... to safety. He carried two others from the burning ship only to find they were dead.

"He then walked ¾ of a mile to the nearest highway and directed State Police back to the scene of the wreck. He had previously signalled for help by firing three shots from his revolver."

An investigation of the accident, one of the worst in the history of United States military aviation, was launched.

The plane sheared tree tops for 100 yards as it plunged toward a flat spot atop 2,200-foot Garnet Peak on the mountain, then burst into flames.

Alberta Judge, Mitchell Dies

EDMONTON, August 18. —(CP)— Hon. Charles R. Mitchell, 69, Chief Justice of the Trial Division of the Supreme Court of Alberta for the past six years and former Liberal cabinet minister in Alberta for 11 years died in hospital here on Sunday night. He had been in failing health for several months.

The Chief Justice had been chairman of a board of review under the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act since 1936.

Born at Newcastle, N. B., the son of James Mitchell and Isabella M. McCurry Mitchell, he was a nephew of Hon. Peter Mitchell, one of the Fathers of Confederation.

Coming West in 1898 as a young lawyer, he opened an office in Medicine Hat. In 1901 he was appointed Crown Prosecutor at Medicine Hat and six years later became a District Court Judge, at Calgary.

In 1910 he was elected to the Legislature as a Liberal in a Medicine Hat by-election. He was appointed Attorney-General and Minister of Education, later serving as Minister of Public Works, then Provincial Treasurer, a post he held for several years. He also served as Minister of Health.

On March 3, 1926, he was appointed to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Alberta and 10 years later was appointed Chief Justice of the Trial Division.

Survivors are a daughter, Barbara, of Edmonton and two sons, Robert, of Calgary, and Fraser, a Lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve.

Canada's Taxing System Among Fairest In World

LAKE COUCHICHING, Ont., Aug. 18.—(CP).—Canada now has one of the fairest taxation systems in the world, and therefore one of the most difficult to administer, R. B. Bryce of the Department of Finance, Ottawa, told the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs here yesterday.

He said that in meeting growing demands of war economy the Government had decided upon the expedient of the refundable tax in order that allowances might be made for individuals who had entered into financial commitments which might lead them into loss of all their savings under the additional burden of non-adjustable income taxes.

If a man has entered into a contractual agreement to save a large part of his income in order to pay off a mortgage on his home, for example, Dr. Bryce pointed out that he would receive consideration for such saving when the Government levied taxes upon him.

Canada is paying for her share in the war through current production plus a certain redistribution of national wealth, Dr. Bryce said in reply to the suggestion of Institute Chairman Dr. W. W. Wallace that such a general statement was substantially correct.

He explained that although when the Government borrows money from a Canadian citizen it sets up a liability, the citizen on the other hand has an asset, so that the net result, viewed at long range and impersonally, is neither an asset nor a liability, but merely a redistribution of capital.

Securities Investments

Dr. Bryce told of methods whereby the government was raising money for the war through means other than taxation. He stressed the importance of individual saving and investment in government securities. "Important thing is people should not spend money in competition with war demands.... We are advising, persuading, imploring them to save it."

He added that soon perhaps by the end of 1942 Canadians would be virtually forced to save, because of the disappearance of non-essential goods from the market.

Canada is now using her depreciation reserve money which normally or out-moded machines, build new or out-moded marhines, build new houses and factories, and so on in the war effort.

"We can do this for perhaps two more years," he said. "Then we will reach the point at which Germany has arrived now. Germany has spent little on depreciation in the past four or five years, having prepared for the war in advance. Hitler boasted that he spent 90,000,000,000 marks before the war in preparation for it."

J. W. Noseworthy, C.C.F., member of the House of Commons for Yorth North, asked the Speaker if the intricate workings of the national banking economy would not be greatly simplified if all banks in Canada were government owned as is the Bank of Canada.

Dr. Bryce agreed that it would, but suggested that such a policy would lead to political difficulties in connection with farm loans administered from Ottawa.

Jacob Viner, professor of economics in the University of Chicago, spoke in praise of Canadian wartime economy.

Learning From Canada

He said that the United States was still struggling with many of the problems which Canadian economists had already overcome. "We are learning a lot—only too slowly —from the little country to the north," he said. "Your financial leaders have carried on magnificently, with great wisdom and social balance."

He suggested that although the distributive problem in finance was an important one, the problem of winning the war was one to be considered first. "As the war burden grows, the margin of rebate grows narrower," he said. "You're all going to suffer substantial financial loss."

Dr. Bryce said he did not believe that the postwar era would see wealth concentrating in the hands of a few rich men. "We are trying to sell Government securities to the little men," he said. "We would rather owe money to the little man than to the rich man."

Warkworth Citizens Aid In Capture Of Robber

COBOURG, Aug. 18 — (ENS). — Elmer Partridge of Percy township turned out to be a man who can do a great deal in one night of illegal foraging, it was revealed in court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to five charges of theft, four of shopbreaking and theft and one of possession of a gun without a permit. Magistrate R. S. Baxter remanded him until Saturday for sentence. The accused previously served a term in prison for theft.

Partridge was arretsed in a dramatic fashion by Raymond and Ralph Dudley of Warkworth about four o'clock in the morning, August 10. Partridge was making a second trip to the Dudley garage at the time, to pick up some more loot when the Dudley brothers, armed with a .22 rifle, cornered him and held him at bay until Provincial Constable Don Carruthers of Campbellford arrived.

Travelling in an old Model T Ford with an extra gas tank for long trips, Partridge committed five thefts and three break-ins in one night. The charges were as follows:

Theft of wire from C. Boyce store of Warkworth on August 9; theft of roofing paper from C. Dudley's garage, Warkworth, August 9; breaking and entering Edgar's garage, Warkworth, on August 5, and a further break-in of the same premises on August 9; breaking and entering Meiklejohn's garage in Campbellford; theft of gasoline from C. Boyce, August 9; theft of gas from C. Dudley's truck on August 9; breaking and entering and theft, Boyce's garage on the same date; possession of a gun without a permit on August 10.

With the arrest of Partridge police recovered about $200 worth of goods, including tires, tubes, oil, auto accessories and confectionery.

Partridge served a term in the penitentiary at Kingston and has an extensive record dating back several years. He was unrepresented by counsel. Crown Attorney Harry Deyman of Cobourg acted for the Crown.

Trip To Moscow 4th History-Maker

By the Canadian Press.

Winston Churchill's trip to Moscow is the fourth history-making journey he has undertaken since he assumed leadership of Great Britain's war effort.

Previous departures from London were followed by important declarations of policy and had far-reaching influence on the Allied conduct of the war.

The first of the Prime Minister's spectacular journeys was the voyage into the Atlantic to meet President Roosevelt, August 14, 1941. Out of that conference came the Atlantic Charter, broad declaration of Allied aims with pledges of international justice and access to the world's raw materials for all nations.

Before returning to London Mr. Churchill inspected troops in Iceland.

Then on December 22, 1941, the British Leader arrived unannounced at Washington for another conference with Mr. Roosevelt. He came to Canada on December 29 to address the Dominion Parliament the next day.

The next journey by Mr. Churchill was a trans-Atlantic flight to Washington where on June 18, 1942, he conferred with the President on many matters veiled in military secrecy. That meeting took place at a time when discussion of the feasibility of a second front was gaining increased attention among the United Nations leaders.

Shipping and supply problems, it was indicated, were among the subjects discussed.

Reports Mr. Churchill had gone, or was going, to Moscow have been circulted lately, particularly in Axis countries. A dispatch of the German transocean news service August 1 said he had left England to visit Stalin.

Numerous other United Nations leaders have visited Moscow to discuss political and military problems arising out of the war. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was there in December, 1941, and announced after five extended conferences with Stalin that Britain and Russia had reached "full accord" on the war program.

A mutual assistance pact between Great Britain and Russia, to last 20 years, was signed on May 26, 1942.

Battling Aphis Wears Out 2 Sets Of Guns

By LARRY ALLEN.

ABOARD GUNBOAT APHIS With the Mediterranean Fleet, August 18 — (AP). — This flatbottom 625-ton gunboat which waddles like a duck through the coastal waters off Libya and Egypt is adding new chapters to the glorious saga of The Little Big Three which made life miserable for Axis forces.

The Aphis, like her former companions — the 8,000-ton monitor Terror and the famed gunboat Ladybird — has pumped so many shells into Nazi and Fascist positions from Tobruk eastward to Sidi Barrani that she has worn out two sets of 6-inch guns.

After 27 years' service, first along the Danube in the last war and another hitch later of twelve years in the Yangtze River of China, the little Aphis is still in top fighting trim. It is bristling with 6-inch and 3-inch guns and with batteries of machine guns.

The Aphis is always ready for anything. It can even do minesweeping and carries depth charges to cope with submarines.

Riding aboard the Aphis makes you feel like having your feet barely out of the water. She sits flat as a pancake on the sea, takes only a five-foot draught, and can push her speed up to 14 knots. She is one of the most weirdly camouflaged ships in the British Fleet—she is funny to look at, but terrible to meet in action.

Admiral Cunningham, until recently the Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean Fleet, once told me that when a book is written about the Mediterranean war it should be centred about the Aphis and Ladybird. He thinks that what they have done in this war surpasses the imagination of a Joseph Conrad.

During one bombardment of Bardia last year, the Aphis, ignoring powerful enemy coastal batteries perched atop cliffs, glided close inshore taking shots at every enemy ship that could be seen. The enemy couldn't depress their guns low enough from the cliff tops to hit her. The Aphis was close enough inshore that the only weapons the enemy could use on her were machine guns.

She Got 5 Ships

She sank five enemy ships before turning tail out of the harbor. Her skipper was decorated with a D.S.O. for that feat. In another venture she was caught amid a heavy storm and carried far off her course. But she came through and made Port Said, although heavily battered and half filled with water. This year her principal job has been to bombard Tobruk under the command of bearded and jovial Lieutenant-Commander Frank Bethell of Aldershot.

The Aphis has fired thousands of rounds of high explosive shells in bombardments she has staged in company with the Terror and Ladybird, both of the latter having been sunk in the summer of 1941.

The Ladybird was attacked by forty-seven Stukas in Tobruk Harbor on May 12, 1941. Struck by two

Rotary Club Considers Air Cadet Unit

CAMPBELLFORD, August 18 — (ENS) — A development of the club's recent announcement of their interest in forming an Air Cadet Corps branch here came on Monday when Douglas Boyd, secretary of the Ontario Provincial Association of the Air Cadet League of Canada addressed Rotarians at their noonday luncheon Monday. Mr. Boyd who was introduced to the Club by Rotarian C. B. Williams compared the growth of the Air Cadets to various other youth movements such as the Boy Scouts and declared it was a type of work which service clubs might well be interested. He said the interest of the young teen-age boys today had turned to aviation and this was being capitalized in the formation of Air Cadet Units in various towns and cities until at the present time there were more than 15,000 boys receiving this preliminary training in various parts of the Dominion.

Emphasising the importance of this training the speaker quoted Captain Harold Balfour who said it was largely because English youth who had received this instruction, were able to release older and more experienced men from work around the air stations, that the Battle of England was favourable. The complete course, stretching over a comiod of two years (two nights a week) was equivalent of four months preliminary training at a Manning Depot. One of the important features of the Air Cadet Corps was that it saved the Government this expense and often served to wash out recruits who might otherwise have joined the R. C. A. F. only to be eliminated latter after considerable public money had been expended on their training. He said the reason the Government was taking the project over entirely was that it already had plenty to do with the various branches of defense training. He saw the Air Cadets as something that "would not be dis-established after the war—not a political football, it must and will keep going." Canada's pitifully small population would have a much better chance to defend itself from attack if it had a well trained air corps in the post war years. President P. C. Denyes moved a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker and a motion was passed authorizing the Boy's Work Committee to look into the prospects of getting recruits and suitable officer personnel to take charge of the unit. Dr. Bill Hall, a member of the Mimico Rotary Club was a guest at the meeting.

The Moscow Conference

As most people suspected at the time, Mr. Churchill was in Moscow last week, conferring with Premier Stalin and his immediate advisors; with the British Prime Minister were important British and American military men. The announcement of this important discussion says that the twenty men present agreed upon a plan, and that complete sincerity and cordiality marked their negotiations. We know no more, but this news is heartening.

Let us hope that there will be a cessation now in the clamor for a second front. That will come when the leaders think the time is ripe for it and not before. Russia is the party most deeply concerned in the second front agitation, and if Russia is satisfied we must be so too. It cannot be repeated too often that there is nothing to be gained, and everything to be lost, from a premature attempt to grapple with the Nazis in the West. The United Nations must run no needless risk.

It is obvious that great matters are afoot, and that we shall know nothing about them until they happen. Meanwhile we can only sit tight—and work!

"They" Address Us

Too often these days we hear references to a mysterious Power, or Powers, designated loosely as "They"; "They" are directing the war-effort; "They" have increased taxation; "They" have a plan for a second front; "They" have no ideas at all about a second front; "They" are gradually introducing fascism into Canada by subtle means; so it goes, and always "They" are the ones who are busy, and never the talkers. Let us make it clear, then, that "They" are not mysterious at all; they are flesh and blood like ourselves; we elected them and if we want to we can get rid of them.

On Sunday night two important members of the group which is called "They" addressed us by means of the radio; they were the Hon. Mr. Ilsley, the Finance Minister, and the Hon. Mr. Gibson, the Minister of National Revenue. They spoke for half an hour about the new income tax and compulsory savings measures, and in that time they cleared up many points which have been puzzling citizens. The broadcast was well arranged; it had a pleasing air of informality without being disagreeably folksy; the speakers said their say with sincerity and clarity and, altogether, the ventures was a great success.

We think it is a good thing to have Government officials address us in this way. Recently a number of men concerned in the organization and outfitting of the armed forces spoke on Sunday evenings, and their speeches were, successful too. This is the best possible way of dispelling the "They" bogey. The oftener "They" speak to us the better we shall like it.

But there is another side to the "They" myth, and its appearances are almost invariably heralded by the words "They say..." We have heard scores of things that "They" have said during the past few weeks. "They" said that there was going to be soap rationing and there was a disgusting rush for soap. "They" have said many things about defence industries, some of which may be true, some of which are obviously lies, but none of which should ever have been repeated. "They" have had things to say about Army camps, about conditions in Quebec, and about the inner workings of the Government. "They" are never quiet.

No one has ever seen "They," and the things that "They" are reported to have said are always repeated by tangible human beings. Next time anyone prefaces a remark to you with "They say ...", look at him closely. Who is he? What do you really know about him? Is he an intelligent person or is he a boob? Is he likely to know what he is talking about, or is he simply fond of making an important-souding noise? Make up your mind on these matters, and when he has finished his tale, look him in the eye and say, "Who told you that; what makes you thing it is true; and if it is true, do you think you should spread it about?" This frank questioning will probably lose you an acquaintance, but the welfare of this country is more important than any number of acquaintances. And it will help to kill the myth of "They," who do not really exist, but who dominate the imaginations of too many Canadians.

New Words At Ottawa

Few spectacles are funnier than Civil Servants in a hurry. Like proud, high-stepping horses, they hasten almost as much in a vertical as in a horizontal direction. In their orgies of efficiency they devise new and intricate ways of saying things; they coin bright new chromium-plated words. In Ottawa, for instance, it is announced that Civil Servants visiting banks will require identification for "encashment" of cheques. "Encashment" — isn't it a beauty? Round, bright and bouncing as a toy balloon, and about as durable and significant.

The Department of Munitions and Supply has its pet, too. It never finishes a task; it "finalizes" it. And the Government as a whole does not make a plan; it "formalizes" matters. Just at present we presume that they are busy formalizing a plan to finalize the war. Incidentally, could some psychologist explain why the letter zed has such a fascination for Government bureaus?

Recently we commented upon A. P. Herbert's detestation of the new word "dehydrate," which is now used in so many cases where the simple "dry" would be better. The New York Times, which ought to know better, has rebuked Mr. Herbert for his levity in this matter, saying that "dehydrate" is a fine word, and that the fact that it is a bastard combination of Latin and Greek is of interest to no one but philologists. We disagree strongly. It is a matter of interest to every sensible person that our language be kept as free as possible from long, pretentious words which are not needed, and that everything of public interest should be said as clearly and plainly as possible. Almost every day we receive a bundle of regulations of one sort and another from Ottawa, couched in language which gives us headache, earache and toothache; it seems that everything is done to obscure the meaning of the regulation from the common man.

There are two classes of people who use simple, easily understandable language; the first is made up of simple people who express their thoughts simply because they make no pretensions to grandeur, and although their grammar may be faulty their meaning is usually quite clear; the second class is made up of well-educated people who use simple words because they want to be understood, and because they respect and love the English language. And in between come those assassins of our good old tongue who "finalize" and "formalize" and "contact" because they will not take the time and trouble to express themselves simply and with dignity. An editor's curse upon them!

Ferrero—Great European Liberal

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

ONE of the great opponents of Fascism died in Geneva on August 4; he was Guglielmo Ferrero, the Italian historian. All his adult life he was a friend of liberalism in Italy, and his opposition to Mussolini and the Fascist regime was one of the bright spots in the history of that country in the decade which followed the close of the last war. He was 71 years old, and therefore it cannot be said that he died untimely; still, it is a pity that he did not live to witness the final discomfiture of the man for whom he had a profound contempt, and who hated and probably feared him.

The doings of scholars rarely seem heroic to the layman. The man in the street likes plenty of action and color; he wants his heroes to be simple men, moved by simple causes and he wants them to move in spheres which are readily comprehensible to him. Scholars are not so: they are rarely simple in character and their motives are usually complex, and their influence seldom manifests itself directly in everyday life. But Ferrero's effect upon the modern world is as great as that of any bomb-throwing anarchist. Ideas, as Hitler has proved, are more deadly than bombs, and Ferrero's ideas were plentiful and loaded with dynamite.

THE mainspring of Ferrero's character was his profound regard for historical truth. His special study was the Roman Empire, and he attacked the history of that remarkable institution from the moral and intellectual angle rather than from the customary political and economic one. His work on the subject runs into five bulky volumes, which the present writer has not read, but some of his shorter works, such as his life of Caesar and his "Characters and Events of Roman History" are written from a similar point of view. Ferrero was an interesting writer; like Macaulay he was partisan and like Gibbon he loved an effect, but he was always interesting. He had also a journalistic fondness for drawing comparisons between the ancient and the modern world, and this he did with considerable skill; his analogies between Ancient Rome and the United States in the time of Theodore Roosevelt, for instance, were brilliant. He never fell into the bad habit of straining for such effects, however.

Ferrero's knowledge and appreciation of the true Roman Empire gave him a distaste for Mussolini's shoddy imitation article, and he was not backward in saying what he thought about it. It was his view that dictatorships were transition stages between monarchical and republican government, and dictators themselves he considered impermanent and comical phenomena. It was a part of his belief that a dictator could not function unless he was the central figure of a legend, and in his life of Caesar he took pains to expose that conqueror's legend, the legend of Napoleon and—by implication—the legend of Mussolini. The term which he used was "political romanticism," and there is almost nothing which a politician hates more than to be described as romantic. Ferrero was also one of the first men to see the danger implicit in the rise of a dictator in Germany, and when Hitler made his early bids for power the historian said his say through the newspapers, for he was a popular writer in the better-class European publications. Naturally he incurred the extreme displeasure of Mussolini, and there was a period between 1922 and 1931 when he was not permitted to leave Italy. At the end of this time, however, he was permitted to accept the post of Professor of History at the University of Geneva; when he visited America at this time it was remarked that he refused to say anything whatever about Mussolini or the state of Italy.

FERRERO was the son of a railroad engineer; he began his career as a student of law and worked for some time with Cesare Lombroso, the eminent criminologist, marrying one of his master's daughters. It is somewhat amusing to learn that when he was only eighteen he collaborated with the great man in writing a study of delinquent women; one wonders just what his insight was into the minds of female criminals at that age. His life was not marked by violent events; his struggle against Fasicism was conducted on paper and on the lecturer's platform, and it was spread over so many years that it lacks dramatic quality. But it was a very real struggle, for all that. Ferrero's last book was "The Reconstruction Of Europe" dealing with Talleyrand's part in the Congress of Vienna, and this work was translated and published in this country late last year. As always with Ferrero's books it provoked controversy, and its analogies with present-day affairs were as bold as ever. The loss of Ferrero is a very genuine one to European culture, which at present can ill afford such losses, and by his death liberalism the world over has lost a brilliant advocate.

Colonel W. J. Donovan, a distinguished American soldier, thinks military age ideas are all wrong. He says only men over forty-five should be eligible for military service.

Middle-aged men, he points out, can ride as fast in motor transport as boys of twenty, they've better judgment—and they're not so likely to be scared.

Has the colonel ever seen a middle-aged man trying to creep upstairs without waking the wife?

Egypt Keeps All Guessing

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

CAIRO'S disclosure that American air fighters are ready now to go into action in Egypt in their own squadrons is a hopeful turn in a situation which otherwise is puzzling and discouraging.

The development suggests the arrival of substantial reinforcements and promises further augmentation of Egypt's defenders, in keping with the crucial importance of North Africa and the entire Middle East.

After months of intensive improvement of the cross-Africa aerial ferry route, it can be hoped that a fast and steady stream of short-range fighter planes as well as bombers can be kept flowing to Egypt under their own power. Definite information on this point naturally is lacking.

Troops, tanks and bulky supplies for the desert struggle still must move by ships on 14,000-mile, U-boat imperilled voyages from the United States or Britain.

RACE FOR REINFORCEMENTS

The current Egyptian puzzle is that in the month since Marshal Rommel's army was brought to a halt General Auchinleck has not seen fit to launch a full-dress attempt to drive the invaders back to the Libyan border and relieve the threat to the Nile.

Discouragement arises from the suspicion that the British commander decided his 8th Army was unequal to the task, that now Rommel may be gaining in time for reinforcements, and that when the desert front flames into a new crisis it again will be the invaders who take the offensive.

Hopes were high last month that reinforcements had given the British forces a temporary margin of superiority in men and tanks. They appeared to have retained an edge in the air all along.

In United Nations capitals there was a widespread expectation that Auchinleck would momentarily attack in force. But he did not. There was one formidable tank foray of a day and a half, which was reported to have been more costly in tanks to the attacks than to the foe.

This setback, it may be, accounts for a decision to dig in and engage in a race for reinforcements. But in such a race, unfortunately, the odds of geography are heavily weighted in favor of the Axis.

Despite the continuous aerial lambasting of Nazi and Italian convoys and of Bengazi, Matruh and other North African bases, it must be recognized that Rommel's strength is being built up. Convoys of merchantmen from Sicily and Greece have been badly battered by bombs, but fast motor boats and self-propelled barges are able to slip across the Mediterranean by night and in day-time periods of low visibility.

What Auchinleck is receiving, aside from the new American fighter squadrons, is a military secret with Cairo despatches can only hint at. The defenders have one primary advantage in that to a limited degree the Middle East fronts are mutually supporting. Some diversions can be risked from Palestine and Syria, and munitions originally destined for India and even Russia may be sidetracked.

Time also permits expansion of American depots to repair and service fighting equipment of all kinds. Malta, replenished at the cost of a British aircraft carrier and cruiser, remains a sharp thorn to the Axis effort, and the British Navy is back in action smashing at the ports of origin of the enemy supply line.

In default of detailed information the Allied publics can only strive to be as hopefully patient over the outlook in Egypt as over the prospects for a second front in Europe.

CBC Holds Unfair Position

From THE FINANCIAL POST

FOR people who cling to a belief in the importance of simple, old-fashioned fairness, there are two things about the present constitution of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation that will continue to stick in their crop.

One is the fact that an organization which pays no taxes and which gets a fee from all Canadian radio owners should be competing with business enterprises which pay very sizeable taxes.

Second, is the fact that any organization should be in the double role of competitor and policeman. The CBC sets all the rules of the broadcasting game in Canada and at the same time competes for business with the privately owned stations.

Four years ago, Hon. C. H. Howe, then Minister of Transport (and in charge of radio) promised that CBC revenue from commercial sources would not exceed $500,000 a year. The license fee to the public had just been increased and people were given to believe that revenue would be virtually enough to pay for the operation of the CBC and free it from the need of selling time on the air for soap operas, "plug-uglies" and other types of radio advertising.

Since that time, of course, the revenue from radio license fees has grown and so has commercial revenue. The latest report of the CBC gives the figure of $895,056 as the gross commercial broadcasting revenue.

As for the CBC competing for business with the privately owned stations—being at the same time the rule maker and one of the players—this, too, flouts the most elementary conception of fair play.

In the brief of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters (representing private radio station operators) to the recent parliamentary committee on the CBC it was stated:

"No matter how necessary or worthwhile a regulation may be, under this present condition, if it reduces the commercial revenue of the privately owned stations, there is a tendency to wonder if maybe the regulation has been made so that more commercial revenue will flow to the CBC. This situation is comparable to the condition which would exist if the Board of Directors of the Canadian National Railway made the rules and regulated the provisions under which the Canadian Pacific Railways must operate."

The brief went on to cite special discounts given by the CBC for coverage in the Province of Quebec—"a mighty tough competitive condition for the privately-owned non-network stations in Quebec," the brief states.

It cites the complete control by the CBC of all the telegraph company lines between broadcasting stations which "virtually gives the CBC a complete monopoly over all live talent broadcasts except individual station broadcasts."

The brief pointed to CBC regulations which demand advance revelation of plans by potential radio advertisers, a requirement perhaps appropriate for a policeman; not appropriate for a competitor.

Also mentioned was the fact that the CBC exacts a high charge on wire tolls when leased to private broadcasters, which has the effect of sending advertisers to the CBC and of discouraging live talent programs.

Much has been heard of the CBC's contribution to war activities in Canada. But day after day, week after week, month after month, every newspaper and periodical is giving thousands of free columns, millions of dollars worth of free space and support to the war effort.

The CBC has no monopoly of this service, no excuse for claiming privilege here.

No one can contend that there is fairness or wisdom in the present CBC setup.

A Bible Message For Today

Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, thou that leadest Joseph like a flock; thou that dwellest between the cherubims, shine forte....Turn us again, O God, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.—Ps. lxxx, 1, 3.

And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people. But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd.

Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into the harvest.—Matt. ix, 35-38.

Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep... I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine....And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.—John x, 7, 14, 16.

Beloved; let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love.

In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. —I John iv, 7-9.

Uncollected Salvage

Thousands of automobile tires festoon boats, large and small, in the great harbors and tiny coves. There is, it is true, official urging that such tires be turned in for salvage—but there is no effective, director solicitation and collection of the materials by government.

Hundreds of tons of war materials lie along the coasts of this province, metals for example, and machinery, and no organized attempt is made to salvage them. This seeming indifference is noted at a time when, according to reliable reports, some industrial plans in this area have had to be revised because of the shortage of those very metals.—Halifax Herald.

Pleasant Job

According to one of the tales carried from Europe and reprinted in the Canadian Unionist, Hitler and Goering were visiting an armaments plant and Goering told Hitler that German workmen were losing faith in their Fuehrer. This Hitler denied and going up to a workman, handed him his own revolver and said:

"To prove your loyalty to me, shoot five of your comrades."

The man obeyed immediately and killed five Germans. Hitler was delighted, and smiling at Goering said:

"Well done, my good man. Where do you come from Swiftly the man answered: "Warsaw."

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, August 19

ALTHOUGH the energies and faculties are under high stimuli for some very definite accomplishment on this day, yet there are signs of perplexity, vexation, frustration and perhaps turbulence and commotion as well. This might be due to a high-tensioned state of nerves, mind and physical forces, which need restraint and proper direction as well as well-organized plans and techniques. Undercover help might be of benefit.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and exciting year with all things accelerated to a high pitch although not always in the direction of desired objectives. There may be turbulence, irritations and defeats or impediments, with elders, superiors and those in high places not to be counted upon for cooperation. Self-sufficiency may be advisable or the indirect, secret or strategic collaboration of influential political or corporation friends.

A child born on this day should have many excellent talents and much constructive ability ingenuity and enterprise.

DOROTHY DIX

TAXING ALL BACHELORS WOULD BE REALLY CRUEL.

They Are Far From Being The Carefree Creatures They are Supposed to Be.

Dear Miss Dix: I see that the question of taxing bachelors is being brought up again by the politicians, the argument being that the man who has no wife or children should be made to support those of men who cannot provide for their families. That seems to me a most unjust infringement on human liberty, for certainly if a man has any rights at all it is the right to marry or not, as he pleases. What do you think?

OLD BATCH.

Answer: I quite agree with you. I have always honored the men who felt that marrying and bringing children into the world was the greatest and most solemn responsibility a man could take upon himself, and who refrained from doing so when they knew they had no way of supporting a wife or of providing their little ones with food and clothes and shelter.

Certainly the man who has no means of livelihood adequate to support a family should be praised, and not blamed, for his courage and self-abnegation in not dragging a woman and children down into the depths of poverty.

The plea for taxing bachelors always has a lot of sour grapes in it, for it is based upon the assumption that the man without wife or children is better off than the one who is burdened with a family, and that he should be made to pay for the luxury of freedom. The idea is that he can come and go as he pleases without having to account to any wife for his movements, and above all, that he has his own money and can spend it upon himself without seeing it go for food and clothes for wives and youngsters and for setting permanent waves and taking out adenoids and for skates and balls and all the other unending expenses of a family.

Husbands Attitude is Selfish.

So the married man, harassed by bills and wondering how he is to save enough out of his pay envelope for cigarettes and lunch money for the week, is all for putting a tax on bachelors. The mean, selfish things!

But as a matter of fact, the bachelor is far from being the self-centred, carefree creature he is popularly supposed to be. Generally the reason he is not married is not because he did not love nor desire a home and children, but because he would not ask a woman to marry him when he could not have kept and cared for her, or because when he was at the marrying time of life he had old parents to take care of, or often nieces and nephews to support.

Nor does the bachelor have a monopoly of the money he earns. He is the victim of every grafting relative and friend and acquaintance he has; they think that not having any one else to support he might as well support them.

So, inasmuch as the bachelor loses much of the happiness of life in not having a wife and children, it does seem cruelty to dumb brutes to take away from him his pocketbook also.

Why Not Call His Bluff?

Dear Miss Dix: My husband is a wonderful man in every way except one. He provides well for his family, spends his evenings at home, is kind to children. But he has a temper he does not even try to control and it makes our home a place of fear and dread where we live in horror of doing or saying something that will bring on one of his outbursts of rage. At the least provocation he flies into a tantrum and says every dreadful and insulting thing he can think of, accuses us of every crime under the sun and then ends up by threatening to leave home. In spite of this, I still love him, but his temper is driving me into a highly nervous state. I feel that I can't face a lifetime like this. What can I do?

BEWILLDERED WIFE.

Answer: The next time he gets into one of his senseless rages and threatens to leave home, why don't you call his bluff?? Tell him that you've been thinking it over and that you have concluded that as he is so unhappy with you and the children, and you get upon his nerves so badly, you think it would be a wise thing for him to go to some other place where he might find the conditions more to his liking and people who would be more congenial to him than his own family is.

Or you might get some doctor to warn him that his explosions are bad for his heart or that they raise his blood pressure or something. He'd be as meek as a mouse if he thought he was hurting himself instead of hurting you, and he would turn so pleasant you wouldn't know him if there was the slightest chance of his being turned out of house and home if he didn't behave himself.

In good truth, however, I don't think there is the slightest chance of ever reforming a high-tempered man or woman, because they don't want to be reformed. In some sadistic way they get a kick out of making things unpleasant for other people. It thrills them with a sense of power to be able to insult people who are powerless to give them the beating up they deserve. It gratifies their ego that their families walk in trembling terror of them. So why should they give up the enjoyable experience of blowing off the lid whenever they feel like it?

The woman with that kind of husband has only two alternatives. One is to suffer and be strong, and the other is to put on her hat and leave.

Don't Marry For Thrills.

Dear Miss Dix: I've been going with a girl for almost two years. She is 27 and I am 30. She has all the qualifications of a good wife. She is intelligent, pretty, neat-looking, industrious, saving, sympathetic, a grand cook, a good companion and easy to get along with. I see her almost every night. The nights I don't meet her I don't know what to do with my time. I wouldn't give a darn to be with any other girl.

But I don't know whether I love her. She doesn't thrill me as did a girl whom I once went with. Yet I wouldn't have married that girl on a bet. Do you think that if I marry this girl who comes up to my ideal I'll still be thinking about the girl who fired my fancy?

BOB.

Answer: Not if you have sense enough to forget the glamour girl and take the goods the gods provide for you. Just remember that you're older now than you were when you had your adolescent love affair, and that you probably have very few thrills left in your system. Anyway, thrills are the poorest thing in the world to marry for, because they can't last in marriage. They perish inevitably in the wear and tear of every day life. But the good sterling qualities that attract you to this the other girl, last. And grown man who thinks that he can love again the same way he did as a boy befools himself. We see the glory and the cirling wings only once, and then it is through young eyes.

Fit For Summer Travels

A one-button jacket and a skirt with the easy and becoming front fullness style this cedar green silk shantung suit. Note the cool bracelet length sleeves and the tailoring of the shoulders.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

MUCH above plebeian wrinkles, and not very concerned with the most violent heat waves either, silk shantung is a delightful summer fabric much in vogue this season. Despite the wars in China there appears to be plenty of this cool silk on hand, for in the middle price ranges one finds many readymade suits and frocks in the shops made in the rich and Eastern colors typical of silk shantung.

Some of the two-piece shantung models can be worn with or without a blouse, always a help in expanding a small wardrobe, such as the traveller's, to fresh combinations. Shantung of this type is washable, but any man-tailored frock deserves dry cleaning, even if its fabric is washable, simply to preserve its silhouette which water may drag out of line.

GENERALS TAKE FOURTH PLAY-OFF DEFEATING WESTCLOX TEAM

Battling Cubs Sweep Semi-Finals

Over in Memorial Park last night a big crowd of fans saw the Cubs, who are highly favored in East City, take the semi-final series away from the K. of C. in two straight games by making them take the short end of the 15-13 count. The Knights lost 15-12 last Friday night and were determined to make this series go the three games, but it seems that the Cubs, who have their own designs about retaining the trophy again this year, had something to say about it all.

Cubs now are set to tackle St. Peter's who finished on top in the C.S.L. this year. This final set up will be a best three in five affair, the winner to have possession of the Ald. Sullivan cup for a year, and cop the championship. A year ago the Cubs of East City finished on top and St. Peter's met them in a three of five final games. This season the same two squads will meet again, the only different being the positions in which they finished. St. Peter's lost to the Eastern corps three games in four last season and they have no intention of fooling with them this year, as they expect to rub them out three straight.

Cubs in the encounter last night cracked the K. of C. defence wide open by notching up eight runs in the initial frame. The Knights came back with two in their half and held their opponents to one run in the upper portion of the second and scoreless in the third. They failed to click themselves in the second, but turned on the juice in the lower part of the third and didn't stop till five trackers were safely over the home rubber. This left the score at 9-7 for the Cubs. In the fourth and fifth the victors chalked up a pair of trios in runs and the Knights, who failed to strike in the fourth, came through with four in the fifth inning. The visitors managed to slide another across the plate in the sixth, as the homesters completed their bottom half of the sixth with two runs, leaving the score at 16-13. Because of darkness the game was called while the winners were at bat in the seventh and thus for the game score the sixth inning had to be referred to.

F. Garvey opened up play in the initial column and was walked by Anthony. Next J. O'Toole came along with a single, advancing Garvery to second. R. Garvey followed flying out to Casey Masterson in left field, the base runners advancing to third and second. Brady, in clean up position, singled, bringing in Garvey and O'Toole, while Leonard hit a one-sacker and pushed Dude around to second. Anthony gave Caccavella a free pass, as O'Donaghue, the big gun of the team, crashed out a triple with the bases loaded. With a bingle into right Heffernan climbed aboard the bases and Hayes popped to Mattucci after O'Donoghue ran in. For the second time at bat in the same inning, F. Garvey was able to get a one spot and forced Heffernan to second. J. O'Toole received a pass, filling the sacks. Nothing less than a double and clearing the bases of two was R. Garvey's contribution as Brady rolled to Mills, who flung him out at first.

The K. of C. in their half had Tracey at the head of the line, who popped to Caccavella. Galvin got on by Brady's error and J. O'Toole picked up Masterson's grounder at first, the runner going to second. Wolff singled, Galvin went to third and then home followed by Wolff on Jones' double into centre field. To put out Flink the third sacker had to stop a red-hot drive.

Smart Fielding

First at bat in the second was Leonard, who was thrown out at first by Flint, while Caccavella followed with a one-sacker, driving through the infield. O'Donoghue drove a long fly to Jones in centre who covered ground to snare it, Caccavella advancing to second. When Heffernan came up Tracey couldn't stop his sizzling liner and the runner on base scored. Hayes next grounded out to Wolff.

Knight's pitcher fanned in the last of the second frame as Mattucci drove one to Caccavella who nipped him at first. Mills grounded to the initial sacker, retiring his side.

Fred Garvey began the third with a safe hit, and O'Toole duplicated him. R. Garvey grounded to Wolff, the runners proceeding to third and second. The next, Brady, struck out as Leonard peppered the first baseman with a sizzling low fly to make three out.

In the last of the third a big one for the losers, Tracey commenced by rolling to R. Garvey at short, being thrown out at first. Galvin got around to second on the centre fielder's miss and Masterson was walked. With a man on first and second Wolff, the only who batted a thousand for the night, socked out a nice double that bagged two runs. Jones got a single, while Flint duplicated. Wolff came in. The pitcher singled next and ones trotted home. Flint came in also on Mattucci's single. Mills' hit to the second sacker who nailed Mattucci going to second, and first and third were occupied. Tracey retired his side by fanning.

The opening gun in the fourth column was fired by Cubs' second baseman, who when he tried to stretch a single into a double was nabbed by Mills at second. Next O'Donaghue hopped one down to the shortstop who easily tossed him out. Heffernan singled to right, while Hayes drove him in with a double. G. Garvey imitated his pitcher and J. O'Toole notched up a one-bagger after Hayes rolled in home, bringing along Garvey. R. Garvey lifted a short fly for Wolff.

Galvin, first for his teammates in the lower half of the fourth, popped to the catcher as Masterson grounded to Caccavella. Wolff singled as Jones followed with same. Both are left stranded when Flint flied to F. Garvey.

Getting a walk Brady starts off in the fifth as Leonard slips one through the infield for a single. In centre field Jones snares Caccavella's fly and Brady makes it in. O'Toole, replacing O'Donoghue, bangs out a nice hit to advance Leonard one base. On Heffernan's one-bagger, Leonard comes in, while O'Toole gets to third. Hayes grounds out to Mills, and as the latter heaves to first O'Toole steals home. The next batter, F. Garvey, is breezed out by Anthony making three out.

Being given a walk Anthony goes to first and then to second as Mattucci is given a free ticket to start off the last of the fifh. Mongraw, substituting for Mills, bounces one over the infield for a double, bringing Anthony and Mattucci in. Tracey is walked while Masterson makes it on a fielder's choice, filling the bases. Two get home on Wolff's single, as Masterson is caught at third by Brady. Hayes walks Jones and Flint, to make three on sacks again; then he proceeds to send the K. of C. to the field by fanning their pitcher.

For the last inning of the recorded game J. O'Toole starts around the circuit with a line drive into left, getting to first. R. Garvey, who follows him, banged a long fly into deep centre, making the fielder go yards to rope it in, as O'Toole gets to third. Dude Brady pops up to the catcher, then Leonard forces the runner home with a nice bingle into left field as Caccvella pushes up a fly to the shortstop.

Knights' last half of the sixth sees Mattucci flying high to O'Toole in right as Mongraw next makes up for it with a terrific clout over the centre fielder's crop, netting him four bases. Tracey gets on by Brady's muffle and so does Galvin. Masterson wallops out a long high fly, but Heffernan in centre, being noted for spectacular catches, ticks it in neatly after going back far. Tracey is able to skim in to home on the above fly after it is caught. Wolff singles, but Jones cannot bring either of the two runners in, being struck out.

Leaders In Canadian Golf To Play On Cobourg Course Sat., Aug. 22

Golfers from Eastern Ontario are invited to visit Cobourg to Witness Canadian Leaders in Golf in action.—Large Attendance Expected.

"BOB" GRAY

"Pro" from Scarboro Golf and Country Club, Toronto, who is a national figure in golfing circles. Bob Gray has won for himself, an enviable reputation as one of the most powerful drivers in Canada. He hit his stride last year in the Canadian Open when he went through to the finish and it was only at the last that he was nosed out of the title by "Slamin" Sam Snead.

"GORD" BRYDSON

"Pro" from Mississauga, scene of the recent Canadian Open championship playoff, who is one of Canada's best known athletes. In the field of golf Mr. Brydson has won many outstanding honors and in the Canadian open this year hit his stride and led all other Canadians for the "top" position.

"BILL" KERR

"Pro" from Cedarbrae, Toronto. One of Canada's best golfers. It will be remembered that Mr. Kerr bounced into the headlines again recently when he shattered the record of his own course with a 61. Kerr's "smooth game" will be one of the important features at Cobourg next week.

"LES" FRANKS

"Pro" from Islington who has won a favored position in all the big games. Before going to Toronto he was "pro" at the Cobourg Golf Club. "Les" should be right at home on the greens and fairways in Cobourg on Saturday, August 22, which in most cases he helped to build.

Satchel Claims He Was Born 'With Control'

TORONTO, August 18. — Leroy (Satchel) Paige, wonder pitcher who leads his Kansas City Monarchs, Negro American League champions for four consecutive years, against the Original House of David whiskered nine at Maple Leaf Stadium on Wednesday night at 8:30, has one answer for his amazing success: Control.

"I was born with control," says Paige, "and I'm the easiest man in the world to catch. All a catcher has to do is show me his glove—and I'll hit it every time. They can hold out two bats, one six inches above the other, at the plate, and I'll throw a ball between them from the pitcher's mound.

"All a catcher has to know is when I'm throwing my 'beeline ball' and when I'm throwing my 'jump ball.' I throw both with the same overhand motion. Only the beeline ball goes off my fingers on the smooth side and rides on the level, while I heave my jump ball with my fingers across the seam. That makes it jump four to six inches."

The 6 feet 3½ inch piece of pitching perfection, who has defeated such mound stars as Dizzy Dean, Paul Dean, Mike Ryba, Buck Newsom, Schoolboy Rowe, Tommy Bridges and countless others in exhibition games and in the old Pacific Coast Winter League, says he hasn't hit a batsman in thirteen years. That despite the fact that he pitches on an average of 125 games a year, hurling in the winter in the tropical countries.

Paige weighs about 173 pounds, and has gained only four pounds in the past 12 years. He is blessed with the temperamental repose of Stepinfetchit. And, this may be a blow to athletic dietitians, he eats nothing but fried food.

Satch likes to pitch when the opposition is tough, and that's what House of David's crack nine figures to be. He can bear down with the least effort and shoot the horsehide past the hitters with so much ease that rival batters wonder how he does it. Whenever he is announced as the starting pitcher in any game all eyes are focussed on the manner in which he warms up. He has a buggy-whip arm, and, in addition to his speed, has an underhand curve and change of pace to offbalance the hitters.

He loves baseball and is shrewd and serious when pitching. He claims he can stand on one foot for ten minutes before delivering a pitch. He is careful how he warms up and won't throw a baseball until every muscle is thoroughly warm and relaxed.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

It is rather difficult to feature any particular game as being the outstanding one of last night's schedule. They were all good—two going into extra ends and three depending on what would happen on the last end.

The G. Coleman, Jr. and Clegg game was close for more than half way and then "our business man" pulled away.

The Chesler-Fulford game was well played, but Chesler's boys took a big lead in the early stages, and they needed it all as the Fulford clan were coming down the stretch in a hurry.

The Downey-Giroux affair went into overtime. The extra end was most interesting. First one was shot and then the other, until Harold Darling, playing vice for Downey, drew a million dollar shot right beside the kitty and there it remained. It was awfully close.

Charlie Elliott nosed out Bill Jeffries by one shot—and they don't come any closer.

It was only two points that separated Long and Levine. This was also nip and tuck all the way through.

Percy McFadden made two outstanding shots on the eighteenth end to tie up the old ball game with Ernie Wall, and then went in to win by the overtime route.

Rufus Payne used our president somewhat rough, but Fred says there'll be another night.

The great big seven that George Gimblett's boys pulled off about half-way through was not enough. Hutchinson came right back with a few nice ends and led the parade home by 26-18.

Anyway it was a grand night's bowling, and taking it from one end of the greens to the other, one could be assured of witnessing a good game.

The southpaws, Chesler, Darling, and Levine all did well.

Rinks who did not play last night are scheduled for this evening.

And in signing off for to-day — remember the mixed to-morrow night at 7:30 in aid of the Examiner's British War Victims Fund. Everybody is welcome— come one, come all.

Fraser Dunfield Fights Hard For Prexy's Cup

There were a number of interesting matches played at the Kawartha Club over the week-end. On Saturday afternoon Fraser Dunfield defeated Tom McArthur, 5 to 4, in their second match for the President's Cup. The first match ended all square, but Saturday Fraser found the groove, and the match wound up, with the above result. Then on Sunday, Dunfield tangled with Stan Whiddon in a Club championship match, in the most closely contested match of the day. At the end of the match, Dunfield again won, 2 and 1, but their cards showed Dunfield wtih a 75, and Whiddon with a 76. In two other President Cup matches, played Sunday, Charlie Low won from Al Heckman 2 and 1, and Bill Brown won from Ken Smylie 4 and 3. In another Kawartha Cup match, Ken Wood, by steering a zig-zag course, managed to escape Gibby Gibbons submarine shots, and came out on top 6 and 5.

Short Chips to the Green.

President Ed Riley played his final round of the season, Sunday afternoon, prior to entering the hospital, where he was operated on Monday morning, and a report from the hospital said he came through in great shape, but a bit cut up about it all.

The Peterborough Club, plays the return match at Kawartha, Saturday afternoon. They won by so many points, the first time, that the only hope for the Kawartha players is lack of condition of their rivals. The Kawartha members, are hoping that the topography of the home club, will work in their favor.

Owen Cauley, custodian of the Canteen at Kawartha, apparently has Bruce Meredith worried. It seems that these two rivals, have a private golfing feud, and Bruce has been seen putting in a lot of practice, lately.

The Kinsmen's Milk for Britain Tourney, next Sunday, will be one of biggest golfing days, in the history of the club. The course is in grand shape right now, and will be at the peak, Sunday. Entries are coming in from Belleville, Toronto, Oshawa, Lindsay and Port Hope. A large number of the Peterborough members have entered, and their co-operation is more than appreciated.

Night Fighters Sweep Field Under Davoud

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Aug. 18 — (CP).—Led by their commanding officer, Wing Cmdr. Paul Y. Davoud of Kingston, Ont., who himself scored 10 points, track and field athletes from an R.C.A.F. night fighter squadron swept a meet held for Canadian personnel stationed in the Midlands. Fifteen teams took part.

The night fighters more than doubled the score of their nearest rivals from the Demon squadron of coastal command. The Demons rolled up 23 points to take second place, while a team from a wireless station scored 20 points, all won by Sgt. J. Addison of Victoria, who took four firsts. Addison, who ran under the colors of Victoria Y.M.C.A., and represented Canada in the 1934 Empire Games, won the individual honors by sweeping the sprints.

In second place in the individual contest was FO. Tom Brundage of Toronto, who had the weights events all his own way. Sgt. Pilot Mart Naylor of Vancouver was third.

The meet was organized by the Canadian Y.M.C.A., which presented the silver cup donated to the winning squadron. Flt Lt. Jim Steel, R.C.A.F. sports officer, assisted the "Y" organizer, Hart Devenney of Ottawa. Steele took time out to win a handicap race for officers. Prizes were presented by Group Capt. A. P. Campbell of Hamilton, Ont.

In the event, throwing rugby ball, Sgt. Larry Deebank, Cornwall, Ont., was first, with Sqdn. Ldr. Lloyd Hession, London, Ont., second.

Jailed For Fishing

VANCOUVER, Aug. 18 —(CP)—Takeo Abe, Japanese, was sentenced to one month in jail by Magistrate H. S. Wood here yesterday when convicted on a charge of violating an order of the British Columbia security commission forbidding persons of Japanese origin to fish anywhere in the Pacific coast area. Abe was arrested after he had been seen fishing from a rowboat in False Creek.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

About the only thing that is definite about the Generals-Westclox series today is that the two rivals meet tonight at 6.45 o'clock for the fifth game of the final round. A few days ago this column was informed by league officials that the understanding was that the club that was ahead of the series on Tuesday night would represent Peterborough in the provincial playdowns, the first game in Toronto Wednesday. When Westclox took the third game in a row Saturday it looked as if that meant that the Big Bens would be in front Tuesday even if they lost Monday's and Tuesday's games. However, after Generals had grabbed off the fourth game of the series last night, it was stated that there had been nothing official about the other announcement. At first it was proposed that the two clubs should play a double-header tonight. That of course would not have cleared up the situation if the Generals happened to win both games. In that case the two clubs would be all tied up with no winner decided to play Toronto Wednesday. Finally the decision was reached to play a single game tonight. If the Westclox win the whole argument will be settled; if they lose, well your guess is as good as mine.

* * * * * *

Anyway there will be a game tonight and with the feeling that is being stirred up over the bickering this battle should be about the pepperiest of the season. Westclox can settle all the discussion by taking the measure of Generals tonight and reports have it that they may start Tommy Bullock who has been doing brilliant relief work against the Electricians in this all important game. Tommy has been poison to the Generals' battery every time she has gone in and if she starts the pastime will have a couple of strikes on some of them before she begins pitching. Bea McDowell who tossed an excellent game against the Big Bens last night will undoubtedly get the assignment for the Generals and the game looms up as the feature tilt of the season in the girls' loop.

* * * * * *

It is unfortunate that this mixup should have developed. It could have been avoided if the loop had arranged a best three-of-five series to decide the winner. It was known they had to have a representative team ready by Wednesday and scheduling a four-out-of-seven setup was taking too many chances. It is true that the league rules call for such a play-off arrangement but surely under the circumstances the executive would have been justified in shortening the playoffs in order to give the Peterborough standard-bearers a fair chance in the Ontario series. As it is the team that has to enter the provincial playdowns will be decidedly shop worn. Marg Watson, pitcher of the Westclox has pitched four games in the last week and that certainly is not the right kind of preparation for outside competition.

Big Series Opens Tomorrow

Everything is set for the opening of the final series for the City Softball League championship at Riverside Park tomorrow night with Plazas who finished first in the regular schedule and Royals who wound up in second place, two games behind the leaders clashing in a best four-of-seven round. The winners will represent Peterborough in the Ontario intermediate A playdowns, clashing with the Oshawa winners in the first round. The playoff series between the hockey squad and Manager Parnell's club promises to furnish plenty of action. Plazas, it is true had a better showing in the league race, but on the other hand Royals won two out of the three games played with the leaders so that honors are even on the season's dope. But in playoff series, as this column has remarked before, dope goes out of the window. The two teams start all even in this round and the first game tomorrow night should be crammed full of thrills as the rivals strive to grab off the initial tilt and get away from the barrier first. The game is called for 6.45 o'clock and the probable batteries will be Parsons and Eddie Starr for Plaza and Akers or Fraser and Calladine for Royals. The year's biggest crowd is expected.

The big golf tourney arranged by the Kawartha Golf and Country Club next Sunday, August 23, in aid of the Milk for Britain Fund promises to be a huge success from every angle. Already entries have been received from Toronto, Belleville, Oshawa, Cobourg, Lindsay, Campbellford and Port Hope golfers as well as between 20 and 30 from the Peterborough Golf and Country Club and possibly 40 to 50 from the home club, Kawartha. A total of 28 prizes will be competed for. In addition will be the presence of some ten well-known Canadian professionals, including Gord Brydson, Bob Gray, Bob Burns and other crack shot-makers. Baldy McQueen of Toronto the Ontario Golf Association starter will be on hand to get the first flight away at 9.30 a.m. Women golfers are getting their chance Sunday, too, for there will be a tourney for them starting at 9.30 o'clock on the course of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club.

The 4th Anti-Tank Battery in which so many Peterborough boys are serving overseas has won the brigade softball championship, a letter from Manager H. Hopkins of Peterborough to this column states. The message said that the battery had just won the final game for the brigade title by defeating the Winnipeg Rifles 8 to 6. Before meeting the Winnipeg team they had disposed of a field regiment and the Regina Rifles. All three units defeated by the anti-tankers had a strength of around 1,000 each as against 150 for the artillerymen. Harry Milroy who pitched for the battery struck out 15 of the Winnipeggers. Milroy formerly played hockey for Sutton and was the star of the battery hockey team when they were stationed in Lindsay. Most of the hockey team are on the softball lineup which is as follows: Catcher, E. Harley, Toronto; pitcher, H. Milroy, Toronto; first base, W. Jones, Peterborough; second base, J. Hill, Peterborough; shortstop, D. Rolls, Oshawa; third base, Chuck Dorrington, Peterborough; right field, W. Blair, Peterborough; centre field, C. Hay, Toronto; left field, C. McCoy, Hastings; rover, B. Hatton, Peterborough; coach, A. Snarr, Peterborough, and Manager, H. Kopkins, Peterborough. Incidentally the boys are in need of smokes and would be glad to hear from any local organization interested in seing that they are supplied.

Cards Hang On

St. Louis Cards are staying in battling valiantly to cut down the big lead of the Brooklyn Dodgers and at that they have been whittling a bit off the margin. They carved off half a game yesterday beating the Cincinnati Reds 5 to 2 while the Bums were idle. St. Louis as usual finished strong and won the argument by scoring three runs in the last two frames. It was a neat win for Howard Krist who went the route for the Cards and was invincible in all but one inning. Meanwhile the New York Giants were rolling along with a win over the Boston Braves, the fifth victory in a row for Mel Ott's fast-coming club. Yesterday's tilt was close enough; in fact the Giants did not win it until the last of the ninth when Babe Barna singled with the bases loaded to drive in the run that gave the Giants a 3 to 2 win. Mel Ott hit his 20th homer of the season, and he is now on even terms with Camilli in the circuit-clout department.

Clean-Cut Win Gives Generals Fighting Chance

Generals remained in the running for the Girls' League championship and the Bond Cup by taking the fourth game of the playoff series at the Bowl last night 8 to 6. The series now stands Westclox 3, Generals 1 and the fifth game is scheduled for this evening at 6.45 o'clock.

Westclox turned in one of their worst defensive games in weeks and therein lies the explanation for their defeat. They contributed six errors and they all figured in the run-getting; in face only two of the winner's runs were earned. Generals on the other hand fielded snappily and all six of the counters scored by Westclox were hit in.

The Big Bens really lost the game in the first innings when errors on two of the first three batters resulted in three runs for Generals. The Westclockers made a valiant last minute effort to pull the game out of the fire in the final inning when they bunched four hits and a walk for four runs. The rally however fell two markers short of sewing up the game.

Nice fielding was done by the rival second-sackers Eleanor Craig and V. McLean and Marg Hawthorne at third for the winners also contributed some good stops and throws.

Bea McDowell pitched for the winners and held the Westclox well in check until the final frame when they opened out an offensive that looked for a while as if it might give the clockmakers a Frank Merriwell finish. Marg Watson was on the firing line for the Westclox and was the victim of some shaky support. Isobel Bullock relieved her with one out in the eighth and retired the next two batters.

Generals flashed out in front in the first. May Wade reached second on V. Patterson's bad throw to first. Annette De Carlo bunted safely and Phyllis Bigelow got a life on a fumble by Marg Hawthorne, filling the bases. Eleanor Craig lined a single to left, scoring May Wade. Bea McDowell flied to Doris Walker in right. Annette DeCarlo scoring after the catch. Eleanor Craig was doubled up trying to go to second on the play but in the meanwhile Phyllis Bigelow scored. Phyllis McQuade singled but was forced at second by Ruth Hewitt.

Westclox got one back in the second. Marg. Hawthorne opened with a single to centre and after Isobel Bullock and Marg. Watson had flied out, scored on Barbara Rome's triple to right. V. Patterson rolled out to Bea McDowell.

Eleanor Craig's clean home run to deep centre field with one out in the fifth made the score 4 to 1 and in the sixth the Generals had a field day when they scored four runs on only two hits, by Marilyn McCarthy and May Wade, four Westclox errors and a doubtful decision at first base. That made the score 8 to 1 and Westclox looked a well-beaten outfit at that stage.

However they kept on battling and closed up the gap considerably on end. In the eighth with one out V. McLean singled to short and after Eunice Armstrong had popped out, scored on M. Hawthorne's single past third.

The Big Bens made it close in the ninth. M. Watson opened the frame by lining a single to right and B. Rome singled on the ground into the same field sending M. Watson to third. B. Rome stole second and both scored on V. Patterson's single through short on which Generals fruitlessly claimed interference. A. Patterson struck out but Aggie Anderson walked and after V. McLean had flied out, scored along with V. Patterson on Eunice Armstrong's double over third. M. Hawthorne ended the rally with a fly to Eleanor Craig.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

Lambert Curbs Leaf Hopes Chiefs Win 3-2

Although Syracuse didn't score another of its numerous shut outs, it was tight pitching last night that gave the Chiefs a 3-2 verdict over Toronto Maple Leafs and li'ted the club into fourth place in the International League.

Clayton Lambert was on the mound for the winners and he entered the ninth frame with a one-run lead. With only one man out the Leafs pushed the tying run to third base but Lambert protected his edge by forcing Al Rubeling to ground out and then fanning Floyd Yount.

Weather conditions prevented all other scheduled contests except the meeting between the cellar-dwelling Rochester Red Wings and the league-leading Newark Bears which the Birds won, 11-4.

Four Newark pitchers were battered for 11 blows and dealt out eight passes to ensure the Rochester triumph. Out in front by a single run at the start of the ninth, the Red Wings put together four hits, three walks and a wild pitch for six rallies, all at the expense of Joe Page.

Ira Hutchinson, who pitched 7⅓ innings for Rochester, also was generous with passes, but staggered to his 14th triumph with the aid of Lou Sakas.

Some Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, August 18. — (CP). — Back in Canada spectators sit down to watch a baseball game. So it amazed members of the Canadian and United States' Army when they put on a match before 6,000 people in a soccer stadium to discover that most onlookers stood up throughout. (Incidentally the Canadians lost by the basketball score of 18-17.)

What the players didn't understand was that in Britain football clubs usually prefer to spend great sums for players rather than on improving the comforts of the masses who watch. The stadia seats won't hold nearly the thousands who pass the turnstiles.

Of the game itself, a London sports writer said he doubted whether baseball would attract English crowds. He added most of those present "went out of curiosity" and that "while they had a slight knowledge of sport and were helped by a Canadian commentator, they could not appreciate the finer points of play."

Anyway, the crowd cheered mightily and Pitcher Eddie Smith of Kingston, Ontario added to the thrills by belting a homer.

Not that it really matters, but did anyone ever wonder how much a crack greyhound racer would cost? Albeit, top price of 120 guineas (about $600) was paid for one at a sale in Eire. Other prices ranged down to $200.

Jammed Jottings: Although the clubs of the London Football League (now known as the Football League South) will run under Football League auspices next season, they'll have their own cup final at London's Wembley Stadium with May 1 as the suggested date....Final figure of the pool distribution for the season just passed to London League soccer teams is $1,475. There will be no pool next season. One-third of the receipts will go into the Football League coffer for distribution to all clubs playing under control of the parent body.

Word reaches London of the death in Auckland of George Tyler, member of the famous All-Blacks that toured Britain in 1905. He represented Auckland at rugby for 12 years and once held the New Zealand swimming record for the 100-yard free style event......Tom Kirkup, Grand Old Man of London soccer and secretary of the London Football Association the past 40 years, received hundreds of congratulatory messages on his 78th birthday.

St. Patrick's Boys Boxing Club of Nottingham forwarded a guinea to pay for "a punch on the nose" for Hitler......Lieut. William Sinclair MacDonald, Scottish amateur football international and Queen's Park forward, has been awarded the D.S.O. for devotion to duty in the Royal Navy.

Ambassador is shown here entering the home stretch leading the pack by a couple of lengths. The Ambassador took the second and third heats of this Kentucky Derby of the trotting horses to win the jackpot in one of the most wide open races in the stakes' history.

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—(CP).—No matter what happens to the golf in Vancouver's $2,000 Lions Gate Open next week, the entertainment will be something special...Among the entries are John (The Mysterious) Montague, Guy Kibbee, Oliver Hardy and Bob Crosby...Hardy and Kibbee, that would be a match to follow...It isn't official, but Ross Trimble probably will return as Ottawa Rough Riders' coach this season...The Army and Air Force have turned him down because of "gridiron knees," a complaint suffered by almost very football veteran...It merely means that the knee bends both ways, which admittedly would be disconcerting to a drill instructor.

Cards Whip Reds To Slice Brooklyn Lead

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

If New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers don't meet in the World Series this Fall, they'll waste a grudge that would be worth more at the box office than all the .300 hitters on both clubs.

Born in the post-season classic last October but lost amid the pennant squabbles of the current campaign, the ill-feeling between the crosstown rivals has come out of retirement.

The sudden reappearance can be traced directly to the front offices of both teams, the occupants of which know better than anyone else how many customers a good grudge battle can pull through the gates.

It all came about when the Army-Navy relief doubleheader with Washington Senators at the Stadium Sunday would have the toughest kind of competition at Ebbets Field, where the Dodgers had increased their meeting with New York Giants from a single game to a double bill.

When the Dodgers refused to strike one of their games off the day's calendar, Yankees officials were angered as well as embarrassed. Now the Yankee players, who feel the Dodgers are trying to show up the American League in general and the Yankees in particular in the matter of war relief funds, are recalling the happenings of last October.

Among other things, they remember those close pitches, one of which nearly led to blows between New York's Joe DiMaggio and Brooklyn's Whitlow Wyatt. So the feud is on again, and the fellows who handle the ticket sale hope it stays on until World Series time.

Regardless of what St. Louis Cardinals think about it, there is more reason to believe that the World Series will be played between the Yanks and the Dodgers than these is to believe it won't.

Cards Creep Up

However, the Cardinals aren't conceding the Dodgers the National League pennant. With Brooklyn idle yesterday, the Cards sliced the Dodger lead to 7½ games by whipping Cincinnati Reds, 5-2, to sweep a four-game series.

St. Louis broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh, with two runs on a double by Marty Marion, a triple by Johnny Hopp and a single by Howard Krist.

In the only other National League game, New York Giants tightened their grip on third place, four games ahead of Cincinnati, by edging out Boston Braves, 3-2. Babe Barna broke up the game when he singled with the bases loaded, the score tied and two out in the last of the ninth.

The runaway Yankees played their last game of the season in Philadelphia, swamping the Athletics, 15-0, as Red Ruffing hurled his fourth shutout of the year and the 42nd of his career. Ruffing, who tops all active pitchers in total shutouts, registered his 11th victory of 1942 and the 255th of all time to tie Ted Lyons of Chicago White Sox for the lead among all present day hurlers in lifetime wins.

St Louis Brown came from behind twice to beat the Cleveland Indians, 5-2, in a night game, the only other contest on the schedule. John Niggeling pitched seven-hit ball for the Browns, who pulled within a game and a half of the third-place Tribe.

Levy $15 Fine On Frankie Mann

AYLMER, Que., August 18 — (CP). — Frankie Mann, 29-year-old Toronto jockey, was fined $15, and costs, or fifteen days in jail last night on charge of creating a disturbance in a public place "by shouting, swearing, or singing, or by being drunk."

Mann was arrested on August 9 on a vagrancy charge, but J. Noel Beauchamp prosecution counsel, obtained permission to amend the charge to that of creating a disturbance.

Police Chief D. Dumoulin of Aylmer testified that he and his son, Constable Robert Dumoulin, found Mann lying "face down on some rocks" on the shore of Lake Deschenes near Aylmer. He said he and his son carried Mann to an automobile parked near by and took him to the police station.

Yankee Stadium To See Ruth Again

NEW YORK, August 18 —(AP). Babe Ruth is coming back to Yankee Stadium next Sunday—in person and positively not a motion picture.

The great slugger, who played his last game as a Yankee in 1934 and then wound up his career with the Boston Braves, has agreed to give a batting exhibition before the double-header sheduled between the Yankees and the Washington Senators for benefit of United States Army and Navy Relief Funds.

It is planned that Bambino will knock a few fungoes to warm up and then will waddle to the plate and attempt to park one in the right field bleachers—long known as "Ruthville."

U.S. Steel Output 12 Times That Of Japan

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—United States produces about as much steel every month as Japan turns out in a year, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimates. For more than a year ingot production here averaged about 7,000,000 tons per month and in some months approached 7,400,000 tons. According to best available reports, aggregate capacity of all steel plants in Japan proper, occupied China, and Manchoukuo is about 7,200,000 tons per year.

Steel capacity of the United Nations is estimated at nearly 131,000,000 tons annually, more than twice capacity of plants in Axis Europe and Japan.

Statistics on Japan indicate a substantial portion of certain major steelmaking raw materials must be imported by water. Japan can probably obtain 100 per cent of coal and limestone requirements from mines within Japan proper, but there is apparently a great insufficiency in annual Japanese production of other strategic materials, iron ore, manganese, chrome and nickel.

Mines in Japan, Korea and Manchoukuo can only produce about 20 per cent needed iron ore, about 20 per cent of manganese, and only 10 per cent of chromium ore. Nickel is not mined in either Japan, Korea or Manchoukuo.

These percentages are based on the assumption Japanese wartime demands for wartime steels are comparable to this country's. Before the outbreak of war with the United Nations, Japan imported nearly 80 per cent of her iron ore requirements from China, Malaya and Philippines. Today Japan occupies all of these areas, but incoming shipments must pass through waters in which American submarines are operating. Japan's pre-war sources of imported manganese ore included India, Malaya, China and Philippines. Of these only India now is shut off as a source of supply, but water haul from the other sources is hazardous.

The 90 per cent of Japan's annual chromium needs which must be imported come principally from India, South Africa, New Caledonia and Philippines. Of these prewar sources, only the Philippines is open to Japan. For nickel her nearest source of supply has long been New Caledonia now occupied by American troops.

Their Fighting Days Are Over

Italian prisoners of war captured in the El Alamein area are shown being led into their "cage" by a British guard. These men and many more were captured when the British forces, aided by U.S. planes and pilots, doubled back and cut their lines during the heavy fighting around El Alamein.

Bridgeheads Hot Spot.

Especially-violent combat marked the contact of German and Soviet forces about the two invasion bridgeheads south of the Kuban, at the western end of the Maucasian front, the Government Information Bureau announced.

"On another sector of the same front," it said. "Our troops repelled an enemy attack, killing 400 officers and men."

(Germans in the Krasnodar area may be seeking a junction with the conquerors of Maikop, fire-ravaged oilfield centre about 60 miles to the southeast. Again they might strike independently westward along the Kuban toward the Black Sea coast.)

Thirty German tanks have been destroyed and 5,000 invaders slain in the past few days some 350 miles northeastward in the battle of the Don Bend before industrial Stalingrad, a communique said.

Red Army troops were described officially however, as on the defensive before the battering of the upper arm of the Nazi pincers aimed at Stalingrad from that region, centred southeast of Kletskaya.

The lower arm of the pincers apparently remained relatively immobilized northeast of Kotelnikovski, on the Stalingrad-Novorossisk rail line 95 miles southwest of the Volga river industrial centre.

"One Soviet unit destroyed seven German tanks," the Bureau said. "During fighting for the locality of our troops killed 260 officers and men."

Concerning the Germans deepest penetration of, the Caucasus— a thrust of more than 250 miles down the Rostov-Baku railway line toward the Grozny oil fields— the Bureau reported simply:—

"In the region of Mineralnye Vody our troops waged defensive operations and repelled an enemy attack."

Street fighting was declared continuing in a community on the western bank of the Upper Don south of Vorenezh, with Soviet gunners hutting heavily into reserve bolstered Nazi ranks. The community was not identified.

and as often as possible until we win the war," he said. "This marks the real start of an ever-increasing American bombing offensive."

Just The Beginning.

He predicted devastating high-altitude "precision" blows at selected targets from the Flying Fortresses, while giant R.A.F. bombers scourged German cities one by one at night.

"The Germans seemed to pull away and appeared leery about attacking us," said Maj. Paul Tibbet, 28, of Miami, Fla., co-pilot of the "Butcher Shop."

Gen. Eaker warned that one successful flight did not prove a heavy daylight attack would always work, but he said "the raid went exactly according to plan and we are well satisfied with the day's work."

Some British aviation writers had expressed doubt of the Flying Fortresses' ability to execute a successful daylight raid over the continent.

"It was smooth sailing all the way," said 2nd Lieut. Richard Stark of Midway, Ky., pilot of "Johnny Reb."

Rouen is the communications hub for northwestern France, being an important inland port on the Seine and the railway link between Le Havre and Paris. It was there that Joan of Arc died at the stake in 1431.

A British flight lieutenant, who flew one of the escorting fighters and watched the bombing, said "Dust, smoke and all sorts of debris came up into the air and it looked as though the bombing had been very good."

Mighty U.S. Fleet

only one night, August 8-9, and backed off "before reaching the vessel engaged in the landing operations."

3. Enemy air attempts on the first two days of the landings inflicted only "minor damage" on the American troops.

The communique mentioned damage to both sides in the naval encounter, but it kept the enemy guessing what the United States lost and what she knows of Japan's cost in trying to defend the Solomons' shores.

Its only figure was at least 36 Japanese planes destroyed, 18 of them seaplanes demolished before they could get into action and fully as many more land planes knocked out in the vain attempt to stem the Marines' rush ashore from transports.

(The navy previously announced that one United States cruiser was sunk and that two cruisers, two destroyers and one transport were damaged. The new information, that the close-quarter sea battle lasted but one night and ended in the enemy fleet's failure to reach its quarry, however, evidently exposed as false the Tokyo claims of some 40 United Nations ships sunk or damaged.)

Allied airmen, meanwhile, scoured the Japanese-held harbors in the South Sea Islands close enough to the Solomons to reinforce their imperilled garrisons.

A communique today said that Allied planes on offensive reconnaissance bombed shipping in the Port of Kavieng, on the island of New Ireland, but that the results were unobserved. New Ireland is northwest of the Solomons in another link of the island chain at the top of the Coral Sea.

Timor Livened Up.

Medium bombers also raided Timor for the third attack in as many days on that island far to the west where scattered Netherlands-Australian forces are said to be continuing a guerilla resistance against the Japanese.

For the first time since August 1, however, enemy raiders struck back forcibly at Port Moresby, in Southern New Guinea, causing casualties and damage to installations.

In the only land action besides that in the Solomons, the Japanese inched ahead in the Kokoda area of New Guinea, 60 miles east of Port Moresby, but a spokesman said the advance was not significant.

The second phase of the battle of the Solomons apparently was the mop-up of Japan's battered shore and sea forces.

While the Navy communique indicated the marines' job now was to track down whatever enemy forces remain in the islands, a New Zealand Press Association correspondent reported a fleet "of great strength" harrying the Japanese surface forces in the surrounding seas.

Vice-Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, he said, probably has split his Fleet into a striking force to stand guard over the troops ashore and a reserve force fanned out to prevent interference.

Reserves See Action.

Much of the reserve strength already has been in action, this correspondent reported, and "so far there is no indication that Allied losses exceed expectations or have seriously reduced the strength of the offensive."

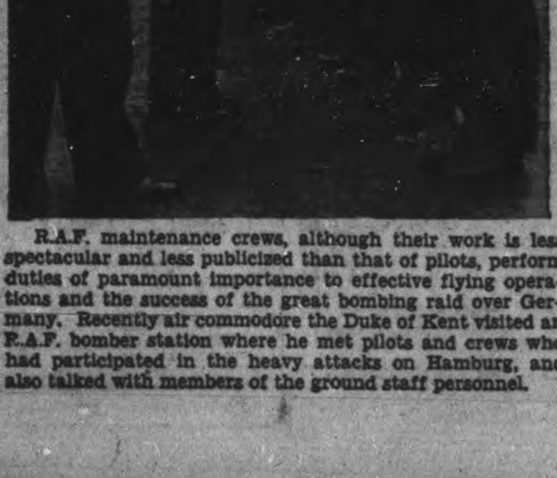
A summary issued by the Allied Air Command for the Darwin area said to-day that since the Japanese first attacked Darwin on February 19 they had sent against the target a total of 308 heavy bombers, 54 dive-bombers, and 159 fighters.

The Allies, it said, shot down 20 bombers and 33 fighters and probably shot down 12 other bombers and 15 fighters.

It was estimated the Japanese dropped a total of 700,000 pounds of bombs, causing a few service casualties and damaging most of the houses and shacks left unoccupied when civilians moved out.

Allied bombers in the Darwin area raided enemy occupied territory 53 times since the first Japanese attack on Darwin. Losses were given as six bombers and 17 fighters.

Duke Inspects Maintenance Crews



R.A.F. maintenance crews, although their work is less spectacular and less publicized than that of pilots, perform duties of paramount importance to effective flying operations and the success of the great bombing raid over Germany. Recently air commodore the Duke of Kent visited an R.A.F. bomber station where he met pilots and crews who had participated in the heavy attacks on Hamburg, and also talked with members of the ground staff personnel.

Rotary Backs Air Cadets; Will Form Unit

The Rotary Club had an open meeting Monday to discuss recommendations brought in by the War Services Committee, under the chairmanship of Gordon Matthews, and the highlight was the adoption by Club members of a motion to sponsor a branch of the Air Cadet League of Canada, starting off with 50 boys either in school or industry who are within the age limit of 15-18 years. These boys will receive elementary air crew training, and the club will supply the training and some small equipment.

The cost over a period of two years will at a minimum be about $20 per boy and during their training they will make the odd trip to some training centre like Trenton where they will be actively in touch with the work. The Club will be responsible for finding officers, personnel, doctors, and quarters.

A managing committee consisting of Ward Smith, Al Lewis, Wes Brown, Bill Eastwood and Art Cauley, has been appointed to make all arrangements regarding the organization of the squadron, and it is a project that will require the whole-hearted co-operation of the entire club.

All For It

Different members of the War Services Committee, Bob Abbott, Dr. George Easton and Ross Dobbin, all spoke enthusiastically about the project, saying that it embodied the four principles of Rotary, and took in the community, national and international parts of service, and was moreover both a vital help to the war effort and a splendid training for peacetime work.

Mr. Art Smith, of Barrie, who has been connected with this work, added a few words telling of his experience with the Barrie squadron. He said that in Barrie the squadron had been granted the use of the Armouries as a training base and that Air Force officers kept in close touch with the progress being made. While the outfit was formed too late to get to camp this year, it is expected that next year the boys will have their two weeks, living just like every other airman. Both Mr. Smith and the other speakers emphasized that the Air Cadets in no way interfered with the army cadets already organized, and that in every case to date both groups got along harmoniously.

It was also decided on the request of Mr. Fred Mann, chairman of the British War Victims' Fund, to forward $300 to this fund.

After considerable thought and investigation, it was decided not to purchase a station wagon for the Red Cross Blood Donors' Clinic, since the Red Cross group had sufficient funds on hand at present to make the purchase.

Results of Daring R.A.F. Raid

Rand Saboteurs Given Clemency

CAPE TOWN, Aug. 18—(CP). — South Africa's European population of 2,190,000 is answering Premier J. C. Smuts' appeal for 7,000 recruits to "avenge Tobruk." The Witwatersrand mining area about Johannesburg alone provided 2,600 men in July; 2,500 more were passed as medically fit but are settling domestice affairs before enlisting. The response during the first few days of August was described officially as "extremely good." Two hundred women have joined up for the Women's Auxiliaries and in all 450 were examined medically.

The Governor-General-in-Council has commuted the death sentence passed on two Afrikaander youths, Julian Visser and Hendrik van Blerk, to life imprisonment. The sentence imposed for dynamiting outrages in the Rand was recently confirmed by the Appelate Division. The opposition press welcomed the commutation of the sentence, but it emphatically condemned violence and issued a warning that similar clemency should not be expected in the case of other contraventions of emergency regulations.

For After The War.

A trade union advisory committee has been appointed which will represent workers' interests both in South Africa's war effort and in post-war reconstruction. Suggested by Premier Smuts, the committee will advise on such matters as receiving munitions, accelerating production and all aspects of the Union's war effort concerning workers.

Johannesburg insurance companies have worked out a six-point plan for industrial co-operation by which manpower wants will be reduced to a minimum. Along with other suggestions, they have produced pools of employees from which business can draw extra staffs in case of emergency.

John Donald Heddon, former commissioner of customs excise, died in Pretoria at the age of 63. Heddon played a leading part in the direction of the Union's war effort, and along with other important posts he held that of controller of iron and steel, and machine tools.

A Natal firm has demonstrated the feasibility of producing rubber from the South African euphorbia trees. A small factory converting latex into rubber within six hours has been erected. No difficulty is anticipated in training natives to tap a sufficient number of trees.

Conserving Transportation.

Drastic changes have been made in the Johannesburg transport system in an attempt to conserve rolling stock and reduce overloading to a minimum. Holiday motoring from Johannesburg to the coast 300 miles away is no longer possible, and long-distance motorists are interrogated by petrol control inspectors.

A voluntary course in self-defence and jiu jitsu has been started for members of the Civilian Protective Services in Johannesburg. In Pretoria a part-time military unit for boys 13 to 17 has been formed to enable youth not belonging to other cadet corps to receive some military training.

A committee has been formed to implement the government's decision to accommodate evacuees from Egypt in southwestern districts of the cape.

Amending legislation has been foreshadowed by the legalization of the extension of housing loan periods for borrowers on active service.

The treasurer reported a total balance of $22. The secretary read correspondence re training for project, "Uses of Whole Wheat," to be held in agriculture board room on Sept. 24 and Oct. 29.

Mrs. T. Cooper was appointed local leader with Mrs. Hilliard Ray as assistant leader. Mrs. H. G. Digweed was appointed leader of girls' group and is to provide her own assistant.

A discussion over cleaning grounds and planting perennials on Institute property resulted in a committee of Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. H. G. Digweed and Mrs. George Weller being appointed to look after work.

Mrs. T. Cooper had charge of program on historical research and gave a very informative paper on the history of Dummer in the last fifty years. Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. Arthur Payne and Mrs. Roland Payne sang "Gather in the Sheaves."

The September meeting will be on war work, the roll call to be answered by suggestions for boxes to be packed for local boys in armed forces.

Fenian Raid Veteran Aids War Effort

George Temple, 95, Campbellford's oldest resident, is shown helping his grandson, 12-year-old Harry Peake, bag potatoes. Mr. Temple had 2 rows of the half acre garden dug, before the youngster arrived on the scene. Believed to be the only surviving member of the Fenian raids, Mr. Temple was a carpenter and gardener at Campbellford for nearly seventy years, and now at the sunset of life, he is making an indirect contribution to the Empire's war effort by gardening.

HASTINGS SET PACE.

Dairy farmers of Hastings county went out in front of the rest of Ontario in July production of cheese with a total output of 1,651,419 pounds. The increase over July last year is not exceedingly great, just 139,135 pounds. The corresponding month in 1941 chalked up 1,511,684 pounds for the Hastings factories. For seven months this year the county produced 5,563,322 pounds of cheddar cheese as compared with 5,401,114 for the same period in 1941. Those quantities represent a tremendous flow of milk.

The steel standards on the Hunter street bridge have been given a coat of bright green paint, which is a great improvement over the old bare iron appearance. The bracket lights, however, on the end piers were left untouched and these look a little drab.

NEW COMMANDO

One of the few Peterborough boys to qualify for Commando training, Sgt. Emmett Guerin, formerly of the Prince of Wales Rangers, has arrived at Helena, Montana, according to word received by his family here. Formerly an employee of the Quaker Oats, he went active with the Rangers, and while out at Prince George, he was chosen for Commando training.

A Cavan farmer is in serious need of farm help. He offers a wage of $50 a month for an experienced man and says in a letter "a student or other inexperienced helper will get a just reward." His letter to E. A. Summers, agricultural representative in Durham county, has been referred to F. C. Paterson, who has the information for any applicant.

FOG LIGHTS STOLEN.

Sneak thieves are still operating around the district summer resorts. This morning Provincial Constable Price Morris received a complaint from Viamede, Stoney Lake, that the fog lights on an automobile belonging to an American visitor to that resort were stolen some time during Saturday night. Expensive fishing tackle in the car was fortunately not taken.

Store Owners Warned Regarding Law

Too many of the employers in stores do not realize that they have to notify the local Unemployment Insurance Office when they let someone go or take someone on their staff, Mr. Bill Mellis told The Examiner Monday. As soon as they have a vacancy, the employer must notify the local office and then they will send him some applicants, or if the store already has someone in mind for the position, they have to send them to the Unemployment Office for approval and permits.

In the matter of permit cards, a number of people changed jobs just before they were issued and their former employers are unable to locate them. These permit cards show that the holder has registered for the national manpower and everyone is supposed to carry it. Those who have not got one are asked to call at the local Unemployment Insurance Office and they will be given one. The authorities have the cards all made out, and all they want is to see that the owners get them as soon as possible.

Five Children Make $11.28 For War Victims

Something of a record is being set up by the children of the city in their work to help the victims of air raids in Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, for, through their labor of love to help those in distress, this column has been able to report at least one effort by children for the last five consecutive days of publishing, and this day is no exception.

Five children in the George and Dublin street area, Elsie and Bobbie Abel, Donna Marie Munro and Gary and Gordon Gilders began by collecting salvage from their neighbors which raised the sum of $5.42 besides giving a valuable assist to the country's war effort in something vitally needed, and then they continued by holding a bazaar at 588 George street, the residence of the Gilders brothers, where they sold flowers, home-made cooking and apples which were donated by the neighbors in the George and Dublin street vicinity to raise a further $5.86 to bring their grand total up to the sum of $11.28, which is credited in their name today, for which they, in common with other groups of children who have done similar work, are to be highly commended for.

The employees of the Public Utilities have on a number of occasions given good help to the fund, and their latest is recorded today with a donation of $10.35, which was raised by their holding a draw for two Chesapeake puppies. These were donated by a fellow employee, H. Simmons, and the draw was made by the secretary of the fund to give Jim Cumming of 529 Chamberlain street the first choice with ticket No. 98, and the second prize went to W. H. Lytle of 324 Rubidge street with ticket No. 295. Both of these have previously won prizes on draws, so now there is an enquiry on foot to find out if they are carrying a rabbit's foot around on their persons.

One personal donation is noted from "E.M.F.," who has proved to be one of the fund's most regular contributors.

Carnival August 21

Next Friday night an attractive event will be held on the farm grounds of Arthur Sayer, adjoining the Rifle Range, on R.R. No. 7, Peterborough, under the auspices of the Range Pals, a group of very active young folk in the district immediately surrounding the city.

For your pleasure there will be games of bingo, a fortune wheel, moving pictures, a fish pond, refreshments and dancing in the open air on a platform specially erected for the occasion.

Last year, this group made over $40 in a similar manner for the fund, and they hope to further enlarge on that this year.

This also will be made the occasion to make the draw for a beautiful afghan which has been made and donated by Mrs. P. W. Hagerman of 555 Water, which may be seen displayed in the show windows of the Robert Fair Ltd. store, for which tickets are 10 cents each or three for 25 cents.

200 Reservists Needed For The Rangers

The 2nd (Reserve) Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers (MG), will resume training this evening, with the Thursday parade following as usual.

All members of the administrative and training staff will attend a course in Kingston beginning the latter part of this month. As this will necessarily interrupt training of the men in the battalion, it is anticipated that there will be a further forced holiday for all except officers and N.C.O.'s.

For the latter, intensive training will be carried out on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, and the battalion training officer, Major J. P. McGrath, M.M., is busy drawing up a syllabus which should add much to the efficiency of the officers and N.C.O.'s. The course outlined for this special training is being designed with a view to giving the men later the benefit of the up-to-date ideas which have been transmitted from the Canadian Active Army overseas.

The recent campaign for recruits was not successful in bringing the battalion up to strength, some 200 men are still needed to put the battalion on a war footing. War equipment is being added to every week, and, from the standpoint of economy and efficiency in training, the battalion should be at full strength this fall.

287 At Camp.

The response for camp training was very satisfactory, considering the fact that the 2nd Battalion has been organized only for some three months. 287 all ranks attended camp and the great majority of these were able to remain for the whole period. The training was practical and thorough. The co-operation of managers of the local industrial plants made it possible for a great many enlisted men from their plants to attend camp.

The Rifle Range camp will be resumed in the fall for week-end training. The men of the battalion will be interested to know that straw mattresses will be provided for the tents in the future.

The recruiting office for the 2nd Battalion will be open every day except Sunday, and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. All citizens are urged to take an interest in this vital matter of home defence, and to do everything they can to bring the battalion up to its full establishment and to keep it on this footing.

Safety Week's Accidents Few

Four accidents during safety week at the Canadian General Electric Company involved a time loss of about ninety-man hours, T. A. Lister, safety engineer, estimated today in summarizing the immediate effects of the campaign to arouse employees to a keener attitude of care and vigilance in shop work.

Three minor accidents and one slightly above that classification were the week's comparatively light toll. One man had the palm of his hand injured at a machine, but he was expected to be back at work today.

Annual Bonner-Worth Picnic Is Most Successful In Decade

The annual picnic of the Bonner-Worth plant was one of the most successful in years as the employees had a thoroughly enjoyable time from one o'clock when they left on the Stoney Lake for Wallace Point until they returned to the city around 8.30 p.m. There were all kinds of races for the tiny tots right on up to adults, and after a delightful picnic supper there was dancing for those who felt so inclined.

Much credit is due to those on the picnic committee for the splendid job of organizing and arranging that they did. Everything went without a hitch and the result was a splendid picnic. The members of the commttee were: J. Sharp, G. Reader, A. Rutter, B. Murray, D. McGregor, B. Merett, V. McDonald.

Lured Them Out

AGINCOURT, Ont., Aug. 18 (CP) —A swarm of bees, 45,000 strong, was expelled from the passenger depot here by Beekeeper George May, who took two hours to lure out the queen bee and hive.

Place Of Twins

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Aug. 18 (CP) —Twins are commonplace things at the nearby Bannockburn farm of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn where three sets of twin calves have been born in the same barn and twin onions are numerous in the field.

AN AUTUMN CHORUS.

The incessant sibilance of the cicadas is ne of the nightly sounds of late autumn. Cool nights tend to chill and discourage the unison from the grasses, but they tune up and swing it when the temperature rises

Elks Blitz Apsley Gardens Mangolds, Turnips, Oats Gobbled

Some of the farmers in and around Apsley way are having plenty to say about the "cute little elk" up there in the Crown Game Preserve. These animals have been nonchalantly helping themselves to oats, mangolds and turnips being grown to feed the cattle next winter, and they are not satisfied with a bit here and there, oh no, they have to clear the whole patch out.

This is the second year that this has happened and these men who have worked so hard to prepare for winter are more than a little peeved. They say sure, there are signs up on the boundaries of the park, but the elk just ignore them completely.

One man, Albert Johnson, with a nice patch of mangolds heard them out there one night and hoofed it out as hard as he could go and caught them just after they had made a start. So he chased them out and hung around for a while and there was no further sign of the animals. But the next morning— the mangolds patch was completely cleaned out. And it is the same with the oats and the turnips.

This same chap lived very close to Apsley and after the first year of this trouble he moved up north of Apsley, but it didn't do much good, the elk followed. When their crops are cleaned out in this manner it upsets their whole calculations. Some of the men are threatening to buy themselves a nice big hound and a couple of good sized rifles to see if they can get action. They'll put up with a certain amount of abuse, but there is a limit.

Obituary

MARTIN COLLINS.

Friends will mourn the passing of of Martin Collins, 364 Roger Street, who died in this city Monday, after residing here for 35 years, after a lingering illness.

Son of the late Michael and Ann Collins, who were pioneers of Ennismore Township, coming out from Ireland as a young couple, the late Mr. Collins was a man of quiet and kindly disposition who possessed many friends. He was one of a family of nine children, two of which still survive. Mr. Collins was a farmer until he returned to the city, and he lived for a number of years in Ennismore.

He is survived by one sister Mrs. R. W. Carson, and a brother, Michael Collins, both of this city.

The funeral will take place Wednesday morning with Requiem Mass at the House of Providence at 7 a.m. It will leave here at 9 a.m. and interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Wartime Work Of Farmers Is Commended

One of the ultimate results of the work of dairy farmers of this country is reflected in the following quotation from a letter, written in London, England, on July 24 and received here yesterday:

"The cheese ration has been increased to one-half a pound a week for each person and one pound a week for those engaged in heavy work. We don't know how long this will last, but it will likely continue for a few weeks anyway.

"I think it may be said that people here are well fed, and they don't need any fats through the medium of 300-pound pigs as advocated by some people."

Two comments in the letter are of interest to farmers. One is the satisfactory news that cheese in volume is reaching the tables of the British people, and the other conveys approval of Canada's policy of insisting on lean Wiltshire sides in filling the British bacon contract recently enlarged by 100,000,000 pounds for the coming year.

The letter conveys direct proof of the good work the farmers of this country in the huge job they are shouldering of producing foodstuffs for Britain in spite of a shortage of labor.

Bennett Camp Sure Of Election

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 — (AP). — Backers of State Attorney-General John J Bennett, Jr., contended today he has enough votes to be assured of the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York, while from the camp of his rival, Senator James M. Mead, came the declaration that Bennett, even if nominated, could not be elected.

Bennett's cause is being supported by State Chairman James A. Farley, and President Roosevelt has endorsed Mead.

Decision of the American Labor Party to place a separate ticket in the field if Bennett is nominated has involved the picture further. The Democratic convention opens in Brooklyn Wednesday.

Terence McManus, Mead's campaign manager, and Maurice P. Davidson, of the State Power Authority, said a Republican candidate surely will win if the A.L.P. enters a ticket in the November General election. Thomas E. Dewey, former New York District Attorney, is considered the likely G.O.P. choice.

The Sheriff Forgot

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Aug. 18— (AP).—Deputy Sheriff Bill Brent was busy all day warning people not to leave valuables in unlocked automobiles—the circus was in town and he feared an influx of pickpockets. He was so busy, in fact, he confessed to the sheriff yesterday, that he quite forgot to lock his own car from which someone stole his new pants.

SUNDAY OF PRAYER.

The Governor-General will announce Sunday, September 6, as a special day of prayer on the third anniversary of Canada's entry into the war.

Radio-Ad-Ogram Contestants

Number One Ad-Ogram was not clearly printed in Monday's paper. Here is the correct wording:

"FRESH DAILY"

Sgt. A. Dainton Praised For Rare Courage

Sgt. Arthur Dainton, formerly of Peterborough, and now a member of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, overseas, through his clear thinking and courage, has been instrumental in saving the life of one of the men under his command when a hand grenade fell short of its mark and exploded.

SGT. ARTHUR DAINTON

According to word received by his wife, Mrs. A. Dainton, 864 Water street, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dainton, 180 Auburn street, both men were badly burned, and the one man has severe head injuries. But both are progressing nicely now.

Sgt. Dainton was one of those put in charge of a group of men during manoeuvres and his job was to have the boys throwing hand grenades in the proper fashion as they advanced. When the grenade had been released, every man had instructions to throw himself on the ground, face downwards.

The third man came up and got his grenade, and it was not until he was jumping a ditch that the instructors noticed that he was left-handed and when he released the grenade it didn't travel as far, and before Sgt. Dainton could take more than a few steps the grenade had rolled down the ground and into the ditch. The soldier in his excitement disobeyed orders and threw himself on the ground, face upwards, with only his hands over his face.

Wasting no time, Sgt. Dainton started towards him, talking, and finally his voice penetrated the man's stupor and he started to roll over, but it was too late. Just as the grenade exploded, Sgt. Dainton threw himself on top of him and protected the man underneath from the worst part of the explosion. Both were knocked unconscious and the next thing that the sergeant remembered was the men tearing off his clothes.

Mrs. A. Dainton received a cable a couple of weeks ago, stating that her husband had been injured in manoeuvres and in the last day or so she has received a more detailed account. Sgt. Dainton has been overseas about thirteen months, and besides his wife, he has a baby daughter. Peterborough can be justly proud of the record of this representative.

Some Explaining

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(AP).—A bunch of girls—12 in fact—were whooping it up at a poker party in Brooklyn. They were so noisy that the police came, and eight spent the night in the clink. The next day all were released after a magistrate suspended sentence. "Boy, oh boy," exclaimed one waiting husband, "Wait till she tries to explain this one!"

Battling Aphis

heavy bombs and burning fiercely she slipped slowly under water, but firing every gun as long as their muzzles remained above the surface.

The Terror won a reputation as the fleet's "Little Warspite' for she carried fifteen-inch guns in addition to her other armament. When the Terror went to work the Axis forces ashore thought that battleships were in action.

I made several trips aboard the Terror before the Stukas finished her career. And never shall I forget that the concussion from her fifteen-inch guns was so terrific my body seemed as if it were being folded up like an accordion.

The blasts from a hail of bombs crumpled the Terror amidships off Libya. She took the death plunge in June, 1941. The shells poured into Axis bases in Libya by the Terror, Ladybird and Aphis were approximately 5,000 tons last year alone.

Since all these ships were originally built for river work only, they had quite a problem to face when ordered from China to proceed full speed through the Pacific and Indian Oceans to join the fight in the Mediterranean.

They made themselves seaworthy for such a strenuous voyage in the following fashion: Compartments forward and aft were shored up and temporary messes were rigged up around the battery deck. An extra water tank and two sampans were placed aft on the upper deck. All the six-inch guns were lashed and a five-inch breakwater was erected before the foremast gun to block the big waves coming over. The three ships reached Malta and Alexandria in six months.

With that kind of resourcefulness the little Aphis probably will produce many more stirring adventures in months to come.

Two Transients Caught Begging

"I haven't been here for over a year," declared Andrew Ryan, transient, when he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning, charged with begging.

"A lot of people have never been here in their whole lifetime and yet you are boasting about a year," commented the magistrate.

Ryan pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to ten days' imprisonment in the county jail.

Another familiar face was that of Thomas Gorman who also admitted that he had been guilty of begging yesterday.

"I couldn't have been doing much harm. I was done by the boat houses when the officers found me," he said.

His sentence was also ten days in jail.

Two Soldiers In Car Mishap

Two soldiers in training at the Military Training Centre here had a narrow escape from serious injury Monday night when the car in which they were riding crashed into a Hydro pole.

The accident happened at the intersection of the middle Smith road and Highway 28, between Peterborough and Lakefield.

Pte. T. H. Mercer was driving his car south on the Middle Smith road and failed to make the turn at the intersection, the automobile colliding with a Hydro pole which was broken off. Neither Mercer nor Pte. Pat Ryan who was a passenger was hurt but the car was damaged to the extent of $150.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable Price Morris.

The Government's subvention on fertilizers for fall wheat is being continued this season, F. C. Paterson, agriculture representative said this morning.

The rates of this subsidy are as follows: 30 cents for each unit of nitrogen, 15 cents for each unit of phosphorus and 15 cents for each unit of potash.

For the specially prepared mineral mixture known in the fertilizing business as 2-12-6, two nitrogen, twelve phosphorus and six potash, the subsidy amounts to $3.30 a ton.

For ammonimum phosphate the subvention is $10.50 a ton; and for 60 per cent potassium muriate $9 a ton.

Farmers are generally acquainted with these facts but they are mentioned a reminder that the Government's assistance is still available, and farmers are now beginning to work on their next season's crop before they have finished their present job.

Quite a number of farmers have been bringing in samples of soil to be tested. Mr. Paterson said that it would be helpful if others who intended to have tests made of their soil would submit samples as early as convenient for the farmers themselves.

CHARMING TABLE MANNERS WIN GALA DATES

Used Napkin Left Under Plate

It's the little things that count in table manners and a smart hostess is oh, so aware, whether you observe them!

Naturally, after a dinner party, you don't fold your napkin. But it's what you do with it that counts! The lovely girl in our sketch correctly half-folds hers and puts it under the edge of her plate.

When she is served first she knows it's all right to begin before the others—but what counts is, she doesn't dive right in, table manners being based on the idea that you're not starving!

On a restaurant date, she knows it's the man's place to choose a table and pull out the more desirable seat for her; but if it's a double date she'll sit opposite the other woman.

She herself is a charming dinner hostess. Offering a second helping she says "Will you have some lamb?" not "Will you have some more lamb?"

Knowing such fine points you can't possibly worry about making slips. Our 32-page booklet tells what silver to use for each course, how to eat unusual foods. Gives rules for restaurant dates, teas, buffets, formal dinners.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps for your copy of "Good Table Manners" to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

CORRECT YOUR ERRORS

NOBODY plays bridge except plain, ordinary human beings. Consequently, no matter how brilliant they may be at times, all of them make some mistakes in any activity they essay. Bridge is largely a medium of enabling you to try to profit from your opponents' mistakes and attempt to keep the cost of your own errors at a minimum. Frequently we see both of these fundamentals in operation on the same deal.

At Table 2, where the bidding was conservative, only 4-Hearts got made, following a lead of the diamond 5, as one trick each was lost in diamonds, hearts and spades.

Did you ever see more terrifically optimistic bidding than North's 3-Hearts call at Table 1? That got his side into an impossible contract—that is, impossible except with some help by the opposition. Combining that with superlative effort on his own part enabled South to correct his side's bidding mistake.

The help from the opponents came in the opening lead of the spade 4, making the J a winner. The club 8 was led to the K, the heart 8 to the Q and A, the spade A cashed, the heart 10 led and overtaken by the J when West ducked, then the heart 6 to the K. West now returned the spade K, which South ruffed. The club A was taken, then South proceeded to squeeze East, counting on him for the minor suit honors after West had shown the major kings.

South's heart lead to the tenth trick was made when he held also his three diamonds, North the club 10 and three diamonds, one of which he discarded, and East the club Q and three diamonds. If East threw the club Q, the 10 would be set up. So he tossed one of his diamonds, the 8, whereupon the A and K dropped the Q and J, giving the 9 the last trick.

Tomorrow's Problem

What principle of safety is exemplified by the correct bidding of this deal, which would be violated by the incorrect bidding likely to be done by many fair players?

Greenwood Asks India Parley If Campaign Ends

LONDON, Aug. 18—(CP Cable).—Arthur Greenwood, former Minister without portfolio in the Churchill Cabinet, urged yesterday in the name of the British Labor Party that the British Government make clear it would resume self-government discussions with Indian leaders upon abandonment of the civil disobedience campaign by the All-India Congress Party.

In a BBC broadcast, Mr. Greenwood said that Mohandas K. Gandhi, leader of the campaign in India and now under arrest, is "utterly oblivious to the urgency and gravity of the world situation."

However, he asked on behalf of the Labor Party that the Government "make it clear that on abandonment of civil disobedience it would be ready to resume free and friendly discussions with a view of safeguarding and implementing the principles of self-government already proclaimed."

Mr. Greenwood said the "world does not expect that President Roosevelt's four freedoms and the wide declarations contained in the Atlantic charter can be implemented until we begin to reap the fruits of victory...There can be no future even for non-belligerents apart from a victory for the Allies."

He concluded his broadcast with a plea that "all who live for the ultimate and complete victory of the forces of freedom will use their influence to secure India's effective co-operation in mankind's great struggle against the forces of evil, on the basis that freedom won for the world will mean freedom won for the Indian peoples."

Looking To Home

Tokyo, (From Japanese Broadcasts), Aug. 18 (AP).

THE war office announced today that Lt.-Gen. Jun Ushiroku, hitherto chief of staff of the Japanese armies in China, has been named commander-in-chief of central defence headquarters in Japan and raised to the rank of general. The newspaper Asahi said the appointment was significant "with regard to the increased importance of defence of the mother country and especially of her east coast now that the first phase of the war operations in great Asia has come to an end."

Hastings County Tops In Cheese

BELLEVILLE, Ont., August 18.—(CP)— Hastings county again led the Province in cheese production in July with 1,651,419 pounds, according to Agricultural representative H. L. Fair, of Stirling. This is a slight increase over July 1941 production of 1,511,684 pounds.

In the seven months ending July 1942 Hastings county produced 5,-53,322 lbs. of cheese, compared with 4,401,604 pounds for the same period last year.

Numerous showers throughout the summer have kept pastures in good condition with the result that a number of factories are making as much cheese now as they have at any time this year. Present prospects indicate the 1941 production of 9,426,779 pounds will be exceeded this year.

McALESTER, Okla., Aug. 18. —AP).—They're chicken thieves and murderers, but Warden Fred Hunt calls them commandos in the making.

They're the 204 convict members of the military training company of the Oklahoma State Penitentiary.

Some of them are lifers. In fact, it was the lifers who brought about organization of the company. The lifers banded together to form Fighters, Inc. (for incarcerated) and petitioned President Roosevelt for duty as a suicide squad.

Nothing came of that and the movement grew into the present training company. The convicts hope they may be taken as a unit into the army.

Warden Hunt and Governor Leon C. (Red) Phillips favor the idea.

The convict commander was a lieutenant in the last Great War and won the Distinguished Service Cross, the Croix de Guerre and the American Victory Medal with three battle stars. He is serving three years for forgery.

His two lieutenants were non-coms in the Marines.

Magazine Story Irks Detroit

DETROIT, Aug. 18—(AP).—Detroit's mayor and leaders of its union labor today took torrid issue with an account of this city's performance in the war production effort published in the current issue of Life magazine.

The article was torn from some copies of the magazine by customs officials before they were permitted to cross into Canada under orders which the United States collector of customs, Martin R. Bradley, said came from Washington.

He added that the order was too late to prevent transportation of 100,000 copies to Windsor, Ont.

(A spokesman for the press censors of Canada said at Ottawa last night that Canadian censorship was not involved.

(At New York, C. D. Jackson, general manager of Life magazine, expressed surprise that orders had been given to tear out five pages before permitting copies of the magazine to enter Canada.)

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries and R. J. Thomas, president of the C.I.O. United Auto Workers, contended that the five-page lead article, entitled "Detroit Is Dynamite," had unjustly impugned Detroit's patriotism.

Anti-Sub Blimp Loses Its Crew

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18—(AP) —Two naval officers, missing when their crewless and broken blimp floated in from the ocean and descended on a street in suburban Daly City, were hunted at sea off the Golden Gate today. The blimp had been on a routine anti-submarine patrol flight.

Two life belts were missing from the craft when it landed, but all parachutes and the rubber life raft were found in the gondola where the two officer-crewmen rode.

The blimp, sagging in the middle, with big tears visible in its fabric and with its two motors idle, drifted in from the Pacific yesterday morning, five hours after it had taken off on a flight.

The craft wandered along at tree top height, left one of its depth charges on the Lakeside golf course when a bomb rack scraped the ground, and settled to earth in nearby Daly City. It struck one house and two autos, but caused little damage.

One depth charge still in the bomb rack under the gondola offered no hazard, inasmuch as it would explode only under water at considerable depth, naval men said. The depth charge left on the golf course likewise did not endanger anyone.

CANADIANS IN FRANCE

Commandos Storm Dieppe In All-Day Battle
Yanks, British, French Aid - Tanks, 1000 Planes

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 19 (CP Cable)—Canadian Army forces, supported by British, American and Fighting French Commandos, stormed the French coast on the broad beaches around Dieppe at dawn today, and with tanks and the greatest aerial umbrella ever spread aloft fought on throughout the day against the German defenders.

Every Canadian fighter squadron in Britain was in action in support of their countrymen on the ground. There was a constant procession of more than 1,000 Canadian, British and American fighters and bombers from British front-line airdromes to the battle zone in France.

Despite the unprecedented scope of the attack by the Commandos, the BBC repeatedly announced that the action was not an invasion intended to create a front in Western Europe but was only a raid. This was supported by the return to Britain this afternoon of some of the forces who had accomplished their mission speedily.

Despite the great concentration of planes, it was reported reliably that no parachutists were used.

From dawn on through late afternoon the constant shuddering roar of heavy explosions denoting the battle's continuance shook buildings on the English side of the Channel.

FLYING FORTRESSES BLAST HUN BASES.

Escorted by Canadian and British fighters, two squadrons of United States Flying Fortresses smashed at one base of Nazi aerial resistance in a high-level bombing of a German fighter station at Abbeville, 38 miles north-east of Dieppe, setting buildings afire and smashing runways.

As the battle thundered on, first units of the commando force, who had speedily accomplished their mission, returned to a British port in gay spirits.

There was no immediate indication how many men returned in the first group, nor whether Canadians who made up the bulk of the troops involved and about one-third of the entire expedition were among them.

It was presumed that those who returned constituted the wing of the Allied force which a communique said accomplished its objective and withdrew.

The German radio was heard broadcasting this account of the fighting: "The German counter-attack against troops which landed at Dieppe is taking a successful course. Advancing German troops repelled the enemy and hourly increased the British losses in men and material. . . number of prisoners already have fallen into German hands.

It was believed that Ross Mnuro, Canadian Press war correspondent, accompanied the Canadian forces across the Channel. He has not been in touch with his office for several days, his absence paralleling the secret operation time of the Dieppe expedition.

The Canadian forces in Britain thus had their first test against the German enemy, just as the new Canadian-United States so-called super-commandos began training at Helena, Mont., for similarly arduous invasion work.

Under Gen. Roberts

OTTAWA, Aug. 19—(CP).—Canadian troops who participated in the raid on Dieppe were under command of Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts, one of Canada's divisional commanders overseas, Defence Minister Ralston announced today. In the raid on the Dieppe area the troops of the Canadian army have at last had a chance in action. It is correct that Canadians made up a very substantial portion of the attackers.

Every Canadian Squadron Out

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 19 —(CP Cable)—Every Canadian fighter squadron was in action today supporting the troops of their own country for the first time in this war, engaging in air battles over the Dieppe area where the Commandos made their heavy daylight strike.

Protective planes flew thick and fast across the Channel and formed part of a force which was estimated at more than 1,000 aircraft of the United Nations. They roared into the sky from Britain's front-line airdromes to form what was believed to be the greatest protective umbrella in aviation history.

By 2 p.m. (9 a.m. EDT) some squadrons had made as many as half-a-dozen sweeps, pausing between flights only long enough to refuel and rearm.

The scenes recalled the battle of Britain when the ground crews worked so fast it was only a matter of couple of minutes before the plans were back in action again.

A fighter squadron commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. Keith Hodson of London, Ont., was in the R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. escort which convoyed American Flying Fortresses to the enemy fighter base at Abbeville, France.

The flight to the target was uneventful. After the bomber attack on Abbeville the Canadian squadron flew over the Dieppe area, where it attacked several Dornier-217's, Germany's latest dive-bomber.

Hodson fired a long burst at one Dornier from 50 yards, while Sgt. M. Zobell of Raymond, Alta., emptied all his cannon and machine-guns in-

Brazil Calling In All Troops War Tempo Rises—Sub Sunk

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 19—(AP).—All Brazilian soldiers on leave were recalled urgently to duty today and the Navy forbade furloughs for regular reserves as this nation at the "gates of war" hastened steps to meet the threat of Axis submarines that recently sank five Brazilian coastal ships.

One of the submarines lurking off these coasts was destroyed by a United States plane, a Brazilian official announced.

It was learned authoritatively that two submarines had been located at widely separated positions in the western Atlantic and that one was of large size.

Meanwhile a merchant marine spokesman said all Brazilian coastal waters were clear of shipping and that 13 ships which were in the submarine zone had reached ports safely.

First official word of the sinking came from Cmdr. Ernani A. R. Amral Peixoto, Federal Liaison officer in the State of Rio De Janeiro, who told a crowd gathered before the Presidential Palace that one of the undersea raiders had been destroyed.

Government press department and other accounts in Brazilian newspapers gave this version of the attack:

The submarine was sighted 50 miles off Brazil's coast by a United States plane piloted by Capt. Jack Lacey. The plane dived, machine-gunning the submarine and forcing it to the surface with bombs when it attempted to submerge.

Th Diario Carioca, quoting authorized sources, said the submarine apparently was damaged in this first attack. The plane dived again, this time finishing the submarine with direct bomb hits.

Meanwhile, a naval spokesman said an Axis surface raider prowling the South Atlantic had been sighted near the Brazilian Island of Trindale, 1,000 miles off the coast several days ago.

20 Officers Run Suspect Down

TORONTO, Aug. 19 — (CP). — Twenty policemen laid siege to several blocks in North Toronto for two hours today to capture a youth in military uniform, said to be a member of the reserve army, who was charged with assault and robbery of Mrs. Davida Anderson, post-office employee. Police said she was beaten and robbed after alighting from a streetcar at 4.30 a.m.

Four shots were fired during the siege as the accused was spotted running around the houses.

Mrs. Anderson's purse contained only 25 cents.

The accused, Pte. John Sova, 17, appeared before Magistrate J. D. McNish and elected summary trial. Crown counsel suggested the court should have medical evidence concerning injuries to Mrs. Anderson, and the case was adjourned to-morrow.

Police said the woman was grabbed about the throat and was struck several times.

Too Much Water

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Aug. 19—A woman living in a trailer house complained to C. W. Burdick, city light, water and ice commisisoner: "Your ice isn't nearly as good as Omaha's." "What's the matter with it?" he inquired. "I dont know unless it's because you use too much water,' the woman answered.

Coup In Aleutians

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 — (AP)—A United States submarine has sunk a Japanese cruiser or destroyer in the Western Aleutians, the navy announced today, bringing to 23 the total of enemy ships announced as sunk or damaged in that area.

The Navy said conditions made it impossible to determine an exact identification of the ship destroyed.

Marines Mop Up On Solomon Job

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Aug. 19—(CP)—The final expulsion of Japan from the Solomon Islands apparently rested today on the completion of two tedious, difficult jobs — the mop-up ashore where United States Marines have landed and the consolidation of naval mastery in that south Pacific zone.

This still was a triple-header operation of major magnitude, involving land, sea and air forces, but every indication in the absence of official fact and figure pointed to accumulating successes.

The Japanese radio's only reference to the battle today was a commentator's warning that the United States onslaught might lead to further attacks on Japanese-held territory "or even on Japan herself."

A report to Auckland from a New Zealand correspondent somewhere in the south Pacific said the United States had won "sufficient successes" at sea to reinforce and supply the assault troops for what may be weeks or months of "extremely bitter" fighting in the islands.

"Japanese units which were in the Solomons at the opening of operations either have been sunk or have fled to the Caroline Islands," said this dispatch to the New Zealand Press Association.

Still, however, the fleet of Vice-Admiral Robert Ghormley and the land-based air forces of the Australian command scoured thousands of miles of the Pacific on the watch for enemy ships.

Air patrols ranging far north among the islands above Australia, including one on which an airdrome at Kavieng, New Ireland, was bombed, were reported in a communique today.

Huns Step Up Push On Baku Drive To Don At Big Bend

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Aug. 19—(AP).—The Germans poured strong reserves today into the Don bend and Caucasus battles from south of Voronezh to the high plains of Pyatigorsk and the bolstered onslaught presaged a full-scale drive against Stalingrad and along the Baku rail line to the shores of the Caspian.

The Russians were fighting back fiercely. A communique said the Nazi gains since May 15 had cost 1,250,000 casualties—twice those of Russia—and that Hitler was draining western Europe for the new fighting men required in the East.

The Russians fell back in the Don bend where their counter-offensive appeared spent, and gave ground in the region of Pyatigorsk, 170 miles southeast of the destroyed and abandoned Maikop oil fields.

(In London a British source whom it was not permitted to identify by name said the Germans ha made some progress toward Stalingrad, reaching but not crossing the Don River at the bend. He declared, however, that Russian resistance had stiffened in the Caucasus, slowing German progress considerably).

The Na ' drive from the Rostov-Baku rail line across the Caucasus had as its next apparent objective beyond Pyatigorsk and Mineralyne Vody, the rail junction town of Georgievsk, only a few miles beyond the Nazi spearheads.

Grozny, heart of the Grozny oil-field, lies 130 miles southeast along the railway, and the Caspian is 100 miles beyond Grozny.

In the northwestern Caucasus the Russians reported repulsing German attacks in the Krasnodar area 60 miles east of the port of Novorossisk.

Fighting flamed again on the Bryansk front southwest of Moscow. The information bureau said a Soviet artillery battery repulsed eight attacks, wiped out a river crossing and killed at least 500 Germans.

Shuffle In Egypt Hint Of Action

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(CP)—The infusion of new brains and new blood on Britain's Middle Eastern front, coupled with the close attenton Prime Minister Churchill gave it on his way to Moscow, stamped that battle theatre in many British minds today as a zone of impending major Africa.

North Africa has immense strategic potentialities. It might become the United Nations' second front. With only a thin 80 miles separating his armies from Alexandria, on the other hand, Hitler scarcely could neglect that arm of his vast Middle Eastern pincer if his goal is to master the trans-Caucasus by winter.

Britons, therefore, weighed these sudden developments with some optimism and some anxiety:

1. Mr. Churchill's stop-over in Egypt en route to his talks with Stalin, during which he inspected the front as such close hand he came within earshot of the enemy and met virtually the whole "Who's Who" of the United Nations leadership in North Africa;

2. The announcement, swiftly following his visit, that Gen. Sir Harold Alexander had been called to command in the Middle East in place of Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck. Sir

"In the last two weeks," the retiring Midde East Commander told his forces, "you have stopped the enemy and forced him on the defensive"

The Egyptian battlefront remained quiet today as Gen. Sir Alexander took up his new job as Britain's Middle East Commander and as newly-arrived United States troops bolstered the Allied reserves for the next phase of the fight.

The anti-aircraft cruiser Cairo and the destroyer Foresight were sunk, in addition to the aircraft carrier Eagle and the cruiser Manchester, loss of which had been announced previously.

Swarms of Axis aircraft and many submarines attacked the convoy in a battle which started east of Gibraltar on Aug. 11 and continued through Aug. 13.

While British losses were considerable, the punishment inflicted on the enemy was high, the Admiralty

Sees Food Shortage in '43 As Farm Labor Vanishes

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—(AP)—The United States and the other United Nations are headed for an acute food shortage, Chairman Hampton Fulmer (Dec. - S.C.) of the House of Representatives Agriculture committee said today.

It will come about the end of 1943, he predicted in an interview, and 'the officials and bureaucrats handling the program new won't do anything about 'it until it smacks them right in the face."

Fulmer said he based his belief on a growing shortage of farm labor and what he described as an increasing tendency to disregard the problems of the farmer.

Meanwhile, the War Production Board's Food Requirements committee headed by Agriculture Secretary Claude Wickard recommended government allocation of meats to butcher shops and other retail outlets to permit equitable distribution of limited supplies.

The only solution he could see to the farm-labor problem, Fulmer said, to boost farmers' income to permit the payment of wages that could compete with off-the-farm pay.

Dieppe Full Dress Rehearsal For The Day of Liberation

By GLENN BABB
Associated Press Staff Writer

Canadian and other Allied Commandos were giving Hitler this morning a foretaste of "the day of liberation."

Lord Louis Mountbatten's tough young men were reminding the Fuehrer that while leaders of the Allies have been plotting the outlines of their grand strategy in the East, fixing the lines at which his surge toward Asia is to be held, the preparations for the eventual offensive in the West have gone forward with a grim, fierce determination that the Nazi defenders of the Dieppe beaches now know at first hand.

Today's obviously is the greatest of all the Commando raids, larger in scope and of longer duration than its four predecessors which have harried the invasion coast. The Canadian, Britons, Americans and Fighting French swarmed ashore with tanks and other fighting equipment heretofore unused in such operations.

The Dieppe raid, therefore, takes

Bombers Blast at Flensberg Swoop Almost to Denmark

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(CP)—Flensburg, the Nazi submarine and shipbuilding centre almost at the Danish border, was the chief target of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers last night, their second night in a row over Northern Germany, the Air Ministry announced today.

A communique said four of the raiders were missing.

The weight of the attack was not disclosed immediately. Aircraft of the Canadian squadron participated.

A few German bombers were over England during the night. The ministry of home security said bombs dropped in East Anglia caused some damage and slight casualties.

Berlin broadcast said Germany also was attacked from the East, where Russian planes were said to have bombed parts of East and West Prussia.

They named Norwich as a target of German raiders over England during the night.

One enemy raider was downed off the English East coast this morning.

ANOTHER CANADIAN CONTINGENT ARRIVES SAFELY IN ENGLAND

Bolster Units At Camps Across South

By DOUGLAS AMARON,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Aug. 19—(CP Cable).—The attacking power of the Canadian army has been strengthened with the arrival in Britain of support formations for armored troops already in the country, while the first member of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, the first naval nurses, and first members of a Social Service Corps now are at work.

Artillery and other auxiliary units of the armored forces, bolstered by small regimental and headquarters formations, already are established at camps at the Canadian army area in southern England where they will be joined later by the main body of their force.

The newly-arrived soldiers—who numbered in the thousands—were accompanied by Allied forces trained in Canada—including Belgian soldiers and merchant seamen and soldiers of the Netherlands army.

The convoy which brought the soldiers carried Maj. Alice Sorby of Winnipeg, first member of the C.W.A.C. to reach Britain. She will serve as a staff officer at Canadian military headqurters.

Small, blonde, 38—and looking 10 years younger—the Major wowed Fleet Street in a press conference at the Ministry of Information. It was her first overseas assignment and she was a soldier every fraction of the 61¾ inches that show on her medical card.

No Time for Saluting

She said her husband, Lieut. Walter Sorby, an artillery instructor, had talked to her on the telephone for the first time since February, 1941, and "I'm pretty sure that when we meet we won't worry much whether we salute each other."

The troops who included Ordnance forces, a Field Ambulance unit, Anti-Aircraft Artillery, Royal Canadian Artillery, Signals, Engineering and Postal forces, have spent the last few days unloading their personal luggage and looking forward to their debarkation leave.

After that leave they will start the intensive training tha Canasaid. It was announced that 66 enemy aircraft are known to have been destroyed and that it is extremely probable many others were lost.

There also were some losses of merchantmen in the convoy, but on this point the Admiralty said a large proportion of the convoy reached Malta.

The communique said the Admiralty would not divulge the number of ships in the convoy or the number of ships which arrived at Malta because "the extent of reinforcement which has been received by the fortress of Malta is obviously information of considerable importance to the enemy."

The Cairo, completed in 1919, was an old 4,200-ton cruiser which had been re-armed in 1939 for anti-aircraft duty. She carried a normal crew of 400 men.

The Foresight, completed in 1935, was a 1,350-ton destroyer capable of better than 36 knots.

The Admiralty said it was natural that in such a hazardous operation "some losses were suffered in the convoy."

The fact that the loss of life and damage was not greater was due to the gallantry of the air crews and the seamanship of the sailors, the communique added.

The communique said that at least 66 Axis aircraft were certainly destroyed during the fight over the convoy.

Eight British aircraft were lost, but four of the pilots were saved.

on the aspect of a full dress rehearsal which may be followed soon by the real thing, the opening of a second front, using all the weapons that will be used on that day—the umbrella of air support overhead, the heavy fighting ships offshore laying down a barrage, the special landing barges disgorging their steel-clad fighting machines on the beaches that once formed one of Europe's gayest playgrounds.

The German radio's description of the raid stresses its scope and boldness of conception. This may betray genuine alarm, may reflect the mounting anxiety with which the Germans doubtless watch their western barricades while trying desperately to finish the war in the East before the blow falls elsewhere. Or it may be merely a build-up for a story of an alleged failure to be broadcast after the Commandos have returned across the Channel. It would be naive to assume that the enemy betrays his real feelings over the air waves.

Whatever the outcome of this adventure, it emphasizes again the steady development of a unified, worldwide plan of action to which the United Nations are beginning to fit their conduct of the war. Especially is the pattern of the war against the European end of the Axis becoming more definite. The United Nations still have nothing to match the singleness of direction which Hitler's general staff gives to the campaigns in Russia and Africa and the defensive dispositions in Western Europe. But Winston Churchill's journeys reveal that something that ultimately may catch the unity that Hitler imposes on his own people and its satellites is in the making. The Prime Minister, in Washington in June, London in July, Cairo and Moscow in August, has made himself into the most distinguished liaison officer in history, binding together the purposes of the world's greatest powers, helping stiffen the resolve of Russia at one extremity, helping assure at the other that the growing might of the Allies will be brought to bear in the battlefields where it will be most effective.

Canadians In France

FIRST CO-OPERATION UNITS TEST.

While the vital job of providing aerial cover to the land forces was not new to the R. C. A. F., it would be the first time that the Canadian Army co - operation squadrons — which were understood to be participating—had undertaken a commando job.

The landing was made at several selected points in the early hours of to-day and heavy fighting is proceeding.

The Canadians, who recently participated in the greatest attack manoeuvres ever held, took tanks with them against Dieppe.

There was strict secrecy surrounding the raid and it was not until some hours after it was announced fighting was in progress against heavy opposition that it was made known that Canadian forces made up the bulk of the attack.

This was the first opportunity since the Canadian participated in the famous Spitsbergen raid that they had had to carry out an attack for which they had been especially trained.

Carry Beach By Assault

That they had learned their tasks well was shown by the combined operations reported that one landing party was initially repulsed but managed to carry the beach by assault.

R.C.A.F. units co-operated in forming umbrella protection for the Canadians as they landed and fought against a stiff defence force. It is understood that Canadian air units participating included Army co-operation planes and fighters which roared across the Channel in an unending stream all day.

Especially on the left flank of the Canadian attack was heavy opposition encountered while tanks were landed in the centre and troops on the right flank achieved their objective.

They knocked out a six-gun battery, destroyed an ammunition dump and then re-embarked, combined operations headquarters said in a noon communique while the fighting continued.

The Canadians had been waiting for just such a chance as the Dieppe raid since they began training with the commandos, headed by Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, who watched their most recent attack training.

McNaughton Had a Hand.

The fact Canadian soldiers were participating in the raid was known only to the highest Canadian army authorities but more than one soldier noted the absence of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian Army commander, from the Canadian forces track and field championships Saturday, at which time he presumably was making last-minute arrangements for the embarkation of his troops.

It seemed unlikely that the Canadian Army commander was along on the raid, however, as he conferred with Maj. C. G. Power, Canadian Air Minister, on Monday and it now is known that the Canadian commandos started off on the raid before that date.

The Canadians already had suffered more than one disappointment when all was set for a raid on the continent and at the last minute the plans were called off.

Now, it is indicated, they hava had the leading role in the biggest raid of the war on the French coast, for which the recent combined operations manoeuvres of the Canucks can be taken as having been a dress rehearsal. In that scheme as in this operation the Canadians took tanks to sea with them.

Announcement that the attack met with stiff opposition means that for the first time Canadian land forces have been in action with the Germans. Canadians who reached France just before Dunkirk in 1940 were ordered back.

The BBC, from the early morning on, continued warnings to the French populace, emphasizing the "limited and temporary" character of the action, adding that it had "nothing to do with the military decision taken at Moscow recently."

Information on R.C.A.F. participation was sketchy. It is known that "large" forces of Canadian airmen are taking part but it is not the first time that Canadian airmen have done such a job—they flew as protection on the Vaagso and Bruneval raids.

While fighting is still continuing on the French coast, it is known that Canadians flying fighter planes already have caused damage among the Nazi air opposition, scoring one plane damaged and one probable.

American Rangers There

No matter what the result, an operation of this size is sure to provide invaluable experience in the employment of substantial forces and the transport and use of heavy equipment.

For the fighting French it was their first landing on French soil since they were evacuated to Britain after the fall of France in 1940. The American Rangers are a picked outfit from the United States army forces in Britain, named after a colonial American fighting unit which won fame in the French and Indian wars.

Observers on the British south coast said there were more aircraft than ever before seen and heard over the Channel, as bombers and fighters shuttled across to assault or reload. Indicating the size of the present operation, it was recalled on at least one previous occasion 1,000 fighters participated in a sweep across the Channel.

The raid, first announced at 6.45 a.m. (1.45 a.m. E.D.T.), was still continuing at noon when a supplementary communique was issued.

After that, as the mists burned away and a fine, fair day developed, persons on the English coast still could hear the heartening sounds of offensive battle.

Informed quarters cautioned, however, that for all the broad participation of troops, tanks, naval guns and planes, the raiding forces woud be withdrawn when they had achieved their objectives. This was not a second front.

Their objectives obviously were extensive, since it was the first time landing parties have used tanks.

The objectives appeared to be these: To test the enemy's defence organization and to test the Allied plans for landing and the Air Force's ability to cover a big landing force.

Additionally, it was bound to disclose disposition of German troops and equipment in the cross-Channel area that once was a vacation resort, but now is a nest of Nazi fortifications.

Dieppe, only 100 miles northwest of Paris, is regarded by observers as one of the points along the 700 miles of German-occupied coastline from Holland to Brest where a landing might be made in the opening of a second front.

Soldiers Help Harvest Ontario Crops

"With an abundance of hay and good grain crops, winter feeding problems are pretty well solved," for Durham farmers as reported in the weekly review o' the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Fall wheat is yielding up to 50 bushels to the acre.

Hastings farmers are taking off the second crop of alfalfa, but most of it will be held for seed or pasture.

Many Northumberland farmers say they will have twice as much grain and three times as much straw as last year. Ninety per cent of the Spring grain has been cut.

Rains were general over Central Ontario last week-end, causing brief cessation of threshing.

With a bumper crop of hay Prince Edward will also have a splendid crop of grain. Tomatoes are looking better, and apples are sizing and coloring well.

In Eastern Ontario, Carlton says yields are good and quality very good. "Practically all ewe lambs are being kep' for breeding purposes" in Dundas.

Grenville says, "Yields of grain to date have far exceeded expectations." Oats are returning 70 to 80 bushels to the acre in various parts of Lanark.

Late potatoes promise a heavy crop in Lennox-Addington. Second crop alfalfa and red clover "is very promising."

One hundred soldiers have been helping each evening in sections of Oxford County. They are available from 5 15 p.m.

This is a Halton labor comment: "The men sent out by the city of Toronto on Friday did a splendid job and nothing but words of highest commendation of their services have been hear. Groups from Milton have been taken out on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings for stooking. In addition, qnite a number of individuals have been out in the fields on Wednesday afternoon and also in the evenings."

Canadian army co-operation squadrons also were out but it was not known immediately whether they supported the landing operations or formed part of the Channel patrol.

There was intense activity over the Channel from dawn on almost without break. Many air battles were fought off the south coast where observers reported a "constant procession" of aircraft over the coast and explosions "on the other side."

Norwood Boy Faces Traffic Charge

As the result of an accident on the Boundary Road near Norwood last week in which two persons received injuries, Leaman Haddesley, 18, of Norwood, was arrested last night by Provincial Constable Archie Grayling of Havelock and Chief W. Parcels of Norwood, and charged with reckless driving.

The youth appeared before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning and entered a plea of not guilty.

He was not ready to proceed this morning and the Crown was also asking for a delay, with the result that Magistrate Gee remanded the accused in custody until Monday, with bail fixed at $500.

"The charge is a serious one," Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., told Haddesley. "You might find it advisable to see a lawyer"

Mr. Kerr also gave instructions that the boy's father should be notified of the arrest

King To Discuss Manpower Setup

OTTAWA, August 19. —(CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who outlined Canada's selective program in a House of Commons address last March, may sketch new blueprints for manpower treatment in a radio address tonight.

The Prime Minister goes on the air over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's national network starting at 9 p.m E. D. T. and his half-hour speech is expected to contain the whys and wherefores of impending changes in the selective service program.

In his first important address since he spoke on the Conscription-Enabling Bill, July 7, Mr. King is expected to reveal some of the important decisions which the Government is known to be planning for guiding more and more men and women into war industry and the armed forces.

The Prime Minister's office announced yesterday that the address will deal with "additional measures being taken to ensure the efficient use of the services of all the people of Canada for the winning of the war." The wording suggested plainly enough that the broadcast will deal almost exclusively with manpower.

The expectation here is that Mr. King will lay stress on the reasons for the proposed new policies, leaving a detailed announcement to the men responsible for formulating them. It has been previously reported that the new regulations will be formally announced by Elliott M. Little, Director of National Selective Service, possible next Tuesday.

On suggestion already advenced is that the recruiting policies of the armed forces may be co-ordinated more closely with Mr. Little's department, which up to now has been concerned chiefly with labor supply.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, August 20

Notwithstanding sudden reversals, upsets and obstacles this day may be one of momentous events. These obstructions, commotions, emotional crises may be precipitated from and upon all phases of life, with the most spectacular reactions in the affectional, romantic, domestic and social contacts. Rash and violent outbursts, temper, turbulence and ungoverned acts and words may incite or exaggerate such conditions, with active opposition from elders or relatives. Nevertheless, the course of true love is likely to move to high culminations.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of spectacular adventures, with turmoil, quarrels, and sudden and devastating visitations that must be deemed hectic, passionate and violent. The enmity or vindictive antagonism of relatives or elders may heighten such angry crises. However, it seems as though the most ardent, fiery and ungoverned conduct would not swerve the emotional or sentimental passions.

A child born on this day may be tempestuous, hectic and violent, with strong emotional temperament.

Bale the plant will be back in production within two or three days at the most. Maurice Booth Named Head Of Dept.

COBOURG, Aug. 19—(ENS). —Maurice Booth, former mayor of Cobourg, has been appointed in charge of the new selective service office to serve Cobourg and area, it was earned from an authoritative, although not official, source yesterday. There was a considerable number of applicants for the post. B. M. Kennedy of Peterborough has been temporarily in charge of the office since the second week in August. The north half of the town clerks office space is being used as the selective service office.

The local office is one of 100 similar offices across Canada for the purpose of administering the national selective service act which becomes effective next month. Previously the work of looking after employment applications has been handled in Peterborough, which has been swamped with work.

The new appointee will assume his new duties on Monday. For the past two years he has been employed by the United Kingdom Inspection Board as a cloth inspector, stationed at various cities in the province, latterly at Toronto. Mr. Booth was mayor of Cobourg for three years, taking office in 1937. He served ten years in the town council of Cobourg, and was reeve for two years. For many years he conducted a clothing store in Cobourg.

He has two sons on active service, one in the army in England and the other with the R.C.A.F., stationed at Edmonton.

Chinese Driver Arrested After Accident

COBOURG, Aug. 19—(ENS). —Wanted for an alleged hit-run accident at Colborne yesterday, a Chinese named Loo Singh of Montreal was arrested here by Chief W. J. Carey yesterday. He is alleged to have been the driver of a car which struck a farm wagon driven by E. A. Haynes of Colborne. The farmer was uninjured, the horses were unhurt, but the wagon was damaged considerably. Chief Carey spotted the car number as it went through town and apprehended the driver after he had driven into a local garage to get the front of the car repaired, it was stated.

He was released on $100 cash bail.

Likes Coppers

Donald Rowe, age 16 of Toronto, was also arrested yesterday by Chief Carely following the complaint of William Wildey of Wicklow that a youth had entered his house and stolen about $1.00 in copper from a penny bank. Police learned that a youth answering the description given Wildey had boarded the bus at Grafton. After the bus arrived at Cobourg, the boy was picked up in a restaurant. He had paid his bus fare in coppers and when arrested had about 80 cents in coppers on his person.

Forget The Trifles

We read frequently—all too frequently—that a large number of people are unaware that there is a war on, and there is some cause for the exaggeration contained in that statement. But sometimes we are forced to wonder if the people who pride themselves on their awareness of the war really have a broad conception of what is implied by war. They seem to think that we can fight a war without coming to any harm, without any lowering of our standards or cheapening of our values, and without any of those evidences of hysteria and foolishness which are inseparable from war.

Not long ago a series of pictures was published widely in American and Canadian papers showing what purported to be marks and signs visible from an aeroplane and directing enemy bomber-pilots to strategic camps and buildings in the U.S. Most of us saw these pictures and most of us believed in them, although we may have thought it a little odd that Fifth Columnists should use such obvious signs as arrows to point directions; they were as visible to American planes as to enemy ones. Now it appears that the pictures were a hoax cooked up by army press liason officers.

This is a pity. We like to feel that we are getting the truth from such sources, and false alarms are in bad taste. But we doubt if the foolishness of a few pressmen is worth the hysterical, righteous hullabaloo with which this revelation has been greeted.

Nor can we sympathize with the protests which are made in some quarters that Canadian soldiers are marrying English girls, or that American soldiers are marrying Australian girls. What can be expected? History shows that wars bring hysteria, foolish marriages, and silly hoaxes and rumors, as well as vastly more dangerous phenomena in their wake. War is not called degrading because it involves fighting and cruelty alone; it is degrading because it gives opportunity for all the foolishness and stupidity of mankind to reveal itself, and this affects conqueror and conquered alike. Because we are fighting for what we know to be the right cause in this war we must not expect to be free from the degrading effects of war in general. Let us stop making a fuss over every silly thing that happens and concentrate on the main thing, which is ending the war and ridding ourselves of all the feverishness and irritability which it occasions.

Learning And Flying

The R.C.A.F. is not so particular about the academic standing of applicants for training as it was earlier in the war. It is not that the Air Force is accepting less intelligent men than formerly; it is merely that they have discarded the academic yardstick, and a good thing too. There are a dozen excellent reasons why a boy should not have reached Grade 11 in his educational training; one of them is that he may have been too stupid to do so, but that still leaves eleven other reasons. And the fact that a boy is stupid in school does not necessarily mean that he will be stupid in the Air Force. He may be deeply interested in flying, and he may have no interest at all in school.

We think it is high time that employers threw away the academic yardstick, too, and thought of applicants for jobs as human beings, and not as living embodiments of a certain amount of High School education. The mere possession of a certificate does not make a well-educated person, nor does the lack of one mean stupidity. And with the increase of general education it becomes clear also that, although education is a valuable aid to intelligence, it can exist independently of intelligence; that is to say, education is a help to a person who has brains, but it is no substitute for brains. A man or woman who knows a trade thoroughly and can apply it in all necessary circumstances is far better educated in the true sense than a High School graduate who has no real aptitude for anything.

Let us leave the academic yardstick to those who can best use it—that is, people who have scholarly employment. Let us get over the idea that everybody, regardless of natural ability, must have a formal education, culminating, if possible, in a few years at the university. Let us learn from the R.C.A.F., and allow boys and girls to follow their natural bent, if they have one. And let us stop cluttering the universities with people who have no real inclination toward learning, and who merely get under the feet of natural-born scholars.

Tricks Of Sudden Death

The whirligig of time brings in his revenges. There was a time when Yank Levy was regarded as an extremely dangerous man and an enemy of society; that was when he was a labor agitator in Windsor, Ontario. Now he is so valuable that the U.S. Army has borrowed him from Britain to teach Commando and guerilla tactics to a group of selected men. Levy has been working for some time as an instructor at the Osterley Park Training School in Britain, teaching his special methods of warfare to the Home Guard and the Commandos. The head of that school, Tom Wintringham, regards him as the best lecturer and demonstrator of guerilla warfare available. Thus Yank Levy's special talents, which were the cause of his unpopularity in days of peace, have brought him fame and an opportunity to be of the greatest use to the United Nations

Levy and Captain W. E. Fairbairn are both very busy these days showing soldiers a variety of unpleasant ways of disposing of an enemy. These men have learned what they know the hard way, and it is their object to show soldiers how to deal with an enemy even when they have been captured and disarmed. They do not teach a pretty way of fighting, but they are not training men to fight a pretty enemy; they are training men to win. Throttling, knifing and breaking limbs are all in the game. Says Levy: "A lot of what I teach the Home Guards in England is nothing more than Boy Scout craft with a few useful tricks of sudden death thrown in."

Napoleon Joins The Germans

The German people have a passion for collecting famous men. Upon several occasions they have proved to their own satisfaction that Shakespeare was really a German; how otherwise could he have written such remarkable plays? Now they have discovered that Napoleon was a German, too. Was he not a great conqueror? And are not all great conquerors Germans?

The Chief of the German Reich Chancellery, one Philip Bouhler, has had the honor of bringing Bonaparte into the German fold. In his book Napoleon: the Comet-like Rise of a Genius, he reveals that the name Bonaparte which we have all ignorantly believed to be Italian in origin, is really derived from the Germanic name Bonipert. As far back as 923 Napoleon's ancestors had such Germanic names as Konrad and Ermengarde. It is obvious that Napoleon's father must have been a German who found himself, through some trick of fate, in Corsica; about the hero's mother, Letizia Ramolino, Bouhler appears to have nothing to say; maybe her real name was Rommel.

Bouhler, as one might expect, draws some interesting parallels between Hitler and Napoleon; the Bavarian is a statesman more than a soldier, whereas the Corsican was a soldier first and a statesman second, he tells his readers. And he assures us that Napoleon hated Jews, although he did not appreciate their iniquities so fully as Hitler.

Thus through the efforts of this gifted historian Germany gains another hero. But does Hitler really like being compared to Napoleon? For Napoleon, as we all know, was a failure at last.

Nazi Peace Feelers

VERNON BARTLETT, M.P.
(In Bulletins From Britain)

SOMEBODY meets somebody at a cocktail party in a neutral country and recounts what somebody else said yesterday at so-and-so's luncheon about the futility of the attempt to win a complete victory. The gossip may be more dangerous or purposeful than idle talk on a front porch. But on the other hand it may be based on orders direct from Hitler, Goering, a Nazi-owned industrial magnate or an important Reichswehr general.

It is the nature of peace offers to be so vague that the man who makes one can disown it without losing his personal dignity or betraying the fear of his masters. There were many such offers from the central powers in the last war. There have been offers from Germany, not necessarily from Hitler, during the present war.

That clever fool, Franz von Papen, made one in Ankara when Hitler attacked the Russians. Rudolf Hess, a little earlier, made a sensational parachute landing in Scotland, bearing a peace offer. Bitter resentment is felt by Nazi leaders against the British Intelligence Service for its refusal to allow Hess to return home; and against all sorts of other people for their refusal to regard the Russians as more dangerous enemies than the Germans. Then, there was the Rhur industrialist, Baron Julius Oppenheimer, who was making strange compromise peace suggestions in Stockholm a few months ago.

There will be plenty more of these in the near future. Laval of France, Franco of Spain and Castillo of Argentina have been suggested as possible mediators. The first-mentioned has already encouraged one of the coolest plans devisable — namely, a plan for an intercontinental credit bank to bring about collaboration between the United States, France and Germany for the restoration of trade after the war between the two continents whose shores are washed by the Atlantic. This plan is obviously fatuous.

THE United States and Germany happen to be engaged in a deadly struggle. And Vichy-France happens to be packing off Frenchmen by the thousands to work as slaves in Germany. But such considerations do not hinder certain Germans from seeking to take out an insurance policy that might save them their fortunes when Hitler collapses. Nor do they keep Laval from seeking to generate British doubts about the United States.

What sort of Germans are these?

They are not the followers of Himmler and the believers in the radical side of the National Socialist program.

They are the men who scrambled on to the bandwagon when they saw in Hitler the one man who could destroy the power of the German trade unions and scrap the social legislation of the Weimar Republic.

They are the East Prussian Junker landowners who feared their estates would be split up among the peasants, and so presented an estate to old President von Hindenburg to make sure that he would be on their side.

They are the big industrialists of the Ruhr Rhineland who put up their money for Hitler without having the sense to realize that sooner or later his behavior would bring British bombs raining down on the factories they wanted to protect.

They are the generals who admired the way Hitler defied the French and British and got away with it.

These are the men—absentee landlords, industrial magnates and revengeful Reichswehr officers—who, taking shelter from Himmler and his Gestapo agents behind Hermann Goering's ample form, are likely to send furtive offers to Washington, Moscow and London.

Sometimes they may even have been encouraged by Hitler and Himmler. Had Winston Churchill not so bluntly proclaimed alliance with the Soviet Union the very day that country was attacked, the Germans might effectively have played up the idea of an Anglo-German agreement in order to crush the menace of Communism. That weapon has been turned against them. They have both the Anglo-Soviet treaty of mutual assistance and the widespread demand in Britain for a second front to remind them that the citizens of the United Nations are not so naive as those of the Third Reich.

German broadcasts to Britain and the United States, on one hand, and to Russia on the other, still give daily proof that the hope of dividing the United Nations has not yet been abandoned. Even in broadcasts to Britain there are some programs to Christian communities harping on the lack of religion in Russia. Other programs to workers harp on the wicked dislike of the Russians allegedly to be found among the British capitalists. Such broadcasts are obvious endeavors to persuade the British and Russians that each is planning a separate peace.

AS for relations between the United States and the British Commonwealth, one could not count the number of broadcasts warning the one of the anti-imperialist designs of the other. Americans are told that Roosevelt is Churchill's lackey and that they are fighting to save the decadent British Empire. Englishmen are told that Churchill flies to Washington to take orders and that taking over naval bases was only the first tentative U.S. step to swallowing up the British Empire.

Peace offers cannot be expected to flourish vigorously for a while yet. Things are going too well for Germany for the Goering group to do more than prepare an insurance policy against the day when things go badly. One or two respectable republicans in exile are said to have been asked more discreetly under what conditions they would agree to return to the Reich and play a part in convicing the United Nations that, Hitler and his gang having been overthrown, we could all go into a huddle and negotiate a nice friendly peace.

As far as one can see, there won't much tendency in the United Nations to distinguish between the "Goering group" and the "Hitler group." Peace offers, however precise or however tempting, won't prevent the final complete defeat of the German Wehrmacht.

There must be no future opportunity for some new Hitler to claim against all the evidence of history that the German army wasn't defeated but was stabbed in the back.

MARK OF THE BEAST.

U. S. Bombers Bear Test

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

THE first American-planned, American-executed bombing blow against Nazi-held Europe was timed perfectly to clear up some expressed doubt as to whether the United States Army's heavy bombers are fully suited to the aerial second front.

Without loss to themselves, a dozen four-engine craft raided Rouen in Nazi-held France by daylight, "hit the heart of the target," and met and mastered the latest type German fighter planes.

Their smaller bomb-carrying capacity does appear to make them less useful for mass mauling or near-by Continental targets, particularly by night, than Britain's Lancasters, Halifaxes and Stirlings, just as a thoroughbred is less suited to lugging heavy loads than a draft horse.

But the official American idea seems to be that waging war by air on Germany need not be a matter of mere slugging. The prospective role of American heavy bombers is to bring all Nazi-occupied Europe within the range of deadly round-the-clock attack, as well as to add weight to Royal Air Force blows dealt under cover of darkness.

TRANSITION MADE

On the eve of the Rouen raid London read criticism that our heavy bombers were deficient in capacity, armor, armament and speed, and therefore American aircraft plants should switch to "new and improved types."

They have already made the transition. Some of the criticism may have applied to earlier versions of the heavy bombers, but certainly less so to the latest types despatched to Britain.

Pending the verdict of further actual results, pertinent performance data on the new B-17T Flying Fortress and B-24D Liberator models can be given without impinging on military secrets.

These planes carry on short missions only about half the eight-ton bomb load of the Short Stirling and Avro Lancaster of the Royal Air Force. The Handley Page Halifax is credited with a five-ton maximum.

Able to speed better than 300 miles an hour, they probably are faster than their British counterparts, and range hundreds of miles further.

The two American heavyweights are armed with .50-calibre machine guns instead of the British .303-calibre weapons, fired from power-driven turrets, covering all angles of approach, and thus hit harder.

CAN TAKE PUNISHMENT

Their ability to take punishment has been dramatized repeatedly since Pearl Harbor, particularly in the Pacific, where Flying Fortresses have fought off swarms of Japanese fighters and reached their bases with two engines dead and wings riddled. In Europe several were lost months ago in the experimental daylight bombing of Nazi warships in French harbors, but were described as early types and there appear to have been unusual and mitigating circumstances.

Although Northern Europe's uncertain weather limits the field of precision daylight bombing from high altitudes, visibility improves inland on the Continent.

Designed primarily to keep any foe far from United States shore, to blast ships and other specific targets from high altitudes with the aid of a perfected bombsight, these American planes can range easily more than 1,200 miles from their bases.

Thus as more go into action, no part of Axis-held Europe from Norway's north cape to Rumania and Italy, can expected to be free from attack.

Mrs. Noggins Sees It Through

BRUCE HUTCHISON in the VANCOUVER SUN

MY good friend, Mrs. Noggins, the Cockney lady who lives with her husband but mostly with her flock of hens down the road, tells me that the tea ration has hit her hard.

"Mindju," said Mrs. Noggins, leaning confidentially over the fence, "it's probably a good thing. It does bring the war 'ome to people. Why, most of the folks livin' around 'ere went through the fall of France, and out of Dunkirk and through the blitz of London very brave and without a scratch, but when they can't get a cup of tea they know for the first time there's a war on, and Mrs. Boggs come over 'ere yestiday with the look of a 'ero to say she's not givin' any more tea parties. You'd of thort, by the look of patriotism on 'er face, she 'ad bin through the siege of Serbasterpool.

"But I tell you wot it is, this tea ration will make us value wot we 'ave got. When you could get all the tea you wanted, wot was the fun of it? But when you can only 'ave a cup now and then, ain't it precious, though! Why, when I brew meself a cup, all alone in the 'ouse about four o'clock, I feel life a fifth columnist, and I almost pull down the blinds for fear someone's lookin' in the winder. Why, you can 'ave all the pleasure of sin now out of a cup of tea.

"The trouble with us was that up to now we never happreciated anythink. Why, bless you, I'd got myself so I'd go to the movies oncet a week and never think anythink of it, jest sort of took it in my stride as you might say. Same as with the bath tub we got installed last year. Before that a bath oncet a week was a luxury. Now I take one three or four times a week and never think a thing about it. We're all spoiled.

"Why, I tell you, sir, 'alf the people of America 'as bin livin' wild for 20 years, livin' like kings and complainin' of poverty. If we'd lived 'alf as well when I was a gel in London we'd of thort we was rich. And even today fellas workin' for a dollar an hour is talkin' about the sacrifices and 'ardships of the war and Matilda Pudbury—you know, George's youngest gel—is complainin' that she only made a 'undred dollars last month and 'er workin' for twenty up to now, mindin' Mrs. Boggs' babies. Quite red and radical Matilda is since she got mixed up in the class war. But come peacetime she'll be married and mindin' five or six babies of 'er own and tryin' to manage on twenty dollars a week and lookin' back on this as the good old days.

"You might think, sir, as people would value things they're missin' now when they get 'em back again after the war. Right now I feel like it would be the last word in luxury if I could 'ave three cups of coffee for breakfast with sugar 'alf way up the cup. I sit and dream about it, you know, sippin' my own cup carefully, to make it last as long as possible. But I dare say when I can get all I want it's seem quite ordinary, same as my Uncle 'Erbert, 'e worked fer years till he finally got to be an alderman in Liverpool, you know, but 'e said that after a few months of it 'e felt just like an ordinary mortal man again. We was allus democratic in the Noggins family and 'Erbert was so friendly with his inferiors 'e drunk 'imself to death in the pubs."

No End Of Bestialities

There is no end to the list of monstrous bestialities perpetrated by the Fascist perverts. News of rape, murder and looting are received daily and hourly. Here are some facts disclosed in the last few days. In the Kharkov district dozens of villages have been burned to the ground. Of 500 farms in the village of Oleiniki the Germans burned 470. In the village of Senelovki the Germans burned three schools, a hospital and 55 cottages. In the village of Sukhaya, in the Gomel region, of 120 houses only 30 were left standing. In the village of Bureka they shot 19 families. In Sakhnovschina they brutally tortured nearly 500 civilians. The Red Army knows with whom it has to deal. That good-naturedness and complacency in regard to the enemy which existed among our fighters in the first months of the war have now disappeared. German brutalities against peaceful inhabitants and Soviet war prisoners have cured the Red Army men of that sickness.—Soviet War News (London).

Just Being Naive

An application blank in connection with a certain war board contains the proverbial Silly Item No. 5678904. Here it is "Give names of clubs, societies and other similar organizations of which you are a member, and indicate any contact which you may have and which might be considered by us subversive." Perhaps the board (whose blushes are spared by our refraining from printing his name) was just trying to be naive.—Guelph Mercury.

A Bible Message For Today

For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them into their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people: and they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest.—Heb. viii, 10-11.

Hear my prayer, O Lord, give ear to my supplications; in thy faithfulness answer me, and in thy righteousness.... I stretch forth my hands unto thee: my soul thirsteth after thee, as a thirsty land. Selah.....

Cause me to hear thy lovingkindness in the morning; for in thee do I trust: cause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I lift up my soul unto thee.... Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God; thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness.—Ps. cxliii, 1, 6, 8, 10.

I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth.—III John 1, 4.

Churchill and Pitt

Some who support Mr. Churchill in office are fond of asking: "Who could take his place?" The question neither poses a real problem, nor is it fair to Mr. Churchill—suggesting as it does that he is a "pis aller" retained for lack of a better alternative. One distrusts its implications the more since the insistence with which we were assured at one time that there was no one but Lord Beaverbrooke who could possibly fill the post of Minister of Production. One can imagine supporters of Pitt similarly asserting that he was irreplaceable. But Pitt died in 1806, leaving a country appalled and disheartened by the news of Austerlitz. Irreplaceable or not, he had to be replaced, and the nation went on undeterred to final victory.

Needless to say, one hopes profoundly that in this respect the historical analogy will break down, and that Mr. Churchill will live not only to win the war but also to enjoy for many years afterwards the well-earned fruits of his triumph. The moral remains that if we retain him as Prime Minister, it is not because there is no one to put in his place, but because he himself has shown the qualities necessary to his high eminence.

There is value in criticism which is directed towards keeping him up to the mark. More and more, as the war proceeds and inevitable war-weariness increases on both sides, an example of leadership will be demanded from him, which will tax his courage and endurance to the utmost. The same trials lie before him as those which Pitt met and overcame. If Mr. Churchill, too, is to overcome them, it will not be by any easy assumption of the fame but by studying and learning from the genius of Pitt.—Truth (London).

Here's an old-fashioned, pre-war kind of story about a Negro maid. His mistress had to speak to her about one annoying failure—ignoring the telephone when it rang and allowing other members of the household to come running.

"After this, I want you to answer the telephone, Clarice," she said.

"Yas'm," the maid replied, glumly. "Seems sort of silly, though. Nine times out of ten it's for you."

Prof. S. O. Smith Is Laid To Rest

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 19—(ENS). — The funeral of Professor George Oswald Smith, M.A., Oxon., who died late Saturday in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, following a long period of ill health, was held at the Grove Chapel on Tuesday afternoon.

The service was very quiet, in keeping with Professor Smith's wishes.

Rev. S. A. R. Wood, assisted by Rev. E. C. Moore, conducted the service at the chapel and the committal service at the cemetery.

Mr. Hubert Eisdell played the hymn, "Unto the Hills."

Learning for learning's sake was the motto of Professor Smith's whole splendid career, and there are not many of that type left today, said the Rev. Mr. Wood. He was one who was most looked up to in the University of Toronto, where he gave the best of his life for over two-score years. The standard of classics at the University was due largely to Professor Smith's influence, and that standard incidently is the highest on the continent. Praise that may be said of him as a scholar falls far below his merits.

Interment was made in the quiet beauty of Hillside Cemetery, where he was borne to his last rest by Professor the Rev. B. W. Horan of Wycliffe College, Mr. James R. Wainwright of Lakefield, Provost F. J. Cograve, Professor Ernest Dale of University College, Professor M. Wallace, the Rev. Basil English, Registrar W. J. McAndrew and Mr. Arthur Fennel, all of Toronto.

Rev. J. R. Bick, pastor of the Seymour United Church, was chairman of the evening, and he also spoke briefly as did Mr. Thomas Fry, Mr. Albert Petherick, Mr. Aylmer Petherick, Mrs. Fred Barnum. LEADING CANADIAN PRO GOLFERS PLAY AT KAWARTHA SUNDAY

Gordon Brydson Heads Colorful Crowd

Golfers and golfing fans from all parts of the district are expected to attend the first Kawartha Lakes Invitation Golf Tournament to be staged at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club on Sunday next. The program arranged to aid the "Milk for Britain" Fund will bring to the city course, the greatest collection of leading Canadian professional and amateur golfers ever assembled here.

Scenes at the Mississauga where interested and curious crowds followed the golfers from green to green may be re-enacted at the Kawartha Club on Sunday as there is no objection to fans following their favorite golfer around the course to study his style, and watch his driving.

Lex Robson, popular professional at the Club has extended an invitation to the headliners of Ontario golf courses, and the majority have accepted the invitation. Besides many amateur golfers including five from the Cataraqui Club at Kingston have written stating they will be on hand.

A few of the professionals who will be on hand are as follows: Gordon Brydson, Mississauga, leading Canadian in the recently played Canadian Open; Dick Borthwick, Oakdale; Bob Gray, Scarboro; Bob Burns of Weston, who tied with Lex Robson in 14th place in the Canadian Open, which incidentally was second place for the Canadians. Jack Littler, Glen Mawr, Les Franks, Islington, and Bill Kerr, Cedarbrae, have also promised to be on hand.

Hugh Borthwick, Uplands, Arthur Hulbert, Thornhill and Joe Noble of "The Elms" Weston are also listed. Bill Spittal, pro up at the Peterborough Club will be along to renew acquaintances with the golfers and it is expected that both he and Lex Robson will make the others step on the Kawartha course.

There will be three flights, and the golf program has been arranged to accommodate all local golfers regardless of their handicap. Up at the Peterborough Club, the second part of the program will be run off, with the ladies competing at that club, and it will be over 18 holes.

The special feature of the competition will be at two Sunday afternoon when 18 hole medal play between the professionals gets underway, and as a further inducement to the spectators to attend, will be a demonstration of shots by the pros with their favorite clubs.

The prizes for this tournament have been carefully chosen, and should please the winners, and the tournament itself should be a treat to golfers particularly for they can not only compete but see greats of the golf realm doing their stuff.

All information on the tournament may be obtained by telephoning Lex Robson at the Kawartha Club.

In the men's section there are three flights as follows: Handicaps 1 to 10; 11 to 20; and 21 to 32. Prizes for low gross, 2nd low gross, low net, and 2nd low net. Seniors over 50 years of age, one flight with 2 prizes.

BabeRuthOrders Special Bats

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Rather belatedly are the Yankees to put on a Babe Ruth Day, for that's what the Sunday War Fund double-header has become.

While the slugger was with the New York Club, Ed Barrow exercised his aversion to special afternoons for men who had to be signed to contracts. Not until he agreed to a day for Lou Gehrig did Cousin Ed abandon his strange antipathy.

Ruth sent word he was delighted with the opportunity to get back into the old blouse with the familiar N.Y. and swing those home run sticks of his.

"I have wired to Louisville to rush up three of my own model bats," Ruth exulted. "Don't let the fans get the impression the old Babe is through. I'll show those kids Sunday afternoon."

All through the long series of games for war funds, the major leagues ignored the Babe. In this 15 years with the Yankees, which saw him set a career record with 714 homers in league competition and another fifteen in world series, with a season's mark of 60 in 1927, he was far and away the greatest attraction in the history of baseball.

Ruth was expected to prove an especially powerful magnet on Sunday because, since he quit the Yanks eight years ago, a new generation of fans who knew him only through hearsay had grown up.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The series to which the City League clubs have been pointing all season since they first started out on their long schedule early in the summer will get under way tonight when Plazas and Royals meet at Riverside Park in the first game of a best of seven round to decide the league championship, possession of the Taylor Cup and the right to enter the O.A.S.A. intermediate A playdowns. It should be a memorable series. The clubs are very evenly matched, with plenty of power at the plate and it may be that it will turn out to be one of the those tussles in which the breaks will decide the winner. Tonight's game should be particularly thrilling for both outfits realize the advantage of getting the jump on the other fellow and they will both go all out to grab off a win in the opening tilt. In order to make sure of proper light to wind up the engagement the league has ordered tonight's game to be started promptly at 6.45 o'clock sharp and clubs are warned that means just what it says. They are expected to have their players on hand ready to start at the advertised hour.

* * * * * *

The biggest crowd of the year will be on hand to see the first and second place teams, both of whom swept through the semi-final rounds in straight games, tangle in the opener of what everybody expects to be a hectic series. Neither club has announced its lineup for tonight or named its pitching choice. Players available for the Plazas are Tom Parsons, Dave Wilson, Eddie Starr, Jim Ellis, Don Crowe, Art Heal, Web Starr, Ned Vitarelli, Joe Jones, Curley Scriver, Joe Blewett, Bun Kingdon, Johnny Godfrey and Johnny Johnston. The roster of the Royals includes Ronnie Akers, Bill Fraser, Bob Crowe, Pat Calladine, Arnold Smith, Ed Niziol, Maurice Giardino, Earl McNabb, George Hawks, Bob Parnell, Phil Pryde, George Gatfield, Lionel Holmes and Don Holmes. Two good clubs and they should dish out plenty of peppery softball before it is decided which of the rivals will meet the Oshawa winners in the first round of the O.A.S.A. playdowns. In a playoff series anything is likely to happen and the fans are looking forward to the City League final round with expectations that there will be a lot of thrills before the 1942 champions emerge.

The Girls' Softball League series still stands Westclox 3, Generals 1. It looked for most of last night's game as if the Big Bens had the round cinched when they piled up a big early score against the Electricians but it was a race against darkness and Generals with elimination staring them in the face did not help speed up the proceedings any. In fact in the sixth frame it looked very much as if there was no intention on the part of the Generals' pitcher of getting a ball any way near the batter and when Umpire Bennett called the game for darkness at that stage, making it no contest the ruling did not make a hit with large numbers of fans. They thought Generals should have lost for stalling. Westclox were leading 13 to 4 and completion of another innings would have given them the series. The game was called for 6.45 o'clock but the officials did not get the contest under way until after 7 and then made no noticeable effort to keep things speeded up. The result was that the Big Bens with the championship in the bag had it yanked out again, and the series has yet to be completed. Fortunately however the provincial playdown angle has considerably improved. Word was received yesterday that Peterborough had been given another week in which to produce a winner and that the Toronto series would not open until a week from today.

A Big Day In Golf

The Kinsmen's Milk for Britain fund golf tourney to be held next Sunday, August 23, is shaping up into one of the biggest golf days in local history and the result should be a really worthwhile contribution to a most worthy cause. The tourney to be held on the Kawartha course, with a women's competition on the Peterborough Golf and Country Club's course, is attracting attention all over the district and there will be many outside entries from neighboring clubs, as well as 80 or 90 local contestants and they will compete for 28 prizes. On top of this big competition will be the visit of a number of Canada's outstanding professional players who are coming to Peterborough to do their part in making the affair an outstanding success. Among them will be Gordie Brydson, from Toronto Mississauga who is having about the best year of his career, Bob Gray, the Scarboro Golf and Country Club crack, Bill Kerr, smooth shot-maker of the Toronto Cedarbrae Club and Les Franks of Islington, one of the rapidly rising Canadian pros. These boys are about the best that Canada has to offer in the way of pro golf stars and their playing should be a treat. Hundreds of citizens who never go near a golf course are expected at Kawartha Sunday to watch the illustrious visitors do their stuff. It will be a big day for golf and golfers.

Here is how George Campbell in the Oshawa Times-Gazette sizes up district softball: "In Peterborough, they have four teams in the semi-finals, with Royals, Luckies, Soldiers and Plazas. Plazas look like the class of the Liftlock City loop with a flock of talented softballers on their roster, who also excel in baseball and hockey. Jim Ellis, Art Heal, Bun Kingdon, Don Crowe, Joe Blewett, Eddie Starr and others are on the Plaza lineup. Royals have Pat Calladine, Parnell, Giarino, Akers and young Crowe (Juveniles last year) while the Luckies have the Caccavella brothers, Mowry, Lewis and Moorhead. Tom Parsons is doing the softball hurling for the Plazas, the team, which at this distance, looks to be Peterborough's representative in the O.A.S.A. first round against the Oshawa champions. Down in Belleville, it's the veterans who are still setting the pace. The R.C.A.F. team from No. 5 I.T.S. with "Al" Bell as ace hurler, is going along in great style and has advanced to the semi-finals by ousting Reliance. Now they meet the Army & Navy "Vets" for the championship. Conny Harris and Johnny Bawden are the big hurlers for the Army & Navy team. Bawden won seven straight games this year then suffered a broken toe in an accident at work. He's not yet back in action but the fine hurling of Harris is still considered to be good enough to carry the Vets to the title. The veteran Johnny Bawden is still rated as Belleville's best hurler. The Army & Navy team have the veteran Murney Green catching for them, along with Cy Barriage, his brother, Speedy St. Louis, Henn, Ethier and Bennett, all very well-known in local softball playoff records with Belleville teams."

Cards Are Coming

St. Louis Cards are slicing that Dodger lead slowly but surely. They gained a game last night by defeating the Chicago Cubs while the Bums were taking a trimming at the hands of Philadelphia. The Cards' triumph was won at the expense of the Cubs' leading pitcher Clyde Passeau who was beaten 5 to 0 as Max Lanier held the Chicago batters to seven scattered hits. Rube Melton pitched for the Phils who eked out a 3 to 2 win over the Dodgers with Macon, former Montrealer, the losing pitcher. In the American loop the Boston Red Sox gained a game on the Yanks by taking the first tilt of a four-game series from the New Yorkers 8 to 7 in ten innings. The win was chalked up against Fordham Johnny Murphy, once the greatest relief pitcher in baseball, who seems to have lost his magic touch. Seven times in a row Murphy has been beaten in a relief role. The second base rivals Joe Gordon and Bobby Doerr each hit homers and John Pesky added another for the Red Sox.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: One way and another the Girls' Softball League is working up a lot of excitement....Few of the fans blamed the Generals for delaying matters last night for they were out if the game had been finished....The kick was that they were allowed to get away with it....Art Upper and Eddie Geraldi, two of the best known ball players in Toronto have enlisted with the R.C.A.F.....Toronto Maple Leafs had a smart win over the Syracuse Chiefs last night taking the decision 4 to 1. It was the eleventh win for Harry Schuman....Winnipeg Bombers had 35 players at their first practice. That doesn't indicate any lack of material for the fall campaign....Les Ascott, Peterborough wingman who starred with the Arogos, last season is expected to line up this fall with Balmy Beach.....The Cubs-St. Petir's Catholic League playoff game will be played at Riverside Park, Thursday night, instead of at Memorial Park.

"Oh—But Ump"

Speedboy Pete Reiser of the Dodgers is shown with mouth open as if in protest of the decision of the umpire calling him out hitting the dirt at home plate with Boston Catcher Klutzz tagging him out. Reiser, who was on second when Medwick bounced a double off the left-field wall, tried to score, but a fine relay from Nanny Fernandez to Eddie Miller to Catcher Klutzz was in time to nab the sliding Reiser. The Dodgers defeated the boys from Beantown by the score of 10-0 behind the seven-hit pitching of Curt Davis.

Westclox Ahead By 13-4 Score As Game Called

Westclox were within an innings of winning the Girls' League championship last night. The Big Bens were in front 13 to 4 when Umpire Bill Bennett called the game in the second half of the sixth inning on account of darkness and it was therefore no contest. The league rules require the team that is behind to have at least seven innings to make it a legal game. Westclox had won three out of the first four games.

It was a farcical ending to an important battle and many of the fans, and incidentally the two other umpires thought the decision should have been to disqualify the C.G.E. for stalling and to award the game to the Westclox.

Behind nine runs, the Electricians had been retired without a score in the first half of the sixth. When the Westclox half of the inning opened Marilyn McCarthy on the rubber for the Generals tossed the first three or four balls up against the top of the screen. Barbara Rome who was at bat for Westclox took a swing at a couple of them and when she missed the second one, Umpire Bill Bennett called the game on account of darkness, without consulting with the other two officials, Bill Lewis and Fred Scates. The game was ordered re-played Thursday night, to start at 6:30 o'clock.

Westclox looked like winners all over last night. They scored three runs in the first innings on a walk and four hits and in the third they broke out with an eight-run rally, during which Bea McDowell, Generals' starting pitching was driven to cover. The big blow in that frame was a triple by Eunice Armstrong with the bases loaded. Marilyn McCarthy took over the pitching burden and finally got the side out. Westclox scored single runs in the fourth and fifth frames to run up their total to 13.

Isobel Bullock pitched for Westclox and Generals did little with her delivery, until Eleanor Craig and Ruth Hewitt combined two doubles in the fourth for their first run. The Westclox pitcher ran into real trouble in only one innings, the fifth when a walk and two hits filled the bases and then the Generals scored three runs on an outfield error and two more hits.

Old Squarepants Still Giants Big Meal Ticket

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP). — Melvin Ott doesn't know whether it's monkey glands or a fountain of youth or a diet of vitamins that has put the blush of youth back in King Carl Hubbell's southpaw soupbone again. And what's more, Master Melvin doesn't care.

"All I know," says the New York Giants manager, "is that he's pitching better now than at any time in the last three or four years."

Which is a motion the National League's better hitters will rise up and second unanimously. They've been trying to knock old Squarepants' block off and getting nowhere since July 11, while he piled up a string of eight straight victories, after losing six of his first seven outings.

You might like to pooh-pooh this somewhat, but don't forget that Hubbell is well on the way to his 40th birthday, now, and has been kicking around in the big time for 13 years.

Ott should know what he's talking about when it comes to Hubbell. They've been the closest of pals since John McGraw brought them up.

He Pulls Them Out

As usual, the Hub won't do much talking.

But Ott says that Hub had to start the year against the league's top two clubs—the Dodgers and Cardinals — seven times in a row "simply because we were in a spot, and when you're in a spot, there's only one guy you'll ask to pull you out—Hub."

Then Cliff Melton's left arm went bad and King Carl was told to go out there and take a regular turn. He hasn't lost since. In fact, when he knocked off Casey Stengel's Boston beauties yesterday for the 247th win of his big league career, he did it on three days' rest.

"Why," Ott added, "Y'know, I finally had to tell him to lay off pitching batting practice every day."

He's allowed only 23 runs in his eight games, but oddly enough 11 of them have come on enemy homers.

Grill Team Wins 2nd Game In Final Series

PORT HOPE, August 19. —(ENS)—Tuesday night's baseball game of the Final Town Series resulted in an 11-5 win for the Grill over the Queen's Beavers.

With Harold Woods in the box for the Beavers, the Grill had eleven runs and thirteen hits and no errors.

Pointer was not used, but crossed the experts by starting Frank Foote. The Grill now appear to have the edge as Pointer should be ready for the third game on Friday night.

Another large crowd saw the Grill take a one run lead in the first inning when Len Wakely scored Bill Foote. In their half of the third the Beavers took the lead when Hewson singled through second, Rowden walked and Davidson singled to right to score a trio of runs, when W. Foote singled. Hoyt's error let S. Wakely on and Len Wakely tripled to deep centre to bring both of them in. Len crossed the plate on Hagerman's infield out. The score was now 4-2 for Grill. The Grill added two more in the fourth, Jim Phillips homered over the left field fence to score Tony Cancilla ahead of him. The Beavers came within two runs of trying in the fifth when four successive singles by Edwardson, Mann, Woods and Hoy accounted for two runs.

The Grill put the game on ice in the sixth when the team battled around with Cancilla coming up twice. In this inning five hits and two errors did the damage.

Bill Foote was the star of the game. He got 4 for 4, accepted eight chances at short without an error and had three putouts. Foote drove in one run and crossed the plate three times. Box score as follows:

Royals Cop Pair Skip Back To Second Hole

(By The Associated Press)

Clyde Sukeforth, manager of Montreal Royals, is probably the happiest person in the International League as his fledglings flutter about in second place following seven triumphs in their last nine decisions.

The victories have returned the Royals to the runner-up slot in the standings, two games ahead of the third-place Jersey City Giants. The Royals chose Baltimore as their latest victims, hammering the Orioles twice, 11-4 and 7-5, yesterday.

Ed Albosta coasted to an easy victory in the opener as his mates gave him an early 9-0 lead. Alex Kampouris, with two homers, and Jack Graham and Gene Moore, with one each, highlighted the 14-hit attack against five Oriole tossers.

The nightcap was a pitchers' battle for seven innings. Montreal made it look like a rout when they counted four times in the eighth, but thanks to a pinch homer with the bases loaded by George Staller, the Birds tied it up. Montreal finally won out in the 10th by scoring two runs.

Leafs Whip Chiefs

Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Syracuse Chiefs, 4-1, as Harry Shuman scattered nine hits in gaining a verdict over Ewell Blackwell. It was a scoreless tie until the seventh when the Leafs pushed across two tallies. Toronto scored its final markers in the ninth and the Chiefs' lone score also came in the last frame.

After the league-leading Newark Bears pounded Gene Lillard for a 7-0 verdict in the first game, Rochester Red Wings came back to win the nightcap, 5-4. The second game was halted at the end of the seventh because of a power failure.

Randy Gumpert won his ninth victory in the first game by limiting the Wings to three singles. Russ Derry hit his 20th homer of the season for the Bears in the fifth.

Bill Beckman was the winning twirler in the second contest and gave up only five blows, but two of them were four-masters by George (Snuffy) Stirnweiss, his 10th and 11th of the campaign.

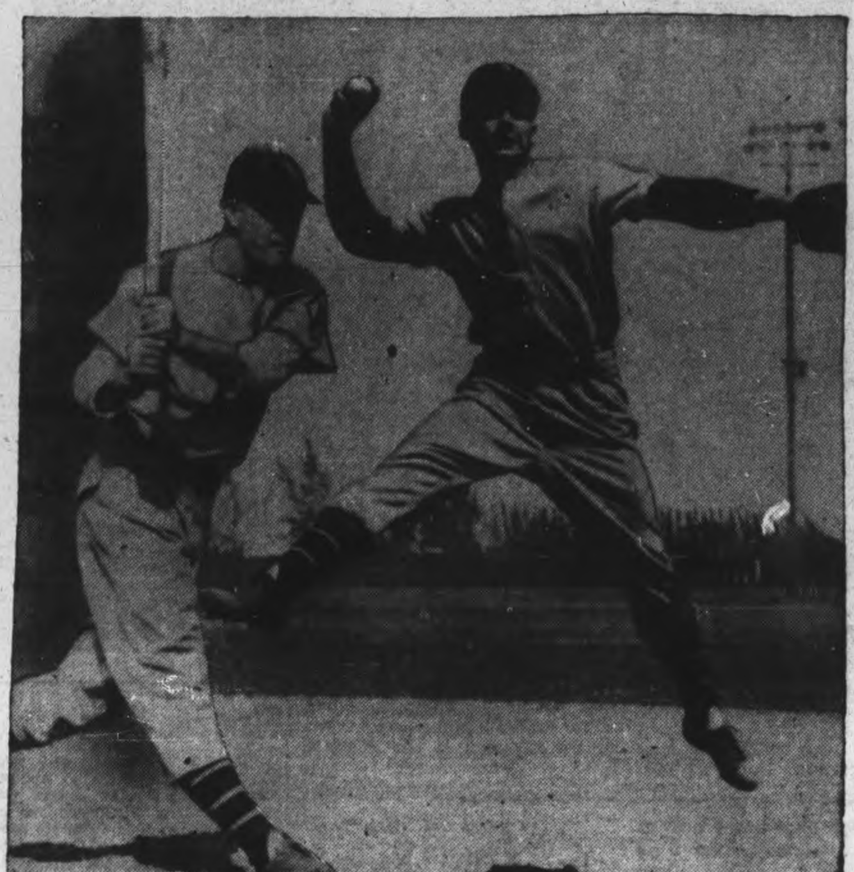
Indians Buy Outstanding Infield Pair



Purchase of two of minor league baseball's outstanding young infielders, First Baseman Eddie Robinson (LEFT), and Second Baseman Ted Sczepkowski (RIGHT), from the Baltimore Orioles for $10,000 each has been announced by the Cleveland Indians. Vice-President Roger Peckinpaugh of the Indians said the tribe "probably is getting $100,000 worth of ball players," but paid the $20,000 under an agreement in effect with the Orioles. Robinson, 21-year-old Georgian, is playing his second year of pro ball. This is Sczepkowski's first season.

Breakage Won't Break Race Fans–But Helps

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—(AP).—It is generally admitted around the race track that the mutuel "breakage" won't "break" the bettors. But it helps.

And it certainly didn't put any meat on the table for the cash contributors last Saturday when Shut Out scampered home in the Travers. A little simple arithmetic showed yesterday that the Saratoga race track and the Sovereign State of New York helped themselves to $1,143, or more than one-third of what was coming to the bettors who invested on the 3-year-old champ.

The customers were paid off at odds of 1 to 20, and could have had about 1 to 12, except for the breakage rule.

It was all done legally. The New York State racing law says that when a mutuel pool is computed for return to the winning bettors, it shall be split down to an even nickel on each dollar bet, or ten cents on each regular two-buck wager, and any odd pennies—or "breakage" shall be divided evenly between the track and the State. This saves time and manpower in figuring the pay-off.

Last Saturday, those who put their "bobs" on Shut Out's classy nose were paid the legal minimum of $2.10 for each $2 bet. The actual breakdown to the penny discloses they should have received $2.15 3-5.

Now, few race-goers are going to holler for a nickel, but those nickels add up. In the Travers they amounted to $1,143—the breakage that the bettors didn't get.

This is how it figured out:

There was $47,625 bet on the Travers. Of this, the regular State and track take was 10 per cent—five each—of $4,762. This left $42,962 to be returned to the bettors. Of the original total $39,828 was riding on Shut Out. So the folks who wagered on him should have received back their original investment plus a total of $3,134—the difference between the $42,962 for pay-off purposes and $38,828 which was tossed in on the Whitney flier.

This $3,134 figures out to approximately 7.8 cents winnings for each dollar bet on Shut Out or $2.15 3-5 return for each $2 mutuel ticket.

But the State and track put the legal snach on the 2.8 cents "breakage" over each nickel. In complete figures, the fans put $47,625 into the iron men on the race and got back $41,819.40. The track had $3,134 to pay out in winnings, but actually paid out only $1,991. That berakage is nice work if you can get it.

Whitewash Cubs In 5-0 Tilt; Phils Nip Leaders

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer.

After nearly everybody except their relatives had given them up for lost, the St. Louis Cardinals are threatening at last to make a race out of the National League pennant drive.

They still trail the front-running Brooklyn Dodgers by six and a half engths, but they have knocked three full games off the Dodger lead in the last three days and apparently have gathered enough steam to make things hot the rest of the way down the stretch.

With Southpaw Max Lanier hurling seven-hit shutout ball, the Cards ran their latest winning streak to five in a row last night by beating the Chicago Cubs and Claude Passeau, 5-0.

The Dodgers dropped into Philadelphia for a one-night stand and were jolted, 3-1, by the Phils, whom they had expected to roll over and play dead.

That defeat was second straight for the Brooks, who have lost five of their last 10 games. The Cardinals have won ten of their last 12.

While the Dodgers can look for trouble in their remaining six meetings with the Cards, they also have a problem close to home in the surprising New York Giants.

The Giants, in third place and unwilling to vacate without a struggle, have won six and lost eight with the Dodgers and still have eight more battles scheduled with the flatbush flock.

Carl Hubbel pitched the Giants to a 10-2 triumph over the Boston Braves yesterday, scattering six hits as his boss, Mel Ott, chipped in with his 21st home run and took over the leadership of the league.

It was the sixth straight in the longest Giant winning streak of the year and the eighth in a row for Hubbell, whose victory string is the longest unbroken one among National League pitchers.

In beating Passeau for the first time in three attempts this year, the Cardinals backed up Lanier's effective pitching with a nine-hit attack led by Terry Moore and Johnny Hopp. Lanier fanned eight and didn't issue a single base on balls.

Melton Right There.

It was Rube Melton, once the property of the Cards, who turned back the Dodgers for the Phils. Melton yielded only seven hits and collected two of his team's nine bows off Max Macon.

The Pittsburgh Pirates dropped Cincinnati five games behind the Giants by whitewashing the Reds, 3-0, on the six-hit hurling of Johnny Lanning in another night contest.

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox ran their winning streak to five games by edging out the New York Yankees, 8-7 in 10 innings.

Johnny Peacock doubled off relief pitcher Johnny Murphy in the tenth and scored the winning run on Don MiMaggio's outfield fly, handing the veteran Yankee fireman his seventh straight defeat. The loss chopped New York's lead to 11½ games.

Denny Galehouse turned in a seven-hit shutout in a night contest as the St. Louis Browns whipped the Chicago White Sox, 7-0, and climbed to within a single game of the third-place Cleveland Indians, who were idle.

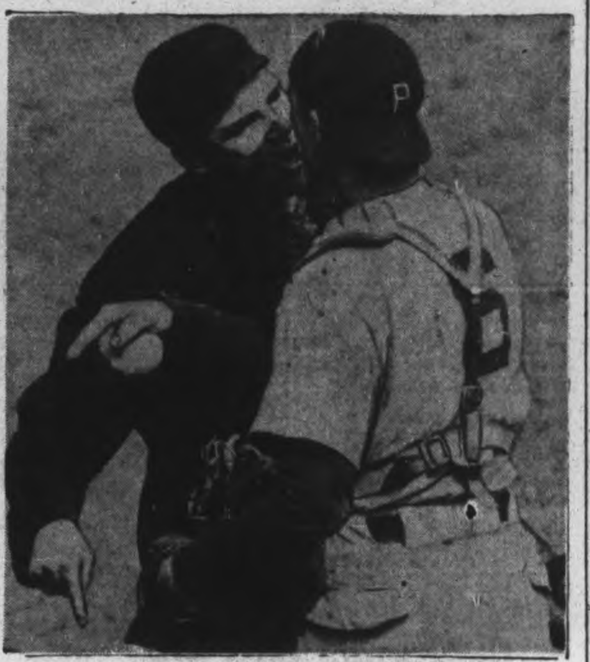
Jack Wade gave the Browns their first game in the sixth inning but they buried him under a six-run assault in the seventh and continued their 11-hit attack on Joe Haynes.

The Washington Senators came from behind to trip the Philadelphia Athletics, 2-1, in another arc light tilt, with Alex Carrasquel shading Phil Marchildon in a mound duel.

It's Papa Crosetti Off The Diamond

When he's off the baseball diamond, Frankie Crosetti, New York Yankee infielder, fills very well the role of a proud papa. He's pictured ABOVE with his 10-month-old daughter, Ellen, as he gets a breath of fresh air in a New York park.

Sez Who?



Players in the major leagues ought to know by now that an umpire is never wrong. As you might guess, Livingston, whose back is to the camera, of the Phils, who is arguing with Umpire Barlick, lost this one to his nibs. The Giants defeated the Philadelphia Phils in the first game of two at the Polo Grounds by the score of 6-5.

Sports Snapshots Across Canada

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Aug. 19.—Surprise, surprise: Most ambitious athletic undertaking in the armed services since this war began has nothing to do with the box-office sports, hockey and football...Cricket is the game, and the project is a two-week trip from an R.A.F. station near North Battleford, Sask., to Vancouver...The Airmen arrived today and a program of exhibitions has been arranged...Prize of the jaunt will be a match between the British side and a Vancouver all-star side next Saturday.

It's Never Too Late

Dick Walker, Montreal soccer follower, has been appointed to the No. 1 Wireless Training School, R.C.A.F., near Montreal to look after sports equipment...He's keen about the job because its as close to active participation in this war as he can ever hope for...Reason: he's 79.

Incidentally:

Dave Castilloux's retirement vacillations have furnished a nice piece of advance publicity for the scrap manager Raoul Godbout eventually will cook up...Only trouble with the Castilloux-Henry Armstrong match suggested as a possible by Godbout last night is that Armstrong probably wouldn't come all this way for a charity bout...It would seem a mistake for Castilloux to tackle anything else when a benefit card is in the making in Montreal and Calgary promoters are willing to donate everything but the Rocky Mountains toward a war gift bout between Castilloux and Al Lust.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers' Wayne Sheley is rumored intending to join the R.C.A.F....Watch Mrs. D. C. Coleman's Western Prince for Mrs. Orpen's Cup and Saucer come October..He looked good in taking the British Columbia Futurity and has been running the half-mile tracks all summer while Eastern juveniles have raced mainly on the longer ovals...The Cup and Saucer will be run at Toronto Dufferin, a half-mile affair...Art Coulter has joined the United States Army...Jimmy Gilkes, great backfielder for Calgary Bronks and Vancouver Grizzlies, is taking an officer's training course in the Canadian Army.

Forecast Meat Probable Next Rationed

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—(CP)—New ration books to be distributed before Sept. 8 will contain emergency coupons for use, if necessary, in the rationing commodities other than sugar, tea and coffee, but authoritative sources said it is unlikely these extra coupons will be required to obtain essential foodstuffs produced in Canada.

At Lake Couchiching, Ont., last night, Kenneth Taylor, secretary of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said before the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs: "The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has no intention of rationing anything else for the next three or four or five months, the calculable future as far as we can see ahead."

One authority said the only possibility he sees of additional food rationing is that the demands of Allied nations overseas for meat from the United States or Canada would cause such a drain on supplies that "meatless days" or perhaps rationing would be necessary in the future.

But such conditions have not so far developed, he said.

Concern has been expressed in some quarters over butter supplies, but one food official said today that payment of a bonus of six cents a pound on butterfat has resulted in enlarged production. In July the butter output showed a gain of 2½ per cent over the same month last year, although during the earlier months of 1942 production generally showed a decline.

Total milk production had increased and the output of cheese had been so large that it was expected there would be sufficient to meet British requirements of at least 125,000,000 pounds, and home market needs as well.

Butter To Get Pentiful.

"The prospects are that there will be steady improvement in butter production as time goes on," this spokesman said.

"There is sufficient meat to get along on without rationing but this situation is always complicated by the needs of other nations which look to Canada and the United States for meat supplies in wartime.

"If there are heavy shipments to the United Kingdom and to Russia, for instance, there might have to be steps to reduce consumption at home, irrespective of whether the actual shipments went from Canada or the United States."

This authority said Canada had cereal foods in abundance and the vegetables crop was good.

Other authorities said there appeared to be little prospect that tobacco or fruit would have to be placed under rationing control.

Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials, in charge of rationing, said they could give no idea as to what commodities might be covered by the emergency coupons, but they recalled that sugar rationing books contained emergency coupons which proved of value in bringing about tea and coffee rationing when that became necessary.

"The situation can change so quickly, especially in respect to imported foodstuffs, that we have found it wise to be ready for further rationing should it become necessary," one official said. "Such precautionary steps are taken before it is known where the rationing is required, and our experience with tea and coffee has justified such steps."

Reds Yielding

Midnight reports indicated a resurgence of Nazi effort along both arms of a pincher groping toward Stalingrad and the Volga, while the Red Army counter-attacked in the Krasnodar sector and stood off assaults in the Pyatigorsk area of the Caucasus.

Huns Mass More Men

Already wedged into Russian positions in a sector of the Don Bend front, the Germans massed large formations to strike elsewhere southeast of Kletskaya and forced a Russian unit to retreat, the Soviet Information Bureau announced.

"After a sanguinary battle during which our troops destroyed 10 German tanks and about 800 Hitlerites, our troops retired to new defensive positions," it said.

Coupled with the announcement of these devolpments less than 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad was a statement that German and Rumanian forces—reported yesterday to have been driven back several miles in an action above Kotelnikovski, itself 95 miles southwest of Stalingrad—again "went over to the offensive."

Soviet soldiers were declared to have slain 600 men in a fight for a village in that hill-dotted region.

Bodies of 1,500 Germans who crossed the Kuban River in the Krasnodar region were reported to have littered a corn field after a one-hour battle with the Cossack-paced defenders of the Western Caucasus. Counter attacks routed a Nazi battalion in another action, the Government said.

Stiffening of defences before Grozny oil fields was indicated.

"In the area of Pyatigorsk (170 miles southeast of Nazi-occupied Maikop) Soviet troops are repelling fierce enemy attacks," the Information Bureau said. "On one sector alone over 300 enemy officers and men were wiped out."

480,000 Nazis Slain.

The Soviet Government declared the Russians had killed 480,000 Germans and wounded or captured 770,000 others in the three months from May 15 to August 15, while their own dead, wounded and missing in the same period totalled 606,000.

Nazi material losses in the period were said to include 3,390 tanks, 4,000 guns of various calibre, and not less than 4,000 planes against Soviet losses of 2,240 tanks, 3,152 guns, and 2,198 planes.

The Government announced in June the Germans had lost 10,000,000 men in the first year of the German-Russian War, of which 4,500,000 were killed. Part of the new three-month figures was included in that toll.

Despite severe Russian industrial and territorial losses in the Don Basin and the Caucasus, the Russians said the German offensive was "at a much lower tempo than in the first period of the war."

It was stated, however, that the Germans have "considerable superiority in troops and equipment on several sectors of the front." This was attributed to the transfer eastward of 22 divisions from occupied France, the Netherlands and Belgium.

The announcement said another 70 divisions were mobilized in Italy, Rumania, Hungary and Slovakia for service against Russia.

Changes Rouse Uneasiness.

Although in Gen. Alexander Britain has picked an advocate of attack and surprise to match wits with the Axis' wily field Marshall Erwin Rommel, some of the misgivings arose over the fact that Britain once again had switched Middle East commanders.

"The process of selection by trial and error already has proved far too costly," commented the Daily Mail.

One unanswered question was whether Gen. Auchinleck had resigned, or was being given another post. No new assignment was announced for him and the war office offered no comment. Some unofficial sources, however, said it is unlikely that a man of his standing and experience would be sent into retirement.

Silence concerning the replaced Middle East Commander might mean that Britain is keeping the enemy guessing. Gen. Auchinleck commanded the forces which took Narvik from the Germans in 1940 but when the Nazis invaded France soon after his arrival in Norway he was ordered back to defend Britain. He later succeeded Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell in North Africa and the latest Nazi drive, stalled now at El Alamein, was stopped after he had taken personal direction of the 8th army in the field.

Among the leaders Mr. Churchill and Gen. Sir Alan Francis Brooke, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, met in "important discussions," an announcement from Cairo disclosed last night, were:—

Field Marshall Jan Christian Smuts, Prime Minister of South Africa; Maj.-Gen. Russel Maxwell, United States Commander in the Middle East; Gen. Charles De Gaulle and Gen. Georges Catroux of the Fighting French; and King Farouk and Prime Minister Nahas Pasha of Egypt.

Among Britain's own top generals and dipomatic officials who sat in with Mr. Churchill were Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, who accompanied him to Moscow; Gen. Wavell, now Commander-in-Chief in India; Lt.-Gen. Sir Pierre Van Ryneveld ,Chief of the Imperial General Staff of the South African Forces; Sir Henry Wilson, Commander-in-Chief of the 9th Army; and Gen. Bernard Freyberg, Commander-in-Chief of New Zealand Troops in the Middle East.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Attends Blue Springs Camp

Rover Leader G. E. Groombridge recently attended the Blue Springs camp to take up a cub leader's training course and reports fine weather all the time. Word has been received that all those who attended the course were successful in passing the necessary examinations. On the return trip he called at Brant Sanitarium and visited Gordon Clegg and Mr. William Lyburn, both of whom were attached to the local boy scout association. Both are doing fine and would appreciate a letter or two from their friends in Peterborough.

Leaders' Camp at Scout Grounds

A very successful leaders' camp was held recently at the scout grounds just north of Nassau, and it is thought that another of its kind will be held when suitable arrangements can be made. One thing that was suggested as the outcome of this camp, that a permanent building be erected for the accommodation of campers in case of emergency and for lecture purposes.

Shelled, Gunned Crew Forced Into Shark Seas

JONQUIERE, Que., Aug. 19—(CP).—Being shelled, sunk and machine-gunned by a German submarine is bad enough but when you have to jump into shark-infested waters your worries really begin, according to the sea-faring Michaud brothers, Lorenzo, 19, and Guy, 20, of this Saguenay district town.

The boys are home to rest up from the ordeal they went through when their tanker was shelled and sunk in the Atlantic. And this is the story they have to tell:

"About nine o'clock on our eighth night out of Corpus Christi, Texas, the watch sighted a submarine about 50 feet astern.

"We placed ourselves close to the lifeboats so that we could act at the right moment.

"At 9.30 the sub. let go a torpedo, but it missed its mark. Fifteen minutes later it let go another torpedo and it also missed us. A 10.04 the sub. drew up opposite us at a distance of 60 or 70 feet and began shelling us with everything she had.

"The first shell struck the pilot's cabin and started a fire. Pieces of shrapnel killed our good friend Eugene Allard of Jonquiere. We were astern and we tried to get the lifeboat into the water, but in our excitement we overturned it and it sunk in the sea. Then we rushed to launch a raft through a hail of shells, and machine-gun bullets from the sub but we succeeded without getting hurt.

One Man Loses Leg

"However, our troubles were only beginning. We had to jump into the shark-infested waters and swim to the raft. A crew member had his leg bitten off by one of those sea monsters.

"Five of us climbed on to the raft and 15 other crew members piled into another lifeboat. Of the 21 officers and men aboard the ship, one was killed and 15 injured.

"We had only rowed a few yards when the sub. spotted us and began to machine-gun us. Our three companions were injured. After a while the submarine ceased fire, asked to talk to the captain, and then submerged.

"Even then our troubles weren't over. The oil which spread on the sea took fire and we had to row like mad to keep away from the flames. We spent 15 hours on the raft before being rescued by an American destroyer which also picked up the occupants of the lifeboat."

Survivor Of Three Torpedoings Capt. Cooper Visits Peterboro

Three times and out—he hopes. is the record of Capt. Percy Cooper of the Merchant Marine, who was recently torpedoed for the third time while sailing toward America. The fact that two of the torpedoings are experiences of the last war does not lessen this "achievement" in any way. The Captain reported that he hoped there wouldn't be too many more because he isn't as young as he used to be and he doesn't get quite the same thrill out of it.

This man is a British seaman born and bred and he has served with the Merchant Marine for 34 years. Both in this war and the last his job has been to carry supplies around England and across the oceans, and he is expecting very shortly to resume his duties once more. Being struck by a torpedo is only a delaying factor as far as this man is concerned.

Torpedo Struck Fast.

"We were sailing along in a convoy one night," the Captain related, "and I had just left the bridge after telling the officer there that I was going to make a cup of tea. when the trouble started. I got as far as putting the electric kettle on when there was an almighty bang, and that was the end of the tea. The torpedo struck the engine room but the majority of the crew were saved. When we went to man the lifeboats we found that of the four, three had been smashed, on both sides of the boat. The one lifeboat was lowered and then the rest of the men took to the rafts."

Capt. Cooper explained that these rafts were part of the regular ship's equipment, and that they are provided with vitamin foods, lights, signals, water and chocolate enough to keep them going for some time. It was on one of these rafts that he made his escape and they drifted around in the murky darkness for about three hours before some of the escort vessels returned and picked up the survivors. On reaching land, the crew were given a furlough and Capt. Percy Cooper came to Peterborough to spend a few days with his cousin, Mrs. J. C. Harrison. 733 George Street.

"I couldn't even remember their house number to wire them," he chuckled, "so I sent one wire to the store near here to get the address, and here I am."

He paid high tribute to the men who were his sailing companions and said that they all reacted magnificently, and were filled with a rollicking spirit of adventure, so common to the naval service. However he said that there was really very little room for panic, because the men are trained rigidly for just such an emergency and when it arises they do their jobs almost automatically.

When he was asked how the 1942 torpedoings compared with his 1916-1917 adventures, he said, well it was still torpedoing, but now the rafts and things were much better equipped and it made it a lot easier on the survivors if such a thing can be called easy.

Burned Out In London

His home is in the bomb-battered city of London which he said has been fairly well cleared of debris. He was in Liverpool during part of the blitz, but said he left before the worst. His wife and daughter are still holding the fort in London though. His daughter was formerly employed as a member of the B.B.C. staff, but is now in the A.T.S., the equivalent to the C.W.A.C. in Canada. Their home in London has been closed up and is still standing, but during one of the heavy raids the place where his family were staying was burned to the ground. Capt. Cooper said they were very lucky, to get out alive. A number of women were taking shelter in the basement when a fire bomb struck the house plumb centre and they were able to get out and over to a shelter through an outside door leading out of the basement. Of course they lost everything they had.

When this was mentioned this man chuckled and said, but we got everything out of it, but sobering he said, there were a lot of little knick-knacks that were irreplaceable because of their memories.

"The food situation in England isn't too bad at the present time, and I was there only a short time ago," he said. "Just now everyone is growing his own vegetables and that is a big help. There isn't much meat and we get about one egg per person a week as a rule. There is a good deal more cheese being brought into the country and it is considered a very valuable vitamin food for everyone who is working very hard."

Everyone In Uniform

"Everyone there is in uniform, girls and men alike, whether they be the cogs in industry or the armed forces. There is conscription for men and women and everyone is doing his part in an effort to clear up this business."

One of the real signs of the times was revealed in this little incident that the captain related. During his last stay in London, he was passing Buckingham Palace, just after an investiture. All those decorated, the high generals and admirals, streamed out and started walking to their destinations. Except for doctors and other necessary services, cars are an unknown factor in England now. There are a few taxis do a little work, but they have very little petrol.

London has become a very dead city, Capt. Cooper said. There are crowds at the theatres and restaurants from about 5 to 9:30 at night. At 9:30 they all shut shop and there is nothing for folks to do but go home and get to bed. As it is light till around 11 o'clock now, everyone is able to get home during daylight. By 10 o'clock the whole city has put itself to bed.

4-Year-Old Girl Injured By Car

Four-year-old Carol Yeoman, Park street, sustained a cut on the back of the head but fortunately escaped other injuries when she was struck and knocked down by an automobile at Wolfe and Park streets on Monday.

William Barnacol, 315½ Stewart street, who had been driving east on Wolfe street, started to make a left turn into Park street when his car struck the little girl, knocking her to the pavement and the machine passed over her.

Barnacol picked up the girl and took her to the office of Dr. Herbert Young, from where she was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where an X-ray examination showed no injuries other than a cut on the head.

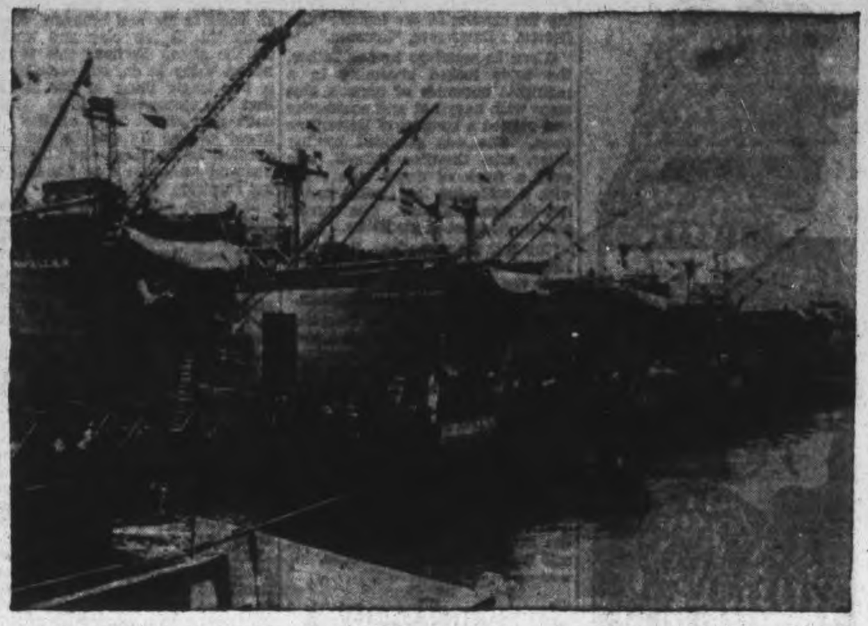
Ships For England In Record Launching



Pictured lined up are five new 10,000-ton freighters which were built for the British Ministry of Transport and launched at the Todd-Bath Iron Shipbuilding Corporation in South Portland, Maine. The ships are (LEFT to RIGHT): Ocean Traveler, Ocean Stranger, Ocean Wayfarer, Ocean Gallant and Ocean Seaman. These five ships, two destroyers and one Liberty ship of 10,500 tons were launched in South Portland and Bath in what is hailed as a record day of ship launchings. The British cargo ships were built in a sunken basin in a horizontal position and when ready for launching water was let into the basin until its level reached that of the bay at which point the vessels are fully afloat.

Few Horseshoes Available Dealers Claim

With a bumper cabbage crop in North Monaghan gardens comes an intimation that corned beef, the kind you buy in tins, may disappear from the market before long. No official announcement has reached the local trade yet, but those who like the savory combination may have to be satisfied with just plain cabbage one of these days. After all, cabbage soup is one of the staples in hungry areas of Europe.

Charlie Kingan of the King Hardware store reports a scarcity of horseshoes, symbol of the jack-pot, arriving argosies and increment generally.

"We order them and don't get a reply," Mr. Kingan says. "You know iron and steel are scarce, and we might as well go out of horseshoes altogether. That's about what we have decided. We run into too much trouble about them."

Imagine no more horseshoes over the barn door! Yesterday it was tires for the automobiles; now it is threatening the carriage and wagon trade. Of course somebody will still manage to get horseshoes for the blacksmiths, but wangling a fractional stock from those who make them is no cinch, according to the Kingan experience.

Cement Plant May Be Used To Store Wheat

Revival of a rumor that 1,300,000 bushels of wheat will be stored in the vacant building of Canada Cement Company at Lakefield was heard this morning in a conversation relating to the vast problem of housing Canada's wheat harvest of 500,000,000 bushels.

Estimates from cereal authorities of late have been suggesting that this country will have on its hands this fall the fabulous grain pile of one billion bushels—1,000,000,000.

"Do you think that is real prospect?" the Examiner asked Eric Vincent of Quaker Oats Company today.

"It will probably be more than a billion," he said. "The wheat crop will be at least 400,000,000 bushels, possibly half a billion bushels, add to that 400,000,000 bushels of oats, and then add to that total the flax and barley, and there ought to be a billion bushels right there, and that's not taking into account the carry-over from the crop of 1941.

"We haven't got the July figures for the carry-over, but it will be a huge figure in itself."

Mr. Vincent said he had heard a rumor about using the Canada Cement buildings for grain storage.

"That was talked about two years ago, and I was there when one of the Richardsons came up to look at it. I have heard the rumor again lately, but I have no other information. So don't quote me about it because I simply don't know."

A Huge Harvest

Frank C. Paterson told the Examiner the last news he had from the West mentioned yields up to 50 bushels of wheat to the acre in sections of Alberta, favorable weather, the likelihood that harvesting would be two weeks later than usual, and broad expectation of an ocean of grain in Canada's West this fall.

From an unofficial source it was estimated that the carry-over of wheat might be somewhere between 350 and 400,000,000 bushels. This informant also said: "Supposing we have a half billion bushel crop of wheat, and that is becoming a probability. Add maybe 400,000,000 bushels to that, and you get between 800 and 900,000,000 bushels, and that is only wheat. Subtract the domestic consumption of about 300,000,000 and you still have a half billion bushel volume on hand."

A huge acreage of western land went into flax and barley this year. Barley is being fed to hogs and sold to malters; flax is needed in several branches of industry especially in the making of linseed oil.

Such figurative mountains of grain should convey to the layman an impression of the responsibility of the Wheat Board and its job of finding storage accommodation for the crop that will soon be flowing from the fields.

Walter Carveth Has Funeral Two Miles Long

Hundreds of friends and neighbors gathered to pay final tribute to one of the best known and loved men of the district at the funeral service for Walter Carveth, McCracken's Landing. It was the largest funeral ever held in this district and the procession was two miles long.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Snellgrove and the Rev. Mr. Scovell and Canon Sawyers. In beautiful and impressive words they spoke highly of Mr. Carveth's Christian principles and sterling character. After the reading of the 23rd Psalm, Mr. Carveth's favorite poem "Peace Perfect Peace" and "When My Life's Work Is Ended" were read. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

There were many lovely floral tributes and there were 25 flower bearers made up of friends, relatives and cottagers from McCracken's Landing. It was a Masonic funeral and 35 Lakefield Masons attended.

Pallbearers were: Stanley Darling of Peterborough; W. W. Leonard, Ray Brown, Hilliard McCracken, D. H. Webster, Lakefield, and Garfield Crowe, Dummer.

Small Centres Send Donors To Blood Clinic

In response to the appeal that is being made for blood donors by the Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic a number of men have already volunteered and in addition residents in the towns and villages and in the rural district are realizing the seriousness of the situation and a number of enquiries have been made. On Monday last Lindsay sent down five donors, ten more are down today and ten more aranged for next Monday's Clinic. The quota from Lindsay is placed at around 300 and it is expected it will be filled.

Other places, Port Hope, Cobourg, Norwood, Havelock, Lakefield, Millbrook, and even smaller centres in the district are to work with the Peterborough Clinic in the matter of providing blood for overseas and it is expected the response will be equally as good from them all.

The Clinic is open every day from 9 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. where any one can register, after that, one visit to the Clinic is all that is required to give a blood donation. The medical examination, the taking of the blood and typing is all done at the one visit and no one will be given another call for at least three months.

There is no greater war effort at the moment than that of giving your blood for our soldiers, sailors and airmen overseas.

Peterboro City Well Lighted

Peterborough has more than the average number of street lamps, and the local cost "compares well with other cities" according to information from the 1941 report of the Hydro-Electric Commission as reviewed for the council by City Clerk Outram.

"In recent years this city has been installing more 300-watt lamps than formerly. In fact we now have 703 of these 300-watt lamps, which is almost 50 per cent. of the total number of street lamps.

In some of the cities from which comparison was taken the cost of street lighting is charged on a frontage basis as a local improvement, which has the effect of lowering the cost from the general rate."

Included in the list of cities tabulated by Mr. Outram were the following:

Kingston—26,741 population; cost of lighting $21,219.34.

Guelph—Population 22,500; light cost $19,451.44.

Kitchener — Population 38,281; light cost $32,239.06.

Oshawa—Population 25,035; light cost $12,194.82.

Peterborough—Population 24,400; light cost $22,451.66.

St. Catharines—Population 28,625; light cost $27,277.

Belleville — Population 14,876; light cost $10,968.86.

Port Arthur — Population 23,790; light cost $19,684.11.

Barracks' Life Changes Many Soldiers

A syndicated article appeared in a number of papers recently commenting on a letter which contained the old problem of the boy away soldiering and the girl who has to stay at home.

Once the boys become active members of any branch of the service, their training right from the beginning starts to widen their horizons and most of them deep in their hearts begin to realize the great responsibility that rests upon their shoulders. As they become conscious of this realization and of the enormity of the task which lies before them, familiar views and manners of living are subject to change.

To the girl or wife who remains behind, living in the same even groove, this sudden change is incomprehensible, and it is an object of considerable worry unless she is a girl of exceptional understanding. What few women realize is that life in the armed forces, where large groups of men are living together for so many hours a day, is stripped of the finer points in civilian life and when the men are turned loose they want feminine companionship. However, unfortunately, all the boys do not abide by the rules of the game, and knowing this, many girls are just a little afraid of what their particular man will do.

There are some men, who seem to have to play the field to keep up their own particular vanity, and these are invariably troublemakers. A girl associated with a man like this should either have enough love and understanding to take him as he is or else leave him alone entirely for he is not likely to ever change.

Think Of Girls Often

Most men though are unusually loyal, and if they feel the need once in a while for the odd date when they can no longer drop in on their own particular girl, it is because of the intense loneliness and homesickness that so often hits him when he is far away from home. In most cases like this, the girl he is substituting is soon aware of his other attachment and realizes that she has been chosen simply to break the monotony of another night in camp that drags on till lights out. How many girls have had this experience, and if the girls at home only realized it, these girls are really doing them a favor, for most of them encourage the boys to talk of things dear to him at home, and so his sweetheart is the upper thought in his mind.

Women are going to have to realize that they must educate themselves to make adjustments, because in a country at war, life will not move in the same regular way as formerly. Nobody wants it this way, it is simply a product of the times. Fundamentally these men, have sounder and higher values of life than they have ever had before, but they don't believe in wearing their hearts on their sleeves, and they expect women to be mind readers and blessed with some inner vision to realize what they are experiencing and to act accordingly.

Women Should Prepare

Now is the time for women to try and prepare themselves to be in a position to march side by side with their men when they return. Most of them will be greatly changed men, for the things they have seen and passed through will have left scars that can never be completely erased and unless the women at home can get busy and try to grow in spirit to keep pace with this growth there will be untold heartbreak ahead.

One of the most difficult things in the world for the girl who has been left behind is to avoid having her actions and talk irritate the man who has been away. The light chatter that he used to enjoy leaves him cold after he has seen a friend cut to pieces with machine gun fire or a buddy burned in a plane crash. It leaves a soldier's mind stamped with an indelible horror that he is unable to discuss with anyone, not even the person for whom he bears the greatest love. The greatest service the girls at home can render their country is to be ready to deal with the men of the post-war era and to help them regain their balance.

Bicyclists Fined For Using Bridge

Entering a written plea of guilty to a charge of careless driving W. J. Atkinson of R.R. 3 Peterborough was fined $5 and costs in police court this morning. There was no accident involved in the case.

Riding bicycles over the C.P.R. footbridge resulted in fines of $2 and $1 costs for Leslie King, G. Johnston, Rogers street, Barbara Stephenson and Eva Clark. They all entered written pleas of guilty to the charge.

J. D. McQuade was assessed a similar amount for failing to stop before entering a through street and A. W. Wray, T. E. Tanner, Apsley, and Wm. Parker fined $2 and costs for parking offences.

Lt. Max Clarke, former employee of the Quaker Oats Company, now serving with the Glengarrians, is home after 14 months' overseas, and will take a special course at R.M.C., Kingston, before proceeding overseas again. For the past 10 months he has been on brigade and headquarters work.

Domestic Fights Aired In City Court

Magistrate Gee believes that housewives in Peterborough should organize some kind of a protective society. His Worship intimated as much this morning when he had several more domestic cases before him, making half a dozen or more in the last few days in which wives have complained that their husbands beat them or had failed to support them.

In two of today's cases, involving non-support charges were adjourned to give the husbands a chance to prove that they intend to live up to the promises they have made to play the part of better providers in future.

In another case where the husband was charged with assaulting his wife, the latter asked to have the charge withdrawn and Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., said that he would offer no objection to that course.

"Better go and kiss your wife" was the advice of Magistrate Gee as the erring husband left the dock.

English Flier To Visit Here

George Stennett of Peterborough, England, with the photography section of the R.A.F. at Charlottetown, P.E.I., has written Mayor Hamilton that he is planning a furlough trip to this city early in October. His letter included a clipping from a Peterborough, Eng., newspaper reporting the presentation to its municipal leaders of a mobile kitchen, gift of the students of the local Collegiate Institute and Vocational School.

On that occasion Flight-Lieutenant Gerald Wooll made the presentation as a former student of Peterborough Collegiate Institute. With him was Sergt. A. Watson of the Glengarry regiment. The ceremony took place on the Guildhall steps of the old English city. Receiving the student's gift, Alderman W. O. Snowden welcomed the visitors and expressed the city's appreciation of this practical remembrance from the sister city in Canada.

"For present and past generosity" were words emphasized by Alderman Snowden. Quartermaster Davidson and Sergeant Smedmore assisted in the presentation.

George Stennett intends to use part of his furlough in obtaining photographs of this city, including the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. It is understood that Fred Roy will take him under his wing for guidance in pictorial selections.

Brinton Carpet Makes 47th Donation

The Peterborough and District British War Victim's Fund has now been operating for exactly 70 weeks, and during that period the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co., Ltd., employees have made 47 donations with the $10.00 listed in their name to-day which brings their grand total up to the splendid sum of $593.00 in voluntary contributions to help the victims of air raids over Britain.

This means an average of one contribution for every 1½ weeks, with an average of a little over $12.50 for every donation made, and no one can deny that that is a mighty fine record well worthy of more than just passing notice.

For the sixth day in a row, it is a pleasure to record the work of public school children on behalf of the fund, and this time it concerns two boys, Keith Barrett and Harold Keene who gathered donations of canned goods and other packaged articles from their friends and neighbors to make three baskets of groceries, and then set to work selling tickets at 10 cents each or 3 for 25 cents to raise a total of $8.30 for the fund, appearing in their name to-day.

The draw was made by the secretary of the fund and resulted in Miss Louise Spriggs of The Examiner office staff winning the first prize with Ticket No. 882; the second prize going to Mrs. Fanning of 308 Burnham street with Ticket No. 843, and the third prize went to Mrs. L. Groombridge of 253 Murray street with Ticket No. 832.

This is the second effort these two boys have turned in for the fund, and adds to an already splendid record chalked up by school children during the holiday recess which stands out very much to their credit.

Lavender, which grows in a large number of gardens in England, the source of a really delightful perfume, has on a few occasions been made the means of adding money to the fund to help the people of Britain, and from this same person who has previously helped in this manner there is a donation of $3 under the title of "More Lavender."

The Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club is holding a mixed tournament this evening at 7.30 on behalf of the fund when there will be mixed rinks, drawn from the board, with the admission charge set at only 25 cents, or more if you care to give it, and Herb Martin has been a good booster for this event, which will also see the draw made for the five prizes which have been donated also to the fund, under the convenership of Miss Mabel Patterson, who is president of the ladies' section of the club.

Refreshments will be served, and these will include tea made from the last of the stock of this commodity which the club had on hand prior to the time rationing went into effect.

CONFESSING INDISCRETIONS USUALLY CAUSES HEARTACHE.

Man May Forgive, But Never Forgets a Wife's Pre-Marital Mistake.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a modern young man who believes that sowing wild oats should not be looked upon too harshly. I fell deeply in love with a fine girl, but shortly after becoming engaged, over my protest, she confessed to having once slipped off the straight and narrow path. I comforted her, telling her her one mistake didn't matter beside the many I had made. Yet her confession, although it did not kill my love for her, deadened romance, wounded my pride and left me with a strong desire for revenge upon the man, and I feel that the knowledge of this affair will always remain a scar on our marriage.

Through your column you can save a lot of unhappiness if you will caution young people not to mention their past mistakes. Confession may be an indication of honesty, but it results in much harm and little good.

DISILLUSIONED YOUNG MAN.

ANSWER: Many people believe that before marriage a man and woman should confess all their sins and sinlets to each other and tell all their faults and blunders. They think this is fair play and wiping off the slate. Perhaps this is the honest thing to do, but certainly it is the tragic thing to do, for all that it accomplishes is to share one's own shame with another, to smear love, to kill what is best and sweetest in marriage, and to give a husband and wife food for unending suspicion and jealousy.

If a man and woman have committed any wrong in their past lives that would reach out and shatter their new lives, if they have any disease, or if any hereditary weakness is in their families that might affect their children, then they are in honor bound to confess it to those whom they are asking to marry them. But certainly harm rather than good comes of their telling their future husbands and wives of all their mistakes and blunders.

I get many letters from men on this subject. They invariably express regret that their wives told them the thing they would never have wanted to know. They know their wives are good and true; they know their wives have worked for them and sacrificed for them and given them every proof of devotion, and they've been happy and contented until the wife was foolish enough, in a moment of repentence, to wreck her home by confessing to her husband some episode of her past that destroys his faith in her.

Romance Is Spoiled.

A man may forgive, but he never forgets. The memory of what his wife has done is a fire of jealousy that never ceases to burn in his heart. He never quite trusts her again. His romance is spoiled, his alabaster box is broken, and all to no purpose. For what's done is done and never can be changed. Only there is unhappiness and distrust where there was happiness and faith before.

If there were no other reason in the world for women to remain chaste, it would be found in this—that they need never know the heartbreaking struggle between love and conscience, of trying to decide whether to tell the men to whom they are engaged of their past lives or to keep silent and forever hide a secret they live in fear of being found out.

SHE'S NOT REALLY IN LOVE.

Dear Miss Dix: I am employed as a secretary and live at home; so I use my salary as spending money. I'm engaged to a young man who works, but does not have a permanent job. We plan to marry. However, here is the problem: I want to wait two or three years, as it seems to me that marriage ties one down so and consists mostly of worrying over money bills, as well as losing out on a lot of good times. I also want to get myself a fur coat, a typewriter, a good wrist watch, an automobile, a lifetime fountain pen, a bicycle, an accordion, and an electric organ. Also I want to take piano and dancing lessons, and I know if I don't get these things before marriage I'll never get them afterward.

My boy friend insists on getting married as soon as he gets a steady job with a fairly good salary. He says that he also wants a lot of things, too, but that compared to me they don't mean anything, and he's willing to give them up to get me. He says I've got to choose between him and the things I want. Which do you think I'd better take?

Answer: Well, I think you'd better take the things just now, because you are evidently not really in love with the young man if you'd rather have a fur coat and a bicycle than him, and dread getting married because it will cut off your good times.

When you fall really, genuinely, head over heels in love, you'd rather have your sweetheart's arms around you than the finest sable; and doing your own cooking in a two-by-four apartment will seem more thrilling to you than going to the swankiest night club.

But if you wait to marry until you have everything you want, you'll never get married because our craving for luxuries grows on what it feeds on. Nobody ever has everything he or she wants.

Ontario Harvest Help Scarce In Western Ont.

TORONTO, August 19. —(CP) — More help and better weather conditions were urgently needed in sections of Western Ontario to bring crops in, the Ontario Department of Agriculture said in its weekly crop report issued here today. Cutting and threshing operations have proceeded with difficulty.

In Southern Ontario havesting and threshing are in full swing. Tobacco curing was now general in Elgin County. Yield of grain was said satisfactory. Peach picking was at its height and second cuttings of hay were heavy.

Spring grain cutting in Central Ontario Counties was almost completed. Some second crop alfalfa was being cut, but most will be left for either seed or pasture. Tomatoes were making good growth but labor situation was said to be "still a problem."

Improved pasture conditions as a result of wet weather has increased milk production in Eastern Ontario, but weather conditions were not satisfactory for harvesting and stocked grain was beginning to sprout in some sections. Corn crop prospects were said good.

In Northern Ontario cheese and butter production in some sections was at the highest in the history of the district and the potato crop was good. Labor is scarce and dry weather dried up the pastures rapidly.

No Hope Of Tires For 800,000 Cars

By JAMES McCOOK

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—(CP)—Operators of commercial vehicles who fail to make efficient use of their tires may be refused renewals by tire rationing representatives, Supplies Controlled Alan H. Williamson, told newspapermen yesterday in a review of the rubber situation.

"Those who overload their trucks or otherwise abuse their tires unnecessarily may be refused replacements," Mr. Williamson said. "Instructions to this effect are going out to tire ration officers throughout the country.

"In addition, quotas on tires for commercial users are being applied in line with the quantities on hand in the tire bank and probable requirements during the next two years. Those who use more tires than they would be entitled to under normal wear and tear conditions will have trouble obtaining replacements."

Continued collection of rubber for reclaim purposes was essential. Piles of salvaged rubber in various parts of Canada represented the success of collection drives, and all would be moved to reclaiming plants. But further contributions to such piles were urgently required and no unused rubber should remain hidden.

Mr. Williamson said bluntly that the rubber situation is no better than it was when the Canadian public was first informed, after outbreak of war with Japan, that there would be no replacement of tires on private cars. Once they were worn out, driving is finished for those car owners, he said, adding:

"We estimate there are 800,000 cars in Canada which have no hope of new tires until after the war unless something develops in the way of rubber production or rubber substitutes of which we at present know nothing.

"An estimated 150,000 passenger cars will be off the road by June, 1943, and they must be regarded as a prospective source of supply of tires for reclaim and for the use of those users whose automobiles are regarded as essential."

Mr. Williamson said rubber supply authorities hope that when the average motorist finds he no longer has four efficient tires that he will lay up his car and sell the tires. It was not expected that commandeering of tires would be necessary to supply essential passenger cars.

Substantial piles of rubber represented the results of vigorous collection campaigns.

All Scrap Is Needed

"The fact that we have not moved these piles to the reclaiming plants does not mean we can get along without it," said Mr. Williamson.

"Every scrap of it is required. and it will be moved to plants as required to meet the needs of essential vehicles.

"It comes to no harm when piled in the open and being spread about the country is less liable to damage from fire than it were concentrated in one vast pile. We have to consider the pressure on transportation services and it is moved to reclaiming plants only when it is needed.

"Instead of Canadians thinking their used tires and other rubber salvage is not wanted because it remains in a pile in their home town, they should think of these stores as the last bank of rubber we have, and add to it with all their might, knowing that every scrap will be needed."

When all rubber had been taken from basements, garages and attics and placed on the salvage piles, the Government could make its plans with full knowledge of what rubber was available.

If rubber salvage operations up to the end of this year were as successful as they had been in the past, it was expected sufficient rubber would be provided for reclaiming requirements for two years.

Supplies Inadequate

"No one knows how long the war will last and two years' supply is still inadequate for safety," said Mr. Williamson.

"My appeal to all Canadians is this: Get out into the open every bit of rubber not being used, so that we can plan."

Canada was using from 15,000 to 20,000 tons of reclaimed rubber a year, requiring from 17,000 to 23,000 tons of scrap rubber. This reclaimed rubber represented 2,700,000 tires.

For essential purposes, the reclaimed rubber was used with crude, drawn from the limited and irreplaceable Canadian stocks. By the time the crude bank had been exhausted it was hoped Polymer Corporation Ltd., Government-owned company, would be producing synthetic rubber in sufficient quantity to replace crude, for use with reclaim supplies. It was hoped the Polymer plant at Sarnia, Ont., would be in production late next year.

When their old tires were finished, operators using their vehicles solely for the transport of non-essential goods between major points would not be able to get replacements. The shipments would have to be made by rail or boat, unless they were part of a mixed cargo containing some essential goods.

Tires would be made available for transport of beer and other products considered "non-essential" only within a truck operators' immediate zone. Long truck hauls would be out unless essential goods were carried at the same time.

Sufficient rubber will still be available for repairs and retreading for preferred categories of motorists, Mr. Williamson said. But even with such efforts to keep them in service, many tires now in use would last but a limited time and would be turned in for salvage.

"I can hold out no hope to private motorists that there will be any relief from the present situation until the war is over," said Mr. Williamson. "The United States industry's proposals for recapping tires and making certain new supplies without interfering with military needs would mean dipping into available stocks—and there is not a pound to spare."

See Power Blocs Solution In New Setup

LAKE COUCHICHING, Ont., August 19 — (CP). — Post-war settlement and reconstruction will rest upon an international framework within which certain "power blocs" will act as counterweights upon one another. Dr. Hans Simons of the New School for Social Research, New York, predicted to-day at a session of the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs here.

He sugested that the commercial area of North-western Germany might be combined with similar areas in adjacent France, Luxembourg, and Belgium, to form one such bloc. Another bloc might be made of the industrial centres of Europe, which lie further east. Others would be centred on the Western Hemisphere.

The new regime which he outlined would not mean the end of state governments, which would still be responsible for law enforcement, public works, and so on; but they would operate "within a frame of reference" of some international, authorization order.

"It would be a new experiment in economic co-operation," he said. "Products of an industrial area would no longer be at the disposal of national governments, but would be distributed under international authority and thus the problem of disarmament would be solved."

He said that the problem of European reconstruction will answer itself largely according to where the victorious armies are at the end of the war.

The nation which makes the greatest contribution to victory for the United Nations will have the most attractive ideology for the vanquished peoples of Europe both those we have been fighting and those the Axis has subjected, he added.

Sees No Chaos

Dr. Simons said he did not believe the post-war era would be chaotic in Europe. "If we fight the war to a finish, military authority (of the United Nations) will replace German totalitarianism and there will be no intervening vacuum for chaos."

He warned against the "easy assumption" that Europe could be considered as a Continental entity after the war. He said that through growing facilities of air transport Western Europe was more closely linked with North America than with the contiguous land mass to the East. He suggested that the ideal of the "United States of Europe" is an empty one.

Dr. Simons asked institute members to begin consideration of the means of reconstructing Europe in the post-war years. He suggested that rather than "go in there with an axe and smash everything" connected with the Nazi regime, it would be wiser and easier to retain much of th present arrangement to use as a basis for rebuilding. He said that it would prove impracticable and perhaps unwise to guarantee to those driven from their homelands that they would be permitted to return.

"We can compensate, but we cannot always restore," he said.

Another Way Out

To dismember the German nation in order to effect lasting European peace Dr. Simons called the "poorest solution possible." Germany has numerical and industrial superiority in Europe and her nationalism would prove ineradicable by "political jerrymandering," he said. Rather the solution was to create "power blocs" to counterbalance German weight in the European scales.

He said that after the war, Russia "would have the first say" in peace settlement, not because she emerged from the war stronger than before, but because she would emerge stronger than Great Britain.

Britain would need United States backing to play any prominent part in post-war Europe, he said, and it is unlikely that the United States will have close interest in European affairs at the end of hostilities.

When asked if Canada should not let down her immigration barriers to Germans after the war. Dr. Simons said that the popular conception of Germany as an over-populated nation was false."

"Germany is definitely not one of the have not nations," he said.

Discussion of the institute will turn tonight to the future of the Far East. I. K. Koeigner of the Foreign Policy Association of New York will deliver an address on the subject.

Nab Two Girls At Toronto But Car Vanishes

TORONTO, Aug. 19.—An automobile which persists in getting itself stolen is presenting police with no end of trouble.

They closed in on it once, turned their backs to escort to the neighboring jail house two young women they suspected were its abductors, and, when they returned for the auto, it had up and got itself stolen again.

Though they are still without the car, police have arrested the two girls on a charge of stealing the elusive thing. The girls, Lena Irene Boustead, 22, and Geraldine Toomey, 22 both of Soho Street, were picked up at Cooksville in the stolen car, but claimed they had been given a lift by two men they did not know, police said.

They were taken to Cooksville Police Station by Chief Constable Drennan, and, when he returned for the car, there was no car. The girls were brought into Toronto yesterday by Detectives George Holmes and Adolphus Payne.

IN MEMORIAM

WOOD.—In loving memory of Mrs. L. V. Wood, who passed away four years ago today, August 19, 1938.

We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts to-day,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever been called away.
We think of her in silence,
No eye may see us weep;
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
—Sadly missed by Her Family.

PAYNE.—In loving memory of Mr. David W. Payne.

In Lakefield Cemetery, peacefully sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly.
The one we could not save.
And deep in our hearts lies a picture
Worth more than silver and gold,
It's a picture of you, dear Dad,
Whose memory will never grow old.
—Sadly missed by his Wife and Family.

hands full with her." Or, "She's an expensive little thing." Or, "Really a clothes horse," all because I can put on a $6.95 dress that I wear to business and on dates too, and look like a million dollars in it. Of course, after a barrage of this sort of propaganda, Sonny crawls safely back to Mamma, and I lose out. I positively envy the girls who are not attractive enough to attract Mamma's attention. They have a chance to get in their work. What can I do? ANNOYED.

ANSWER: Well, of course you could make yourself look less attractive by adopting an unbecoming hair-do or wearing clothes that brought out your ugly points instead of emphasizing the good ones, but I do not recommend such a drastic procedure. No man is worth it. Anyway, I should think that being so beautiful that you had all the mothers scared of you would be all the consolation you need.

There's a penalty for everything desirable in life, and undoubtedly that for beauty is that it makes men afraid of its possessor. It seems so wonderful, so glorious, so marvellous that it makes the ordinary man feel he can only look up to it and adore it from a distance. He feels that he could never have it for his own, or ask it to share his humble lot. So while he worships at the shrine of beauty he generally marries the homely girl who has no looks to boast of and whom his mother never suspected of having her eye on him.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

ONE IS NOT ENOUGH

UNLESS YOU can run nine tricks as soon as you gain the lead, a No Trump game is a risky proposition when you have only a single stopper in some suit. If the opponents knock that one out at the beginning, you have to try either of two methods. One is to take your nine tricks at once, if you can, and the other is to try to keep out of the lead the hand which possesses the long suit. The hold-up play sometimes will work in this and sometimes not.

North: ♠ Q 4 ♥ 4 3 ♦ K Q 9 5 ♣ A J 10 8 6

West: ♠ 8 6 ♥ K Q J 7 2 ♦ A 7 6 2 ♣ Q 9

East: ♠ 10 7 2 ♥ 10 8 5 ♦ J 10 4 ♣ K 5 3 2

South: ♠ A K J 9 5 3 ♥ A 9 6 ♦ 8 3 ♣ 7 4

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

Against that West opened the heart K. South let it win, took the J with the A and ruffed the 9 with the spade Q. Three high spades of his own cleared trumps and the diamond 3 was led toward the K-Q. West ducked, and the defenders managed to get one trick in each minor, South making his contract right on the head.

At another table of the same duplicate, the bidding went the same up to the point shown above where South bid 3-Spades. That South instead bid 3-No Trumps, and North left it. South was taking a chance on the heart A being the only stopper he needed in that suit, but was wrong.

Holding up until the third round of hearts, this declarer then ran six spades and led to the club suit, playing the 10. East won with the K and naturally switched to a diamond. The A took that and West finished with hearts, setting the contract two tricks. The set could have been limited to one by taking the club A on the tenth trick, but the contract could not have been made by doing that. West was always bound to get the lead and run hearts.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A 8 7 ♥ 10 8 7 5 2 ♦ 2 ♣ Q 8 7 3

West: ♠ K Q 10 9 6 ♥ 9 6 ♦ J 10 7 3 ♣ A 9

East: ♠ 3 2 ♥ A K J ♦ K 6 5 ♣ J 10 6 5 4

South: ♠ J 5 4 ♥ Q 4 3 ♦ A Q 9 8 4 ♣ K 2

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

How would you play this deal as a 3-No Trumps declarer in the East if South leads the heart 3, North putting on the 10?

100 Bibles Asked For Captives At Hong Kong

MILLBROOK, Aug. 18—(ENS).—Rev. J B. M. Armour, M.A., of Toronto, General Secretary of the Bible Society in Canada and Newfoundland, brought messages of deep spiritual import to churches in Millbrook and vicinity, in his initial vist to ths communty on Sunday, preachng in St Andrew's United Church. Millbrook, at 11 a.m.; at Carmel in the afternoon, and at Christ Church, Baillieboro, at 7.30 in the evening.

Pilate's written proclamation over the cross of Christ on Calvary: "This is Jesus....the King" (John 19:19), was the text for the morning discourse.

While it was pointed out that war conditions have compelled the withdrawal of many missionaries from various fields, thus hindering to some extent the work of the Bible Society it was still made clear that the distribution of the Word of God goes steadily on, and its world-wide program includes supplies which are welcomed still in Germany, Italy and Japan. The bombing of the Bible House in London, with the loss of thousands of copies of the Scriptures; the reduction in the amount of paper allowed; the destruction of the society's printing presses in China; were among the items listed causing curtailment of the work, "but the help given by the American branch of the Bible Society has enabled us to continue to send supplies to the ends of the earth." "I have seldom had a greater thrill than when I learned 384,000 copies of the New Testament have been given Canadian soldiers on active service, and so we find that, as always, war brings opportunities.

One woman told me the most valuable possession in her home is the New Testament sent to her after her husband had been killed in the last war, the page where he had last been reading being marked. We have been asked for 100 Bibles for prisoners in Hong Kong, and we are supplying all the prisoners and internment camps in Canada with copies of the Scriptures."

Friends locally were much interested to note that pictures of Miss Francis Turner, B.A., daughter of Dr. H. A. Turner Millbrook, appeared in the last issue of Chatelaine, in connection with the sketch "Someone Ought to Tell Her," featuring Jane Mallett, Toronto actress, in the leading role, as "Mrs. Muddlesome."

The object of the series of pictures is to show how, through thoughtlessness and lack of proper planning, many folk of today cause needless work, inconvenience, and actual expenditure of time, energy, and money that could, and should, be avoided in these strenuous war days. Miss Turner appears in two or more of the pictures as a member of the supporting cast.

Vancouver Child Recovers After Operation

Sharon Bell, four-year-old daughter of a Vancouver, B.C., policeman, is shown resting comfortably after an operation that removed a key from her larynx. The operation was performed at the Temple University Hospital in Philadelphia. Canada Now Able To Pay, Lend On Record Scale

OTTAWA, Aug. 19 (CP)—Increased income permits Canadians to pay taxes on a scale they were never able to think of before and at the same time lend more and more money to their country, Finance Minister Ilsley said in a broadcast over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation national network.

The finance minister and Revenue Minister Gibson were interviewed by Rupert Caplan, CBC official, on Canada's financial requirements and the means of raising money needed for the war.

Mr. Ilsley said the "tremendous volume of spending for war purposes" has resulted in Canadians as a whole having more money in their pockets and in the banks than they have ever had. The total income of Canadians has increased more than 70 per cent since the war began, unemployment has practically disappeared and agricultural income has greatly increased.

"When a country steps up the proportion of its production which goes into war activities, then the proportion which is left for civilian use is stepped down," Mr. Ilsley said.

"This means a reduction in the standard of living and means an assumption of sacrifices—doing without things that we ordinarily would not think of doing without."

Mr. Ilsley said he had been impressed with the willingness of Canadians to assume sacrifices, but said there are some who felt they should not be asked to reduce their standard of living.

Some thought on the contrary that their standard of living should be increased.

No Easy Path to Victory

Canadians had to bring down their standard of living as far as possible so that more resources might be thrown into the war. There was no easy way to win the war or to pay for the war.

If Canadians for some reason did not pay their taxes and did not lend enough of their incomes to meet the borrowing needs of their country, the Government would be compelled to find the dollars it needed by outright inflation.

"I don't think I need to say much about the evils of inflation," said Mr. Ilsley. "They are pretty well understood."

Expenditures in the present fiscal year would exceed revenues by about $1,850,000,000. The amount to be obtained in the form of compulsory savings through the income tax would not exceed $100,000,000, leaving $1,750,000,000 or more than 9 per cent to be provided by voluntary lending.

Compulsory savings had not been increased to cover all the borrowing needs of the country because it was considered preferable to ask people to size up their circumstances and make a voluntary all-out savings effort rather than bring them before a government board which would tell them how much they had to save.

Col. Gibson said full details of tax calculation and collection would be covered in a booklet to be issued shortly by the Income Tax Division. Before the new tax deduction goes into effect after August 31, employees should file a special form with their employers in order that the rates of tax and exemptions might be determined.

The form will contain information as to the number of dependents, payments on life insurance, annuities, superannuation, retirement or pension funds and principal payments on mortgages and agreements of sale. Unless this form were filled out employees might not obtain all the exemptions to which they were entitled. The form was available at post offices or local income tax offices.

Col. Gibson said that while the work of income tax collection has increased, the cost of collecting taxes over the present year is estimated at less than half a cent for each dollar collected. In the years preceding the war, the cost was nearly four times as much.

Citation to Bomb-Battered Malta

Lieutenant-General Sir William Dobbie, who until recently was governor and commander-in-chief of Britain's Mediterranean island stronghold of Malta, is shown holding the illuminated address presented to the island by the Canadian Legion as a tribute to the courage of its people. Malta is the most bombed spot on earth, but it carries on, and while it does so, Axis supply lines to Africa can never be called secure. At RIGHT is the Rt. Hon. Harold McMillan, Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies.

HIS LUMBAGO HAS NOT COME BACK

Keeps Free of it With Kruschen

There can be no doubt about the effectiveness of the remedy this man uses against lumbago. Read this letter:—

"About four years ago, I had a bad attack of lumbago. After being in hospital for two weeks taking heat treatment, I started taking Kruschen Salts. Since then, I am happy to say, I have not been troubled with lumbago. I shall still continue taking Kruschen to be sure the lumbago won't come back."—A. C. C.

Why is it that Kruschen is so effective in keeping lumbago at bay? Simply because it goes right down to the root of the trouble, and removes the cause, which is in an impure blood-stream. The six salts in Kruschen help to keep the blood-stream pure and vigorous by promoting a clockwork regularity of all the organs of elimination.

Canners Short 4,000 Workers

TORONTO Aug. 19—(CP).—The Ontario Agriculture Minister, Hon. P. M. Dewan, said here Monday the Ontario Canning Industry needs approximately 4,000 workers during the next few weeks and the lack of available help was likely to create a serious situation.

Dr. Dewan said his department would launch a campaign to enlist the aid of girls and women in districts where canneries are located.

"There are roughly about 100 canneries in need of help," said Mr. Dewan. "The canning of fruits and vegetables is important and unless sufficient help is forthcoming, I am afraid many of the canning plants won't be able to operate."

The processing of the peach crop in the Niagara district is one of the pressing problems and if sufficient help is found to bring the crop through canning plants, it is believed other fruits and vegetables will be taken care of, he explained.

From The Grave

CHICAGO, Aug 19—(AP).—Olie Smile frowned as he telephoned police that all the door knobs, locks and hinges and towel racks vanished just as his workmen were preparing to instal them in the house he was building. Police suggested Smile's six workers take lie-detector test. Two had passed successfully when the detector broke down. Then the hardware arrived in the mail. Police, checking the return address, found only a cemetery.

None Believed

CAMPBELLTON, N.B., Aug. 19—(CP).—No one believed a stranger, who gave his name as Thorvald Neilsen, Broadlands, Que., when he astonished the First Baptist Church Congregation by walking to the pulpit and loudly declaring that he was divine. Two soldiers removed him from the church, and yesterday he was remanded until next Monday on a disturbance charge.

Short Of Power

New York, Aug. 19 (AP)

THE Berlin radio broadcast today a Tokyo dispatch reporting that Japan faces an electric power shortage which necessitates additional shut-downs on industries not vital to the war. The dispatch said recent heavy rains made it possible to postpone from Aug. 14 to Aug. 21 the start of a new program of closing non-essential plants for two or three additonal days each month.

Gore's Landing News

On Friday afternoon the "Colonel's Lady," a large motor launch made two trips to Sheep Island with guests of Col. and Mrs. Dumble of Cobourg, who had a picnic at their summer cottage on the island.

A large and finely appointed launch has been moored at the pier this past two weeks, "The Whim," owned in Toronto. The boat is registered with the National Yacht Club.

Black Island, the summer home of the Clegg family from Dayton, Ohio, has been en fête for over a week, with three brothers and their wives of this family spending a holiday at the cottage on the island.

Motoring over the week-end was not as heavy as usual owing to rather murky skies and rain on Sunday afternoon. Cottages were all taken and boats were in evidence all over the lake.

Guests at Glen Lynden Farm were Mr. Laviolette and son Drummond; Mr. and Mrs. Bogard and Mr. and Mrs. Alderton, all of Toronto.

Miss Carmen Phillippi of Ventura, Calif. and Gur. Allan Yelland, Hamilton, formerly of North Saskatchewan were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Thackery over the weekend.

Major Roger and Mrs. Archibald who have been guests at Lilac Lodge have returned home to Kingston.

Mrs. Niven, Cobourg, is a guest of Dr. and Mrs. Archibald, Lilac Lodge.

Rev. M. C. Fisher arrived home on Sunday from Leadership Camp, Oak Lake. Mr. Fisher is spending a few days this week at Woodbridge, completing his vacation.

Mr. A. Latter and Miss Ruth MarDonald, Toronto have been vivsitors of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. MacDonald.

The muskies are biting in Rice Lake. During the past few days several fine catches have been brought in by ardent anglers. Two visitors at Herald's Camp went out one day and caught one 'lunge, 7 pounds, and lost one. The following day they brought in 4 muskies, each about the same size.

Tom Fowlie and Milton Ames, caught one 'lunge weighing about 6½ pounds and a pickerel 3½ pounds. John Dear has been getting some fine specimens of catfish or, as one tourist lodge called them on the menu, "mountain trout."

Mr. Whitely, of Buffalo, who spent a few days here last week, brought in 4 pickerel one afternoon. He caught them out in the bay near this village. When the residents of the tourist camp saw his good luck they immediately piled into their boats and anchored out in the bay also. As one man remarked "they looked like a convoy," as the boats filed out.

The countryside is beginning to show signs of summer waning and fall tinted trees are already coloring the landscape. A few fields of grain are still to be hauled in but the majority of farms are fairly well cleaned up.

The advantage of modern machinery to cut, thresh and bag grain is amply demonstrated on the farm of William Brooks of Plainville. Mr. Brooks has all his grain threshed and in the barn. A new combine solved the labor shortage. Only buckwheat is left to harvest.

U.S. Pilots See Action Over Egypt

In this radiophoto from Cairo U.S. army air force fighters who were seeing action in the Egyptian desert are shown. Dieppe Flaming Hell-Spot As Canucks Roar Into Town

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent
(Copyright by The Canadian Press)

WITH THE CANADIAN RAIDING FORCE AT DIEPPE, Aug. 19—(Delayed)—(CP Cable).—For eight raging hours, under intense Nazi fire from dawn into a sweltering afternoon, I watch Canadian troops fight the blazing, bloody battle of Dieppe.

I saw them go through this biggest of the war's raiding operations in wild scenes that crowded helter skelter one upon another in crazy sequence.

There was a furious attack by German E-boats while the Canadians moved in on Dieppe's beaches, landing by dawn's half-light.

When the Canadian battalions stormed through the flashing inferno of Nazi defences, belching guns of huge tanks rolling into the fight, I spent the grimmest 20 minutes of my life with one unit when a rain of German machine-gun fire wounded half the men in our boat and only a miracle saved us from annihilation.

A few hours later there was the spine-chilling experience of a dive-bombing attack by seven Stukas, the dreaded Nazi aircraft that spotted out the small assault landing craft waiting off-shore to re-embark the fighting men.

Seven Bombs Miss

Our boat was thrown about like a toy by their seven screeching bombs that plunged into the water around us and exploded in gigantic cascades.

There was the lashing fire of machine-gunning from other Nazi aircraft and the thunder of anti-aircraft fire that sent them hustling off.

Over our heads in the blue, cloud-flecked French sky were fought the greatest air engagements since the Battle of Britain, dogfights carried on to the dizzy accompaniment of planes exploding in the air, diving down flaming; some plummetting into the sea from thousands of feet.

Hour after hour guns of the supporting warships growled salvoes at targets ashore where by now our tanks also were in violent action.

Unearthly noises rumbled up and down the French coast, shrouded for miles in smokescreens covering the fleet.

One Great Hell Spot

There was heroism at sea and in the skies in those hours, but the hell-spot was ashore, where the Canadians fought at close quarters with the Nazis. They fought to the end, where they had to, and showed courage and daring.

They attacked the Dieppe arsenal of the coastal defence. They left Dieppe silent and afire, its ruins and its dead under a shroud of smoke.

The operation against Dieppe started from a British port Tuesday evening. I boarded a ship which also carried the Royal Regiment of Toronto. It was seven o'clock and only then were we told that Dieppe was our destination.

The Royals took it cooly enough. They had been trained with the rest of the force for several months on combined operations for just such a job.

Maps, mosaics and photographs of Dieppe were issued and as the boat put to sea with the other ships of the raiding fleet, the troops were briefed in their tasks.

It was a muggy night, but the sky was clear. The sea was calm. It was combined-operations weather.

Below deck the men sat around cleaning weapons, fusing grenades and loading the magazines of stens, tommy-guns and Brens.

In darkness formed the flotilla, shadowy tank landing craft that looked like oil tankers, a score of small assault boats, destroyers, gunboats, motor launches and torpedo boats.

Talk Of Everything But War

A few officers in the raiding party drank a beer with the ships's captain and chatted about everything but the operation. We had a snack

C.W.A.C. Overseas

Members of the local C.W.A.C. at the Training Centre will be interested to know that Major Alice Sorby, of Winnipeg, C.W.A.C., is the first enlisted woman of the three services to be officially posted for duty on the European continent. She will be responsible for the reception and quartering of all C.W.A.C. personnel posted for duty in England.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (CP Cable)—Units of two infantry regiments—the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and the Essex Scottish of Windsor, Ont.—with the Calgary Tank Regiment carried the main attack of the Dieppe raid yesterday right into the town itself and battled the Germans in the streets to capture the main portions of the town.

Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts, senior ranking officer of the expedition, commanded the Canadians.

After a tremendous naval bombardment and aerial bombing of the Promenade area by the sea, these units landed on the beach in front of the town and stormed Nazi-held buildings, barricades and strong points.

On the flank, units of the South Saskatchewan Regiment and the Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg landed at Pourville, two miles west of Dieppe, and the Royal Regiment of Toronto went in at Puits, one mile east of the port.

Units of the Fusiliers Mont Royal, a French-Canadian battalion, were floating reserves and finally were sent into Dieppe.

By this operation, the Canadians carried out the underlying objective of the raid which was to test German defences on the coast and obtain information about them.

Dieppe was left with many parts of the town wrecked and burning and, as the raid-fleet sailed for England, I could see from the boat I occupied with an attack force a pall of smoke hanging over the port.

Several strong gun positions and batteries of coastal artillery were destroyed and a radio direction-finding station was smashed. Hundreds of Germans were killed. The Nazis themselves admitted 400 killed and wounded.

Canucks Get Prisoners

The Canadians brought back a number of German prisoners.

British Commandos operated with the force and at Varengeville, five miles west of Dieppe, a force led by Lord Lovat captured and destroyed a battery of six six-inch howitzers.

Eight miles west of the big target, another Commando took out other coastal guns and a Royal Marine Commando landed at Dieppe as reserves.

Defences at the Channel port were strong. At vulnerable points there was evidence they had been bolstered recently.

Canadian shock troops had a rough time of it at several points and losses probably will not be small.

This is really just the story of the Canadian assault operations, but there was more to it than that.

Throughout the eight to nine-hour smash at Dieppe and surrounding strong points behind a spearhead of tanks, Canadian and British pilots battled overhead in one of the greatest air combats since the 1940 battle of Britain.

Huns Cross Elbow Of The Don To Fill New Red Graveyard

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Aug. 20—(AP).—The Red Army has taken the initiative in battles developing on four key central Russian fronts along the 400 miles from Bryansk to Lake Ilmen while holding doggedly before Stalingrad and in the Caucasus, dispatches reported today.

Centres of the Russian attack were listed as the Bryansk front, 210 miles southwest of Moscow; the salient 130 miles west of Moscow in the Vyazma area; the Kalanin-Rzhev salient, 130 miles northwest of the capital; and the Lake Ilmen front south of Leningrad.

(This was the first specific mention of Red army offensives of these fronts in Russian dispatches, although German communiques for days have told of desperate resistance there by Nazi forces hurled onto the defensive by strong Soviet attacks.)

Play Hob with Garrisons

No complete details of the central campaigns were given, but the Russians said they had taken a heavy toll of garrison forces left to man the central and northern battleline while the Nazis massed their greatest strength for the Don bend and Caucasus offensive.

"Great losses were suffered by the Germans on the Bryansk, western Kalinin and northwestern fronts where the initiative in active military operations belongs to our troops," said Red Star, the army newspaper.

The Russians apparently were striking out along this whole line in a carefully-timed series of sharp assaults.

In the south, where the Germans concentrated newly-reinforced troop and air strength, the Russians said some Axis troops had forced a crossing in the elbow of the Don in their drive upon Stalingrad, but were "completely wiped out" on the east bank.

The army newspaper Red Star said the invaders were suffering great losses in these operations, southwest, west and northwest of Moscow.

While Red Army men on the Steppes between the Don and the Volga thus were reported to have accounted for Nazi bridgeheads, Russians withdrew again in the battle of the Western Caucasus behind screening cavalry counter attacks and the Kuban city of Krasnodar was left in the hands of the Germans.

Details of the trans-Don engagement were few, but the Soviet Information Bureau said that "in one sector alone, about 17 enemy tanks were destroyed and more than 500 Germans were killed."

Several Russian counter attacks were launched in the area of Kletskaya, within the Don bend 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad, and seven enemy tanks were destroyed and a German infantry battalion was routed, it was announced.

2,000 And 79 Tanks In Day

More than 2,000 Germans were reported killed and 79 tanks destroyed or burned out in action yesterday and the communique said 5,500 Germans were slain and Nazi material heavily damaged during the last five days about Voronezh, a battle-scarred city on the Upper Don.

10,000 In Attack French Report

VICHY, August 20 —(AP) — Stories of hand-to-hand combats in the streets of flaming Dieppe under a rain of shells from British artillery were told today in excited telephonic information which got through to Vichy from the scene of yesterday's battle.

Rough civilian estimates placed the number of Allied raiders at about 10,000 landed in 300 to 400 small boats and tank scows on the fortified beaches while 13 British warships hurled shells into the German coastal defences.

Reports reaching here said the landing boats came in a huge wave along some 12½ miles of the coast. Beaching parties fought through barbed wire entanglements on shore and drove the Germans back into the low part of Dieppe some distance away, the report continued.

The raiders forced an entry into the city and occupied part of the lower quarter while the tanks, held back by anti-tank barriers which there was no time to destroy, aided by pouring cannon fire into the German ranks.

The city's population was reported orderly while the raiders and the Germans fought in the streets. First offhand estimates said about 30 civilians were killed.

In the streets French women nurses took care of their dead and wounded while French fire engines clanged behind both lines to fight the flames which burst in one building after another as the town was

Claim 60 Canuck Officers Taken

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts), Aug. 20.—(AP)—The German high command claimed today that the Allied forces which attacked Dieppe yesterday lost 1,500 men in prisoners alone, along with many dead and wounded, against 400 German casualties.

(These and other of the Berlin claims of Allied shipping and aerial losses in the Commando raid were far out of proportion with the Allied announcements.)

The German communique claimed the attacking force lost 15 ships sunk by shellfire and bombing and 19 others damaged. It gave Allied plane losses at 112 and said 35 German planes were lost.

The communique said the landing force attacked on a 25-kilometre (15-mile) front "under protection of strong naval and air forces and supported by tanks."

The attack was repulsed, the war bulletin claimed, without bolstering the coast defence forces with reserves.

Twenty-eight tanks were destroyed and 60 Canadian officers were among the prisoners, the high command said.

"All strong points, battery emplacements and railway stations on the French coast were kept intact by their crews," the communique said.

It reported the raiding force used 300 to 400 landing vessels, and said one force of 35 heavily-guarded transports was forced to withdraw under bombardment from shore batteries and planes.

The high command listed as sunk: four destroyers, two torpedo boats, one motorboat, one escort vessel, and seven transports; and as dam-

German Air Armada of 500 Badly Whipped at Dieppe

By DREW MIDDLETON

Aboard a Motor Launch of the Royal Navy Returning from Dieppe, Aug. 19—(Delayed)—(AP).—I have just watched the R.A.F. and the Royal Navy smash the German Air Force in the fiercest and most dramatic air and sea battle of the war in the West.

For seven hours in the blue skies over Dieppe and on the glassy waters of the Channel, Briton and German, airman and seaman, fought for the lives of thousands of Canadian, American, French and British soldiers who scrambled ashore this morning to storm the ancient port of Dieppe.

The result was a decisive Allied victory. Its full measure is not 91 aircraft shot down by British pilots and gunners but a long line of landing craft full of weary but triumphant men now passing our ship.

They are homeward-bound because of the magnificent job done by the little ships and great seamen of the Royal Navy and the headlong assaults of pilots of the R.A.F.—R.C.A.F. Spitfires, Mustangs and Hurricanes.

This combination broke a German force of at least 500 aircraft seeking to blast the Commandos and infantry into submission and sink the armada of landing craft.

Raid Fleet Unchallenged As R.A.F. Guards "Upstairs"

By GAULT MacGOWAN
Representing American Correspondents in London

LONDON, Aug. 20—(AP)—Storming the French coast of Dieppe in the biggest operation of its kind in this war, Canadian, British, United States and Fighting French units carried out a complete test of what must be done to ensure a successful landing on the continent.

(MacGowan, correspondent of the New York Sun, chosen by lot among the United States newsmen watched operations from a warship and it was the perfect harmony of the sea, land and air forces which made it possible.

Overhead British planes gave the biggest demonstration of an air umbrella that I have ever seen. Spitfires and Hurricanes roared by in bunches. Scores of times it was impossible to see the full extent of the sky battle which ranged far and wide over the district concerned.

But we did not have to wait long for the first victory—it was a case of first blood for the Nazis as a Spitfire came down in a straight dive into the sea. In a moment we had revenge as we saw first one and then two Nazi planes crashing down and a white parachute trailing across the sky to show where another German had bailed out.

The official figures showing relatively a 50-50 ratio of air casualties do not reflect the picture of Dieppe Bay where, although bombs splashed in the sea around us, never for one moment was there doubt of the safety of the vast scattered fleet of all types of craft which lay at anchor or drifted hour after hour unchallenged except by the defenders on shore whose machine-guns continued to make the approaches of landing craft a gamble with death.

Yanks At Dieppe To Be Instructors

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(AP).—The American Rangers who fought with the Canadians, British Commandos and Fighting French in yesterday's spectacular raid on the Dieppe area of France will teach their slashing rough-and-tumble tactics to still more American fighting men.

This is on the authority of Robert P. Patterson, Under-Secretary of War, who told a press conference today:—

"Our participation in the Dieppe raids was by troops specially detailed to the Commandos for training and experience and they will be used for instructors, both in Britain and the United States."

The Americans detailed to the Commando training in Britain, Patterson said, were commanded by Brig. Gen. L. K. Truscott, Jr., who was a member of the staff of Lord Louis Mountbatten, the Commandos' chief.

Koenigsberg, Danzig, Tilsit Fired in Single Red Raid

MOSCOW, Aug. 20 —(AP)—The Russian air raid two nights ago on the German Baltic coast cities of Koenigsberg, Danzig and Tilsit was described today by the Russian army newspaper Red Star as one of the greatest mass operations of the Red air force.

The three cities were under continuous bombing by several squadrons for several hours, Red Star said. Tass, Soviet news agency, said that the large raiding force bombed military and industrial objectives in all three cities without a loss.

"As a result of the bombing many fires broke out in Danzig; including seven large ones, which were seen by the crews on their return way as long as visibility permitted," Tass went on.

"Sixteen explosions were registered, of which five were very powerful and sent forth bright flames and great clouds of black smoke. Ten fires broke out and two heavy explosions were registered in the vicinity of the port administration, warehouses and the Danzig dock-

NEW MANPOWER CONTROL TO CURB JOB CHANGING IN CANADA

Non-Essential Work To End With War Jobs For Most

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Aug. 20—(CP).—Time-honored rights of Canadians to work or not to work at all, to work or not to work for a particular employer, are to be restricted in the interests of maximum mobilization of the nation's manpower.

In an address broadcast over the National network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation last night, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said no employer will be permitted to lay off an employee and no employee will be permitted to quit his employment without giving reasonable notice in writing, a copy of which must be sent to the nearest employment office.

This was one of a series of measures embodied in his proposed plan to bring all but "the very old, the very young, and the disabled" into their maximum usefulness in war activity.

Speaking a few hours after announcement of Canadian participation in the Dieppe raid, Mr. King said it was a memorable day but warned that the United Nations have not yet begun to win the war.

"The danger is not only plainer than ever, it is greater than ever," he said. "We shall gain nothing by refusing to face the gravity of the situation. It should not be the occasion for despair but rather for grim determination. It is clearer than ever that the freedom of the world and with it the freedom of our own continent and our own country can only be saved by the exertions of all the United Nations."

No Immediate Centralization

Contrary to some expectations, Mr. King did not announce immediate centralization of all mobilization activities under one authority. He said the army, navy and air force will continue as before with voluntary recruiting.

Compulsory enlistment for the army, however, will be transferred in the near future from the Department of National War Services to the Department of Labor under destroy coastal guns which, if they had been firing could have blocked the landing at Dieppe, stole over the English Channel and attacked in the early hours of Wednesday morning.

Lord Lovat's commando unit killed the gun-crew with bayonets and destroyed the howitzers.

While the preliminary attacks were being made, the main raid force under Gen. Roberts was crossing the channel in a flotilla that included a large number of ships of all types, including giant tank-landing craft that looked like great lake oil freighters. These craft were being used for the first time to transport tanks at sea on combined operations.

Destroyers, motor launches and motor gun-boats screened the assault craft during the whole voyage.

As they sailed through the night, the troops were quietly confident about the job ahead. They knew Dieppe was a defence stronghold and E-boat base and noted for its anti-air-raft fire. There was no bravado and boasting in the troop decks. The men spent the last few hours smoking, writing letters home and putting finishing touches on arms and equipment. A crap game whiled away the time on one ship.

New Assaults Loom

New assaults on Nazi-occupied Europe, attacks to make ruined Dieppe a mere sample of what full-blown invasion will be, were being predicted today after the forces of four nations barely ashore after the fiercest smash against the Nazi's gun-studded coast. Canadian troops spearheaded the nine-hour assault.

Power-driven barges and other vessels arrived along the home coast throughout the night, bringing tired troops back. The last wounded Commandos were brought ashore during the morning, while squadrons of Spitfires and Hurricanes kept up their droning patrols overhead. Even after dawn small British fighter planes were seen streaking over the Channel, some of them headed for Dieppe.

A Canadian officer said, "They gave in and came along quietly, which surprised us. We had thought they'd fight until the end.

Size of Force Kept Secret

The strength in manpower and air-naval might sent against Dieppe still is an Allied secret but it was announced in advance that the time still had not come for the liberation of France and that only a Commando raid was intended.

Only the Germans, apparently to sugarcoat the bad news at home that the Allies were showing their strength in greater measure than ever before, pretended to believe this was the actual start of the second front.

Both sides suffered heavily ashore and in the air. Combined operations headquarters announced today that 91 enemy planes definitely were destroyed in addition to some 100 others counted as probably shot down or damaged.

Ninety-eight British planes were lost but these were the only losses out of probably 1,000 aircraft in action on the Allied side. Thirty pilots shot down are known to be safe, it was announced.

Every Royal Canadian Air Force fighter squadron was aloft, along with British and American aircraft. Twenty-four United States Army Air Force Flying Fortresses, accompanied by R.C.A.F. fighters, made diversionary raids on other Nazi-occupied coastal points.

Canadian army co-operation squadrons were in action for the first time, flying American-built Mustangs, reputedly the fastest reconnaissance planes in the world. No details of the part the Canadian squadrons played in the attack were disclosed but the Press Association's air correspondent, writing of the army co-op commands' contribution generally, said that when the full story is released it "will tell of the great dash and daring of the Mustang pilots."

The first formation of the Army Co-ops arrived in Britain in February, 1940, and like the Canadian Commando troops, they have been preparing for 2½ years for just such an action as the Dieppe operation.

Many Wounded

Many of the Commandos came back with wounds, the majority minor. This, too, was to be expected; the storming of an enemy shore is one of the most difficult of all military operations—so forbidding that the Germans, even at the crest of their strength and at the depth of British power, never ventured such a Channel crossing.

Although ambulances and hospital trains carried off some of the men from the waterfront, and the floor of a former dance hall soon was filled with the slightly wounded, many of the others stepped ashore from their power-driven, sea-going barges elated and singing despite their fatigue and the grime of battle on their torn uniforms.

Allied military leaders already have begun analyzing the results and British military experts said that if investigation bears out the first indications of success, the uneasy Nazis on guard along the coastline of Western Europe might be pounded by more heavy attacks by land, sea and air.

Each assault, they said, probably will seek to eliminate a focal point of German defence—like Dieppe—in preparation for the day when they cross the Channel to stay across.

These experts discounted the importance of having destroyed a radio-location base at Dieppe and the demolition of coastal defence and anti-aircraft batteries.

R.A.F. Still Rules The Air

The real results, they said, were:

1. Ample proof that the British Navy and the R.A.F. still rule the English Channel and the air above it.

2 Invaluable lessons in Army-Air co-operation, in battle tactics and in landing methods—for weak points in British operations since the outbreak of the war have been in land-air co-ordination and landing tenques.

3. Prospects of establishing a permanent bridgehead for landing an invasion army now can be assessed—and the problem of whether such a bridgehead might be opened in the fall and held through the winter also to be reviewed.

4. The real strength of German land air defences in western Europe now probably is known to the Allied high command.

One informed air source also stressed to blow to the German air force in the nine-hour battle.

Probably one-third of the Nazis' fighter strength in western Europe was destroyed in one day's fighting, he said, and the estimate of 100 German planes probably knocked out of action can be regarded as conservative.

Not only was enemy fighter strength depleted, this source said, but German bomber squadrons, weak in western Europe since Hitler invaded Russia, were drained by heavy losses inflicted by R.A.F. fighters and naval anti-aircraft fire.

Informed Britons jeered at Nazi claims to have withstood the Dieppe assault "without calling up of reinforcements of important strength."

They said it was probable that the entire machinery of the German defence plan in the west was set in motion.

Some Tanks Lost

There was no confirmation of the German claim to have captured 1,500 prisoners or to have destroyed 28 armored cars. Some tanks, however, were known to have been lost.

Also without confirmation, the Nazis listed three destroyers, two torpedo boats and four transports as Allied sea losses.

To suggest that the attack was more than a raid, a special German communique broadcast by Berlin radio said 300 to 400 landing boats launched the first wave of the attack and that 35 transports stood by in reserve "to get into action as soon as the first landing wave had succeeded in forming a bridgehead."

It was noted here, however, that the vitally-affected French people received their first news of the landing from the official Vichy news agency at 9.30 p.m. last night in the form of three dispatches datelined Berlin. There had been no published reports in unoccupied France up to last evening.

Anxious For New Drive.

British editorialists and experts warned Britons that the price of such operations was high but there was good reason to expect raids even on cities some disance from the coastline where the Germans have established anchors for their deep coastal defences.

The British press acclaimed the raid, not only for itself but also for its implications to Russia. Following so swiftly on the Churchill-Stalin conferences in Moscow, the News Chronicle commented, it was "Psychologically most opportune."

Some air writers called the air battles the greatest of the war and the Daily Mail hailed the use of tanks and the air umbrella as "a great advance in Allied planning for a large-scale offensive which sooner or later is bound to come."

Although satisfied over the boldness in concept of the attacks and the daring in carrying it out, the Times suggested the Nazis' general defence line-up still had not been severely tested, and that no accurate guage of the operation's success was possible until meagre first reports had been amplified.

ed that two suspicious looking characters had been seen near Dean Lake Tuesday evening. Following up this lead, they set a trap for the Germans, and patrols were stationed and ready in the nearby bush.

Gloeckner, a pilot, speaks English fluently, but his companion knows only a few words in English. Kibart escaped from the camp two years ago but was caught after a few days. Both were wearing their prison uniforms, but Kibart had a pair of overalls over his. Road maps of Ontario were found in their possession.

"I've had enough of this," said Gloeckner after his capture. "It's too hard to escape in this country. The bush is too thick. It's no worth while trying."

Police estimated the men had travelled 100 miles since their escape. They lived on wild berries and were ravenous when food was given them at Thessalon.

guns and cannons chattering, this tiny craft and every other ship have been bombed and strafed repeatedly and all have blazed back at the enemy.

Our motor launch, which is about 100 feet long, left a southern port last night, escorting tank-landing craft. The moon was sinking toward the horizon as England dropped astern and the ghostlike line of ships headed for France and the enemy.

As it grew light we discovered scores of other ships—destroyers, motor gunboats, lighters, assault craft and chasseurs of the Fighting French Navy all converging on Dieppe.

One 24-year-old sub-lieutenant whistled softly at the sight and said: "What that line in Shakespeare about 'Gentlemen of England now abed?' They ought to see this. It makes you proud."

The first Commandos landed as we neared the French coast.

R.A.F. bombers had sneaked across the channel to hammer German gun positions. Ahead anti-aircraft fire spurted in fountains of red tracer bullets.

Across the water we heard the rumbling crump crump of big bombs.

"The well-dressed man will wear a tin hat from this point," the sub-lieutenant said.

Then the Fun Started

As the light brightened we saw six Spitfires flying high overhead. We were still admiring them when there was a roar of planes to port and two Focke-Wulfs attacked our convoy.

They swept over us with every gun firing, and ours answering. One climbed out of the barrage, a second wavered and slid into the sea.

"Let's go and see the fun," said the captain after the tank transports had run in to landings.

We steamed through the smoke and in the early sunlight saw the burning houses of Dieppe and heard the rattle of rifle fire and the chatter of machine-guns.

The cheers of sailors on other ships could be heard faintly across the water.

After that there was a steady rain of bombs. Our ship shivered and shook. But R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. fighters pressed their attacks and few of the German bombers got a chance to make their run and take careful aim. I saw only one small boat sunk by bombs—and I saw 17 German planes shot down as payment.

Our ship was ordered to take the wounded off a tank-landing craft which had been hit by German field guns while landing its tanks and troops on one beach. While we were lying alongside, the greatest air fight of the day developed.

The sky was literally covered with fighters and bombers. Many more were flying so high we couldn't see them. I counted 49 aircraft engaged in one pitched battle to the southwest. Twisting and gyrating madly, they filled the air with the sound of their motors and machine-guns.

A Junkers-88 breaks away as though it is going to dive-bomb us. But, attacked by a Spitfire, it jettisons its bombs and flies away. A Hurricane burst into flames. A wing falls off an Me-109 and the plane drops slowly into the sea. The whistle of falling bombs seems continuous. I look south and see huge geysers thrown up by falling bombs.

We were taking wounded aboard through all this, and a big Lancashire boy, his face greased with pain, forced a smile when the tiny Cockney coxswain bent over to tell him how the battle was going.

of bully beef, bread and butter, and tea, and then went over the side into assault craft.

After leaving the mother ships, our flotilla of little craft took positions in line astern. The Royals were to land at Puits, one mile east of Dieppe and establish themselves in that flanking area.

Just as we were pushing away from the mother ship, an old British tar whispered to us: "Cheerio laddies, the best of luck—give .... a bellicking."

It was pleasant in the open assault boats. Nobody seemed particularly nervous about the coming business though it was to be the Canadians' first time in action.

I made myself think in terms of manoeuvres, exercises in which I had taken part with these men in preparation for this night.

I had about convinced myself that this was another of those familiar exercises when at 4:10 a.m., about 50 minutes before we were due to hit the beach, a flare arched over the Channel.

E-Boats Attack

Tracer bullets followed quickly, long green and red streaks marking their path. They were too close for comfort. "E-boats," announced a sailor.

The atmosphere suddenly tensed. Wide-awake men tightened their grip on their weapons. A sailor hoisted a Lewis gun into place and cocked it.

Our boat slipped steadily through the quiet waters. The motor was hardly audible.

Then the E-boats appeared, close by off to one side. They opened up with lead that bounced bright red off one or two of our boats. Fire now came from several angles.

It was the first time most of us ever had been under direct enemy fire. We flattened against the armor-plating of our craft. The E-boats kept up a running attack for 20 minutes and the night became alive with streaking tracers. It occurred to me it was awkward to be travelling toward the Germans, with other Germans hanging on our heels.

Destroyers Rout Them

But the Royal Navy took care of our unwanted travelling companions. Destroyers popped up with a barrage that sent the E-boats scurrying off like sea rats.

Aircraft drummed overhead by this time, heading for the south. They were the first of the bombers for Dieppe, and in a few minutes great crumps shook the French channel shore as they unloaded their bombs on the port.

Nazi anti-aircraft defences barked at the skies and a haphazard pattern of tracer and flak criss-crossed a horizon showing the first streaks of dawn.

They made a brilliant chandelier over Dieppe. Two searchlights probed for bombers dodging anti-aircraft fire. Other bombers went in, squadron after squadron.

Flashes of bomb explosions in the town to which we had crept within two miles revealed a concrete jetty at the harbor entrance.

Warships Open Up

Shells from the four-inch guns of British destroyers began to whistle overhead.

Watching through field glasses you could see them smash into a row of hotels, once sacred to honeymooning Britons, along one side of Dieppe's main boulevard.

Slowly the British gunners brought the hotels down around the ears of the German machine-gunners and riflemen they sheltered. As the buildings distintegrated under the shelling you could see Allied troops moving forward, running and pausing to fire.

Periodically we were strafed by Nazi fighters. When we finally cast off, squadrons of Bostons flying very low were sweeping inland to bomb the second line of German defences.

We heard the broken beat that characterizes the motors of heavy German bombers.

Four Dornier 17Z's, flying at about 6,000 feet in Echelon, headed toward the long lines of British ships. Ship by ship, anti-aircraft guns opened fire and tracer bullets cut sharp patterns into the blue sky.

The Dorniers looked big and very black as they roared closer. Our little ship jumped under the recoil of her Oerlichon (anti-aircraft gun) and machine-guns.

The leading bomber swerved slightly and out of its belly tumbled four bombs. You could see them dropping slowly ahead and to port. They landed with explosions that nearly lifted us out of the water. The second and third bombers dropped their loads, but anti-aircraft fire drove off the fourth.

Three Dorniers Miss—And Pay

The bombs missed their targets but by now everyone was watching the Dorniers. The first was blazing from hits by anti-aircraft shells as the others were hotly pursued by three Spitfires.

The first fell flaming into the sea near shore. The next two tried desperately to evade the fighters which hung like black crosses above them. There were furious bursts of machine-gun fire, then one after the other the two Dorniers turned lazily over, burst into flame and fell into the sea.

Anti-aircraft fire was heaviest from the cliff-tops on either side of the town.

Canucks In The Van.

Over on our right I could see another fleet of raiding craft bearing men of the Essex Scottish, the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and the Calgary Tank Regiment to the main beach in front of Dieppe.

There was a great roar as a concentration of high explosive and smoke bombs landed on the east headland by the harbor with a blinding flash that seemed half a mile long. Black smoke billowed out and turned white as it curled along over the sea to conceal our landing from the shore defences.

Crouched low, the Royals gave their webbing last-minute hitches. Faces were taut, jaws firm. We knew that this wouldn't be any party.

We could see destroyers and gunboats creeping up behind the attack flotillas racing for the main beach. The flame and peal of artillery told us that the naval bombardment of the town had opened. The navy kept up its torrent of shells into Dieppe as we sped for shore.

Already some of the Royals were landing at Puits as we headed for the beach at the base of a slope leading from the shore into a break between the cliffs.

To one side fighter planes hopped in at sea level to blast with cannon and machine-guns the hotels and buildings full of Germans on the Dieppe Esplanade.

Dawn was breaking. The Battle of Dieppe got hotter.

We were to land in a matter of minutes. Through smoke layers I looked up at the white cliffs, growing higher before us. Anti-aircraft guns up there clattered unceasingly. Machine-guns drilled down bullets that clanged against the armor of our boat.

Beach Dotted With Dead

By the time our boat touched the beach the din was at a crescendo. I peered out at the slope lying just in front of us, and it was startling to discover it was dotted with the fallen forms of men in battle-dress. The Royals ahead of us had been cut down as they stormed the slope. It came home to me only then that every one of those men had gone down under the bullets of the enemy at the top of the incline.

Vicious burst of yellow tracers from the German machine-guns made a veritable curtain about our boats. The Royals beside me fired back with everything they had. One Canadian blazed away with an anti-tank rifle.

The Germans held a couple of houses near the top of the slope and occupied some strong pillboxes. From their high level they were able to pour fire into some boats ours among them.

Several bursts from machine-guns struck men in the middle of our craft. The boat's ramp was lowered to permit the men with me to get ashore, but German fire caught those who tried to make it.

The remainder crouched inside, protected by armor and pouring return fire at the Nazis. The Canadians' shooting was dead-on and half a dozen men in steel helmets and field grey uniforms toppled from windows to the ground.

Other Germans made the mistake of trying to change their positions only to be caught when sighted by Royal sharpshooters armed with Brens.

Fight Rages from Boats.

Caught by this unexpectedly intense Nazi fire, the Canadians fought a heroic battle from those craft that were still nosed up on the beach.

I lay behind a flimsy bit of armor plating and heavy calibre bullets cut through it a couple of feet above my head.

An officer sitting next to me was firing a Sten gun. He got off a magazine and a half, killed at least one Nazi and then was hit in the head. He fell forward, bleeding profusely.

A sailor next to him was wounded in the neck and another got a bullet through the shoulder. Those around the injured tied them up with field dressing. The fire was murderous now and the Canadians' fire-power was being reduced by casualties.

A Miracle Happens.

There were eight or ten in our boat who had been hit and a landing here seemed impossible. The naval officer with us decided to try to get the boat off the beach. On manoeuvres there were times when it was a difficult task to do it quickly, but by a miracle it slid off and we eased away from the hellish fire with nerve-wracking slowness.

The Nazi pegged away at us for half a mile out. That attempted landing was one of the fiercest and grimmest events in the whole raid and the only spot where the landing was temporarily repulsed.

I will forever remember the scene in that craft; wounded lying about being attended by medical orderlies oblivious to the fire; the heroism of the Royals as they fought back and strove as desperately as any men could to get on the beach and relieve their comrades still fighting ashore; the contempt of these men for danger and their fortitude when they were hit. I never heard one man even cry out.

During the whole raid there were no stauncher fighters than these Toronto soldiers.

From One Ship To Another.

Off Dieppe the raid flotilla remassed after putting the troops ashore. Our wounded were sent to a hospital ship and I transferred at sea to another assault landing craft and then another and another.

They were floating about doing jobs at the different beaches.

At one stage 15 soldiers and I tried to get onto one of the beaches near Dieppe but the German cliff-side machine-gun posts which later were wiped out plastered us without hitting anyone and we turned back out of range.

Finally we got ashore for a few minutes right in front of the Dieppe esplanade. The smoke screen was so thick, though, that one could not see much of the town and we took off again. The area in front of the town looked like a first Great War battleground, with broken buildings gutted or burning in all sections.

By 10 a.m. the Canadians, many of their actions led by tanks, seemed to have the town fairly well under control and to have stabilized the situation on the beaches.

Huns ShootWorks in The Air

Then 50 minutes later the Nazis sprang their one heavy attack by air. For 45 minutes, Stukas, Dorniers, Heinkels and fighters swept up from the south and attacked the fleet, whose terrific bombardment I had been watching from an assault craft just off the main Dieppe beach.

Earlier the enemy had sent over aircraft in fours and fives but they had been unable to cope with the Royal Air Force and had resorted only to minor machine-gunning and inaccurate bombing.

But the big attack was a real one. German pilots flying anywhere from 200 to 2,000 feet showered bombs over the British ships, at the same time sweeping them with machine-gun fire. The sky was splotched with hundreds of black and white puffs from exploding shells and the thundering of the ships' guns was deafening.

Sometimes the Nazis picked peculiar targets. At one time even their Stukas were dive-bombing our little craft, which this time carried only one naval officer, four ratings and this lone correspondent.

Their bombs came crashing down on either side of our bouncing craft, making the sea look as if it had been churned by a tornado. Once we almost capsized, but we ended up with only a bashed stern and a shattered bow.

We had just picked ourselves up from the deck when a fighter zoomed in and gave us a hail of gunfire. But they added only more scars to our unsteady but still seaworthy craft.

The plane was one which had succeeded in avoiding squadrons of British planes which hovered overhead throughout the operation, picking off German machines attempting to get in close. Seven Nazi machines crashed into the sea within the limited view we had of the complete scene.

Just Bits of a Dornier

One Dornier attempting to attack the destroyer was raked by fire before it could release its bombs. It exploded at about 300 feet. Small bits of debris were all we saw fall into the sea.

Every once in a while a lone German would swoop on an isolated assault craft whose crew would reply with everything aboard. Sailors would pop off with Tommy-guns and Lewis guns from hip level and some even used rifles. And they succeeded in bringing down some of these diving Nazis.

At noon final re-embarkation of the troops was under way and the force was taken off the main beach.

With another smoke screen blanketing the raided town, the fleet turned for England. No German aircraft marred the departure and the navy gave some coastal installations another bump with its heavy guns for good measure.

Through the afternoon I sailed north in a craft to which the Stukas had taken such a liking. It was just an ordinary assault landing craft, 30 feet long and looking like a floating packing box. This is the way hundreds of raiders started back to England but the sea stayed reasonably smooth.

I lay in the sun and slept, and woke to see the white cliffs of England in the mist ahead.

British planes — fighters and bombers—were swarming south to France again in a steady stream with more packages for the Germans.

aged, four cruisers, four destroyers, four motorboats, one tug, one assault boat for disembarking troops, and five transports.

Eighteen German planes were reported lost in a raid on withdrawing British naval forces, the harbor of Portsmouth, and other targets along the south coast of England. Seventeen were said to have been lost in air battles.

The high command claimed that on the night before the Dieppe attack light German naval forces encountered some of the landing force ships, sinking "one fully-laden boat and two large gunboats" and damaging a flotilla leader and several motorboats.

A German chaser was lost in the engagement, the communique reported.

WASHINGTON.— (AP)— W. S. Farish, president of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey), told the Senate patents committee today that his company's oil properties in the Dutch East Indies were "thoroughly destroyed" before they fell into the hands of Japanese invaders.

Raid Losses High Ralston Admits

OTTAWA, Aug. 20 (CP)—Defence Minister Ralston's reference to "severe" casualties in the massive nine-hour assault on the French coast town of Dieppe was interpreted today as emphasizing Allied military opinion that it was the biggest hit-and-run raid of the war.

"Casualties were severe," the defence minister said late last night, "for that we must be prepared, for war is a grim business."

While his 350-word statement dealt almost exclusively with the Canadian troops who formed one-third of the attacking force, Col. Ralston's associates quickly quieted fears that the minister might be referring specifically to Canadian casualties, or that his statement was based upon anything but the general feeling that casualties in such a major operation would be large.

"It must be clear even to the layman," a source close to the minister told The Canadian Press, "that in an attack of such magnitude both sides are likely to suffer heavy casualities."

This was substantiated by the communique from combined operations headquarters in London that "casualties are likely to have been heavy on both sides."

Col. Ralston said also that the "fighting was severe," but he added: "Reports from our commanders overseas clearly indicate that in this, their first actual contact with the Germans, the men of Canada's new army bore themselves with stout-hearted resolution and matchless courage."

Fought Through to Goals.

The Canadians under Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts, said Col. Ralston,

Aussie Cruiser Solomon Victim

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, August 20 —(CP) — Allied fliers struck a new blow in support of United States marines fighting to dislodge the Japanese from the Solomon Islands by blasting at enemy warships almost 400 miles north of the battle area yesterday, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The communique disclosing the attack also announced the loss of the 10,000 ton Australia cruiser Canberra in the first stages of the Solomon Islands battle while serving with United States naval forces under the command of Vice Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley.

Australian authorities listed casualties aboard the Canberra—which carried 816 men—as 84 dead and 109 wounded. Among the fatalities were the commander, Capt. Frank Getting of Sydney.

The announcement concerning the aerial assault on Japanese naval units yesterday said merely that Allied heavy bombers had attacked enemy warships near Paisi— a small island near Bougainville at the northern tip of the Solomons — with unknown results, and that all the raiders had returned safely despite heavy anti-aircraft fire.

The announcement constituted the first official mention of operations against Japanese naval units in the Solomon Island area since the battle in which the Canberra was lost almost two weeks ago.

The Japanese fleet was reported to have withdrawn northward after that engagement and there has been considerable unofficial speculation concerning its wherabouts.

Donald Shadgett Injured At Chemong

Donald Shadgett met with what might have resulted in a fatal accident on Sunday night. He fell off a small dock catching his leg and breaking it above the knee, leaving him hanging head first into Chemong Lake.

Luckily he was able to reach the docks and hold his head out of the water until help arrived.

Donald is the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Shadgett of 556 Charlotte street in Peterborough and has been spending the summer at Chemong with his parents.

He was immediately rushed to Nicholls Hospital and it is reported he will be confined to bed for some-time as it is a bad break.

Nelson Really Riled Starts Firing

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(AP). —War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson, obviously fighting mad and ready for a showdown on his administration of the United States war program, asserted yesterday that "from now on anyone who crosses my path is going to have his head taken off."

Asked if he planned to "get tough" in licking materials shortages and in refuting charges of some critics that W.P.B. had mismanaged the war program, Nelson told The Associated Press:

"I'm going to get tough enough to get this job done, and the job will be done, you can be sure of that. There'll be no more alibis. I'm sick of them.

Nelson, ordinarily calm and even-tempered, smashed a fist into his hand to make the point.

Swiftly attacking one internal problem—the "leak" of confidential W.P.B. reports—Nelson gave immediate effect to his warning that heads would fall by dismissing a $5,600 employee.

A W.P.B. spokesman identified the victim as Frederick I. Libbey, an engineering consultant. Libbey, the spokesman said, discussed contents of a confidential report with a newspaper reporter.

The report, which Libbey was drafting, covered operations of the W.P.B. iron and steel branch, and the newspaper story said it accused the branch of operational waste and inefficiency.

Mr. Nelson was newly returned to his desk after a week-long rest and physical check-up in the Adirondacks—a week which was marked in Washington by steadily mounting criticism of his regime as production chief, forecasts of widespread plant shutdowns and hints that the armed services were ready to act as receivers to a bankrupt civilion management of the war.

"There has been too much loose talk about this program," Nelson said. "They say that 1,000 plants may be shut down for lack of materials. That is wrong.

"In every program, there must be adjustments, and we are making those adjustments now. I can see the way ahead and we're going to come out on top."

The production chief added that the "adjustments" probably would be made public shortly. He did not disclose their nature.

Capital observers found significance in Nelson's new belligerency. Among other things, it was known that Nelson and Price Administrator Leo Henedrson, famous here for his frankness and pugnacity, held a "war talk" in Burlington, Vt., last week.

Nelson made it plain he would no longer tolerate "fifth wheels' in any of the divisions under his control. One of the most frequent criticisms lodged against him has been that he was unwilling to unburden his organization of non-producers and misfits.

There was strong disposition to believe as well that Nelson meant to clarify and clearly delineate the relationships between W.P.B. and the armed services.

Nelson never has acknowledged that any conflict existed or that lines of authority were obscure or were being crossed by the military, but some of his subordinate say such is the case.

Catholic Social Attracts Big Attendance

COBOURG, August 20—(ENS).—Carnival and social held on St. Michael's Church lawn yesterday afternoon and evening was well attended by members of the parish and outside citizens, in spite of the fact that two other carnivals the Kinsmen and Rotary, were held this summer. The booths were well patronized and a small army of workers was kept busy until the carnival came to a close. Visiting clergy were Father L. Rishea of Wooler and Father V. McFadden of Downeyville. Rev. Dr. P. J. Kelly, Rev. Father J. Ryan and Rev Father G. J. Maher of St. Michael's, Cobourg assisted in the work of getting the carnival under way.

The big wheel was in charge of Charlie Merry of Toronto. a visitor to Cobourg. The penny game was operated by John Collins assisted by Robert Jackson. Ref Fleming, Roy Lafay, and Joe Delanty handled the bouncey-ball booth. The other booths were in charge of the following, the first in each group being the chairman:

Seven up and under. Ed. Hogan, Walter Mackie, Jim Tracy, Leonard Kewin, George Walker Joe Patterson. and H. O. Tayler; Sodality Booth, Gertrude Hogan, Anna O'Brien and Joan Burge; ball throw, Dave Holmes; pony ride, Joe Flannigan; canteen. Gene Conlin, Bob Love, Isabelle Raymond and Mary Hogan.

The supper was served by the Catholic Women's League in charge of Miss Minnie Bulger, Mrs. E. Hogan, and Mrs. S. Burden. The girls of the Sodality waited on the tables. The pony used in the pony ride for the children was loaned by Charles McGuire of Grafton.

Canuck Air Fighters Do Great Job Protecting Raiding Commandos

By ALAN RANDAL

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(CP Cable). —Canadian airmen protecting their own troops from enemy air assault for the first time gave the Dominion's attack force in the battle of Dieppe the greatest aerial cover ever provided, it was indicated today.

Flying with the R.A.F., Spitfire and army co-operation squadrons of the R.C.A.F. formed a big proportion of the trans-channel shuttle service during the operations yesterday.

Some made two and three trips, pausing only long enough at their home base to refuel and reload with ammunition.

While Canadian losses were not announced—it is known Allied losses were 98 planes and the Nazis 91 —the Canadian victory score stood at nine German aircraft destroyed and many probably damaged.

But these were just early figures on the Canadians' part in this amazing triumph over the German air force in French skies—amazing from the Canadian and Allied point of view because the losses were so nearly equal, whereas the Germans lost four and five to one in the battle of Britain.

It is expected that the Canadians' tally will rise as all reports are checked and double-checked. It is likely that planes probably destroyed or damaged will run well beyond a score.

One quarter said "the early figures probably will not do full justice to the Canadians' accomplishments."

At one station, while awaiting their dispersals for the takeoff on the third sweep of the day, Canadian pilots only then learned via radio that Canadian troops were taking part in this assault.

Already at fever pitch, they were more than ever eager to sally out again.

Play Escort As Well

In addition to providing an actual umbrella for the assault troops, the Canadian Spitfire squadrons took part in escort work, accompanying United States Air Force Flying Fortresses an the raid on Abbeville, which was closely related to the Dieppe attack.

A Canadian Army Co-operation Squadron, in its first big operation, was considered one of the most important units in the attack and kept in the air from the outset of the assault until the troops departed from French soil late in the day.

From all squadrons as the weary aerial soldiers forsook their planes for much-needed rest came stories of action and heroism in this the greatest day of the war for Dominion servicemen.

One Canadian squadron, commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. Syd L. Ford of Liverpool, N.S., reported five German aircraft destroyed and three damaged.

Ford himself set the pace. He downed a Focke-Wulf-190 and a Messerschmitt-109 with Spitfire cannon.

PO. H. J. Murphy of St. Claire, Me., bagged another brace. Flt. Lt. George Hill of Digby, N.S., shared in the destruction of an FW-190 with Sgt M. K. Fletcher of Terrace, Ill. Each damaged an ME-109.

The action was so fast and furious there were times without number when the Canadians were unable to see the full effect of the damage caused to the enemy.

A unit headed by Sqdn. Leader Keith Hodson of London, Ont., accompanied the Flying Fortresses and met stiff opposition en route home. Then it went out into a still more desperate fight on the day's second excursion, when it added five probable or damaged.

Whole Dominion Represented

Canadian from every province shared in the action.

There was PO. S. Murray of Halifax, who watched cannon shells explode from 50 yards in a German's cockpit but the best he could claim was a probable though he followed the Hun a long way down in a deep dive. Another time he drilled machine-gun bullets into an enemy fuselage to claim a damaged.

Flt. Lt. J. Witham of Edmonton, flight comander in the same squadron, was credited with a probable and a damaged.

"Part of the enemy's fabric tore away and also part of one wing," he reported to the intelligence section. "I followed him down to 2,000 feet and saw black smoke pouring from the engine and last saw him still diving."

That was Witham's probable. Another attack got credit for one damaged. PO. Harold Westhaver of Regina also got a damaged.

Flt. Lt. R. W. McNair, D.F.C., of North Battleford, Sask., who recently distinguished himself over Malta, was another Canadian scoring a probable—an FW-190 He took part in the early-morning "umbrella' sweep.

"When we went over with other squadrons of Spits, we met just as many Jerries as over the Channel, so we waded right in," said McNair. "From occasional looks at the ground we could see a helluva lot of smoke and plenty of flak coming up."

The Spitfires came back with plenty of battle scars and flak and bullet holes in the wings.

Among the pilots in this Spitfire squadron were Ft Sgt. Sid Mills, Edmonton; PO. D. Donnelly, Benton, N.B.; P. Charlie Semple, Toronto; PO. Gordon M. Lapp, Medicine Hat, Alta.; PO. J. Stott, Ottawa, and Flt. Sgt. Doug Mathison of Edmonton.

The squadrons second sweep provided the first action of the day for young Sgt. Gordon Bray of Toronto, who later served with a convoy escort to troop-carrying vessels returning over the Channel.

Few Around At End

"They must have gone home for tea, said Bray, commenting on the absence of Nazi airmen during the final phase of the great operation.

Bray was a tired figure as he munched sandwiches after what he said was the most hectic day of his existence.

"It was most surprising not to see any Jerries about when those ships were stretched for miles across the Channel," he said. "I couldn't see much of what happened around Dieppe on our last trip there was so much smoke.

A fighter squadron headed by 22-year-old Sqdn. Ldr. V. Chadburn of Oshawa, Ont., participated in multiple Channe' dashes, once testing its strength with 15 FW-190s, of which it shot down three and damaged another. In a later encounter it damaged six Germans and still later added one damaged to the toll.

Draws First Blood

FO. Hollis Hills of Los Angeles gained the honor of being the first Canadian army co-operation pilot to destroy an enemy aircraft.

FO. R. C. MacQuoid. St. Andrews, N.B., returned safely with a badly damaged aircraft which nosed over. He radioed ahead: "Here I come, no landing gear, no flaps, no nothing."

PO. C. H. Stover of Sarnia, Ont., said he managed to elude a Focke-Wulf pack which had seemed to jump at him from about, and added: "They seemed to be in packs of four, and I went down so low I didn't notice a cement telephone pole which clipped off half my wing."

Sqdn. Ldr. Norman Bretz of Toronto, commanding an army co-op squadron, supervised the operations of his crews.

Sqdn. Ldr. Norman Bretz of Toronto, who had just taken command of a well-known Canadian squadron from Sqdn. Ldr. R. E. Morrow, D.F.C., watched his men damage three enemy aircraft.

He was heard to announce to the pilots over the inter-communications system, "There are almost enough of them to go around," as the Canadians dived from 8,000 feet onto the German formation.

Flt. Lt. Eric Land of Saskatoon said he was so close to his chosen Hun that the cross of his insignia stood out clearly in his gunsights as he shot off fuselage fragments.

PO. G. N. Keith of Taber, Alta., scrapped with two FW-190's at 100 yards range and watched one fade away as he narrowly missed colliding with the other.

Sgt. T. A. DeCourcy of Toronto, flying with an R.A.F. squadron, counted an FW-190 destroyed and a bomber damaged, and shared with Flt. Sgt. Watson of Toronto in destruction of another.

Sgt. A. R. McDonald of Hamilton, Ont., landed without trouble despite damage to the tail-wheel of his fighter in a brush with a Focke-Wulf.

Hughson On Way To 42's First 20-Game Winner

By BILL KING
Associated Press Sports Writer.

BOSTON, August 20 —(AP) —It was only about three months ago that all the managers of the Boston Red Sox farm teams were pleading with Supervisor Herb Pennock not to send them Cecil (Tex))Hughson, then regarded as a hopelessly incurable pitching case.

Today that lanky, righthander is the first American League pitcher to gain 16 victories and appears assured of becoming the first 20-gamer the Sockers have had since the departed Wes Ferrell turned that trick in 1936.

Early last August, shortly after Joe Cronin, then in dire need of pitching called up Hughson from Louisville, the latter injured his arm while gaining a 4-1 win over the St. Louis Browns in the second game of a double-header.

Hughson nursed his ailing flipper on his 60-acre farm in Kyle, Tex., all winter but he noted little or no improvement when it came time to report to the training camp.

I have Joe Cronin to thank for my success," Hughson continued. "He was exceptionally patient with me and ordered me to take my time, not to worry and not attempt to start until I was certain I was ready.

Hughson decided he was ready on May 16, when he made his first 1942 start and turned in a two-hitter against the Browns. Since then he has beaten the Browns again and again and the Senators, White Sox, Athletics and Indians twice. Yesterday he turned in his third victory over the Yankees and he also has drubbed the Tigers thrice.

Raid De Luxe

The latest Commando raid was on a scale never previously attempted; one British paper aptly describe it as a "raid de luxe." Although at the time of writing full details are not available it appears to have come as something of a surprise to the German forces in the area attacked; they were alert and expecting something, but not a raid on quite such a generous plan. Their official news agency was quick to assure the German public that matters were well in hand and that the invaders were being mopped up, but it appears that some mopping up of their own forces was done with the customary Commando efficiency.

The timing of the raid, coming as it did directly after Mr. Churchill's talks with Premier Stalin, could not have been better. It has given a boost to United Nations morale, and we may hope that it has given the Germans further cause for worry. They, the specialists in nerve war, are getting a dose of their own medicine. They have also been forced to show something of the strength of their coastal defences. It is possible that a series of such raids may follow at various points on the coast.

We may be proud of the part which Canadians took in this exploit. They have long been promised a crack at the enemy, and this has been almost their first taste of the salt on his skin. There will be many others, and we may be sure that they will leave nothing undone which needs doing, however difficult the task may be.

Ah There, Joe!

We have always had a simple-minded notion that Communists despised luxury as a symptom of effete plutocracy, but we are changing our mind. Recently Lord Beaverbrook said that Stalin was the best-dressed man in Russia, and Quentin Reynolds has described him as wearing clothes of a positively elegant cut. Now pictures reach us of the recent historic meeting in Moscow, and we see Stalin and his guests sitting on what look suspiciously like plush chairs with very handsome carved gold frames. The wall in the background is paneled in watered silk. And at the banquet—well, there were more than twenty courses at that banquet, it occupied several hours, and it appears to have been a very merry party.

We are beginning to warm to this Communist business. We have a taste for gold chairs ourself, and we like to see people beautifully dressed, eating themselves out of shape and having a good time. It's a poor heart that never rejoices, and no one will ever accuse the Russians of having poor hearts again. Communism seems to be one of the gayest political faiths now flourishing.

It Suits The Times

Our distinguished contemporary, the Ottawa Journal, has been reading some modern war poetry, and it does not like it; indeed, it finds the works of the modern bards obscure and oppressively dismal. This stuff, it says, is a far cry from "the beauty and power of Rupert Brooke or of John McCrae."

John McCrae has achieved great popularity in Canada (not elsewhere) on the strength of one poem, "In Flanders' fields, etc. . . ."; Rupert Brooke was regarded in his own time as "horrid" by some people because he wrote a poem about vomiting while crossing the Channel and because he was apt to describe human beings in terms more applicable to fish. He was condemned by many critics as obscure. Beauty has never been denied him, but he showed little evidence of power. It is a curious quality of poetry that it becomes clearer as it grows older, and, as it grows clearer it grows dearer, too. This it shares with music.

We do not set up as a great exponent of modern verse, but we found nothing obscure in the passages which the Journal quoted. They are in the modern idiom, and they express a pathos and irony which are timeless. They are not great poetry, but they are far from being worthless.

Perhaps it is time that we got over the nineteenth century idea that poetry must have a "message"; the security and grace of that century are gone, and gone too is the faith and the optimism which shaped it. We live in a century of world-revolution, chaotic and—to most minds—incomprehensible; these verses suit our times. A great poet might produce from the welter what the Journal calls "worth-while poetry," but so far our century has not produced its great poet and quite possibly may never do so.

Getting Together

The layman is puzzled by the fact that the U.S. and Britain, who are supposed to be allies in fighting this war, continue to produce machines as though they were commercial rivals. The result is waste and less than the possible maximum of efficiency. Consider, for instance, the matter of bombers, which is just beginning to become clear after several months of official statements and reassurances. In the great bombing raids over Germany British planes are used exclusively, although American pilots and crews take part. Why are no American bombers used? Because they carry only three tons of bombs whereas the British planes carry eight; because they are not armored strongly enough; because they do not fly fast enough. It is the same with their fighter planes, which cannot equal the British Spitfires and Hurricanes.

Understandably the Americans have not had the practical experience in building planes which the British have had. But could not someone have told them what was what, before time and material were wasted on inferior machines? Could not someone have told them that tanks were better armed with a gun which turns in a complete circle than with one which moves in a limited arc? Why can't we get together on these things. Are we being too polite, and too thin-skinned with each other? The U.S. cannot be the arsenal of democracy unless she makes machines which are useable under the most severe conditions.

It is usual on this side of the water for us to assume that anything which we make must necessarily be the very latest thing in design and efficiency. People who have travelled abroad on business, however, tell us that they have never seen finer machinery here than that which they saw in England and in Germany. Their methods are slower—they prefer hand-work to machining and mistrust "production lines"—but their plans are apt to be more complete and the eventual product more durable. It is obvious that Britain has something to teach the allies about making planes. Isn't it common sense to follow her lead, instead of making machines which can only be used for secondary jobs?

Brazil Is Boiling

After months in a state bordering upon war with Germany Brazil appears to be near boiling point; the wanton sinking of Brazilian ships by German submarines during the last few days has provoked the republic to violent displays of anger. The fact that Germany has lost her scruples about attacking South American shipping is significant; for a decade Germany has been doing her utmost to win the admiration and friendship of that continent, yet now she seems ready to let all her work go for nothing. Why?

There is the immediately obvious reason that Germany must do everything in her power to prevent supplies of any kind from passing out of this hemisphere into the Eastern Hemisphere, and the friendliness of the South American republics (save Chile and the Argentine) toward the United Nations' cause is well known. There is another possible reason: in the last war Germany became reckless in her sinkings when she began to lose the war at sea. It is as though, when defeat was near, she determined to take on all comers. Certainly her present reckless course has alienated South America, and there can be no doubt that Brazil will declare formal war soon.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Allied Planes Sweep Ruhr With New Bomb" says a headline. A new boom sweeps clean.

"Pearls Popular For New Neckline" says a fashion headline. And for any old neckline which is lucky enough to own a string.

Some Brooklyn women have been arrested because they were too noisy while playing poker. It's usually the women who begin the rowdy parties.

Says the Lethbridge Herald, sagely: "Not so long ago they were dumping coffee into the ocean; now they're rationing it." True, but what "they"? The rationing and the dumping were done by different people for very different reasons. Let us get rid of the "they" bogy.

Advertising As It Used To Be

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

PEOPLE who like to find fault—and that description applies to quite a large proportion of the population—sometimes deplore the rush and noisy bustle of modern times and yearn for the peace and quiet of an earlier day. They seem to think that before the coming of our modern industrial life the whole world lived in an agreeable half-sleep. How mistaken they are! If they could be whisked back into, let us say, an English city in the eighteenth century they would find filth, bustle and noise enough to fret their nerves and, unless they happened to be wealthy, quite as many inconveniences as attend modern urban life.

Please do not mistake the intention of this article. The author has no intention of setting out on one of those dreary attempts to prove that our modern world has innumerable advantages over every other which has ever existed. On the contrary, about the best we can say of the present day is that it is probably not much worse than other disastrous revolutionary periods of history. The present matter under discussion is noise, and it is my contention that, in spite of the fuss we make over it, the present age is no noisier than those which have preceded it.

THIS was put into my head yesterday by hearing a knife grinder's bell ringing in the street. The man clearly loved his work and was making a devilish din to advertise the fact. But as I was listening unwillingly to his noise I reflected: Would it not be dreadful if every tradesman advertised his wares or his skill in that way? Of course they used to do so. Most people are familiar with that famous series of engravings called "The Cries Of London"; in the eighteenth century dozens of men and women who now sit silently indoors waiting for customers to come to them roamed the streets, shouting for custom at the top of their voices.

The hullabaloo must have been astonishing. "Buy a new Almanack" one would shout, and "Fine writing ink," another; "Buy any wax or wafers?" a third would cry, who sold those indispensable adjuncts of correspondence. "London's Gazette here," a woman would cry, like a modern newsboy. "My name, and your name, your father's name and mother's name" a man would shout; his trade consisted of selling sets of typefounder's letters clasped in a stick, and spelling out the name of the buyer, who could then stamp it on his books and correspondence; this was a forerunner of the rubber-stamp. "Old shoes for Brooms" was the cry of the man who sold birch-brooms in exchange for old leather. All these cries had a tune, and long habit and the cheap gin of the period gave the vendors particularly strong voices. And there were no bylaws against unnecessary noise in those days! The only way to get rid of a noisy salesman was to threaten him, and that might end in a fight.

ASTONISHING things were sold in the streets. For instance, although fine gentlemen bought their wigs in the shops of perruquiers, ordinary citizens were quite likely to buy them in the street, from a man whose cry was "Fine tie, or a fine bob, sir" In those days, of course, every man wore a wig, and even a cheap one cost a guinea, or about five dollars. It was part of the agreement between an apprentice and his master that the boy should be bought "one good wig yearly, and every year, for, and during, and unto the expiration of the full end and term of his apprenticeship." The wigs were made of human hair if they were fine; sometimes hair was imported from China, sometimes it was bought from people who were willing to sell it from their own heads, and sometimes it was stripped from corpses. Cheaper wigs were made of horsehair, and unless they were dressed frequently they looked like sofa-stuffing. The wig trade was a good one while it lasted.

Another noisy figure in the London of that time was the shoeblack. His cry was "Japan your shoes your honour?" and he literally did japan them, for blacking as we know it was not then invented. Instead it was made from 'ivory black,' melted sugar, and vinegar; this mixture was applied thickly to the shoes and polished with an old wig, while the owner of the shoes stood by in a pair of slippers provided for that purpose, and read a newspaper which was given him by the boy. His buckles were shined for him, as well.

ANYONE who finds a modern city noisy will do well to reflect upon the noise of an earlier day, and be content. We have more artificial noises now—more whistles, horns and suchlike disturbers of the peace—but we make less use than our ancestors of that most disturbing of all possible noises, the upraised human voice. And let anyone who complains of the range and extent of modern advertising reflect that it is a small price to pay for comparative peace in the streets.

Unconsidered Trifles

"That new hat may be stylish, my dear, but it makes your face look short."

"That's strange. It gave my husband a long face."

Bernard Shaw is a past master at the ready retort. A young woman sitting next to him at dinner remarked: "What a wonderful thing is youth!"

"Yes—and what a crime to waste it on children," G.B.S. replied, sagely.

A woman was on her way home from a holiday and between trains in Nashville dashed off a postcard to her sister. "I hope I catch this train," she concluded hurriedly, and handed the card to a porter, asking him to post it.

When her sister got the message, it bore a neat, pencilled postscript: "She caught it. Respectfully yours, Porter."

"Who fiddled while Rome burned?" asked the schoolmaster.

"Hector, sir."

"No," said the schoolmaster.

"Towser, sir."

"Towser!" said the schoolmaster.

"What do you mean? It was Nero."

"Well," said the boy, "I knew it was somebody with a dog's name."

More Raids Before the Day

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

THE nervous Nazis probably feel sure now they can guess where the United Nations' effort to set up a second front will be centred.

The powerful surprise assault on Dieppe was suggestively the fourth recent raid by the Commandos on a stretch of the Northern France Channel coast only a little more than 100 miles long.

For months this area directly opposite England has been the target, too, of nightly air bombing and daylight sweeps. Even while the attack on Dieppe was in progress, American heavy bombers hit at a Nazi air field at nearby Abbeville, after having plastered the railway junction of Rouen forty-eight hours earlier.

The Nazis' presumptions are supported of course by obvious military logic, as well as by the direction of preliminary attacks. Dieppe, like the Boulogne-Le Toquet area, twenty-five miles from England's Dover coast where the Commandos twice have paid unwelcome calls this year, is suitable as one bridgehead for an invading Allied Army.

The ancient port is but a step to the valleys of the Seine and the Somme through which historic drives toward Paris have moved. To the west are the Norman and Breton Peninsulas which invite pinching-off attempts. Their great ports of Brest and Cherbourg ultimately must serve as Allied bases as they did a quarter-century ago. Immediately across the Channel are a string of English port cities from which to despatch the invading masses.

The Nazis let no opportunity pass, however, to point out that this part of the invasion coast, along with the Belgian and Netherlands shores, have been made more forbidding by defensive fortifications than any other in Northern Europe.

Before Canadian, British, American and other Allied forces set out across the Channel in full strength with intent to remain on the Continent at any cost, many another hit-run raid can be anticipated, to confuse the Nazis and feel out their defenses, to perfect tactics and train men.

If military precedents apply, the permanent second front bridgeheads will be established only after air fields, fixed fortifications, roads and railways have been smashed by aerial artillery barrages more fearful than any that have yet been laid down.

The chief of the United States Army's new transportation corps hinted at this prospect in observing recently that once established ashore the second front forces must expect to rely almost entirely on motor trucks for further movement of supplies, as "the railroads probably will all be destroyed."

The Nazis can never be entirely sure nevertheless about any phase of the second-front outlook, being in the position of a cat watching a dozen ratholes. Any offensive operation is likely to involve numerous diversionary attacks, and the European coast from Norway's North Cape to Spain offers limitless scope to the peculiar talents of the Commandos.

Whitehall Notebook

By DOUGLAS AMARON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 20 (CP)—Parliamentary war sessions, with few exceptions, have been held week after week on the same three days, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursday, but for security reasons the day of a sitting can never be mentioned in advance.

Some members think this is carrying security a bit too far and Sir Herbert Williams (Cons. Croydon South), contending that "any intelligent person in Berlin can ascertain on which day the House is sitting," asked that the regulation be rescinded. The government is considering lifting the ban.

Two of the best known men in British political life barely receive their correct names. They are Winston Spencer-Churchill (yes, that's a hyphen there) and David Lloyd George (without a hyphen). The present prime minister long since dropped the "Spencer." And just as long ago the nation's leader in the first Great War ceased to be Mr. George and became instead Mr. Lloyd George. Few of "LG's" admirers know that "Lloyd" is his Christian name and not part of his surname.

Bitter rivals in parliament are Lady Astor and David Kirkwood, Labor member for Dumbarton Burghs, but their animosity doesn't extend beyond the floor of the House. Lady Astor closed one "scene" between them with the comment "and to think that I prayed for you to get well" —a reference to an illness from which Kirkwood had just recovered. When they next met Mr. Kirkwood thanked his rival for her prayers.

A new common wealth movement has been formed from the fusion of Sir Richard Acland's forward march movement and author J. B. Priestley's 1941 committee. Its aims include common ownership of all great resources and service to the community instead of self-interest. Vernon Bartlett, Independent M.P. for Bridgewater, is a member of the executive committee.

The common wealth movement, combining two independent political organizations, is expected to intensify by-election challenges. The groups pooled their candidates' lists and plan to contest practically every night, especially in Conservative and Liberal constituencies.

When you read that only 40 per cent of the electorate vote in a British by-election, it doesn't necessarily mean the voters are apathetic. As a matter-of-fact, 40 per cent is considered "a good show" in war-time because the only voters eligible are those on the pre-war register and in urban areas especially thousands of persons have moved from the constituency since the list was compiled.

Maj. J. G. Morrison, Salisbury's new M.P., is the fifth Morrison in the Commons. The others are Herbert Morrison, home secretary, W. S. Morrison, postmaster-general, R. C. Morrison, Labor member for Tottenham, and Dr. G. A. Morrison, Liberal-National member for the Scottish universities. Even the Smiths can't do better than that. There are five of them too.

Capt. Harold Balfour, under-secretary for air, made an unhappy choice of words when he said in the House of Commons that "British forces are never defeated, they sometimes have setbacks, but in the end they always win."

The British press, mindful of Dunkirk, Singapore, Tobruk and other military disasters, scored the minister for his "soothing phrase which will always raise a thoughtless cheer" and warned that "there is no inevitable ordained certainty that we shall 'always win.'"

When it comes to quick retorts the ladies take second place to no one in parliamentary debates. Take, for instance, this exchange between W. J. Brown (Ind. Rugby) and Mrs. M. C. Tate (Cons. Frome).

Brown: There is space in the Isle of man almost as large as in Mrs. Tate's mind.

Mrs. Tate: I am obliged to you for saying I am broad-minded. I'm sorry I can't say the same for you.

There's a lot of talk about the Conservatives being the "old" party in the Commons and Labor being the "young" but statistics show it the other way around. Forty per cent of the Labor members are over 60 and 56 per cent between 40 and 60. Comparative percentages for the Conservatives are 32 and 53.

If Japan Had Ruled India

Such men as Gandhi and Nehru would not be alive today had Japan been the ruler of India instead of England. The proof of this as a fact is to be found in Korea, where Japan does rule and where no nationalist leader has continued.

The true greatness of India lies in the fact that though the strongest imperialism of our times has been British, yet that imperialism has nevertheless allowed freedom as a principle to exist.

Under British rule, India has developed as a nation asking today for independence. Under Japanese rule, India would have sunk into a state of utter subjection.—Pearl Buck, in Christian Science Monitor.

A Bible Message For Today

Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. . . .

Want More of Canada Shown

Not a little concern on the part of theatregoers is coming to the surface in Canada and expressing itself with respect to the comparatively few pictures and newsreels thrown on the screen to show people the various activities of Canadians in the war. It is claimed that while a fine spirit of international goodwill exists between this country and our sister nation to the south,—and everybody likes to know what is going on over there,—still, much more could be presented of our own life and accomplishments without disregard of our neighbors.

The United States is, of course, the producer of most of the pictures shown here, but Canada has facilities for making all kinds of educational films and newsreels and the Federal authorities at Ottawa might well turn more of their publicity staffs busy on this kind of informative and stimulating material. The disparity between what is non-Canadian and what is Canadian in the average motion picture program now is too great, it is felt, in favor of the former, welcome though outside material is. The result, it is thought, could scarcely have any other effect than to make the thousands who patronize screen presentations here think that this country is doing very little indeed.

The appeal which pictures have through vision is definitely strong. Unconsciously those who attend theatres are influenced by what they gaze at as the films are run off on the silver sheet. Why then should there not be more reels offered, particularly of a news or semi-news character, showing what the armed forces of Canada are doing, scenes of industrial enterprise, views of transportation work, the efforts of patriotic groups and organizations and institutions? The result, it is held, would reflect itself in more patriotic zeal and also in recruiting.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Married Women Seen Largest Labor Reserve

OTTAWA, Aug. 20.—(CP).—Married women between 15 and 44 years were indicated yesterday as the largest source of future labor supply in Canada, and the only manpower pool which has not been drawn on heavily since the war started.

In a review of the reserve of labor among Canadian women, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said that of 1,227,876 married women in this age group in 1931, only 3.92 per cent. were gainfully occupied.

The family responsibilities of married women in rural areas, made greater by the farm labor shortage, suggested few recruits for industrial employment could be obtained from this group, the review added.

Married women in urban centres in the 15 to 44-year-age group numbered 696,400 in 1931, when the latest census figures were available for this class.

Although as a group the value of married women as a labor force was limited by their immobility, the bureau noted that in urban centres day nurseries, community kitchens, laundries and other services could be most easily provided.

The establishment of such services, as has been done in the United Kingdom, releases married women from their homes during the day hours and permits them to assist in war work at factories and elsewhere.

The degree of concentration of married women in urban centres was important in dealing with the problem of the immobility of this group, the bureau said.

Many Without Families

Of the 283,244 urban families without children in 1931, 159,373 or 56 per cent. were in localities with a population of 30,000 and over, while 58 per cent. of the families with one child and 57 per cent. of those with two children were similarly situated.

In a table showing the distribution of married women between 15 and 44 in Canadian cities, the bureau reported Halifax had 7,393; Saint John, 5,666; Montreal, 101,448; Quebec, 12,936; Three Rivers, Que., 4,070; Verdun, Que., 9,501; Brantford, Ont., 3,826; Hamilton, 21,970; Kitchener, Ont., 4,369; London, Ont., 9,160; Ottawa, 14,801; Toronto, 85,786; Windsor, Ont., 9,817; Winnipeg, 29,134; Regina, 7,639; Saskatoon, 6,139; Calgary, 11,641; Edmonton, 10,973; Vancouver, 31,232, and Victoria, 4,053.

The bureau said heavy inroads had been made on the labor reserve of single women, represented in 1931 by 381,421 in rural areas and 653,008 in urban areas. There were only 21,954 widowed and divorced women between 15 and 44 not gainfully occupied in 1941.

Records indicated that employment was at the highest point in Canadian history with about 5,000,000 persons of a population of 11,500,000 being in the armed services or in civilian occupations. About 1,200,000 women were gainfully employed, of whom more than 6,000 were in the armed forces.

Urges Fighting Combination For The Allies

LAKE COUCHICHING Ont., August 20 — (CP). — The United Nations at war against the Axis in the Pacific must become "a fighting combination rather than a loose coalition," L. K. Rosinger of the Foreign Policy Association, New York, said in an address to the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs here.

Stressing the need for fuller co-operation and understanding of one another's war aims on the part of the anti-Axis Powers, Mr. Rosinger said these aims must not be considered as merely military. A political system conductive to peace in the Far East must also be their common objective, he said.

Mr. Rosinger urged greater understanding of China the chief Oriental ally of Great Britain and the United States. He suggested that with the decline of the colonial regime in the East, Asia might come to exceed Europe in importance. Already he pointed out, the peoples of Asia are playing a much more important part in this war than they did in the First Great War in which little took place in the Far East which greatly affected the outcome.

In this war China was one of the most important of the nations resisting Axis aggression and might prove the leader of the Asiatic peoples in the war against Japan should old distrust of the white races in the East prevent full co-operation with the other United Nations, he said.

Different If She Fights On.

Mr. Rosinger advised against preconceived notions of post-war settlement of Japan. He suggested that if her recent Pacific conquests were recaptured from her, island by island and her legions in China were driven back and only complete military defeat crushed her, she must be dealt with less leniently than if her militaristic regime crumbled from within when the tide of battle turned.

In the former case, he said, we would be dealing with a nation which would probably rise against us again at the earliest opportunity. In the latter eventuality, it would seem that certain of the Japanese could be dealt with more considerately and with greater co-operation. In neither case should "blue-prints" of victory be prepared before the war ended.

"There is no solution to the Japanese problem that excluded internal reoragnization of Japan," he emphasized.

Under her present semi-feudal ruling class Japan had to expand to survive. She must be reorganized to support her 70,000,000 citizens without expansion.

Dealing with present conditions in India, he said that an important section of the All-India Congress Party disagrees with Gandhi's present policy of passive resistance to British rule, but they have been led into an untenable position which requires them to have external aid before they can escape it.

If the British were to agree immediately to setting up a form of controlled government in which the national groups would be represented, it would go a long way to settling current difficulties, Mr. Rosinger said.

If such an offer were refused, those leaders who turned it down would "stand convicted" of refusal to co-operate and it would hasten the distintegration of their parties, he added.

aboard the ill-fated ship. Petty Officer Osborne joined the Royal Navy in May 1933 and he was commissioned to the Eagle only a short time before the outbreak of war. He first came to Canada in 1927 and met his wife the former Margaret Petherick while working in Seymour Township. Returning to England in November, 1932, he was latter joined there by Miss Petherick to whom he was subsequently married. Shortly after her husband was commissioned to the Eagle, which was at that time serving in the Pacific, Mrs. Osborne returned to Canada to make her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Petherick.

Lakefield, Warsaw Garden Clubs Learn Excellent Canning Tips

LAKEFIELD, August 20—(ENS). —The demonstration how to can tomatoes proved highlight of the talk, "Food for Health" by Miss Jean Scott, representative of the Institute Branch of the Department of Agriculture, before members of the Lakefield and Warsaw Garden Club.

Held in Memorial Hall on Wednesday afternoon the session proved of exceptional interest and demonstrated a new method in canning in order to retain the most flavor and food value.

It was decided that the Achievement Day, when the vegetables from the gardens of the Garden Club members are displayed and judged, would be held on September 9, commencing at 1.30 p.m.

Save The Water

Miss Scott in her discourse emphasized the fact that much of the good of cooked vegetables is lost when the water in which they are cooked is poured off. Vitamin "B" contained in vegetables is soluble in water. Use this water for soups and sauces. Vitamin "B" is also destroyed by long exposure to heat, so shorter cooking is advised. Vitamin "C" found in citrus fruits, tomatoes, fresh raw cabbage, is needed for sound teeth, healthy skin and general well being. Cooked tomatoes seem to retain Vitamin "C" better than other foods.

A good rule to follow, said Miss Scott, is to serve two or more vegetables daily besides potatoes, one raw, stressing the yellow and green vegetables. Calcium, which builds bones and teeth is found in milk, cheese, raw vegetable and dried fruits. Milk is the cheapest and most reliable source of calcium. It is important that the green-leaved vegetables are used in the diet as they are high in Vitamin "B".

The food we eat has a definite influence on our eyes. The yellow vegetables containing Vitamin "A" are a real help here, and prevent night blindness; they also build up resistance to colds.

Butter is a good source of Vitamin "A". We are advised to increase fatty foods in winter.

Potatoes also have food value, as they contain minerals we need. Vitamin "C" and phosphorus.

Good elimination is necessary in order to have good health. Everyone should drink plenty of water and eat lots of watery vegetables.

Each person should eat from 3 to 5 eggs a week. An egg a day for adults is a good rule.

Miss Scott said one serving of meat or a substitute was needed each day, as it contains protein that builds up the tissues of the body.

Two or three tablespoonsful of butter should be used by each person per day as it supplies heat, energy and vitamin A.

Mrs. H. Digweed, of Warsaw, then gave a humorous reading entitled "Farm Help."

Some Canning Tips

After a five-minute intermission Miss Scott dealt with the canning of tomatoes as this is part of the garden project. Tomatoes are really classed as a fruit and contain vitamin C which is easily destroyed by heat. However, a certain amount of heat is required to destroy bacteria and mould.

Miss Scott, assisted by Miss Minnie Charlton, canned a jar of tomatoes by the cold pack method. First choose firm, ripe fruit (keep the culls separate) then blanch fruit (put first into hot water, then cold and peel). Use the best jars for tomatoes. Thoroughly sterilize jars and utensils by boiling for twenty minutes, then pack whole tomatoes (or cut in half if they are large) into the jars.

In the meantime the cull tomatoes had been cooking over a slow fire for five minutes, then they were strained. The tomato juice thus obtained is now used in canning the good tomatoes. This juice is poured over the tomatoes in the jar to which salt has been added—1 teaspoonful of salt to a quart sealer. Then partially seal the jar, that is you tighten it and then give it half a turn back. Then place jars in hot water, not too hot or it will break the jar. Cover so jars are completely immersed in water. Keep jars half inch apart to allow circulation and boil for twenty minutes. Seal tightly.

The jars of tomatoes Miss Scott did certainly looked very appetizing.

Full of Vitamin C

If, said Miss Scott, you haven't the time to do your tomatoes this way, do them by the open kettle method rather than not at all, because although they lose some of the vitamin C in the open kettle method, they still retain a great deal.

Miss Scott expressed her appreciation that so many members of the Garden Club had come to hear her, also their mothers and members of the Senior Women's Institute. Warsaw group members were also present.

Mrs. H. Digweed, of Warsaw, moved a vote of thanks to Miss Scott, which was seconded by Miss Edna Higgins

Special Service Troops—The Commandos

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(CP).—When the public talks about "Commandos" it is speaking of "special service troops," whether it knows it or not.

The men who made the daring raids on Lofoten, Vaagso, St. Nazaire—and today Dieppe—are "special service troops." And any one of these dawn-dynamiters, says Combined Operations Command, is a "special service trooper."

An individual cannot be a commando, though he may be a member of one, for commando is the formation or unit in which he serves. The word originated in the Boer War, applied to small mobile Boer formations operating behind British lines.

Prime Minister Churchill, a Boer War correspondent, first applied the word to British formations. His comparison of special service troops with commandos caught the fancy of the public and the press.

Just for the record, Combined Operations say the plural is spelled without the "e"—"commandos."

The so-called super-commandos being trained at Helena, Montana, are the "1st Special Service Force," a joint Canadian-U.S. unit.

PLAZAS MOVE INTO LEAD AS MEN'S SOFTBALL PLAY-OFFS START

Royals Drop A 5 to 2 Decision In First Playoff Game

Plazas, who finis..:d in first place in the City League race, broke first from the barrier in the final round for the loop title last night when they defeated the second-place Royals 5 to 2 in a snappy game before the biggest crowd of the year.

The hockey squad won the argument by bunching three hits with a walk in the first innings to score three runs. After that the Plazas hitters were kept well under control by Ronnie Akers who allowed only four more hits for the balance of the game and would not have been scored on again, if it had not been for a high throw to first by Earl McNabb that cost two runs. In five of the eight innings the Royals' pitcher faced the Plazas he retired the side in order. He was beaten by that first inning rally of the league leaders.

Tom Parsons went the route for the winners and although he allowed nine hits and issued six bases on balls he was able to keep Royals from coming through with hits when they would have meant runs. Royals had 12 men left on bases and had some one on in every frame but the blows were not forthcoming in the pinches.

The game was replete with fine fielding. Jim Ellis ran far toward the stand to spear a couple of foul flies, Don Holmes at second for Royals handled eight chances perfectly and had a big league play when he knocked down Crowe's liner and tossed the batter out, Earl McNabb in left for the losers dashed far over the foul line to make a fine catch of a long foul from Vitarelli's bat, Joe Blewett and Phil Pryde had nice running grabs in centre field and Web Starr at third for Plazas took care of seven chances and started a fast double play with Crowe as the pivot.

Royals started the scoring in the first innings. McNabb got a life when Crowe fumbled his roller. Holmes and Smith struck out but Hawks drew a walk and Calladine singled to centre to send McNabb in. Pryde flied to Kingdon in left to retire the side.

The hockey squad virtually won the game in their half of the first. Heal popped up but Kingdon drew a pass and went to third when Don Crowe bounced a double over Hawks' head. Blewett dropped a single into centre, scoring Kingdon. Ellis was tossed out by Holmes, Crowe scoring on the play. Web Starr lined a triple to right, scoring Blewett. Eddie Starr rolled to Holmes, ending the frame.

Royals had a great chance in the second but the Plaza defence was air tight in the pinch. Gatfield opened with a single to right and after Parnell had popped to Ellis, Akers singled over second and McNabb was passed filling the bases. W. Starr made a fast play on Holmes' bounder tossing Gatfield out at the plate, and Ellis made a circus running catch of Smith's foul fly to pull Parsons out of a hole.

Plazas were shot down in order in the second and third but they got two unearned runs in the fourth. Ellis started the innings by beating out a roller to short. W. Starr bunted safely and Eddie Starr moved the pair up with a neat sacrifice. Vitarelli fouled to Hawks and the side should have been out when Parsons rolled to McNabb but the shortstop threw high to first and both Ellis and W. Starr scored on the miscue. Heal drew a walk but Kingdon was tossed out by Holmes.

The losers got the last run of the game in the fifth. With one out Hawks and Calladine walked and Pryde bounced a single between short and third, scoring Hawks. Kingdon threw Calladine out at third when he tried to go two bases on the play and Gatfield flied to Blewett.

Royals had a chance for more runs in the sixth. Parnell walked and after Ellis had made a nice catch of Akers' foul fly McNabb doubled to left. Holmes, however, was called out on strikes and Crowe tossed Smith out.

Plazas expired in order in the sixth and seventh but they tossed away a good opportunity in the eighth. Crowe opened with a single to left. Blewett struck out but Ellis doubled to left sending Crowe to third. Web Starr, however, fouled to Smith and Eddie Starr flied to Pryde in centre.

Royals made their last kick in the ninth. After two were out Heal fumbled Hawks' roller just long enough to lose the runner. Hawks went to second on a wild pitch and stole third. Calladine walked. Heal ran back into short centre field and made a fine catch of Pryde's short, high fly to end the ball game.

Request CAHA To Present Brief

OTTAWA, August 20 —(CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has been asked to prepare a brief for national selective service officials, similar to one recently submitted by Frank Calder, National Hockey League president.

The request that a brief be submitted was made yesterday by Elliott M. Little, director of selective service, when he was interviewed by Frank Sargent of Port Arthur, president of the C.A.H.A.

It is to outline the position of the association, state the number of men involved in league operations, and other pertinent information.

What proposals Sargent intends to make are not known. The talks he held yesterday with Little were behind closed doors.

Calder's submission was made several days ago, but it was understood tonight that Little has been so busy with major developments in the selective service field that he has not yet had time to prepare a reply.

A short time ago Little permitted this quotation:

"It may be necessary to give some consideration to maintaining the N.H.L. in some form, or on some basis, or else we would face the problem of replacing what it at present means to hundreds of thousands of Canadians in entertainment and maintenance of morale."

Presumably the same consideration would enter into the selective service director's study of the C.A.H.A. submission, but there was nothing tonight to indicate the two briefs will necessarily receive identical treatment.

It was expected the C.A.H.A. brief will be sent to Little within a week or ten days.

Plazas and Royals will meet tomorrow night in the second game of the best four-of-seven playoff series for the City League title and it should be another honey. The two teams staged a real playoff battle last night when Plazas, although outhit and held well under control after the first innings, managed to bunch enough blows in the opening frame to take the verdict. Tomorrow night's struggle shoulld be just as tense and just as thrilling. The Royals will have Bill Fraser their speedball pitcher ready to toss in against the hockey squad while the latter will undoubtedly start big Dave Wison. Fraser pitched good ball against Luckies in his last appearance with the Royals and his fireball may give the Plaza crowd plenty of trouble tomorrow night. Royals are anxious to grab off this second tilt and even up the series and Plazas of course, with one game in the bag, want to make sure of number 2. It will be a thriller-diller and everybody who saw last night's well-played game will be back.

The opening game in the league finals was worthy of the occasion. The Plazas and Royals staged one of the smartest fielding games of the year, with all kinds of classy catches and stops to enthuse the fans and it was one of those battles that keep the crowd on its toes. Ronnie Akers pitched one of his best games of the year in a losing cause for the Royals. He held the winners to seven hits, gave only two passes and retired the side in order in five frames. But the hockey squad managed to combine a single, a double and a triple with a walk in the opening inning for three runs and that was enough to win the ball game. Royals had chances galore—they left 12 men stranded—but when opportunity beckoned they could not come through with the necessary hits. Tom Parsons was in trouble often but he bore down in the pinches and his teammates came up with nice fielding plays to help him in the tight corners. Plazas have seldom been outhit this season but they were on this occasion and yet won because they were able to bunch three of their seven blows to build up a three-run inning. It was a great start to what should prove a classy final series for the Taylor Cup and the right to represent Peterborough in the Ontario intermediate A playdowns.

Generals and Westclox will make another effort to settle the Girls' Softball League championship tonight when they will meet at the Ashburnham Bowl in what is virtually the fifth game of the final round. The series stands 3 games to 1 in favor of the Westclox and a win for the Big Bens tonight will wind up the argument and give them the title. On the other hand the Generals can close the gap and stay in the running by picking off a victory. League officials have called tonight's game for 6.30 o'clock in order to make sure that there will be light enough to complete the tussle and managers, players and umpires can help a lot toward that end by being on the scene in plenty of time. The game will undoubtedly be full of fireworks. Events of the past week have aroused the old time Westclox-C.G.E. rivalry to fever heat and both outfits will give everything they have to come through with a victory. Marilyn McCarthy will likely pitch for the Generals and Marg Watson will be sent to the hill top for the Westclox. There will undoubtedly be a big crowd out to see the rivals tangle.

Worth A Big Gallery

With four of the finest professional shot-makers in Canada coming as an added attraction, the tourney at the Kawartha course Sunday in aid of the Milk for Britain Fund should attract a flock of golfers and a real crowd of spectators. It is expected that at least 100 amateurs will compete for the 28 prizes offered in the tourney and in addition there will be a competition for women golfers at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club on Sunday morning that also promises to bring out many entries. It will start at 9.30 o'clock. The quartette of professionals, Bob Gray, Gordie Brydson, Bill Kerr and Les Franks will play in the afternoon over the Kawartha course and will undoubtedly be followed by a record gallery of spectators. They are four of the finest golfers this country has produced and the opportunity to see them do their stuff at Kawartha will be regarded by many folk as too good to miss. The proceeds of the whole affair will be turned over to the Milk for Britain fund.

The first game in the Catholic League finals between St. Peter's who finished in first place and the East City Cubs who disposed of Knights of Columbus in the semi-finals will be staged at Riverside Park at 6.45 o'clock tonight. The league has transferred this important battle to the ball park and expects the biggest crowd of the year to see the first clash in the finals between the two old rivals. Cubs vanquished the Saints in the last round last year and captured Ald. John E. Sullivan's fine trophy but St. Peter's hope to reverse that verdict in the series that opens tonight. The two clubs have been playing fine ball and both will turn on the heat in an effort to get out in front for the final dash for the championship. The game is called for 6.45 o'clock and should provide plenty of excitement.

Juveniles Play Oshawa

The Peterborough Juveniles who trained all season for the Ontario Juvenile O.A.S.A. playoffs by taking a franchise in the City League where they played fine ball against older and more experienced players are at last getting a chance for a game in their own division. The Peterborough youngsters invade Oshawa Saturday to meet the Motor City Juveniles in the first game of the Ontario playdowns, the game to be played at Alexandra Park at 4 o'clock. The second game will be played here on Wednesday. It should be a great series between two fast young teams. The Petes expect to start Tim Jones, the Chatham youngster with the windmill delivery in Saturday's game and they also have Bill Jones, Reg Leether and Warren Smith as pitching possibilities. The Juveniles will stick to the lineup that represented them all season and they hope to give a good account of themselves in the provincial series.

* * * * * *

The schedule for the O.A.S.A. zone playoffs call for the Trenton and Belleville winners to meet in a series with the first game at Belleville August 24 and the second at Trenton on August 26, the third game if necessary on August 28. In the second round the Oshawa winners will play the Peterborough representatives on August 29 at Peterborough with the second game on September 5 and the third if necessary on Labor Day. Meanwhile Kingston and the Belleville-Trenton winners will stage their playoff series. The zone finals between the Peterborough-Oshawa winners and the Belleville-Trenton-Kingston standard-bearers will begin September 10 with the first game at the eastern winners and the return game at Peterborough or Oshawa on September 14. If a third game is necessary it will be played two days later.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Nagle Phelan, Mac Guerin and H. Legros will handle the umpiring in the Catholic League playoff game at Riverside Park tonight....The Royals' hits last night were well spaced out. They went hitless only in the last inning but on the other hand could not get more than one blow per frame except on one occasion....Eddie Starr, Jim Ellis and Art Heal who are holidaying came in from Deer Lodge for last night's game....Tex Hughson of the Boston Red Sox will probably be the first American League pitcher to hit the 20-victory mark ....He grabbed off his 16th yesterday at the expense of the Yanks and incidentally it was his 10th win in a row....Charlie Keller hit home runs in both ends of the Yanks-Red Sox double-header and Ted Williams reeled off his 26th circuit clout of the year in the first game....Brooklyn Dodgers regained their batting eye last night and slammed out 19 hits off Boston Brave pitchers to win 11 to 1....The Cards beat Chicago to keep the same distance behind the Dodgers....In yesterday's game at Boston Tex Hughson struck out eight Yanks, whiffing DiMaggio and Gordon twice each which is fair pitching, lads....Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club's tourney aided by the ladies' draw raised $118 for the British War Victims' Fund....That's a nice bit of work for all concerned.

Lindsay Players Defeat Quakers; Take Five Matches

On the sanctuary of home courts Lindsay took revenge over the Quaker Tennis Club by winning 5 out of 8 matches last night after dropping 4 out of 7 in the first tournament a week ago. Each club has won a tournament but Lindsay has taken 8 out of a total of 16 matches. Scugog stars were once more strong in men's doubles with the verdict split in the mixed and ladies doubles. It is not known what the locals ate for breakfast but the opposition found a weak spot in the armour and turned on the heat in great style. If the present plans are realized the Quakers hope to settle the argument on Labor Day and in the meantime it is expected that St. Mary's tennis club of Lindsay will be the guests of the local club in a week's time.

Peterborough's top-flight team of Ted McAlister and Ralph Charlton was not quite strong enough to defeat Keith Smith and Harold Holden but the locals did not go down without a bitter battle. Serving was quite poor on both sides and helped to prolong the second set. Lindsay took the match 6-4, 10-8.

Charles Parish and Jim Doran upset the Quakers second team of George Scott and Horace Fisher in two straight sets 6-3, 6-4. The Petes were very tricky but Lindsay saved the all-important aces until the opportune moment.

Walker Jones and Don McHoull were outplayed by the Lindsay doubles team of Reg Ray and Ches Richmond and gave two sets in quick order 6-2, 6-3.

Quakers Doubles Win.

The only men's doubles team that has been able to break through Lindsay's defence performed the trick again last night and showed that they were full o' pep by taking Williaim Carty and Gord Brigden 5-1, 6-1, 6-3. Howard Macdonald and Roy Johnston are the two proud Quakermen and will probably receive an extra bowlful of something or other for their efforts.

Quaker players Jean Moore and Grace Caddy took the first ladies doubles match by defeating Eleanor Meehan and Olive Barsbey 6-3, 8-6. Lindsay retaliated by copping the second as Ruth Williamson and Jean Corley defeated Mrs. Isabel Martin and Grace Caddy 6-3, 6-3.

The locals also captured honours in mixed doubles when Peggy Lawless and Al Conlin took Ethel and Carl Hutchinson 7-5, 6-1.

In the last match Lindsay narrowly prevented a tie by defeating the last mixed doubles team of Jean Moore and Jack Miller. The Quakers made a come-back in the second set but were unable to follow through with a second win. Eleanor Meehan and Harold Holden combined to ensure victory and the scores were 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Lindsay was powerful in all dedepartments and the results of the tournament were not unexpected. Refressmments ended the evening on a pleasant note.

Textile Team DownsRaybestos

Scoring three runs in the final frame Canadian Woollens came from behind to defeat Raybestos 8 to 7 in a snappy Industrial League game last night.

Rays made a big effort in their half to pull the game out of the fire, filling the bases with no one out but a fast double-play made possible by a fine catch in right field by Cavanagh killed their chances.

Leal for Raybestos led the hitters with a triple and two singles while Caccavella had two doubles for Woollens.

The batteries were P. Hillier and Davis for Woollens and Routley and Munro for the Rays.

The Industrial League is having a fine season. C.G.E. are out in front and there is a wild scramble for second place.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

The Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club has done it again. In supporting the Examiner's British War Victims' Fund, not only has our club gone over the top, it has gone far beyond. By the united efforts of our club member, their friends and many visitors we were able to hand over to F. G. Mann, treasurer of the fund the grand total of $118.65 and maybe in a few days this amount will be increased by late subscriptions.

Two 10-end games were played but prior to the games President F. H. Dearborn expressed the club's appreciation to all who had come out to help along this worthy cause. The tribute was wonderful.

During the intermission, light refreshments were served by the ladies' social committee. It was at this stage that the president called upon Mr. Mann and he was presented with two checks from our club. One from Miss M. Patterson for $73.65, the amount raised on tickets, and the other from Robt. Hendry for $45.00 the result of last night's tournament.

Mr. Mann in a neat speech thanked the club and assured all that their gift was most timely and it would be used to the very best advantage.

It will be men's rink for tomorrow night's tournament, 7.30 p.m. is the hour.

About the only thing that we are sure, of the Oshawa tournament is that Ed. Goodman's rink won the Gold Cup. You'll have to figure the rest out for yourself. Tonight we will carry on with our supplementary schedule.

Bears Tuck Pair Away Pasting Wings 5-1, 6-0

By The Associated Press

The spotlight that has been shining exclusively on the Newark Bears through most of the International League season, now is turning its glare on a struggle among six other International League clubs trying to earn another crack at Newark in the playoffs.

On the other hand, only five games separate the seventh-place Baltimore Orioles from the second-place Montreal Royals. In between are Jersey City Giants, ½ game behind the Royals; Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse Chiefs, tied for fourth; and Toronto Maple Leafs, who trail this pair by ½ game. The tail-end Rochester Red Wings are out of it, 13½ games away from seventh place.

Newark whipped the Wings twice yesterday, 5-1 and 6-0. Joe Page allowed the Red Birds only four safeties in the first game and the only time he was in any sort of trouble Newark unreeled its second triple play of the season. After Jack Fallon singled and Mickey Burnett walked in the first inning, Dusty Cooke lined to Gene Corbett at first. Corbett tossed to second to double Fallon and the return nipped Burnet trying to get back to first.

Buffalo split a doubleheader with Jersey City. After winning the opened 5-0, behind the six-hit hurling of veteran Bud Thomas, the Bisons dropped the second tilt, 4-2, to Bobby Coombs, credited with his 16th victory of the year.

Ken Trinkle allowed Montreal only five hits in a night game as Baltimore blasted the Royals 8-1.

Ray Harvester Top Trotter At Stratford

STRATFORD, Aug. 20—Ray Harvester, bay gelding owned by H. Berry & Son of St. Marys, emerged as the class of the 2-year-old trotters when he captured both heats of the Canadian Standard Bred Society's Trotting and Pacing Futurity here Wednesday. The Stone Town gelding got away to a poor start in the first heat, but came from behind to beat out Diana Lee from the Manchester Farm at Galt.

Due to an accident in the first heat of the pacing division of the futurity, there was no clear verdict. Bob Canuck, owned by W. J. Hyatt of London, won the first heat and was third in the second heat. This was the best record in the face, but Silent Grattan, whose sulky was smashed in the first heat, turned in the best time by taking the second heat easily in 2:16½.

Each division of the 2-year-old futurities was for a purse of approximately $900. Silver trays were presented by J. T. Saint, president of the Standard Society, and Fred Orpen of Toronto, president of Orpendale Limited, which sponsored the events this year.

In the 2:26 pace Black Prince, from the Union Packing Company's stable at Calgary, staged a surprise by winning the second and third heats after finishing ninth in the first.

Bellini Etawah, owned by A. E. Andrews of Drayton, captured two heats of the 2:25 trot. Sally Ann Grattan, owned by Gordon Martin of Kirkland Lake, took the first and second heats of the free-for-all pace. The third heat was captured by Miller Brooke, owned by J. T. Saint of Wallaceburg.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR ARMY?

(35) 200 GALLON WATERTANK

This reservoir on wheels is much more important to the Canadian army than merely being a means of bringing water to isolated areas. It is a filteration plant as well as a container. It does not matter to the water tank pictured above whether the water available is stagnant or fresh, it filters and purifies even the dirtiest water, and tests have proved conclusively its value in modern warfare.

Sports Snapshots Across Canada

TORONTO, August 20 —(CP) — A few days ago at Connaught Park in Ottawa a little man celebrated an unusual anniversary. He sat all afternoon in an automobile near the timer's stand, watching the races, greeting old friends.

Nine years ago that day there was a bad spill at Connaught. A horse named Skirt broke her neck and a jockey named Jimmy Darou was carried, limp and quiet, to a hospital. Doctors gave him little chance of living, but Jimmy Darou came through—paralyzed from the hips down.

The little man in the car was Jimmy Darou, now a service-station operator in Montreal. Since he was released from hospital a few months after his accident he has done his travelling by automobile, train and wheel-chair. A fine column by Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick told of his good cheer, his lack of bitterness, as he celebrated the anniversary of an accident at which only he can laugh. His friends still shudder.

Incidentally:

Promoter Jack Price may show Ken Lindsay in Victoria soon against Art Hoff of Montreal and Regina for the Canadian featherweight title....Lindsay has fought previously as a bantam but the weight is a little light for him now .... Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson quotes Wild Bill Longson that of his many bruises and scars, all but one came from wrestling fans, not wrestlers..... of that one, all but one Longson imparts this shy and westful reminisence:: "when I was early in the game, I wrestled that big stewbum, Man Mountain Dean. He weighed about a ton, fell on me, and broke my back. Really did fracture something there. The doctors told me I would never wrestle again But in a year and a half, I was back. The first fellow I met was Man Mountain Dean. I broke his leg in two places." Isn't civilization wonderful?

Winnipeg Blue Bombers' Reg Threfall, whose backfielders have blocked like nothing on earth in previous season, is trying out a T-formation in practice these days and looking by backfielders is ignored....Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning reports right halfbacks developed almost solely for blocking under the old system are out in the cold....Nate Shore, a fine right half, will try out for end. This all looks strange in print....Can it be that the Westerners are going to drop their ageless argument for increased interference?........ Very strange, indeed.

Pirates Thump Reds, Tigers Wallop Indians

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer.

If the baseball fans in the State of Ohio have any knack of solving puzzles they might use that talent to good advantage by finding the cause of the sudden collapse of their two entries in the major leagues.

Not so many days ago Cleveland Indians were runners-up in the American League and Cincinnati Reds were skipping along in third place in the National loop.

But changes come fast in baseball and to-day the Indians and the Reds look as if they'll be fortunate to finish in the first divisions.

Each team has lost nine of its last 11 agmes. The Reds have dropped into fourth place, three games away from the second division. The Indians are hanging on to the third spot in the American League by four percentage points, but will find themselves sharing that position with St. Louis if the Brownies win to-day.

Pittsburg Pirates, gunning for Cincinnati's place in the top half of the standings, handed the Reds their sixth setback in a row yesterday and beat Paul Derringer in the bargain 9-2. The drubbing left the Reds 5½ games behind the third-place New York Giants, who were idle.

Hank Gornicki, whose two seasons in the majors produced only three previous triumphs, held the Reds to eight scattered hits.

Detroit Tigers pasted the third straight loss on the Indians, 6-1 in a twilight game. Virgil Trucks pitched six-hit ball for the Tigers and had the help of a three-run homer by Rudy York, which bounced Jim Bagby in the third inning, and another roundtripper by Ned Harris.

Senators Shut Out 8-0.

Elsewhere in the American League Philadelphia Athletics shut out Washington Senators 8-0 in a night game and Boston Red Sox divided a double-header with New York Yankees, containing a stretch duel that would be more interesting if the Yanks were not 11½ games ahead.

A pair of two-run homers by Jim Tabor and another by Ted Williams accounted for all of Boston's runs and a 6-4 triumph in first game as Tex Hughson limited the Yankees to seven hits for his 16th pitching victory and his tenth in a row.

Charlie Keller, who hit his 20th home run in the opener, smashed No. 21 with the score tied in the ninth inning of the nightcap to break up a pitching duel between Ernie Bonham and Joe Dobson and give New York a 2-1 decision. The blow carried Bonham to his sixth straight win and hsi 15th of the year.

Roger Wolff blanked Washington on nine hits as the Athletics pounded three hurlers for a dozen blows, three of them by Dick Siebert.

In the National League pennant chase, Brooklyn Dodgers crushed the Boston Braves, 11-1, but St. Louis Cardinals stayed 6½ games behind by walloping Chicago Cubs, 5-1 in a night contest.

Mort Cooper distributed seven hits in beating the Cubs for the first time in three attempts this season. It was his 15th victory.

The Dodgers pounded four Boston pitchers for 19 hits, three each by Pete Reiser, Dolph Camilli, and Billy Herman.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—(AP)—The Berlin radio is broadcasting the glad news these days that Walter Neusel, who was knocked out by Max Schmeling, Primo Carnera and Tommy Farr, will fight Adolf Heuser, who is champeen although he was flattened by Neusel in 1941, against Sept. 6 for the German heavyweight championship . . . They fought a "hotly-contested draw" in Hamburg a few weeks ago and you know what happened to Hamburg afterward . . . They might try matching the winner with that great Japanese battler, "Piston" Horiguchi . . . of course, Piston is only a featherweight, but who likes an even match over there?

That Chicago scrap between middleweight champ Tony Zale and Georgie Abrams may be declared off unless the Navy releases Zale to start training in the next few days.

Baseball Brain-teaser

The other night Manager Ducky Holmes of the Dayton (O.) Middle Atlantic League club raised a ruckus about the decisions the umpires in Canton were giving him . . . Finally the umpire ordered Ducky out of the game and, when Holmes refused to leave, called a cop to escort him off the field . . . There wasn't a policeman present, so the arbiter forfeited the game to Canton . . . Now Ducky is protesting the forfeit on the grounds that the home club is required to provide police at the park and violated the rules by not having a cop there to toss him out . . . How would you decide it?

Allied Assault Force Consists Mainly of Canadians in Dieppe Area Fighting

The Allied assault force that engaged in heavy fighting in an attack in the Dieppe area of occupied France was backed up by tanks and aided by parachute troops. The force was made up mainly of Canadians, whose opinions generally were summed up in these words: "Here's what we've been waiting for." The commandos fought counter-attacking Nazi troops under clouds of fighters and bombing planes. Action such as depicted in these scenes took place. On the LEFT, raiders dash through battle smoke; CENTRE, the bursts of bombs as the air force strikes at landing.

launched by Field Marshal Fedor von Bock from the Kursk-Kharkov front June 28, was reported made southeast of Kletskaya.

The communique report that Soviet soldiers had killed or rounded up all who made the thrust implied that they had regained full mastery of the east bank of the Don in the defence of western approaches to Stalingrad, industrial and shipping centre on the Volga.

Struggle For Station

Southwest of Stalingrad, a see-saw battle was reported in progress for a railway station on the Caucasian line from Koteinikovski, 95 miles away.

"Southeast of Krasnodar," it was announced, "our troops fought fierce defensive engagements against enemy tanks and motorized infantry. The Germans launched several heavy attacks, forcing our units back. Soviet artillerymen set fire to five tanks."

A German column was reported wiped out in the Pyatigorsk area of central Caucasus and the information bureau said 350 Nazi dead and six disabled tanks were left on the battlefield.

Krasnodar is a manufacturing and agricultural town with a population normally of 220,000 on the right bank of the Kuban, about 60 miles by air northeast of Novorossisk, an emergency base of the Red Navy's Black Sea fleet.

The communique said the city was abandoned after battles which cost the invaders heavily; it announced seven German tanks were destroyed and some 250 Germans were wiped out on a single sector.

Field dispatches said the Russians were manoeuvring southward toward foothills of the Caucasian mountains, evidently as a prelude to a swing westward for the protection of Novorossisk and other Russian-held Black Sea ports.

The German push down the Rostov-Baku railway toward the Grozny oil fields was dismissed by the midnight communique with a statement that two German tanks were destroyed and more than 100 Germans were killed in the area of Pyatigorsk, 170 miles southeast of Maikop.

Hitting The Pincers

Stiff fighting persisted before both arms of German pincers pointed toward Stalingrad, one west of that city in the Don bend, the other from the direction of Koteinikovski, 95 miles southwest of that Volga River industrial centre.

Numerous attacks, supported by planes and as many as 100 tanks, were reported hurled back southeast of Kletskaya (where the Germans may have approached to within 50 miles of Stalingrad).

"In heavy battles with the enemy our men destroyed nine German tanks, 11 guns, 25 trucks carrying troops and wiped out about 400 Germans," the Soviet information bureau said. "Men of an anti-tank unit burned and put out of commission 22 German tanks."

Far to the north the Germans were reported repulsed by Russian artillery fire at a river crossing on the Volkhov sector of the Stalingrad front and more than 200 were killed in local fighting.

battled their way forward from the beaches of Dieppe, "reaching objectives which included destruction of many of the enemy's defence works."

"In the next few days there will emerge stories of dauntless heroism. Whether pieced together or surveyed in part, they will form a record of Canadian deeds of valor well worthy of the highest places on the scroll whereon is written the achievements of brave men."

The announcement from Defence Headquarters here that Gen. Roberts commanded the Canadian invaders prompted military observers to speculate on whether he went into the assault with the division he has been officially announced as commanding or whether he has been detached from the division to head a special force of assault troops who might have come from his or other divisions.

But if the 51-year-old Permanent Force artillery officer from Kingston, Ont., actually went ashore during the smash it would have been his second excursion on French soil during this war. He commanded a Canadian artillery formation in France in June, 1940. When France fell and his regiment was ordered back to Britain, he brought back every gun under his command.

which National Selective Service now operates in relation to manpower for industry.

(Compulsory recruiting for the army is under the direction of Maj.-Gen. L. R. Lafleche, Associate Deputy Minister of National War Services, and the National Selective Service Branch is headed by Elliott M. Little.)

In anticipation of this transfer Mr. King said the two agencies will operate in close co-operation and regional war services cards will act as tribunals for appeals from decisions of national selective service.

Amplifying his forecast of employment control measures to be adopted, Mr. King said:

"No employer will be permitted to interview or engage an applicant who has not secured a permit from an employment office. Permission to seek employment may be restricted to a given locality, industry, occupation or establishment.

"Control will be adopted over 'help wanted' and 'situations wanted' advertisements.

"After a fixed period, unemployed persons may be required to accept any suitable work and persons employed less than normal full-time may be required to transfer to available, full-time, suitable work of which there is a special need, or in other words, what is spoken of as work of 'high labor priority.'"

Assisting Steps Planned

Other measures announced as in progress or to come included:

1. Development of day nurseries and other family welfare agencies in connection with increasing employment of women.

2. Curtailment or elimination of all non-essential civilian activities.

3. Continuance of labor training "on a growing scale."

Opening his speech with a review of the war situation, Mr. King said the Germans were advancing into the richest areas of Southern Russia, threatening Persia and India and the Japanese were preparing to attack India.

However, much free peoples sympathized with Indian aspirations for self-government they could not "have any sympathy for a course of conduct which places in danger the freedom of mankind," he added.

At sea, the naval supremacy of the United Nations was threatened, but the situation was not wholly dark. Russia and China, though weakened, fought on. Offensive action from the British Isles base was increasing. Blows had been struck at Japanese power in the Pacific.

The Government's manpower policy will "necessarily affect all but the very old, the very young and the disabled among us," said Mr. King.

It will be administered without fear or favor and without regard to race, creed or class. The lives of the fighting men depended on reinforcements for their ranks and unremitting toil in civilian occupations.

"The efficient use of services of men and women for war purposes demands two things," said Mr. King. "It demands that the services of all persons not needed to maintain the health and efficiency of the people be employed directly for war purposes. Secondly, it demands that the services of the persons who are thus mobilized be employed in the most useful manner."

Compulsory service or conscription had been the law of Canada since 1940. Control and direction need not be wholly compulsory. Application of compulsion required men to enforce it. Unnecessary compulsion was a waste of time, labor and money.

"In times of peace compulsion may readily be kept at a minimum," said the Prime Minister. "In times of war, however, its use becomes increasingly essential to an all-out effort."

First Day Is Tough On Paratroops

By SYDNEY GRUSON,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 20—(CP).—The instructors of the Canadians at the United States Army Parachute School here let out a few notches Tuesday and when they had finished there were 27 mighty tired men from the Dominion whose feelings were best expressed by Sgt. D. F. Smith of Calgary who said "This promises to be quite a course."

It seems that the young sergeants and lieutenants teaching the new class of 350 men, with whom the Canadians began the four-week course Monday ran things a little on the easy side opening day. But they pulled all the stops in the physical training part of yesterday's program.

Maj. R. F. Routh of Montreal, second in command, came into his quarters when the day was through and exclaimed after sinking onto his bed, "So this is the way to sit down." When Capt. A. H. Fauquier of Ottawa remarked, during the general discussion of the program that followed among the seven officers, that "wouldn't it be nice if they flew us all back to Ottawa and we made out first Canadian jump right into the Capital," the Major said kiddingly: "Yes, let's do it right now."

The Days Grind

The four hours that make up the physical training part of the daily program in the first week of the course went like this:

7:30-8:30 a.m.—Training on the parachute harness in which the rookie does what amounts to chinning himself on the risors or guiding ropes of the chute.

8:30-9—Tumbling.

9-9:45—All the ordinary calisthenic routines plus several new ones the instructors think up from day to day and just about everything was done "on the boule."

9:45-10:05—Three mile run and fast walk.

10:05-1:50—Ju-Jitsu with everyone taking part and trying to do like the instructors with varying success.

10:50-11:15—Jumping from the "mock door" the apparatus used to teach the student proper body position at the start of a jump. This is done from a model plane fuselage about eight feet off the ground.

"That's the toughest four hours I have ever had," said Lieut. H. K. Robinson of Montreal, "tougher even than the battle drill course for platoon commanders in our army."

The first Canadian casualty occurred yesterday. Cpl. E. A. Grimes of Vancouver suffered a cut in the head when he was kicked by the heel of a boot during the tumbling exercises. After receiving first aid, he went right back to work with the rest of the group.

No Special Favors

Maj. H. D. Proctor of Ottawa, officer commanding the Canadian cadre, did everything others did. His rank gains him no special attention or favors.

One phase of yesterday's training was practice on the "mock door," an opening in the fuselage of a plane built a few feet off the ground. The rookie paratrooper jumps out of the door onto a sawdust pit to learn the proper way to leave a plane. As he jumps he counts "one thousand, two thousand, three thousand," as if he were on a regulation jump.

If he were and the static line that automatically opens the 'chute had fouled, the student would pull the rip cord of his emergency 'chute after "three thousand."

Lieut. C. F. Hyndman of Charlottetown, attached temporarily to the paratroop cadre from the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, was jumping from the "mock door." The other Canadians in the hangar behind him heard the "one thousand" all right, then "b-l-u-r-b" and no "two thousand."

The lieutenant had jumped head first instead of feet first and the "b-l-u-r-b" had him taking a mouthful of sawdust.

The non-commissioned officers in the Canadian party were shown to their quarters by American troops at the parachute school. The Canadians and the American got a laugh when Capt. C. W. Shaddock of Woodstock, Ont., on seeing the sheets on the beds, ejaculated: "This is the wrong place, boys. This is a hotel."

You can see the momentary hesitation when the American instructor barks "right face" or "parade rest," until the Canadians realize that he means, in the drill orders they're used to "right turn" and "stand at ease." And there was the crack of Sgt. Bill Tobin of Montreal when newspaper and United States army photographers took the Canadians' picture for the umpteenth time.

"Better tell the R.C.A.F. to watch out," said Tobin. "We're going to be glamor boys, too."

And if their paratroop uniforms are the same as the Americans' coveralls, with shin-high boots and a helmet that would make an angel look fierce—I'll bet they are, too.

Dieppe Beaches Long And Open

LONDON, August 20—(CP). —The nature of the coast around Dieppe at the western approaches to the Strait of Dover and less than 100 miles from Paris, is indicative of the difficult and daring nature of the Allied raid there to-day.

There are long stretches of open beach and ground before anyone coming from sea can reach cover.

Continental sources— some neutral, some Axis—have reported for some time past that the Dieppe area was heavily fortified, with many airdromes behind long-range coastal guns and much smaller artillery.

There, as elsewhere along the French coast, these sources have reported extensive German land minefields and hidden forts in a strip 25 miles or more in width.

SOME FORMS HERE

Several of the local industries with head offices in Toronto reported to-day receipt of the new income tax blank forms.

TO START SCHOOL

A regimental school of instruction is authorized to be conducted at Peterborough by the 43rd (Reserve) Field Regiment, R.C.A. commencing August 24.

TRAIN IS WRECKED.

A freight train left the rails at Anson Junction, 9 miles east of Campbellford, held up traffic on the C.N.R. line for most of the day. Freight and other rail traffic is being re-routed around by Port Hope.

TEARS

Some persons last night shed a furtive tear for those folks of fiction in "How Green Was My Valley." Wonder how many there were who tossed about wishing for sleep held off by worry over sons and husbands who might have been at Dieppe and in the air above it.

WOMAN STEPS ON NAIL.

Mrs. Thelma Dowdall 696 Stormont Avenue, was the victim of a painful accident on Wednesday afternoon when she stepped on a nail protruding from a piece of scantling near her home. The nail went so deeply into her foot that it was not removed until she had been taken by police to the Standard Medical Clinic.

WOLFE STREET WORK

Board of Works men have been scarifying and grading Wolfe street preparatory to a treatment with road oil. Another job in that locality was the raising of the level of Park street at the entrance to works avenue of the Canadian General Electric Company. The Board, the C.N.R. and C.G.E. were all interested in this work which required the closing of several blocks of Park street until the men had completed the resurfacing.

CONSIDER HER UNCLES

For young men in the matrimonial queue: "The majority of children resemble their maternal uncles. Hence the choice of a wife should be determined by the characters of her brothers." That advice from an expert as gleaned from a current magazine along main street probably will not receive the slightest attention by young men. Heredity has little appeal for them. And for the girls here's a bit of wisdom from Dr. L. Morgan Charters: "The key to a man's heart are words of praise and food well served." Many a girl can put a loud note of praise into her silences. As a wife she may return to vocal normalcy. Even so; says a married woman: "My husband is boss—and I love it." An exception seemed to be the woman in front of the Examiner at noon today who peeled from a sizable roll two two-buck bills and handed them to a man presumably her husband.

BANK CLEARINGS.

An indication that there is considerable money in circulation is given by bank clearings for the week which show a substantial increase over the same period last year. The total is $839,604.

FLOW OF PEACHES

National Grocers received a car load of peaches this morning, and for good measure an additional truck load. The season is now at its peak. One of the small main street stores sold one hundred baskets in the short run of Wednesday morning.

HEARD IN MESSINA

Some Peterborough people who have been visiting in Messina, New York, have reported that they were able to pick up CHEX without any difficulty whatever. They said that the reception was very clear in spite of all the opposition that might be expected from New York stations.

NO TICK

It is no longer news that the post office clock ceased to tick. Main streeters are simply wondering whether it is ever going to get in the groove again. The clock is being repaired and will not be in operation for the next two weeks. The hands point to 12 o'clock.

JUST SOME DUST

An alarm was turned into the fire department at 11:52 Wednesday night, when dust from fertilizer being put into bags at the United Farmers Co-operative gave the appearance of smoke coming out of the windows. All the apparatus turned out, but on their arrival found it was all a mistake.

BIG RALLY SATURDAY

Lt. G. P. Brook, officer in charge of recruiting for the Veterans Guard reports that a recruiting rally will be held in the Market Hall at 8.30 on Saturday evening. The Prince of Wales Rangers Band will be in attendance, and the speakers will be George Gimblett, Capt. Fred Hills, and Lt. Col. T. D. Johnston and Capt. Bert Cutmore.

AN "AD" DID IT

A main street note in the Examiner about a Cavan farmer's need of help brought immediate result. One man applied through F. C. Paterson and was directed to Bruce Sharpe of Ida. Another man willing to work and looking for a spot also reported yesterday and was sent to Walter Sharpe's place. Several boys of collegiate age are available until school opens September 21.

FIFTY PRESENT

One of the largest number of men that they have had since the opening of the Blood Donors Clinic was handled Wednesday when close to 50 donors came and gave their blood. About ten of these were down from Lindsay, and everything went like clockwork those in charge report. The doctors doing duty Wednesday were Doctors S. Y. Walsh, E. A. Hammond, Prust, and R. P. Nott, and the ladies assiting were those of George Street United Church and the 57th I.O.D.E.

Buckrake Eases Labor Problem Handling Hay

Reeve Isaac Anderson and his brother of Belmont-Methuen took off a great crop of hay this season without putting a fork to it. F. C. Paterson said to-day. They rigged up a buckrake and with motor power they hauled the crop to the barn, where it was swung with slings into the mow.

"We've quit sweating," Reeve Anderson remarked to Mr. Paterson. This was a home-made job, costing about $50. and its performance was highly effective.

Long poles are used in making this implement known as the buckrake. They reach under the winrows of the hay, obviating muscular forking. In light seasons the saving of labor might not be a weighty consideration, but the Anderson men were ready for that barn-filling crop of this season and were quite happy in making full use of their ingenuity.

Mr. Paterson said that buckrakes were few and far between in this district.

Car Plunges Into Canal; Girl Escapes

Margaret Grahame, 142 Cameron street, had a narrow escape from injury or possibly drowning Wednesday night when the car in which she was a passenger plunged down the bank and into the Trent Canal, south of the lift lock.

Gerald J. Bullied, 162 Albertus street, driver of the machine had parked it on the bank, facing the canal. When he started to back up the automobile to the road the engine stalled. He started it again and something went wrong with the accelerator. Bullied got out to investigate the trouble and asked Miss Grahame who remained in the car to release the brake.

When she did so the machine started to move toward the canal and the girl who had never driven a car, told police that in trying to operate the brake she may have put her foot on the accelerator. At all events the car plunged across the boulevard and down the embankment into the canal. Fortunately she was able to scrambled out uninjured after the car dived into the water.

Two Accidents In One Family

This has been an unlucky week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gray. Earlier in the week their son George, one of the Collegiate Institute pupils who have been employed this summer in the plant of Canada Packers here, had the tips of three fingers of his left hand amputated when they came into contact with the knives of a grinding machine.

Yesterday Mrs. Gray's mother, Mrs. A. Gaul of Toronto, who has been visiting here for some time, had the misfortune to catch her foot against a bookcase in the Gray home, causing her to fall, with the result that she fractured her hip and received painful head injuries.

Aid To 175,000

OTTAWA, Aug. 20—(CP). — The Department of Agriculture announced today that about 175,000 farmers in the five eastern provinces and British Columbia have received subsidies so far this year under the Government's plan of paying subventions on fertilizers used on feed crops.

The subvention policy is being continued until December, 1943.

Subsidies will be paid in the fall of 1942 for fertilizers to be used on pastures, meadows and fall wheat, the Department said.

Nice Prize List

Lakefield, August 20 (ENS)

AGRICULTURE Representative Frank Paterson's generosity put him on the spot and got him a bit of a jolt as Miss Jean Scott reported in Wednesday afternoon after a session with the Lakefield and Warsaw Garden Club. Seems Frank offered to double any money donated the club as prizes for the best girls' garden, and produce canned from them, blithely expecting to have to ante up a couple of dollars or so. Miss Scott duely reported this at the meeting and beamed happily as a member of one W.I. rose to report her group would put up $2. Another branch volunteered a second $2 and things were well in hand.... but one could picture the unexpected in a quick glance at Miss Scott's face as donations pyramided with a rush to ten or twelve dollars. Anyway it's going to be quite a nice prize list when Frank springs the elastic on his folding money.

A crack shot himself, General Browne is shown in UPPER picture firing a Reising sub-machine gun, the Reserve Army's newest weapon. In the rear is Col. H. J. Peterborough Rural Schools

No. 6-B Was Built of Logs Sixty Years Ago—S. S. No. 4 Carved Out of Old Section for Apsley Children

S.S. No. 6B, Burleigh-Anstruther

The first school in this section was built in June 1882 on a rise of ground near Stoney Creek. It was built of logs by men of the section including J. Rickles, Sr., who came from Bavaria, Robert Trotter, Philip Elmhirst, Captain Bridgewater, Andrew Reynolds, C. Todd, Corporal W. Smith, William Gallon, James Mace, Richard Bullied and William Tucker.

The first trustees were Philip Elmhirst, Andrew Reynolds, and William Smith who was also secretary-treasurer.

William Tucker was appointed secretary-treasurer in 1911, and the trustees were J. Rickles, Jr., Esau Tucker and Albert Windsor. The teacher at that time was Miss Mattie Bullied. Miss Edna Cross was the last teacher in the old school.

The present school was built in 1924 on land given by John Rickles across the road from the old site. In December that year Miss Bessie Anderson took charge of the school remaining until 1928. The trustees at the time the new school was built were: John Rickles, Andrew Young and Joseph Tucker.

Pupils on the roll were: Earl Trotter, Ross Reynolds, Bert Reynolds, Kenneth Young, Christina Roberts, Nora Windsor, Frank Trotter, Sadie Trotter and Eva Tucker.

Miss Mildred Brown succeeded Miss Anderson in 1928 and remained until 1931. Hot lunches were served during the winter. Utensils for that purpose were bought with money from the Christmas concert. A statue of a "Clanricarde School Boy" was given to the school by T. Todd who made it. He was a pupil of the old school back in 1887.

In 1933-34, Clanricarde and Tucker Schools were united in the former school. The teacher was Laura Ashenhurst. In September 1934 the two schools were opened again. Those on the roll of Clanricarde were: Ruby Trotter, Doris Windsor, Elwood Young, Russel Young, Albert Trotter, Stanley Young Max Trotter, Maybelle Young, George Trotter. The teacher was Dorothy Stuart, and the trustees: John Rickles, Fred Reynolds and Andrew Young.

Many improvements to the school were made during the years, one of the latest being a rock garden which was built in the fall of 1939.

S.S. No. 4 Burleigh

Prior to 1932 rural ratepayers were a majority of this section. They kept the school building in the centre of the old section about a mile north of the village. In 1932 the attendance was considerably greater than the school could accommodate. Disagreement between the rural and village ratepayers about accommodation of the pupils led to a petition being laid before the township council to divide the old section. It was proposed that one part comprise the village of Apsley and the area to the south and east. The other part was the northeast area of the old section.

Sponsors of the petition from the old rural section to the council of Chandos were Rev. C. A. G. Spence, E. A. Wagner, Hubert James, Stanley Windsor and James Downing. Sponsors of the petition to Burleigh-Anstruther council were: Charles Smith, Roy Brown, Stanley Windsor and Rev. C. A. G. Spence.

Burleigh - Anstruther appointed Rev. Mr. Spence as their arbitrator; Chandos named H. R. Parks and School Inspector Copp was the third.

This board decided the section should be divided, and that the ratepayers of the northeasterly section should keep the old building and equipment and pay to the village section $50.

Ratepayers of the new school section appointed on July 20, 1932, Roy Brown, Stanley Windsor and Norman Lean trustees. Mrs. Roland Tucker was later appointed secretary-treasurer.

Part of the property of James Downing was chosen as the site for a village school, and C. S. Smith was awarded the contract to build it. The school was opened January 1, 1933 with Muriel Bryce as teacher. Thirty-six children were enrolled.

A school orchestra was formed with the following members: Frances Stephens, Doris Whitmore, Dora Lean, Margaret Hastings, Mary Whitmore, Audrey Windsor, Ray Stephens and Leslie McCall. Concerts from time to time and other activities provided funds for the purchase of playground equipment, player piano and library books.

Sports Goods For R.C.A.F

The announcement came after a meeting between Sqdn. Ldr. Lionel Conacher, R.C.A.F. recreation leader, and T. P. Gorman, general manager of the Forum.

War 25 Years Ago

AUG. 20, 1917—French captured German defences to depth of 1¼ miles at Verdun along 11-mile front capturing Avocourt, Corbeaux, Cumieres Woods, Talon Hill and two summits of Mort Homme. Four thousand prisoners taken. Italians broke Austrian line in front of Monte Hermada.

2.04 p.c. Increase In Taxes Paid

Current payment of municipal taxes is 66.47 per cent of the roll as compared with 64.43 per cent for the corresponding period last year.

That is an increase of 2.04 per cent, City Treasurer M. E. Shaver commented to the Examiner today.

The summary of the tax roll and payments for the two years to the present was as follows:

Amount of the tax roll for 1941—[illegible]; taxes paid in the first [illegible] percentage of taxes paid: 64.43.

Comparative figures for 1942 are: amount of the tax roll $754,630.28; taxes paid in the first and second instalments $501,558.87; percentage of the roll 66.47.

The response of Peterborough taxpayers to the present year's financing of their own municipal affairs will probably be regarded with much satisfaction as it will bring to the administration.

Salvage Prize Is Given To War Victims

The salvage committee has been offering three prizes for the highest number of hours' work done at the salvage depot by members of any of the various ladies' organizations in the city, and this has been made the means of a contribution to the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

The work of putting this salvage back into useful channels is a most important one, and far more important to the country's war effort than a great many people realize, so this in itself is a very worth-while contribution, but it takes on a far greater significance when the prize money thus secured is also turned into such useful service as to give help to those who need it, and there are many thousands of them in Canterbury, Bath, Norwich, Exeter, and many other places of note in Britain, to whom such help will be most welcome indeed.

Members of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. in the persons of Mrs. A. Lesh, Mrs. H. Cassan, and Miss Mabel Patterson were awarded the second prize of $15.00, and since the fruits of their award must be devoted to war work, they have turned this over to the fund to help the people of Britain, and it is listed in today's receipts for the fund. In passing, it is quite worth noting that Miss Patterson was among the very first through her connection with the Civic War Service Council, to render help to the people of Britain.

Before passing from the subject of salvage and its usefulness to the country's war effort, the secretary of the fund would suggest that groups of children in each of their own districts could render a service to the country in this manner by having a central collecting point, and canvass their whole neighborhoods to gather it in, and arrangements can easily be made for its disposal if they would contact him at the Examiner Office.

Two more box collections were made, the Bank of Commerce boxes yielding $2.15, and the one at Whiddon's Service Station on the Port Hope Highway contributing its largest amount to-date in the sum of $3.00.

Carnival This Friday

A real evening's pleasure is promised at a carnival to be held this Friday evening at the farm grounds of Arthur Sayer, adjoining the rifle range of R.R. 7, Peterborough, under the auspices of the Range Pals, a very active group of young people in the district immediately surrounding the city, which will commence at 8 o'clock.

There will be games of bingo, a wheel of fortune, moving pictures kindly given by Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., sale of home needlework, a fish pond, and dancing on a platform specially erected for the occasion, with refreshments, etc., etc., with the entire net proceeds coming to the fund. At the same time the draw will be made for a beautiful afghan made and donated by Mrs. P. W. Hagerman of 555 Water Street which has been displayed in the windows of the Robert Fair, Ltd., store on George Street, proceeds from which will also come to the fund.

Proud Of Her Son

VANCOUVER, Aug. 20—(CP). — Mrs. W. Percy Roberts was a pretty proud and happy mother today after she had just read about the Commando raid on Dieppe headed by her son, Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts.

"I am glad to think that he was given this opportunity of getting into battle again," said Mrs. Roberts in an interview at her west-end residence.

"He never tells me where he is or what he does, and the first indication I received that he was engaged in this raid was from the newspapers."

IN SWANK HOTEL.

Mrs. J. R. Martin, 117 Lock Street, recently received a letter from her son, John, a private in the U. S. army, telling her of a "break" in being one of the thousands assigned temporarily to a swank hotel at Atlantic City. The government took over seven or eight of the swank hotels of the famous ocean front resort. Three men are allotted to a room that retains its smart furnishings, selected for the comfort of peace time visitors to the famous watering place and its board walk.

Drunken Driver Gets 15 Days

Fifteen days imprisonment was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on William J. Armstrong, caretaker, 280 William street, after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of drunken driving.

Magistrate Langley cancelled the driving license of the accused for three months and also issued an order directing the police to impound Armstrong's car for the same period.

Sergt. Gordon T. Puffer told the court that Armstrong had backed his car out of a laneway on Water street north Wednesday evening, with considerable difficulty and that the machine after striking the guy wire of a pole collided with the rear end of a city bus. The damage was not extensive, he said, and no one was injured.

"Was the accused in condition to drive a car?" ActingCrown Attorney F. D. Kerr asked.

"He most certainly was not," replied Sergt. Puffer.

Armstrong admitted that the car he had been driving was his.

"Was there much traffic on the street?" asked Magistrate Langley and Sergt. Puffer said that the accident happened just after 6 o'clock and that there was considerable traffic at the time.

Good For a Medal

WINNIPEG, August 20—(CP).— Seventeen-year-old Lloyd Rodway rescued a non-swimmer, 18-year-old Howard Aker, from the Red River here yesterday, diving repeatedly under water fully clothed until he located the drowning lad 10 minutes after Aker's canoe overturned.

Rodway was passing on his bicycle and unhesitantly dove to the rescue. He persisted despite onlookers' warning shouts, "one drowning is enough." Aker regained consciousness after artificial respiration was applied for 35 minutes.

Former Reporter Returns After 28 Years

Rev. Charles H. Hastings of the Society of St. John the Evangelist, Bracebridge, was in the city Wednesday on a brief visit after an absence of twenty-eight years. He was a reporter on the Examiner in 1914 when the last war broke out. Enlisting early in the war he was gassed and injured in the second battle of Ypres. One of his interesting experiences came with his transfer to the Canadian intelligence staff under Max Aitken, now Lord Beaverbrook.

Although he had been born in England he decided to return to Canada after the war. The intervening years included an extended gold hunt in British Guiana, a rest period in Florida, an incompleted law course and finally a decision to enter the religious life of the Church of England of which Father Hastings had been a member from his boyhood.

He was accepted into the Anglican fraternity of Cowley Fathers at Bracebridge and has been engaged especially in mission work. Visiting his mother at Cobourg yesterday he came on to Peterborough to call on friends of those days prior to the last war.

F. E. Johnston Gets 15-lb. Fish

This may be the dog days for fishing, but it didn't affect the fighting qualities of a 15-pound muskie that Fred Johnston Vocational School principal, tied into at Lake Chemong on Wednesday evening.

Johnston was trolling with a silver flash plug in a large bay directly opposite the boat livery on the lake, and was accompanied by Jack Rutherford, also of the Collegiate staff. The muskie hit and was solidly hooked , but refused to break water except for its tail, which popped above the water several times, much the same as the tail of a whale is seen as it dives.

The men kept the boat moving and finally landed the fish on the sand beach near Chemong Park. The fish was 42 inches long, and a slender, perfectly shaped muskie. They would have attempted to land it in the boat, but they had neither a net nor a gaff and thought the wiser plan was to beach the boat and play safe.

Prior to catching the 15-pounder, Rutherford landed one weighing slightly over the 5-pound mark. Throughout the district muskies seem to be biting freely, and usual let down in muskie fishing is scarcely noticeable.

On Wednesday night Jim Gates, Jr., nabbed a 9-pounder at the small dam in Thompson's Bay on the Canal and Stan Curtis got another a few days ago in the Canal opposite the home of his brother, Alderman Floyd Curtis.

British Wives Demand Share Of Pay

By FOSTER BARCLAY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, August 20 — (CP). — It's hard to believe, but there seem to be a few fellows in Britain who wield the family purse strings with miserly fingers, judging by the hue and cry raised by women's organization for an "equal share" of the weekly pay envelope.

Anyway, the married women's association has taken up the cudgels on behalf of those housewives who seemingly cannot wheedle, coax or cajole even a hit of pin money from their husband. The body has launched a movement to make it illegal for husbands to refuse to divuge the secrets of the wage packet and to rally women to support the introduction of a bill in parliament to obtain "economic justice for wives."

The campaign will come into being officially at a National Conference in London. One of the planks of the proposed platform will be a demand for an "equal share" of the weekly cheque.

"Marriage is supposed to be a perfect partnership," declared Mrs. Juanita Francis, 34-year old chairman and just as fiery as her red hair. "But how can that be in households where the wife does not get her share of the partnership income,

"Under the existing laws wives can be treated, financially, as serfs. This does happen where the husband holds the purse strings. These 'feudal' husbands pay the household bills, buy the family clothes—such as they consider necessary — and their wives have to beg for money."

Winston Shocks Egypt Troops

With British Forces on The Egyptian Front, Aug. 20—(AP).—A resolute civilian figure in sun helmet, grey suit and black bow tie trudged westward one day recently along the desert coast road to El Alamein, within hearing distance of heavy cannonading. British army trucks passed and then stopped short.

"Blimey," exclaimed an amazed driver, "it's Winston."

Prime Minister Churchill, on an inspection trip breaking a flight to Moscow, turned, waved and gave the "V" salute.

Mr. Churchill spent most of the day among South African and Australian detachments which make up part of the forces aligned against the German and Italian divisions of Field Marshal Edwin Rommel.

Mr. Churchill had arrived in Egypt by plane at a desert airfield at dawn one day.

He stepped from the plane in the uniform of an air commodore.

Mr. Churchill's arrival as an air commodore eliminated the formalities which would have been entailed if he had come as Prime Minister.

Later he drove to the Suez Canal area to inspect fresh troops and equipment which had arrived recently from Britain.

Keen Eyes Search For U-Boats Prevent Crash In Blinding Gale

By Lieut. O. A. Tate, RCNVR.

Down, in the warmth of the destroyer's mess decks a young Royal Canadian Navy rating is writing. Gently and rythmically the ship rides at anchor. Relaxed and sleepy, the youth, turned war-time sailor, signs and seals his letter-sighs, yawns, stretches.

Fifteen minutes later he is in his hammock, sound asleep in a deep, dreamless sleep.

Before long, his mother, who might be the mother of any one of thousands of Canadian naval ratings, will read: "One day we got separated from the convoy during a bad storm. I had to do a trick up in the eyes of our ship—and believe me my eyes got pretty sore. Give my love to Mary......"

For sixty minutes during that "bad" day at sea the lad maintained his look-out on the quarterdeck. From there he had gone forward to the peak of the forecastle for another one-hour vigil.

Whistle Up a Storm.

With his hand stuffed in the deep pockets of his duffel coat, his big rubber boots clumping along the iron deck, this young man, a torpedo rating, strode aft to take up his watch. The destroyer was heaving along in a moderate sea and off to starboard the convoy looked precisely as it had each day for the past six. He began to whistle and bruptly stopped, thinking ...... "The captain jumps anybody who whistles .... whistle up a storm..bad luck or trouble......

A splatter of rain strikes his face.

Suddenly and swiftly, gathering momentum and force across a thousand miles of open sea, comes the rearing northwester. With unbridled strength and violence, the opponent of all seafarers strikes. The great Atlantic's seas rise and across them a gale-driven downpour lashes in long, cutting streaks.

The ship pitches and bucks, rolls and corkscrews. In a surprise attack, a great sea coils and boils over the stern, high over the depth charge rails, and strikes out at the torpedoman. As the sea pounds against him, the cold water soaking him up to the chest, he clutches the ammunition locker with both hands and hangs on tight. He is shocked by the force of the sea.

What Happened? Nothing.

The torpedoman's teeth are chattering, as the pull of the water recedes. He toys unpleasantly with the idea of what might have happened had the sea knocked him to the deck and caught him up in its hissing, rushing backwash. The wind beating against his wet clothes is bitterly cold. He keeps looking-out across the ocean astern.

Thus ends the first 60 minutes What happened? Nothing! Nothing more than one hour of looking-out. Nothing more than one hour of muscle-straining effort to maintain equilibrium, to retain life and limb.

He goes forward for his next hours' watch on the bridge. First however, he quickly changes into a dry outfit. He borrows a dry duffel coat, dry balaclava, dry seaboots, and scampers swiftly up ladders to take his post on the starboard side of the bridge. From this point, considerably higher than the quarterdeck, he can see more of the ships of the convoy.

Gale Scatters Ships.

But within minutes, the merchant ships are completely obscured. In the wildness of the gale all are scattered. Some are hove-to. No two are pointed in the same direction as they all struggle to keep steerage-away.

The torpedo rating hears his name called. "Everything happens to me," he murmurs.

He is told to go up to the peak of the forecastle where the port and starboard guardrails meet in a V. He lashes a square of canvas to the rails to protect his body from the wind.

Still rough, the ocean sends the occasional sea exploding over the forecastle. The salt spray whips at his face and eyes. It hurts. A strange, frightening sensation flashes through him. Instinctively he stabs an arm and an outspread hand over his head. His arm curves swiftly down until pointing dead ahead. A wraith of darkness, seen indistinctly in the dirty milkiness ahead.... the instant his eyes registered the wispy shadow of a ship he acted.

Just In Time.

Collision ahead? It is perhaps five seconds since he first stabbed an arm toward dead ahead, and already the destroyer is leaning into a sharp turn to port.

The merchantman, a great, long oil tanker, is now looming large. Her fog horn is sounding in frantic, rapid-succession blasts. She, too, is hard over.

"A miss is as good as a mile—I hope!" the look-out breathes, bracing and holding himself against the ship's heaving and heeling.

Steeper and steeper becomes the destroyer's leaning turn as she goes full ahead on her starboard screw. The destroyer and the tanker are almost abeam. The swiftness with which the two ships glide safely past each other gives men in both ships a graphic idea of what might have happened in a collision.

On the bridge the captain is saying: "Damn alert look-out down there, and it's a tough job with that spray. Better have him relieved."

A few minutes later, the torpedo rating comes into his mess. The burning in his eyes is disappearing as a soothing ointment takes hold. Although tired and cold and hungry he is filled with pride, a feeling of adventurous accomplishment as a messmate remarks: "Nice work kid, a lot of people might have been killed."

Commando Raid Upsets Hun Arctic To Libya

By The Canadian Press

The Commandos, secretly organized in September, 1940, have raided and harassed the Germans from the far northern wastes of Spitzbergen Island to the sands of Libya.

The first raid by this tough force of special troops with a name borrowed from the Boer War was on the Lofoten Islands of Norway, March 4, 1941, when they blew up oil tanks, captured 215 Germans and liberated 323 Norwegians.

Canadians and Britons raided Spitsbergen Sept 9, 1941, smashing coal mines used by the Germans, freeing 1,000 Norwegians and 2,000 Russian miners. On that occasion they stayed long enough for the Canadians to play — and lose—a football game with some of the Norwegian miners.

It was only last Nov. 15 that the origin and scope of the Commandos as a separate force became known with retirement of Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, who had been training them for 15 months.

Again Dec. 26 the Commandos raided the Lofoten Islands, and on Dec. 28 struck at the Norwegian Islands of Vaagso and Maaloy. Riots all over western Norway resulted, and the Germans, depsite their scoffing at the effectiveness of such tactics, had to take stern reprisal measures to get the Norwegians under a semblance of control again.

The biggest Commando raid until the present one at Dieppe was that on the Nazi U-Boat base at St. Nazaire last March 28. The Campbeltown was loaded with explosives and blown up in the St. Nazaire dockgate, obliterating it.

Knocked Base Out Year

The British losses were listed at less than 100 men; their gains the crippling of the base for at least a year, naval men said.

Today's radio warnings to the French were intended to prevent a repetition of a tragic phase of the St. Nazaire raid, when French patriots took up hidden weapons and battled the Nazis for days in the belief an invasion had started. Appalling reprisals by the Germans resulted.

Last April Swedish reports said the Commandos had blasted German shipping in Narvik, northern Norwegian iron port, but British authorities never confirmed this.

Shortly thereafter it was announced that Lord Louis Mountbatten, a cousin of the King, had been the new chief of the Commandos since March 18, with high rank in the Navy, Army and Air Force so that he could direct readily the activities whcih Britons drily call "combined operations."

Lord Louis was quick in producing results, with a neat raid on the French coast around Boulogne that caught the Germans napping.

At Madagascar Too

Commandos led the way ashore last May when Britain seized the Diego Suarez naval base at Madagascar.

The Germans, belatedly, disclosed about the same time they were organizing a special force to guard against the Commandos.

Italy nervously rushed to fortify her Riviera coastline against the tough, silent men whose dread landings might occur at any time, at any place.

On June 4 the British Commandos again raided the French coast in the Boulogne-Le Touquet area, throwing the Nazis into confusion again.

Next day is was disclosed the Commandos also had raided Nazi Marshal Rommel's headquarters in North Africa, failing to bag that notable campaigner only because he happened to have been absent. In that raid, the son of Sir Roger Keyes, the Commandos' organizer, was killed, but there was many a prominent Briton to take up the torch, including Randolph Churchill, son of the Prime Minister, and Lord Lovat, the Scottish peer who led the first Boulogne foray.

So successful were the Commando assaults everywhere that it was freely predicted a series of stronger and stronger raids would be the inevitable prelude to Allied invasion of the European continent.

Old War Veterans Are Proud Of The Commandos

OTTAWA, August 20 — "Old soldiers never die—" is an old refrain that voices a truth that has lived throughout the years since 1914-18.

The Veterans Guard of Canada affords the "Old Sweats" with an opportunity for re-exemplifying the spirit that made them the "active soldier" of a quarter century ago.

Private J. W. Harmon, No. 13 Company Veterans Guard of Canada is one of the many who felt the urge to get back into the show again. Private Harmon of Boston, Mass, United States citizen, because of his 51 years could not find a place for himself in the Army of his country, so he turned to Canada and the Canadian Army where he first learned what it was to become a soldier.

This veteran old in years but young in spirit, has a few ideas concerning the Army of to-day. The following is what Private Harmon thinks and feels about war, 1942 style:

"Now as to this man's army in World War II.: From my observation of the Army of to-day, I am sure they have something we did not have. They have all the snap, drill and vim that we had in 1914; all these qualities, plus all the things we vets know about but do not write about. But let me tell you they have a commando training we did not have. Skill, speed and stamina is the basis of their training. I will bet my hat they can out-fight any of the Axis man for man; yes, and I would bet on our young army to-day if they meet any enemy five to one against them.

"Now to those veterans who think there is no longer a place for them. I am 51, and like the old fire horse could not rest at home or on my job and read the papers and listen to the radio. I wanted to get back in uniform and here I am—Pte. ...., D110981, Veterans' Guard of Canada Co. 13.

"Now let's see what an old war horse can do in this man's army. Vital points have to be guarded: I can do that. Internment camps have to be guarded: I can do that. Transportation in all branches must move in ever increasing quantities: I can help do that. Runners are needed by the thousands: I can do that. Outposts have to have garrison: I can do that.

"I am back in uniform and like it. I am not trying to keep pace with the young army, but I am one of an army of Veterans. Each man has the ribbon of service, and some even the ribbon of South Africa.

"Now, you ask, could I 'take it' in the service, march drill and shine as I did 27 years ago. The answer is Yes. Our officers are veterans and our drill is in periods, not to train but to refresh our memory and training. Our quarters are the best, the food is not surpassed in the best hotels, served cafeteria style. Everything from soup to nuts, and seconds if you want it. No floor show with your meals but even that is not left out, for the War Services have entertainments in quarters two or three times a week and free movies.

"And, Mr. Veteran, do not forget we now have a Woman's Army that ads charm, beauty and interest. I am glad I joined."

Ceiling Is Fixed On Used Clothes

OTTAWA, August 20 — (CP). — The Wartime Prices and Trade Board, in a move designed to preclude any exploitation of families who meet their household budget by purchasing used garments, yesterday slapped specific ceilings on retail prices for used clothing.

Board officials while not suggesting that used clothing retailers are guilty of infractions, pointed out the maximum prices included in the order would prevent confusion arising from the difficulty of proving that a particular garment was of the same type or make, or in the same condition, as a garment sold in the basic peridd.

Signed by S. Godfrey, administrator of used ogods, the order will become effective on September 1. It will supplement but not change the existing regulations which set maximum prices at the same level as during the basic period September 15 to October 11, 1941.

The board said there is no shortage of new clothing, and that as long as this condition continues, ordinary competition will tend to hold down used clothing prices. In case of any increased demand for used garments, however, the new maximum prices "will prevent exploitation of families who have occasion to resort to second-hand goods."

Mr. Godfrey said the ceilings were for the best grade of used clothing, and warned that there must be no rise in prices on inferior goods simply because the new maximum had been set on best quality garments. Clothing selling for the maximum prices must be thoroughly cleaned, free from patches, darns or holes, and be of good quality. Under such circumstances, the sample prices would run at the following maximum levels:

Man's three-piece suit, $18; man's winter overcoat $18; man's light overcoat, $14; man's suit coat, $5; man's trousers, $4.50; women's winter coat cloth, plain or trimmed with inexpensive fur), $12; woman's dress $3; woman's two-piece suit, $7; girl's coat, up to 10 years, $4.50 or $6 for various types; man's mackinaw, $5; man's trench coat, $8.

Grandmother's Day Event At Westwood

WESTWOOD, August 20—(ENS) —The Women's Institute held the annual Grandmothers Day at their August meeting on Tuesday afternoon. Nearly forty members and visitors including eight grandmothers, were present. Several letters of regret were read from other grandmothers not able to be present. The grandmothers were especially honored by a number of contests, the winners receiving a dainty prize. The eldest grandmother was Mrs. Hugh Cameron, the tallest grandmother was Mrs. Jas. Clysdale, the shortest grandmother was Mrs. Fred Mortlock, and a lucky draw for the grandmothers gave Mrs. Hilliard Neilson the prize.

A life history of the late Joseph Scriven composer of many hymns, including "What a Friend we have in Jesus," was given by Mrs. Jane Thompson, after which the hymn was sung by those present. A reading, "In a Town Hall," was read by Mrs. Clysdale, and solos were sung by Mrs. Birdsall and by Mrs. Morris. A humorous reading "One Good Sleep,' by Mrs. Aubrey Wood was followed by several old-time songs heartily sung by everyone. Up-to-the-minute current events were given by Mrs. William Renwick.

It was decided to hold a bingo party in the Town Hall on Friday evening, August 28, the proceeds to be divided between the Women's Institute Central War Fund and the purchase of War Saving Certificates.

Mrs. Aubrey Wood was appointed local leader to the whole wheat project to be held in Peterborough on September 24 and October 29. Mrs. Morris was named assistant.

The report of the War Work secretary-treasurer, Mrs. H. Neilson, showed a balance on hand of $237.20. The recent salvage drive which was started in April amounted to $202.12. Two little girls, Ruth Wood and Hazel Neilson, are to be commended on their efforts to help on the War Work campaign. They collected old papers throughout the village on a little wagon, the proceeds of which was $2.12.

Two parcels of children's and women's clothing have recently been sent out, one to the Norwood branch I.O.D.E. and the other to Eley, England.

A number of quilts, clothing and knitted goods were on display for the inspection of the visitors.

A dainty luncheon was served at the close from a table prettily arranged with sweet peas and phlox.

Bits and pieces required in the making of a 25-pounder field gun comprise 1,286 separate parts and more than 300 accessories. 529 of these are sub-contracted to 70 firms in two provinces. The total equipment of the main plant is worth over $13,000,000.

Hunt Two Nazis At Wallaceburg

WALLACEBURG Ont., August 20 —(CP). — Provincial, town and Royal Canadian Mounted Police to-day searched here for two German prisoners of war who escaped from a Northern Ontario internment camp. The men were reported seen in the town and immediate rural district early yesterday morning.

They were said to answer closely descriptions of two men who escaped from an internment camp on Saturday. Two young women from Port Lambton, Ont., on the St. Clair River, gave the men a ride to Wallaceburg, and there the men tried to obtain a ride to Windsor from Ernest Irwin of Wallaceburg.

Povincial Police and R.C.M.P. in other centres have been notified as well as Chatham and Windsor city police.

SIMPLE YET EFFECTIVE

The simplicity of the Bren gun is shown by the fact that it is composed of only 163 parts. Its manufacture requires 600 machine tools, 17,600 fixtures, tools and gauges, and 2,850 operations.

NUMBER OF OLD WIDOWS INCREASES AT RAPID RATE.

They Don't Know Where to Go or What to Do, and Nobody Wants Them.

Elderly widows are increasing out of all proportion to other age groups in our population, and statisticians figure that there are twice as many mothers-in-law in America to-day as there were at close of the Civil War. This is not only because the expectation of life for all of us has been extended for some twenty years or more, but because women seem to stand the wear and tear of marriage better than men do, and so often outlive their husbands.

Heretofore we have regarded widows as an act of God, or a decree of the divorce court, and, anyway, as something that we couldn't do anything about that wouldn't happen to us, so there was no use in worrying about it. But the time has come when we can no longer take that casual view of the subject. We are confronted by the fact that every woman is a potential widow and every house is likely to have a mother-in-law in it.

Nor can we longer ignore the fact that we have in our midst an army of women who are miserable, and make other people miserable, simply because they have been thrown out of their old environment and deprived of their occupations. They don't know where to go, nor what to do, and nobody wants them. And if that isn't a problem, let somebody ask a hard one.

There is no use in any mother befooling herself with the old hooey about her children wanting her to come and live with them when Father dies, and that they will spend their lives petting and adoring her, and believing that she will be perfectly happy with nothing to do except sit with folded hands. No matter how much her own children love her, their husbands and wives will consider her an enforced guest. There will be friction between her and the grandchildren. She will be bored to death with having nothing to do and no interests of her own. Every woman who goes to live with her children finds out that she either has to be a rubber stamp or a firebrand. And it is not a happy choice.

Often Cause Hardship.

Nor are the children always to blame. John can't protect Mother against his wife's temper. Nor can Mary make her husband treat Mother with even common politeness. Ofter the family income is so small that even having one more mouth to feed is a hardship.

The remedy for this situation is for every woman to realize that but for the grace of God she may some day be deprived of the strong arm on which she has leaned, and to fit herself to stand alone when that catastrophe occurs. She should lay up some treasures, spiritually and mentally, as well as financially, so that she will not be dependent on others for an interest in life.

The women who boast that they are all wife and mother, never belong to clubs or take part in causes or even go to parties are poorer than any pauper, no matter how much money they have, when their children marry and leave them and their husbands.

They become parasites who fasten themselves on anybody who is good-natured enough to permit it, and if they are rich they forlornly wander from cruise ship to resort hotel boring everybody and becoming Public Nuisance No. 1. Worse still, if they are poor they fasten themselves on the children—though they know they are a source of discord between husband and wife—because they have no life outside of Johnny and Jane.

Prepare to Live Alone.

Every woman should fit herself to live alone if she has to. She should keep up her friendships, her reading, her interest in everything that goes on in the world so that she can be good company for herself if she has the misfortune of losing her companion. Also, I believe mothers would do their children far kinder turn if they laid up a little nest egg for their old age that would render them independent than they do by spending it all in indulging their children and then being burdens upon them when Father dies.

Of course, if a woman is an invalid, or if she is old and feeble, she deserves all the care that her children can give her. But no woman who is strong and healthy and able-bodied, no matter what her age, should graft her living off others. In order that she may not do this she should always be preparing herself for the time when she may have to earn her own bread and butter. She should make a fine art of her domestic duties so that she can turn her skill into money if she needs to. There are never enough good cooks and seamstresses and baby-tenders to go around.

The reason so many mothers-in-law are so disagreeable and fault-finding and meddling is because they are idle and bored and dependent, and that would sour the disposition of an archangel. The solution of their problems is jobs, having their own pocketbooks, and their own homes.

CONSERVING STEEL

Three years ago consumers had 115 sizes of canned products to choose from. Under Wartime regulations this number was cut to 11 and now to nine sizes. In an endeavor to standardize containers, the Department of Agriculture three years ago began reducing the number of sizes of canned products containers on the market and by 1940 had cut the number from 115 to 22. This year Canada was faced with a metal shortage, and the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, working in co-operation with the Department, reduced the number of sizes on the market to 11, and shortly after the photograph on the RIGHT was taken the number was reduced to nine. Actually the only sizes which will soon be available are 48, 28, 20, 14, 12, 10 and five ounce sizes. Two other cans of 105 and 126 ounce sizes for institution and commercial use will also be available. Housewives who can no longer get the small sizes of can that they formerly liked to purchase can be assured that through this W.P. T.B. simplication order approximately 12,000 tons of steel is being conserved. This means that 1,200,000 more Bren guns can be made

Clarke-O'Brien Nuptials Douro Ceremony

DOURO, Aug. 18—(ENS). — A pretty wedding was solemnized on Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's Church, Douro, when Marcelle Loretta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam O'Brien, Indian River, became the bride of Private James Clarke of Terrace, B.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clarke of Indian River. Rev. J. J. McCarthy performed the ceremony and said the nuptial mass. The wedding march was played by the organist, Mrs. V. Kennedy, and the choir sang hymns.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was prettily attired in a street length frock of turquoise blue sheer with matching accessories and corsage of talisman roses and maiden-hair fern. Miss Rita O'Brien, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Her gown was of dusty rose crepe and matching accessories and corsage of briarcliffe roses. Mr. Neil Clarke, brother of the groom, was best man. The wedding dinner was served at Hoopers' palm rooms. For travelling, the bride wore a brown tweed suit and accessories. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold locket, to the bridesmaid, a compact, and to the groomsman a leather wallet. The groom returns to British Columbia after his furlough.

FURLOUGH WEDDING

No collar and high breast pockets distinguish this silk twill suit made in two shades of beige. The blouse is mousseline de soie exactly matching the jacket, and finished with a cascading jobot.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THIS dressy suit in shades of beige... light for the jacket, darker for the skirt, darker yet for gloves and bag... is worn by Irene Manning of Hollywood.

But with its pillbox of white gardenias it presents a formula which any furlough bride planning a simple August ceremony might like to copy.

Add a fresh cluster of gardenias for the shoulder... for that matter, one could have a special wedding hat made of the fresh flowers, too... and a girl would have a most attractive bridal costume which would be just as good after the Great Day in her general wardrobe.

This Is Everybody's War

(By MOLLY BROWN)

One of the big responsibilities attached to the privilege of being a citizen of a democracy is the responsibility of being just. Now justice is not a vague something meted out in law courts; it is a necessary element in our judgment of persons and things, if that judgment is to be worth anything at all. To make a just decision or hold a just opinion means that we have given intelligent consideration to all the available facts and have formed an opinion based on these facts, allowing personal taste and prejudice to influence us as little as possible. Most people like to think that all their opinions are formed that way but how many of us, after careful consideration, can honestly say that they are. Sometimes it is such a bother to consider the facts.

Take for instance the case of the American Federation of Musicians—and notice that I said A.F. of M., not James Caesar Petrillo. There seems to be an idea prevalent that Mr. Petrillo holds and exercises the powers of a dictator in his particular field; actually he has no more power than the heads of other great labor unions. The Federation, then, through its head, Petrillo, has announced that its members will make no more phonograph records.

At first glance, to an outsider, this seems like a piece of rank arrogance and stupidity on the part of the Federation; an action that would deprive a large number of people of music and bring very little benefit to the musicians. It looked as if he wanted to try to force radio stations to employ musicians, even inferior ones, instead of playing recorded programs; and also as if it was expected that every restaurant which now has a juke box, would hire professional musicians when its supply of records ran out. But things are not always what they seem and it took only a couple of questions to find out that in this case they certainly weren't.

In the first place, the A.F. of M. knows as well and anyone else that only one restaurant in a thousand could or would hire musicians if they were deprived of juke boxes (O Happy day!); and it also knows that the many small radio stations in the United States and Canada could not possibly provide any variety of musical programs if they relied entirely on local professional talent, even if they could afford to employ musicians.

However, many powerful stations, commanding millions of listeners, put on commercially sponsored recorded programs, the fees for which, the Federation claims, would amply permit the hiring of professional musicians. Thousands, perhaps millions, of people are entertained without any musicians having worked to entertain them.

It would be impossible, of course, for all stations to hire musicians. If, for instance, a Peterborough merchant wished to sponsor a symphonic program, as it is time someone did, it would be impractical and financially impossible for CHEX to hire a symphony orchestra, even if one were available. The program would have to be a recorded one. The same thing applies to the merchant who sponsors a program of dance music. Records will probably always be the mainstay of small radio stations, if they are to give their listeners variety; and if the listeners are to hear the best of all kinds of music. But when a big network and a sponsor who could afford to pay musicians play records to millions of listeners, that is a different story.

Speaking of symphonic, and other more classical programs, it is time some far-sighted Peterborough merchant realized that people in Peterborough enjoy some kind of entertainment besides popular dance-bands and quiz programs, excellent though these may be. If symphonies can sell Ford cars and operas sell oil, on big networks, there is no reason why they wouldn't do the same in Peterborough.

Forbidding the making of records seems like a rather drastic method of remedying the fault, but perhaps it is the only one. In any case, a settlement will probably be reached long before anyone begins to feel any shortage of records. Shortage of the materials will be more likely to effect the record market than any decision of the A.F. of M. or the Musicians' Union.

What has this to do with everybody's war? Nothing, probably, except that one reason democracy sometimes seems to stumble is that most of us are too busy and in too much of a hurry to see both sides of a question and form an intelligent opinion on it.

Pines To Fruit Welcome Change For Farmerette

By HAZEL DEAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OAKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 20.—(CP). —Three French-Canadian girls from Mattawa, Ont., think there is no place on earth like the Ontario Farm Service Force camp here.

Rita Fink, 17; Yvonne Frere, 17; and Rita Fitzmaurice, 17, have helped neighboring farmers harvest crops since early June. The girls enjoyed their work so much they "never want to go home."

"The scenery down here is such a change from Mattawa," said Yvonne. "After looking at pine trees all our lives, it's really a treat to get into the orchards. This is our first trip down here." The girls are the only French-speaking farmerettes at Oakville camp.

"Sometimes we speak French to tease the other girls. But not often. We are all good friends at the camp," they say. Fellow campers en-

Delicious Meals For Guests At Your Summer Place

By MARY MOORE

You are at your summer cottage. Weeks ago you invited a carload of friends to visit you one week-end. The time is growing short and the thoughts of preparing a spread for them begin to jell as the event becomes more imminent.

But I did exactly that, too (invited all my favorite people) and know what a predicament it can present when you get one grocery delivery per week, and have to think of every last detail or wait seven days for it. The first thing to do is to scour the neighboring farms for what they are willing to sell.

Picture These Delicacies On Your Dining Room Table

Corn—precious corn—came to my rescue and filled many big vacancies; a very chef-looking salmon mousse with cucumber dressing (see below) added the professional touch and appearance; a half a boiled boneless ham; a big bowl each of cole slaw and potato salad (with a little onion, please), sliced tomatoes, buttered warmed Parkhouse rolls, store ice cream (brought by the guests) and a double-reciped chocolate cake (that was to feed 15 people all hungry after their swim).

The children insisted on helping and since they had once made a Peach Turnover I let them loose in the back kitchen, and all alone they muddled through,—and believe it or not, it was edible. These friends are so staunch they would suffer indigestion for a week, to make the youngsters proud of their own efforts.

Salmon Mousse

(These amounts will serve from 12 to 15 people).

Four tablespoons granulated gelatine, 4 tablespoons water, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 6 tablespoons melted fat, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons mustard, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1½ cups milk, 4 cups flaked canned salmon well drained. Soak the gelatin in the water for 5 minutes. In double boiler cook all other ingredients except fish until the mixture thickens (about 5 minutes). Stir constantly or beat constantly with an egg beater. Remove from fire, add gelatin and fish, well, pour into mould dipped into cold water. Chill. To serve, turn out on chilled platter, and pass Cucumber Sauce.

Cucumber Sauce

One cup grated cucumber, 1 cup cream, whipped, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne 3 tablespoons vinegar. Squeeze cucumber in cheesecloth to extract all juice. Discard juice. Add seasonings and vinegar (drop by drop) to the whipped cream and chill about 30 minutes. Just before serving time add the cucumber. Sour cream may be used, when vinegar would be omitted. This is a delicious sauce and any woman who prides herself on being a good cook should know it.

Emem's Ultra Cole Slaw

One and one-half cups each shredded green and red cabbage, ½ cup each finely shredded celery, ¼ cup chopped pimiento, 2 tablespoons sliced green onions, ¼ cup finely chopped parsley. Moisten generously just before serving with plenty of genuine mayonnaise. Serve very cold. (The red cabbage got in because the farmer had only 1 little green one left, but plenty of red.)

Peach Turnover

Two egg yolks, 1 cup sugar, 1/3 cup water, 2 stiffly beaten egg whites, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons shortening, 2 cup sliced peaches. (Canned peaches may be used when water would be replaced by peach juice.

Beat yolks with ½ cup sugar until light. Add 1/3 cup water and remaining sugar. Beat 5 minutes. Fold in egg whites. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add to first mixture and mix thoroughly. Add vanilla. Cream brown sugar and shortening together. Add peaches and remaining salt and place in shallow, greased baking pan. Pour over batter. Bake in hot oven of 400 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes. Turn out upside down. Serve hot with fruit mashed and whipped cream. These amounts serve 6—it may be doubled without hurting recipe.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Question.—Would you please send me a recipe for canning year-old hens? I have no canning rack. I just use the wash boiler with rack in bottom. I would appreciate this very much as I always use your recipes and like them very much.—Mrs. M. J. Moher.

Answer.—The canning industry definitely discourages household canning of meat or chicken or fish unless a pressure cooker is used. I am intimately associately with canning in much of my research work and feel the same way,—I would not can meat or chicken if I did not have the use of a pressure cooker. However I know many housewives, especially those on farms, that can meat and chicken in hot water baths successfully every year. I can tell you the best method of doing this:

CANNED CHICKENS

Two-year-old hens are best, culled from the flock during July and August but less mature birds will do. Dress the chickens as for cooking, being careful to remove the gall bladder intact. Carefully remove lungs, kidneys and eggs. Cut the chickens into serving sizes, and separate into three piles: the meaty pieces (breast, thighs, legs and upper wing joints) the bony pieces (backs, wings, necks), and the giblets. Hearts, livers, and gizzards should be canned separately from the chicken meat. Trim off excessive fat, but leave on the skin.

Make the broth to pour over the chicken in the jars by boiling the bony pieces covered with water which has been lightly salted. The meat from the bony pieces may be stripped from the bones and put all together in one or two jars and canned last,—it may be used for sandwiches or creamed chicken. If desired 5 tablespoons granulated gelatin may be added to each quart broth,—dissolve the gelatin in 1 cup cold water, then dissolve it in 4 cups boiling hot broth. One housewife who has canned chicken for over 20 years every year says she boils her bony pieces in the bottom of the steamer, and steams her meaty pieces in the top, cooking all for 3 hours, and moving the meaty pieces about in the top of the steamer so that all pieces are cooked through. Then the meaty pieces of chicken are handled with two forks and placed in jars which have been sterilized for 20 minutes, these are then filled to overflowing with boiling hot chicken broth, adding 2 tablespoons (measuring spoons) of salt to each quart jar, rubbers and tops being handled with sterilized forks, and then sealed to within a quarter turn of tight. They are then processed in roasting pan standing in 4 inches of water in oven at 350 deg. Fahr. for 3 hours and cooled as quickly as possible after processing time is up. If you do not wish to do them in oven they may be processed in hot water bath having rings tightened to within ⅛ turn of tight and water coming to within 2 inches of tops of jars. Process 3 hours counting time after water begins to boil. When done, cool as quickly as possible, tightening seal. Store in a cool dark place. Always precook chicken that has been canned without pressure cooker before tasting, for at least 10 minutes.

Question.—This Spring I planted some Gherkin seed of the West India variety and they are just starting forming now,—I have looked all over for recipes for pickling gherkins but have not been able to find anything, so was wondering if you could help me out.—Mrs. R. M. Kingsville.

Answer. — I hope this recipe reaches you in time for your pickling.

Pickled Gherkins

Two quarts small green cucumbers, 2½ quarts boiling water, 2 cups salt, 2 quarts vinegar, 2 green peppers chopped, 1 cup white mustard seed, ½ oz. whole cloves, ½ oz. allspice, ½ oz. stick cinnamon, ½ oz. root ginger (root minced), 2 pounds brown sugar, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 1 tablespoon powdered alum. Use very small cucumbers of even size. Dissolve salt in water and pour while boiling hot over cucumbers. Let stand 24 hours, then drain. Wipe dry, cover with boiling vinegar. Let stand 24 hours, then drain. Mix other ingredients, scald, pour boiling hot over cucumbers. Keep in stone jar or seal in glass jars. All the spices are not essential. You may use red instead of green pepper, and the amount of sugar may be reduced.

Question.—Please send me your recipe for headcheese.—Mrs. Burns.

Answer.—You may use the prepared head, or the ears, feet and nose of a pig, or you may use the hocks,—but it is preferable to use some of the head meat and bones. Wash it all very well, and pour over it enough boiling water to cover and boil until the meat drops from the bones,—any of the skin meat may be left in. Add salt to taste and black and a little red pepper and some sage—but be careful adding sage—some people like only a little. Before the meat becomes cold pour into porcelain or earthen containers, which have been moistened with cold water, to about 3 inches in depth and set aside to harden. When cold, slice and serve with sharp pickle or dip in batter and panfry in hot fat. Gravy made from fat in pan is nice flavored with vinegar.

I hope this method pleases you and that we may help you again.

For Friday, August 21

THERE ARE signs in the lunar operations pointing to some conflicting and contradictory conditions, which may incite critical situations to be dealt with cautiously, decisively and shrewdly as well. The menace may be of a secret, subtle and sinister nature and should be met and disposed of with kindred strategem and craftiness. Intrigue arising from individuals as well as large organizations, secret, political or diplomatic bodies may challenge prudence and alertness. However, there is promise of help and understanding from superiors.

Those whose birthday it is may be under the menace of intrigue, fraud, duplicity and secret enmity, arising from secret and sinister sources. It may be necessary to be vigilant, shrewd, cautious and ready to meet these undercover and malicious attacks with similar craft and strategy. It would be wise to cultivate those in authority, employers and superiors, frankly revealing threatening situations.

A child born on this day may attain success and good fortune, against secret enemies or impostors, mainly because of the good will and confidence of its superiors.

Appoint Woman Who Knows Her Women's Minds

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, August 20.—(CP) — The goverment, calling more and more women into war industry, have taken steps to see that women's problems are properly looked after in the appointment of Mrs. Dorothy Martin to the Industrial Production Panel.

She is a Scotswomen, a 43-year-old member of the Institute of Automobile Engineers. Mrs. Martin is described in the London press as "The Woman Who Understands Women."

When drafted for her new job she was supervisor of female labor for the Nuffield factories in Birmingham and during the last war she was woman supervisor of Vickers where she had charge of 7,000 women. Between the First Great War and this one Mrs. Martin found time to raise a daughter who is now 15 and to put in 12 years at running a laundry and five years as managing director of a motor firm in Scotland.

If you wonder what women serving at sea do in their spare time Mrs. Victoria Drummond can tell you—it's embroidery. She appeared in London in the peaked cap and gold-and-purple cuffed jacket of a second engineer of the Merchant Navy. A god-daughter of Queen Victoria she is the only woman in Britain to hold a Board of Trade Certificate as a qualified marine engineer and her medals are the M. B. E. (for gallantry when her ship was bombed) and the Lloyd's War Medal (for bravery at sea). Mrs. Drummond serves on the Atlantic run.

British women have scored a triumph in the cobbling business. L. M. English, who runs one of London's largest shoe-repairing factories, says 85 per cent of his workers are women who started on simple jobs two years ago and are now the equals of skilled men on some of the more intricate cobbling jobs. The women are paid trade board wages according to their age, the basic wage being the same as that for men. There is no age ban. Some girls are 15, some are 50. On some jobs women are even better than men, English reported.

The Royal Navy's only woman surgeon is Surgeon-Lieut. Rewcastle. She is the wife of a solicitor .... Lady Furnace who recently returned to England from the French Riviera, is trying to find a farm. Says she wants to grow food because she learned the importance of food while living in France since the Germans over-ran the country.

This Weeks Wartime Recipe

Contributed by Our Readers

"Dear Mary Moore.—Last winter we were on very restricted rations because. I just could not make a private's pay stretch as far as it should,—so I wrote to a dietitian friend of mine in Montreal and asked her to tel me good dishes that contained a maximum amount of nourishment at a minimum cost, and she sent me:

Vegetable and Whole Wheat Chowder (Contributed by F. Wray).

Fry 1 cup chopped salt pork until crisp Chop an onion finely and cook it in the fat. In the meantime boil 2 cups diced raw potatoes and 1 cup each chopped cabbage, turnips, corrots in 1 pint unsalted water. As soon as the vegetables are tender add 1 cup cooked whole wheat (same as you would make it porridge), and 1 pint milk and the cooked salt pork and onions. When all is heated through season to taste with pepper and salt if needed.

"I hope you do not think this is too humble fare for a main course at a dinner, for I used it at least once a week every week last winter and pulled my family through without any colds and give their basically good diet most of the credit.—F. Wray."

Indeed, Mrs. Wray, I herewith repeat my praise to mothers of your calibre who are thinking their way through their difficulties. Thanks for this excellent soup,—I'll wager many women with unrestricted budgets will be proud to servie it.—Thanks.

joy listening to the French girls' rapid phrases. The trio speak good English, too.

All three Mattawa girls are tanned to a copper glow from weeks of outdoor work. "When people ask us how we got such a beautiful tan we tell them to get out in the fields with the farmer and learn for themselves," said Yvonne. That's the only way to get a real victory tan.

Dark-eyed Yvonne is spokesman for the group. She is accustomed to shouldering responsibility. Her two friends, both students at Mattawa high school, seldom object to her laughing commands to 'get busy.'

Yvonne has a smile for everyone. "I haven't stopped laughing since I left Mattawa, she says.

DIAGRAMS CAN SHOW YOU HOW TO CONGA

Favorite At Smart Places

To Xavier Cugat's exotic music at New York's Waldorf Astoria, to the bands at army post dances . . . everywhere they Conga!

Which means that if you don't learn the step (you can, from diagrams!) you'll be standing on the sidelines, while girls who know how to become as popular as the Conga itself. Come, try it from our diagram of the Conga Side Step!

Counting one-two-three-FOUR, on Count 1, step to side on left foot, hips sway left. 2—Cross right foot over left, hips sway right. 3—Step to side on left foot, hips sway left. 4—Sideward thrust of hips, with a slight kicking movement of right foot; turn body slightly to right.

A popular way to Conga is to take the first three steps forward instead of sideways. Or dance in criss-cross fashion, each partner travelling in opposite directions.

There's really no excuse for being a wallflower! Our 32-page booklet also gives diagrams and instructions for the rumba, tango, Samba, Westchester, Peabody, fox-trot, waltz, shag. Gives tips on how to lead and follow.

For your copy of "How to Do the Newest Dance Steps and Variations" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to The Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

GENIUSES AT MISTAKES

LUCKY indeed are those people who seem to do everything right. In any department of life, whatever decision they make usually turns out to be the winning one. On the other side of the scale are those poor unfortunates who appear to have pretty fair judgment in the courses they choose, only to learn that things would have worked out much better if they had chosen another alternative. Some of these are virtual geniuses in finding how to make mistakes, at the bridge table as well as elsewhere.

At two duplicate tables, the heart 3 was led against that contract, one declarer making it and the other being set three tricks, due to difference in method of play. The one who made it decided to go after the spades, and led the 3 to the 9. North held up his A, whereupon the K knocked it out. North sent back the heart 5 to the A, and the club 9 was finessed to the Q. North then knocked out the last heart stopper, the K. The club 4 to the A dropped the K, and three spades were run, followed by the diamond J, which was sent through to the Q. South had only diamonds left, so scored his A and then had to give East his contract with the 9 to the K.

After the other declarer got the first trick with the heart J, he decided to work on clubs, fearing that if the opponents got the club A out of dummy, there would not be enough entries to score the spades. He sent the club 9 to the Q. North knocked out the heart A, and then the club A dropped the K. With no heart to lead back to his own hand, East then called the diamond J from dummy, letting the Q win it. South now switched to the spade 4, the K being put on and North holding up his A. Next came the diamond 10, which South allowed to win. With his goose now cooked, poor East called the diamond 3 to his K and South's A. The diamond 9 and 8 were cashed also, and the spade 5 led. The Q was called from dummy, the A winning and the 8 coming back to the J, for the seventh trick by the defenders. South then had to lead his heart Q to the K to give up the final trick, but the declarer was down three.

Lily Lake W.A. Hears Talk On Great Nurse

Mrs. Harry Fowler and Mrs. Arthur Hancock were hostesses for the August meeting of the Lily Lake Women's Association held at Mrs. Hancock's home. Ten members and one visitor attended.. The president, Mrs. Clarence Hancock. presided. Mrs. Ross Nicholls read the Scripture, and Mrs. William C. Steinkrauss offered prayer. Mrs. Arthur Hancock gave a reading entitled "The Face of Judas," a most interesting story of the great painter who took a small urchin to represent Jesus in his picture by reason of his lovely countenance, and after having searched in vain for years for a subject to represent Judas, he found such a man who while having his portrait painted acknowledge to the artist that he was the same man who had been chosen as a child to represent the guileless Jesus. The roll call next month is to be "A Way of Conserving Sugar or a Wartime Recipe. Mrs. Harry Fowler gave a very fine talk on Florence Nightingale's life and acts, concluding by singing delightfully the appropriate song, "The Rose of No Man's Land." It was decided to buy more metallic sponges to be sold by the members and also to charge $3 for quilting ordinary quilts, to add to the funds. Each member was asked to bring one print block and one of heavy material 18 inches square to the next meeting to complete two quilts. Two letters of acknowledgment were read from Kinmount for quilts sent up there after the fire in June.

The September meeting is to be held at Mrs. Gordon Hancock's. A social hour was enjoyed. Sandwiches and tea were served by the hostess.

Free From Pains In Joints And Back; Praises Syntona

Says There is Nothing Like it for Relief from Stomach and Kidney Disorders and Resulting Pains as it Gives Him Some Good Results a Second Time in Three Years.

"I guess I was among the first in this section who used Syntona and it certainly was a great thing for me," said Mr. Eli Dorman, well-known resident of Byron, Ontario, in a recent statement.

"About three years ago I was suffering terribly with stomach troubles, headaches and muscular pains, and I was badly run down. I had tried so many remedies without any real benefits that I had become discouraged. But I was persuaded to take Syntona, and it did wonders for me. In a few weeks it rid me of those pains and I could eat anything I liked without any after effects.

"I continued in fairly good health until a few months ago, when I had a cold that seemed to settle in my kidneys and caused loss of sleep and a general rundown condition. Pains set into my back and they spread all through my legs and shoulders. I felt constantly tired and nervous from loss of sleep.

"Knowing how Syntona had helped me before, I began taking it again, and now I have come back to tell you that it has given me the same good results all over again. If you had seen me a few months ago, when I couldn't walk upstairs because my joints were so sore and stiff, you would hardly believe that I rode fifty miles on my bicycle last week, but that is exactly the way my health has improved. There is certainly something about Syntona that makes a person feel better, and I recommend it to all my friends."

MR. ELI DORMAN

Let this grand herbal tonic help you, as it has hundreds of other local men and women. Syntona is pleasant to take and it contains no harmful drugs or depressors.

BATTLE OF DIEPPE CLIPS WINGS OF HUN IN EUROPE

Calgary Tanks Hold Hun In Get-away

By ALAN HUMPHREYS
Reuters Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(CP)—As the battered remnants of that force (the Calgary Tank Regiment) held off the enemy while the rest of the Allied forces were re-embarking, I listened to their radio messages.

Damage to tanks and fierce German resistance were the main burden of the reports coming over.

One tank reported: "My tracks have been shot off. My turret won't work. I am accounting for a lot of Germans."

Another, which had reported it was on the promenade near the Casino, was warned about a "pillbox on your left."

The Casino was proving a strong fortress and a nearby tobacco factory also was very strongly held.

The Germans had assembled about 100 British prisoners near the Casino said one tank's radio.

At last the tank radio gave the word everybody had been expecting for some time. The men on the beach and on the promenade and those that had driven into the town had had a hard fight, but they had stuck to it.

"Evacuate," said the radio.

A smokescreen along Pourville beach had already covered the withdrawal of the South Saskatchewan Regiment. Smoke concealed the coast for several miles.

Drama Of Death

The final drama of the raid, most gripping and intense of the whole operation, came over the tank radio.

Twenty-five minutes later the beach radio reported a tank landing-craft holed and sinking. The voice answering this piece of dire news was quite unchanged.

"Can you see anything coming yet?" asked the tank radio.

Four minutes later the radio emitted only a heavy burst of machine-gun fire.

End very near. Another four minutes and I heard: "I am ready by the centre of the tank-landing craft to unload."

Red Vengeance

MOSCOW, Aug. 21—(AP). — Red Star reported today that Adolf Beck, German agent for 14,250 acres of Leningrad province farm lands, had been killed by guerillas. The army paper's story said his assistants also were slain, his office burned and farm machinery intended for Germany seized.

New Thousands Get Living Bonus

OTTAWA, Aug. 21 —(CP)—The cost-of-living bonus, the Commando force of the anti-inflation war, will strike a stout blow for the ordinary man in thousands of pay envelopes being issued today and tomorrow, with thousands of Canadians receiving it for the first time.

Extra money is being provided for Canadian wage-earners because of a 2.4 per cent increase in the cost-of-living since last October. To men and women employees over 21 or earning more than $25 a week, the increased bonus amounts to 60 cents a week. To male employees under 21 and women employees making less than $25 a week, the increased bonus will amount to 2.4 per cent of their basic weekly wage.

The additional sums must be paid by employers starting on Aug. 15 and will therefore appear in the pay envelopes of those paid on the weekly basis either today or tomorrow. More than 1,000,000 Canadians receiving the cost-of-living bonus will benefit from the new payment.

In addition, under federal regulations, employers who were not paying a cost-of-living bonus to the classes now entitled to it must start payment effective from the first payroll on or after Aug. 15.

Heroic Slavs Tie Whole Line To Italy

LONDON, Aug. 21 (CP)—A fresh wave of sabotage by Yugoslav patriots was climaxed Saturday by wrecking the Zagreb-Belgrade express, with 21 persons killed and 32 injured, Yugoslav sources reported today.

The German field commandant at Nis, named Von Bothmer, offered rewards for arrests of persons who recently cut the Belgrade-Salonika railroad at three points, they said.

The report added that Serbian villages near the scene had been "severely punished" and two Bulgarian regiments were coming to the area north of Nis in search of Chetnik forces.

Yugoslav sources in the Middle East said Croat guerillas also had blocked rail traffic between Zagreb and the Italian border for two weeks.

A Reuters dispatch from Zurich quoted a Swiss correspondent in Berlin as saying 10 men had been shot in the eastern Croat town of Stara Pasova for undisclosed reasons.

Other reports told of "revolts by Communist elements and partisans" in eastern Slavonia during the first half of August in which German soldiers were attacked, food stocks burned and farm machinery destroyed.

Yugoslav circles in Jerusalem reported fierce battles between Croats and Axis troops near the Slovenian towns of Gorenjsko and Rogaska-Slatina.

The Yugslosla vreport added that Ustachi (pro-Axis Croat) garrisons in several villages near Zagreb had been annihilated by patriots and that Axis troops burned a number of villages near Ljubljana.

Axis To Pay Frightfully For Barbaric Crimes Says FDR As Evidence Of Slaughter Piles Up

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—(AP).—President Roosevelt warned enemy nations in a formal statement today of "fearful retribution" to come for what he called their "barbaric crimes" against civilian populations in Axis-occupied countries.

The President issued his warning after State Secretary Cordell Hull had given him a communication from the Netherlands Ambassador and the Yugoslav and Luxembourg Ministers calling attention to Nazi slaying of hostages.

Asked at his press conference whether he could commit the people of ravaged countries to acting through courts of law once "they got a chance" at their oppressors, the President admitted probably he could not do so, but said he was expressing a hope judicial processes would prevail.

Wound-Battered Canadians Joke of Their Heroism

By DOUGLAS AMARON

AT A CANADIAN ARMY HOSPITAL, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Aug. 21.—(CP Cable).—Great-hearted Canadian soldiers, bearing their wounds with the same unflinching courage as that with which they faced the merciless hail of German bullets, unfolded today a story of heroism on the beaches of Dieppe unsurpassed in the Dominion's fighting history.

There is only one word to describe the valor of the men I talked with in the clean, airy wards of this newest Canadian hospital where they lay joking about scars they will always carry to remind them of the eight hours under fiendish German fire. The word is guts.

These were the less serious casualties—men sufficiently fit to be moved inland from coastal hospitals where the critically wounded were taken.

There was no need to ask many of them of their wounds. Weighted pulleys above the beds supported torn and shattered limbs. Blood-stained bandages revealed where skulls had been creased and hands and feet sliced by shrapnel or pierced by bullets.

Pain was written on the faces of many of the men as they smoked and read or just lay still in their hospital cots. But they had a smile for all visitors, a wisecrack for many questions and a united resolve to return to their units and "knock hell" out of the Germans.

None of these soldiers, some of them newly shaven but most with the black stubble of a week's beard, elaborated on or boasted of the part he played in the Battle of Dieppe, but a simple recital of the facts was an account of superb heroism in itself.

One deed which stood out was described to me by a doctor at the hospital who heard it from a wounded soldier — a French-Canadian member of Les Fusiliers Mont Royal.

With other members of his platoon, the French-Canadian attacked a pillbox, wiping out 15 Germans. Then they stormed and took another pillbox, following this up with an assault on a German-manned trench.

By this time only the French-Canadian and two other soldiers were still alive and as they advanced against another trench they, too, were hurled to the ground, badly wounded by a grenade thrown at their feet.

A German officer ordered them to stand, but they could not. The officer, revolver in hand, moved away for help, and as he turned the French-Canadian, supporting himself on the body of another Canadian, shot him dead.

Then his soldier crawled on his hands and knees to a boat at the beach.

Another story of courage under fire came from Pte. Henry Dingwall of Deloraine, Man., who smiled through a heavy growth of beard ah he told how he "had to do it or else die."

Wounded in the hand early in the fighting, the 25-year-old member of the Camerons of Canada had his skull creased by a bullet which pierced his steel helmet as he helped shove a boat away from shore.

So He Swims a Mile

The German fire was too fierce to risk climbing into the boat so Dingwall, despite his injured hand and dazed from the blow on the head, swam a mile off shore to another boat and was hauled aboard by a rope.

"I figured I was a goner there," Dingwall said. "I was so tired I didn't think I could make it."

Then, half apologetically, he explained he was unable to bring back all his equipment.

Allied Aerial Rule Runs Far Inland

LONDON, Aug. 21—(CP).—The clipped wings of the German air force in western Europe ranked today as the first big dividend of Dieppe.

Allied mastery of the air now is complete beyond challenge, not only over Britain and the Channel, but even deep into enemy territory itself.

This was proved by the extraordinary show of Allied airpower yesterday with virtually no opposition and apparently without the loss of a single plane, over German-held soil.

In broad daylight, 500 fighters swept across the French coast — where never before had more than 300 planes made such a raid at one time.

The R.C.A.F. in the forefront of the air duels over Dieppe on Wednesday, again took to the skies. Four squadrons escorted a force of Flying Fortresses, manned by members of the United States army air forces, to Amiens where the big four-engined bombers rained explosives on railway yards without even sighting a Nazi fighter over the target.

The Canadian squadrons were commanded by Sqdn. Ldrs. Keith

EXTRA!

VICHY.—(AP)—Fernand de Brinon, Vichy representative to Paris, claimed in a statement to the pro-Nazi Laval cabinet today that the Allies lost 3,500 men killed and 1,800 captured at Dieppe Wednesday. He said the majority were Canadians with a few Fighting French.

Two Naval Battles

LISBON, Aug. 21—(AP).— A report from Algarve Province tonight said a fierce naval and air battle was raging off Cape Saint Vincent, the southwest tip of Portugal. In New York a BBC broadcast said today that United States Flying Fortress bombers were reported to have "launched a big attack off the Solomon Islands against Japanese warships."

Leningrad Fools Adolf For A Year

By EDDIE GILMORE

MOSCOW, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Hitler launched his unsuccessful assault upon Leningrad a year ago today, besieging the former capital with 300,000 soldiers.

After 12 months, the city's defenders fight on.

The Soviet Information Bureau announced at noon that more than 1,000 Germans had been wiped out in 48 hours of local fighting on the Leningrad front and that Russian troops captured an important strategic position in a limited offensive.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda said the Nazi high command aligned 52 infantry division, four motorized divisions and four tank divisions against Russia's second city—previously known as St. Petersburg and Petrograd.

The Germans hauled up 6,000 big guns, 19,000 machine guns, 4,500 mortars and 1,000 tanks and supported these ground weapons with 1,000 planes, expecting to smash Leningrad immediately.

Russ Mortars Wipe Out Italian Units

MOSCOW, Aug. 21—(AP).—German forces which crossed the Don River loop south-weest of Kletskaya fought violently for a pathway to Stalingrad today, but field dispatches said strong Russian bayonet charges pinned down the vanguard and the complementary thrust from the southwest was hurled back by counter-attacks.

Izvestia declared that almost all the Germans who sought to establish bridgeheads along the Don bend were exterminated, but two fresh Nazi divisions moved up.

This report from the Government publication came as the army newspaper Red Star said approaches to the river were covered with the bodies of Germans, Italians, Hungarians and Rumanians, even while the crossing effort persisted.

German airmen supported the assault operations.

Soviet air scouts discovered a large concentration of Italians in two settlements and Red Army ground troops were reported to have wiped out virtually all of them in surprise attacks with mortars.

The Axis dead totalled thousands, said the Communist newspaper Pravda. It reported 17 tanks led a charge into Red Army positions at one place, but six were destroyed and the others turned back.

Heavy Soviet artillery and Soviet tank crews co-operated to thwart a charge of 35 tanks upon the Russian lines in another sector during the critical battle of the Don bend.

More Setbacks in Caucasus

Reverses again attended the defence of the western and central Caucasus. The Russians said, however, that about 700 Germans were slain south of Krasnodar before a further Soviet retreat in that area and that invaders made "some advance" southeast of Pyatigorsk only at heavy cost.

The mid-day war bulletin said that a Soviet formation annihilated more than 2,500 Germans, destroyed in 14 tanks, seven armored cars, 103 trucks and many guns during a three-day engagement in the western theatre of Krasnodar.

U.K. Press Sings Canuck's Praise

LONDON, Aug. 21—(CP Cable)—The gallantry of the Canadian Commandos in the Dieppe action drew the praise of British newspapers today and the foremost tribute came from the London Star, which said, "Dieppe is a name that now stands with Vimy among Canada's treasured battle honors."

The tabloid star devoted its entire editorial column to "Canada" —its fighting men and women; its factories and fields.

Provincial papers, many of which published the eye-witness account of Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, under his by-line, also were lavish with their tribute to the Dominion's rugged warriors.

"Canadians may rightly be filled with pride in the achievements of their fighting sons in this great raid," said the Star. "To them fell the distinction of playing the leading part.

"It was richly earned and gallantly performed by those hardy troops who have had to wait two years for this chance to strike a blow at the enemy. We may look upon it as a well-deserved gesture to that country whose part in the total war effort of the Empire has been truly enormous."

Munro's Story Hailed As Epic

By The Canadian Press

The Canadian soldier, for the first time since 1918, hit the world's front pages today. There were pictures of him, stories of his gallantry under German fire in the Commando assault on Dieppe. On top of all the stories was the by-line: "By Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent."

Gangling Ross Munro, fair-haired and 28 years old, who landed under German fire with the Canadian attack specialists Wednesday before Dieppe, scored a great journalistic triumph.

But he will be far more pleased to think that all over the Allied world people are reading about the efficiency and fighting prowess of Canadian soldiers—the men he lives with in England.

Munro's eye-witness story is hailed in newspaper offices as one of the great stories of this war. Distributed throughout the United States by the Associated Press, it appeared on the front pages of hundreds of United States evening papers yesterday. The New York Sun set it under a two-line, six-column headline.

Beside the story were invariably pictures of Canadian troops.

The New York Times and Herald Tribune each used Munro's story on its front page this morning, while the tabloids, the New York News and Daily Mirror, also published his story.

Canadian newspapers gave over their front pages to Munro's stories. The eye-witness account was cabled to Australia and widely displayed there.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt said today that Wendell L. Willkie is going to the Near East and Russia as his special representatives to tell those countries the truth about the American war effort and the unity behind it. In addition to Russia, he will visit Egypt, Arabia, Palestine, Syria, Turkey, Iraq, and Iran.

FOLKESTONE, Eng.—(CP)—Two German planes bombed and machine-gunned the streets of a small southeast coast town at noon today, hitting a theatre and some other buildings. A number of casualties resulted.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt—(AP)— A U-boat "corner" exists in the South Atlantic where five ships were sunk in one day, an American merchant captain declared today after bringing his ship to an Egyptian port. "We only missed getting torpedoed ourselves because we mistakenly altered course instead of following the usual route," he said.

Nazis Still Fume in Vichy To Prove Raid 2nd Front

VICHY, Aug. 21 —(AP)—On the second day after the Allied raid on Dieppe, Vichy still was pouring out accounts and explanations and holding press conferences on the subject, which continued to occupy the main place in all French newspapers.

The conferences were to support the official pro-Nazi position, taken since yesterday afternoon, that the landing really was an effort to start a second front which failed after "10 months of careful preparation."

There was a seeming contradiction of a previous assertion that it was a "hastily improvised" response to an "ultimatum" from Russia's Premier Joseph Stalin.

Fernand de Brinon, Vichy's emissary to Paris, came here to give French newspapermen an account of the battle as purportedly given to him by the German high command.

He asserted the Allies had "three or four divisions" aboard ships in addition to the one which landed.

Raid Draws Eyes Off Russia But Major Front Still There

By ROSS MUNRO

Somewhere in England, Aug. 21—(CP Cable) — Through Canadian army camps in Britain today stories of the heroism and courage of Canadians in the hellfire that was Dieppe on Wednesday were recounted by hardened men who now have been battle-tested.

There were countless deeds done on the shores of France and in the streets of Dieppe that never will be told. Too many did not return for a complete picture of the Canadians' individual heroic performances ever to be assembled.

But at the bases of the Essex Scottish, South Saskatchewan Regiment, Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, Fusiliers Mont Royal, Toronto Scottish, Winnipeg Camerons, Royal Regiment and the Black Watch there were plenty of accounts from fighting men to stamp the action as something rivalling the last war's Vimy in point of valor.

At that, though, there are stories without number already.

They Wouldn't Leave Him

They tell of a wounded regimental sergeant major unable to walk who was carried waist-high into the sea and re-embarked by comrades who refused to leave him behind when the withdrawal was ordered.

His name was not immediately available on account of his being in the wounded category and casualties are still being tabulated, but he is married, 42, a typical Western Canadian from Saskatoon.

He landed on the beach with units of his regiment in the early morning of Wednesday's assault.

Allied Bombers Startle Timor

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, August 21—(CP) While Allied scouting planes searched the waters around the embattled Solomon Islands for new evidence of Japanese naval activity, bombers made another attack yesterday upon enemy forces based on the Island of Timor, northwest of Australia.

A communique announcing the raid on Timor said medium bombers had touched off great explosions at the Japanese-occupied town of Macbissen the interior of the Half-Netherland, Half-Portuguese Island, indicating that fuel or ammunition dumps had been hit.

All planes returned safely from the mission, said the bulletin, which made no mention of any Japanese aerial opposition.

One pilot returning from the Maobisse raid told of seeing "a lot of Jap soldiers running for their lives for the shelter of the jungle."

The bombers dropped to low levels to attack the place, a native settlement 17 miles south of Dili in the Portuguese part of the island. Diving on their targets, the bombers hit fuel or ammunition dumps and

TOKYO — (AP). — A Japanese communique reported today that some 200 American troops affected a landing at dawn August 17 on Makin Island, at the northern tip of the Gilbert Islands. The communique clamed the troops were "repulsed completely." (There was no Allied confirmation of such a landing attempt.)

WASHINGTON—(AP).— Declaring heads of some Government agencies were talking too much, President Roosevelt today directed all government administrators to refrain from public debate of controversial questions of policy and to stop criticising each other in such controversies.

Ban on Auto Gas by Railway Frees 5,000 U.S. Tank Cars

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—(AP)—Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold Ickes today prohibited railroad delivery of automobile gasoline in 20 states in the middle west and southwest in a move to release an estimated 5,000 to 7,000 tank cars for supplying the east.

The state brought under the ban were Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Deputy Co-ordinator Ralph K. Davies said it "remains to be seen" whether rationing of petroleum would be made necessary in those states as a result of the order.

He added that the diversion of additional tank cars would not aid the east's gasoline-rationed motorists since the railroad cars would be used almost exclusively to build up fuel oil stocks against the coming winter.

CANUCK REGIMENTS, RANKS THINNED, REFORM IN ENGLISH CAMPS

By ROSS MUNRO

LONDON, Aug. 21 —(CP Cable)—Units of Canadian regiments, their ranks thinned in the costly action against the pebbled beaches and narrow streets of Dieppe, straggled back to camps in Britain today while Allied Command Chiefs studied the effect of giant combined operation on the general United Nations attack plans.

The official communique which said the Allied casualties were high termed the 8-to-9-hour sortie of Canadians with tanks and all the weapons of assault a "reconnaissance in force." It said the raid which resulted in the destruction of 91 German aircraft and the probable destruction or damage of double that number had a "vital part in our agreed offensive policy."

Two gun batteries and a radio location station were destroyed, two small vessels were sunk, heavy casualties were inflicted on the Germans and numerous prisoners were captured.

It was importtant in that, among other things, it demonstrated successfully the theory of co-ordination between the three services—sea, air and land.

It was important in that, among Germans one-third of their effective air strength on the western front, a circumstance that may force them

Beef Quota To US Full For Quarter

OTTAWA, August 21 — (CP). — Beef cattle producers to-day were guaranteed a "floor" under live cattle prices should they fall below the equivalent of the wholesale beef prices fixed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Announcing that the quota for export to the United States has been technically filled for the current quarter, the Wartime Food Corporation, Board agency said it would continue to purchase cattle as may be necessary to support the domestic market—guaranteeing, in effect, a minimum price for live cattle.

The corporation said that all export licences for cattle shipped under the terms of the United States-Canada trade agreement had been suspended until October 1, when the new quota period will open. It added that this was one of the conditions under which licences were granted to exporters as the American quota is considered filled when actual exports plus the number of cattle diverted to the domestic market make up the quarterly quota.

The corporation will now be sole exporter for the remainder of the quarter. Some purchases may be made by the corporation until the number of cattle specified under the quota has actually been exported in any one quarter.

Shortly afterwards he received a shrapnel wound in the leg and as he could not walk he was carried by his battling comrades to a captured pillbox.

There the soldier lay while the fortunes of war swayed across the pebble-dappled beaches and through Dieppe's narrow streets. He stayed until mid-afternoon, their job done, his men came back for him.

Willing hands lifted him and then ducking, scrambling and taking advantage of anything offering even the most meagre cover, the Western Canadian was carried to the shoreline, out into the sea by wading men and placed aboard the landing craft despite heavy enemy fire.

Doctors told of a Canadian private arriving at a dressing station in a pair of army shorts with a blanket wrapped around him. It was all he had after being picked out of the sea, but as they were fixing him up he stuck out his hand and said, "I've still got this anyway."

He clutched a sea-soaked but still intact snapshot of his wife.

Brigadier Wounded

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—(CP).—Brig. Sherwood Lett of Vancouver cabled his brother here today that he is "safe, wounded, not seriously," after the Commando foray against Dieppe Wednesday.

Pte. George Cruickshank of Ayr, a member of the Royal Highland Light Infantry of Hamilton, was killed in the Commando raid on Dieppe, his parents were advised last night, from Ottawa.

Some Queen's Own

WINNIPEG, Aug. 21—(CP)—Cables from Winnipeg officers serving with the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Canada told relatives here of their return to the United Kingdom after participating in the Commando raid on Dieppe.

Two officers, Maj. Norman Ross and Capt. Ross Campbell, were reported injured but both returned across the channel. Others who cabled word of safe return were Maj. Robert Thompson, Maj. A. T. Law, and Lieutenants A. Wilson, Eric Burman, E. E. McNaus and Norman Bergman.

Typical were Thompson's cable to his wife, "safe and sound," and Bergman's to his parents, "Everything fine."

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.—(Advt.)

ciated Press is proud indeed to carry this story throughout its service, adding as it does a striking chapter to the courageous and resourceful epic of correspondents covering the war on all fronts.

"Munro exemplifies the highest type of reportorial craftsmanship among men who—like AP's Larry Allen, Clark Lee and Yates McDaniel—have shared in writing some of the most brilliant chapters in war journalism."

In replying Mr. McNeil noted the Commando eye-witness story by the AP's Drew Middleton also was heavily played in Canadian and United States papers yesterday, and added: "Accept in turn our felicitations in Drew Middleton's graphic story. His name and Munro's will be added to the long honor role of war correspondents whom they match in heroism, loyalty and craftsmanship."

Editor and Publisher in New York, journalism's trade magazine, sought the text of Munro's story and his picture. The picture went out over the wirephoto network of the Associated Press.

Munro was on the air. Many Canadian radio stations put on a 15-minute dramatization of his eye-witness story. He spoke to Canada from London last night for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Allen Bill, managing editor of the Calgary Herald who was a fellow war correspondent with Munro in England for several months, cabled the CP correspondent: "Another swell job under Spitsbergen-Dieppe Munro's web belt."

D. B. Rogers, editor of the Regina Leader-Post who met Munro when he made a bomber trip to England last year, described his story as an "epic."

Robert Bunnelle, chief of the AP's London staff of top-flight correspondents, watched Munro batting out his story and called it "one of the best stories of the war."

And Munro's London boss, D. E. (Ernie) Burritt, bureau superintendent, was pleased. He said: "There may possibly be a more conscientious war reporter alive. But, if there is I don't want to meet him. He wouldn't be human."

"I would sure like to have another crack at them once I get better," he added.

RSM. Roger Strumm of Saskatoon, who went ashore with the South Saskatchewan Regiment, returned with a souvenir he will cherish the rest of his life.

It is a steel mirror he carried in a pocket over his heart. A deep dent in the mirror made by a jagged piece of flying shell splinter is grim proof that the smallest protection can sometimes save a man's life.

Strumm, who went unwounded through the First Great War, said simply, "I was lucky enough to get out this time."

He was wounded in the leg by shrapnel and was carried to safety by four soldiers who waded to their waists in order to place him in a boat.

Carried In By Four Nazis

Maj. F. S. Wilkinson, second in command of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, also was carried to a boat—by four German prisoners whom a junior officer rounded up.

The Hamilton major was wounded in the arm before he even landed, but insisted on going ashore and for five hours remained with his unit, sheltering on the beach behind the frail protection of a bren-gun carrier.

His wan face as he lay abed with banaged and bloodstained arm raised above the covers told of the agony he must have suffered.

Two members of the Fusiliers Mont Royal were amazed at the youth of the German prisoners who returned to England with them.

Driver Henri Malo, 21, of Montreal, whose leg was splattered by shrapnel, said most of the Germans he saw were no more than 16 or 17.

"They seemed glad to be with us," he said, explaining the fierce fighting of Dieppe was "too rough for them."

One youthful German wore a Canadian uniform across the Channel and Malo declared "he liked it very much."

Willing To Go Back

Malo was wounded early in the fight and apologized he "had no chance to do many things there" but promised "I'll go back again."

Bronzed Felix Hansen of St. Johns, Que., a private who said he "got a very rough time," crossed the Channel with German prisoners and told how one Nazi who died during the voyage was dropped overboard to "make more room for Canadians."

Malo, suffering shrapnel wounds honestly admitted he didn't "care for this" but said he would return to France when the time comes "because it is the duty."

Pte. George McChesney, Hamilton, Ont., had a broken arm and he, too, remarked on the youth of the prisoners.

"I was with one who was only 15 and he cried like a baby when I made him run across the open space to cover," he said.

The Canadians all spoke of heavy casualties and Pte. Charles Boomer of Brantford, Ont., a member of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, who was wounded in the leg half an hour before his unit left the French coast, said "I knew some of them wouldn't come back but I didn't think we would lose so many."

22 Writers With Commandos

LONDON, August 21 — (CP). — Twenty-two unarmed men whose job was to look, listen, and try to keep out of the way of bullets and bombs accompanied the Allies forces in the Dieppe raid just so they could tell the story to newspaper readers in words and pictures.

One of them, Larry Meier of the International News Service was a casualty. He incurred superficial wounds on the face and chest from shrapnel.

Two Canadians and an Englishman were the only correspondents.

Ross Munro of the Canadian Press was subjected to terrific fire from shore when his landing craft was beached.

Wallace Reyburn of the Montreal Standard spent 6½ hours ashore and finally had to swim off to be picked up by a torpedo boat.

A. B. Austin of the London Daily Herald accompanied Lord Lovat's Commando Command, which was the first to land.

Tarpaper Blaze

TORONTO, Aug. 21 (CP)—Firemen from all downtown and east end fire halls were called out today to battle a fierce fire that swept through the large tarpaper plant of the Barrett Company near the east Toronto waterfront. For a time there was danger that the entire oil storage belt along the waterfront might be set ablaze.

Lakehead Mills To Have Power

PORT ARTHUR August 21 — (CP).— Sufficient electrical energy is available at the Cameron Falls and Alexander power plants on the Nipigon River to operate lakehead pulp and paper mills to full capacity, but the question whether the newsprint business will be diverted from the East to permit them to work full time rests with the Dominion Power and Newsprint Controller, Dr. T. H. Hogg, Toronto, chairman and chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro-Electric System, said here.

Dr. Hogg is attending the annual convention of District No. 3 of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association which opened on Thursday.

Dr. Hogg said the matter of diverting paper and pulp business was not the concern of the Ontario Hydro although the Hydro was interested to the extent of supplying energy to operate plants.

The Ontario Paper Company, situated in the Niagara district, was the "point at issue" in the newsprint controversy, he said.

25 Cent Subsidy To Boost Milk

OTTAWA, August 21 —(CP) — The Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced today the payment, effective September 1, of a subsidy of 25c per hundred pounds to fluid milk producers in certain urban markets "where the present supply position indicates serious shortage might develop during the fall and winter months."

At the same time, adjustments in the retail price of milk were announced for Vancouver, Halifax and Montreal.

In Vancouver, an increase from 10 to 11 cents a quart for 3.5 per cent milk, authorized some time ago, will go into effect September 1. For Halifax and Montreal, an increase on September 1 of one-half cent per quart was announced by the board as necessary to completion of the reorganization of ceiling prices on fluid milk undertaken last Spring. The present price in these cities is 12 cents a quart.

Concurrently, the Board fixed minimum producer prices—on delivered basis—in all markets where the subsidy is payable. These specific prices represent an average increase of about 10 cents per hundred pounds, and the measures taken are designed by their combined effect to increase the returns of fluid milk producers by 35 cents. As result of this action, the Board said, it is hoped to encourage milk production in the areas affected so supplies adequate to meet the demand may be maintained next winter and throughout the following season.

OTTAWA, Aug. 21 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Thursday cabled Lt.-Gen. McNaughton, commander-in-chief of the Canadian Army Overseas, that the people of Canada shared with the Canadian troops raiding Dieppe "the satisfaction of their opportunity to strike telling blow at a Nazi stronghold."

"All Canada had been deeply stirred by the account of yesterday's raid on Dieppe," said Mr. King, adding that "we were proud to learn that Canadian troops had been given a foremost place in the operation."

Captive Canucks Outwit Guard All Make Escape

By WILLIAM STEWART

Somewhere in England, Aug. 21 — (CP)—The first French-Canadian troops to fight on French soil in this war entered an inferno matching anything their fathers saw in the first Great War and saw Germans kill comrades whom they had taken prisoner.

They were Les Fusiliers Mont Royal—Quebec Commandos trained for the big raid with the English-speaking Canadian units which also got their baptism of fire at Dieppe.

It was there, they said with narrowed eyes, that they saw a German party order twelve of their comrades whom they had taken prisoner to "about turn." Then, they said, the Germans shot the men in the back in cold blood.

There was a big broad-shouldered French-Canadian soldier—a private just stripped of sergeant's stripes—who found a wounded officer on the sand as his outfit was leaving, hoisted him over his shoulder and took him away.

The soldier was in his underpants.

The soldier, laughing as he told the story, also disclosed that he probably saved the lives of eleven other men.

He was with a small landing party whose job it was to get ashore and get into town to blow up Nazi boats hidden deep in the "Basin du Canad," which the French-Canadians call the "Basin du Canada."

There were eleven men in the party, but only four got to the basin because the mile between it and the beach was lined with pillboxes.

The handful of French-Canadians grew smaller and smaller as they knocked out one pillbox after another by tossing hand grenades through the firing ports.

The four who reached the basin sank what ships they could and damaged others.

Left In Underwear

"We thought we were doing well," the big soldier said, "but just then the Nazis got us."

The four, along with eight others they had bumped into, were surrounded by Nazis and marched into a courtyard, where they were stripped of everything except their underpants. Even their boots were removed.

Their captors left them standing in line in charge of one young Nazi, who covered them with a rifle.

The big French-Canadian glanced over his shoulder at the lone guard who was behind him, and asked if he spoke English. The German replied in English that he did to some extent.

"How about a glass of water?" the French-Canadian asked.

The Nazi lowered his rifle for one second, and in the next was at the bottom of a pile of one dozen French-Canadians, who sprang at the same time.

Some one hit the Nazi on the head with a length of pipe, and the French-Canadians departed in their underpants.

They raced barefoot through streets piled with dead Germans. "But for every one dead there were ten alive," the big soldier said.

"We made a dash for it, but I can't tell you how we finally got to the beach."

The group crouched amid the rocks at the edge of the cliff and waited for the re-embarkation order which they knew would bring a smoke screen through which they could cross the dangerous stretch of gravel below.

It was while they were running across the beach that the big soldier found the officer and carried him to safety.

They arrived home in a weird assortment of clothes—sweaters, tankmen's berets and naval togs.

Angler Captures His 11th Muskie

TWEED, August 21 — (ENS). — Ross Fetterley, Toronto angler, who has been spending his vacations at Stoco Lake for some years captured his eleventh muskie of the current season this week. He bested his previous record by taking out a 30-pounder this time. The largest of earlier triumphs was 28 pounds, with others tipping the scales at 20, 25, 18 pounds, etc. Fetterley was experimenting with a new lure near Trudeau's docks on the eastern shore of the lake, but when it did not function altogether satisfactorily, he hauled from his tackle-box the ever-reliable jitterbug. On his first cast, the big fellow took hold. To remove numerous paraphernalia lying at his feet, with a giant fighting fish at the other end of a silk line is no easy task but this accomplished, Ross settled down to a half hour's thrilling sport, the dream of all fishermen, and finally at nine o'clock, Ross saw him turn up, a couple of feet from the boat, and a well-aimed blow from a gaff-hook finished him.

Henry Lumley-Walker, Belleville a newcomer, was given a thrill when he captured an 18-pounder on Thursday evening, while using a crazy-crawler and a light split-bamboo bass rod when the muskie took hold at the mouth of the Stoco River.

$300 Raised At Rotary Carnival

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 21 (ENS)—Rotarians here raised an estimated $300.00 during their two-day Carnival held in the Front Street parking lot. The annual event was arranged by the club to raise money for the boys' work and crippled children's fund, both of which will indirectly help in the war effort. As entertainment the club offered the inevitable bingo as well as a variety of other games which attracted large crowds on both evenings. Members of the I.O.D.E. operated the refreshment booth and were equally well pleased with the returns which will soon be directed into one of the many channels in which the Bemersyde is assisting with the war effort. The carnival arranged by the executive headed by President P. C. Denyes and S. A. Maguire, M. B. Sayers, H. J. Taylor, R. J. Bale, R. Locke, Dr. E. A. Stuart, and every member of the club pitched in to help during the two evenings. A feature of the affair on Tuesday was the announcement of prize winners for the draw conducted by the Red Cross. There were five prizes: two quilts, an afghan, a silver dish and a cord of wood. Five tickets were drawn by Joan MacPherson, and the winners were allowed to select their own prize in the order of the drawing which resulted: 1, Mrs. E. Sykes, Campbellford; 2, Mrs. A. Theatre Owner Cooperates In Big Recruiting Drive At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 21 (ENS) When Lieut. C. I. Brook came to Campbellford to address a gathering with the hope of gathering recruits for Home Guard and C.W.A.C. units he had little thought of getting more than a dozen people in his audience. To his surprise, however, he found himself address a ready-made audience of more than 250. It happened this way. The advance publicity for his meeting, which was to have taken place in the Armouries, arrived too late for thorough coverage, and as a result when he and his party comprising a member of the C.W.A.C. and several Home Guard men reached the Armouries there were only three people on hand to hear what he had to say. Somebody suggested that he should postpone the meeting until ten o'clock and in the meantime go over to the local theatre and there make an announcement to this effect. This seemed like a good idea, so when he suggested it to Campbellford's cordial theatre manager, A. Rappaport, it was with but little hope of getting much response. The theatre manager had a better idea. "Why not make the address right here," he said. And that's just what the lieutenant did. He spoke for ¾ of an hour, and everybody stayed and listened as he outlined the need for 25,000 recruits—men up to 55 and girls fr the C.W.A.C. units to relieve physically fit men for combat duty. When he completed his talk more than a dozen girls were filling out application forms and half that many men were seeking enlistment. The response was so satisfactory that, thanks to the generous co-operation of the theatre proprietor, he plans to give a repeat on Friday evening.

Chinese Driver Fined $15 After Accident

COBOURG, August 21—(ENS) — Lou Singh, Chinese motorist of Montreal, was fined $15 and costs when found guilty by Magistrate W. Gee in police court here on a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident. Singh was arrested here earlier in the week by Chief W. J. Carey and it was stated that when arrested the Chinese had his car in a local garage trying to get the fender straightened out. Later he was identified by E. A. Haynes of Colborne as the driver who had struck his team and wagon and then left the scene of the accident. The charge was laid by Provincial Constable Douglas Wilson of Colborne.

Haynes testified yesterday that the car which struck his wagon, pulled in behind to avoid an oncoming car but was unable to stop and struck the wagon. Piling into the back of the wagon it broke the wagon reach and drove the racks up until it touched the backs of the horses. The other Chinese who were with the Chinese driver, got out of the car, straightened up the fender where it was bent over the wheel and drove off. Haynes got the license number and notified the police.

Singh told the court that he did not realize that the wagon or the horses had been damaged. The fender was straightened up and he drove off in the belief that no harm had been occasioned, stated the Chinese. Singh said that he thought the driver of the wagon had waved him on when he pulled away. Haynes testified that he was too busy holding the horses in check to wave at anybody.

Included in the costs of the court were small damages to the wagon and one of the horses.

Mock Assault Livens Montreal

MONTREAL, Aug. 21.—(CP)—Bursts and gunfire and simulated bomb explosions were heard from half a dozen points on the outskirts of Montreal Thursday, as a "relief force" tried to run supplies into the city through a ring of beseiging troops.

Navy, army and air force personnel combined in the operations, first joint manoeuvres to be held here.

The first official "communique" on the action said that "air, naval and ground forces which have advanced from our positions at Three Rivers and St. Hyacinthe within the past 48 hour are engaging the enemy forces on the outskirts of the city."

A heavy explosion in mid-morning was taken by the defenders of Montreal to mean that the beseiging forces had destroyed a bridge across the St. Lawrence as protection against the relieving forces. "Enemy" planes could be seen attempting to beat off the attacks of the R.C.A.F. fighter and bomber craft covering the advance of the relief army.

The rumble of fire from the waterfront indicated that naval forces were busy.

Information And Obligation

We are wholly in favor of the most rapid possible spreading of the latest and most reliable news of this war by means of newspapers and radio, but we wish that the man in the street would realize the obligation which this places upon him to be discreet and moderate in his judgments. War is an immensely complicated business; generalship is a perilous and thankless task; government involves titanic responsibilities: when we feel moved to criticize what is going on, let us bear these things in mind.

It is truly said that fools and children should never be allowed to see an incomplete piece of work. In this war not only fools and children, but the whole population, including a surprising number of self-important, opinionated people, are permitted to enjoy a blow-by-blow account of what is going on; this privilege carries with it a duty not to make judgments hastily or upon incomplete information. Too much talk by the armchair generals and the beverage-room brigadiers can be harmful to public morale.

Recent events will serve to illustrate the point. Because there has been a meeting at Moscow there is talk to the effect that a second front has been assured in 1942. Nothing in the news supports this view, but there is a lot of talk about it, and if the second front is not established many people—quite unreasonably—will feel disappointed and let down. Sir Harold Alexander has succeeded Sir Claude Auchinleck as commander in the Middle East, and a talkative section of the public says that is because Auchinleck has failed; such talk does an injustice to a fine soldier whose name will undoubtedly turn up in the news again. An extensive raid has been made on the French coast, and there is talk that it is the first of many more, and that it is the beginning of a complicated invasion strategy. Who knows these things? Certainly not those who talk most about them.

Any veteran of the last war will tell us that scores of raids, some of them very extensive, were made for a wide variety of reasons, and that any attempt to attach significance to them by a civilian or a soldier in the line would have been wasted. As a matter of fact, civilians did not discuss them then because they did not know about them. Nowadays we know of every raid and every small air engagement, but we are still wasting our time in trying to figure out their significance.

• • •

Wasting our time and perhaps doing damage. We should not subject our military leaders to a close but uninformed scrutiny. Wellington was not harried by civilian criticism before Waterloo because civilians could know nothing of what he was doing. Nowadays, with our new and superior means of gaining information we should develop a new and superior kind of discretion and common sense. Too much uninformed talk and guess-work about the war is harmful. Our first job is to work hard at our tasks and so help to win the war; we may watch it in our spare time, but we should refrain from talking about its progress too knowingly.

Beer At Hong Kong

We publish elsewhere on this page a letter from a man who was at Hong Kong while the Japanese were storming and taking that stronghold, and who subsequently escaped; he is now in Canada, and we think that he has every right to be heard on the subject of beer and our troops in the East. He writes with commendable moderation, but he makes his point none the less clearly because of that.

What he has to say about the necessity of some drinkable fluid for men who are suffering privation is entirely just, and may apply not only to the men at Hong Kong, but to those in the Middle East as well, whose only available water comes from tanks and oases; anyone who has been in the East knows that this muck is not water as we understand it.

What our correspondent says does not apply to Canada, however. We have published many letters from people who would like to see the sale of alcoholic drinks restricted or forbidden altogether in this country and some moves in this direction have already been made. But on the subject of beer for troops in the East we think that our correspondent has said the last word.

Don't Wet The Walk!

Green lawns are noble ornaments to any city street, and they are easy to prepare and to keep. Not every man can grow flowers; few of us can control or modify the vagaries of taste which are revealed in the architecture of our homes. But we can all help to preserve that lovely expanse of green which sweeps, almost unbroken, up every residential street. A weekly trimming and a little watering are all that are necessary to encourage the restful sward.

But a number of householders, in their zeal to keep the grass green, throw gallons of water over the sidewalks. The unhappy pedestrian runs a gauntlet of squirts, whizzers, whirling sprays and water guns as he passes through the streets; ingenious devices of all kinds are so trained upon the walks that he must either step into the road or take a ducking.

There is no sense in wasting water thus. Because we have a fine water supply let us not drain it away by spattering the streets needlessly. Why not put the spray where it will wet almost to the edge of the walk, but not on it? The city does a good job of sluicing the streets. Keep your water for the lawns. Most pedestrians can get a bath at home.

Alexander To Alexandria

There will be general satisfaction that Sir Harold Alexander has been chosen to take over supreme command of the United Nations forces in Egypt. The change, by the way, must not be taken to indicate a lack of confidence in Sir Claude Auchinleck; it may be that he is wanted elsewhere, and it may be that we hope to confuse Rommel by switching adversaries on him. Alexander will certainly not use Auchinleck's methods, and this may upset the German commander's plans, which he has certainly been maturing during the lull in hostilities.

Alexander had a brilliant career in the first Great War, and in this war he has distinguished himself in difficult but unrewarding actions. He was the man who guided the great retreat to Dunkirk, fighting every inch of the way, and the evacuation from that position; the tale of his own conduct during that bitter period is heroic in the cool and collected manner. The retreat from Burma was in his hands, and that difficult action he brought off with all possible success.

But Alexander is not an habitual retreater. "Attack" is his watchword. He is one of our most resourceful, tough, determined leaders. What he has in store for Rommel only time will tell, but we are confident of Alexander's quality.

A Link With Wellington

Major Lloyd George, Britain's Minister of Fuel, and son of the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, had occasion to reply to a tribute to his father recently, and in the course of his speech he said: "I was thinking only the other day that he was in the House of Commons with a man who was in the Government of the first Duke of Wellington."

The man referred to was Mr. Gladstone, who was M.P. for Midlothian when Lloyd George first entered the House in 1890; in 1834 the Iron Duke took over the Administration for three weeks, pending the return of Sir Robert Peel from Italy, and at that time Gladstone was Under-Secretary for War and Colonies and Junior Lord of the Treasury. He was just twenty-three years old; in those days men were judged on ability, and not on years; politicians in their forties were not considered young men.

The pride with which his son thus establishes Lloyd George's political tradition and his link with the great past is typically British, and even more typically Welsh, for they more than any other of the British peoples delight in such matters. Nor is such tradition to be lightly set aside, for as G. K. Chesterton has pointed out tradition does not necessarily mean that the dead control the living, but that the dead are yet alive. Certainly we have need of anything of the spirit of Wellington that we can muster today.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Clark Gable is in the Army; Rudy Vallee is in the coast-guard; Walter Winchell is in the Navy. Can Roosevelt relax now?

Some economic experts are predicting a serious depression in 1948. Unless we keep humping there will be an even more serious depression in 1943.

Farming News and Views

HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

HESSIAN FLY has been found attacking fall wheat further north than usual—cases of it being found a hundred miles north of Toronto. Wherever damage has been done by this fly care should be taken to control it. Hessian flies emerge as fully fledged flies about the last week in August or first week of September. The adult flies live but a few days and during this time the females each lay from 150 to 300 eggs, depositing them on the green leaves of the growing wheat. The eggs hatch in from 3 to 7 days and the young maggots work down between the sheath leaf and the stem of the wheat and feed on the crown of the plant which turns the leaves yellow and many of the plants die. In about four weeks the maggots change to a hardened form much like flax seeds. In this form they pass the winter, pupate in the spring, with the first warm weather, and a new set of grubs attack the wheat either at the crown or at one of the joints. These maggots then reach maturity in about four weeks. They remain in the stubble in the flax seed-like stage and emerge as flies about the last week in August. It will be seen that they make two attacks on the wheat in one year.

The first thing to do in combatting the Hessian fly is to plow fall wheat stubble fairly deep as soon as the grain is harvested, then harrow, and pack the ground firmly, so as to completely bury the "flaxseeds" from which the flies would later emerge, and thus get rid of them. The next plan is to delay seeding of fall wheat until after the first week in September so there will be no wheat leaves on which they can deposit their eggs. The field being prepared for wheat should be kept black and no volunteer wheat should be allowed to grow green in it. Also, where wheat stubble is plowed, no green blades should be allowed to come through the ground even though a light plowing is needed to keep the field black. If the stubble is plowed quite deep there will be little danger of this happening.

Concerted action in a neighborhood is necessary to make the control effective. Hessian flies do not travel great distances but often go from farm to farm. The fly is only about ¼ inch long but, for its size, it can be very destructive. It works mostly in fall wheat, but has been known to deposit eggs on spring wheat, barley and rye, though the destruction of fall wheat seems to be its great objective. In a single state of the U. S. this insect is estimated to have caused a loss of over 12,000,000 bushels in one year. If the Hessian fly is near you delay your seeding without fail until after the fly-free date. If you have had some damage from Hessian fly in this year's crop, plow your wheat stubble as soon as you can get on it. Fighting this crop enemy will brook no delay.

AS WE improve our pasture and hay we should endeavor to grow grasses and clovers of finer quality. Ontario variegated alfalfa has given good crops of both seed and fodder but the plant has coarse stalks which reduces its feeding qualities and digestibility, and the sooner we take steps to produce a finer quality of alfalfa the better this forage plant will serve our farmers. A pure strain of Grimm alfalfa will produce a much finer quality of fodder than the variegated. We are not nearly carefully enough in our purchase of grass seeds of all kinds. For some reason or other farmers are slow to realize that the same importance should be attached to the selection of seed as we attach to the selection of livestock for breeding purposes.

The latest food product to be shipped from United States to Britain is dehydrated meat. Only a trial shipment has yet been made but it has aroused a good deal of attention both as to its present value and whether or not it may be continued after the war. It is shipped in the form of cakes and will break up into small pieces quite easily. People who have been sampling it pronounce it quite agreeable to the taste.

As the meat is reduced, by dehydration, in bulk by 65 per cent, and in weight by 70 per cent, there can be no doubt about the saving in space and tonnage in shipment and it may prove a useful product during the war. With respect to the future of such a process it is very doubtful if meat in this form will be a very serious competitor with juicy steaks, Scotch short sides or the roast beef of Old England. Even for use in wartime this product has not yet been pronounced satisfactory as it is in the first experimental stage. Vegetables and apples have frequently been dehydrated and have proved useful but not very appetizing. A good deal of beef has to be shipped long distances to the war zones and this new product may find a place in the economy of things.

THERE has arisen in England, during the last three months, a greatly increased demand for heifer calves which give some promise of growing into useful cows for the dairy. A health campaign for dairy herds has been on in Britain for some little time, the object being to prolong the usefulness of dairy cows, and this buying up of heifer calves is for the purpose of furnishing home bred heifers to replenish the herds.

WORD comes from different districts that there is very little Sunday work in the fields. This is as it should be—"Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work"—is a very good rule for farmers to follow. Cows have to be milked and fed seven days a week, and there are enough "chores" that cannot be escaped on any days, but one day in seven is little enough to have cessation of heavy manual labor, and farm hands will, and should be able to, claim one day off in the week. There are also sound reasons, based upon higher considerations, for avoiding Sunday labor.

I visit the Toronto stockyards occasionally and was over on August 11 and found the most peculiar condition ever seen there. Cattle were being marketed at prices in keeping with the price ceiling, then they were valued for export and the Governmnt must pay the difference. I was told that two transactions were included and two commissions paid. I was then told, upon excellent authority, that the cattle valued for export, though not exported, are to count in the quota. I cannot believe that the American authorities are demanding to have these counted in the quota, and if our Wartime Prices and Trade Board is doing this, then the cattle breeders must demand "hands off" on the part of this body. If the cattle raisers do not do that they need not be surprised at anything happening.

ANOTHER SPINNER WHO KNOWS HIS STUFF

Rangers Just the Vanguard

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

THE seeming certainty that both the raid on Dieppe and the Solomon Islands advance were mere samples of blows-to-come emphasized the reassuring vigor with which American forces are being whipped into shape for 1942-43 style offensive warfare.

The Rangers who received their baptism of fire with Canadian, British and French comrades-in-arms at Dieppe will teach their tactics to still more American fighting men, says Under-Secretary Robert P. Patterson of the War Department.

Such post-graduate instruction is established and proved practice. Already United States Army tank men are passing on to the armored forces at home the benefit of first-hand experience with British forces in the North African desert. Pilots back from the Southwest Pacific are teaching front-line air war tactics to neophyte fliers.

Almost every offensive possibility open to the United Nations outside of Russia calls for teamwork between ground, air and sea forces on an unprecedented scale, it is now apparent.

INTENSIVE TRAINING

For the combined aerial and amphibian operations demanded for victory American men-in-arms are being trained as intensively as were the Nazis and Japanese in advance of their conquests, and very likely in greater numbers.

Just what is being undertaken and accomplished has been disclosed only guardedly and piecemeal thus far. The Rangers were not heard of until they actually went into action at Dieppe. They are a relatively small vanguard of the American version of the Commandos.

Incidentally, both the U.S. Army and Marines hopes to win acceptance of other popular names for their crack outfits, leaving the term "Commando" to the British Empire.

A new unit of combat engineers being trained in the Pacific Northwest is known as the American Pioneers. Ultimately there will be a suitable nickname for the newly organized Special Service Command, which includes a contingent of Canadians and is to be made up entirely of hand-picked commissioned and non-commissioned officers.

The preparation for second fronts in Europe and the Pacific have many and confusing ramifications. There is an amphibian command of the army ground forces, and a special amphibian command of engineer troops recruited from men skilled in handling small craft of all kinds.

A new army air-borne command, which includes paratroopers and an initial force of two entire divisions to be sped to scenes of action by transport plane and glider, operates with a troop-carrying command of the air forces.

Fighting on both land and sea is, of course, the very nature of the United States Marine Corps, whose prowess is being displayed in dislodging the Japanese invaders from the Solomon Islands.

It is easy to share the confidence of American fighting men that before the conflict is much older they will make telling and distinctive contributions to the Commando methods of warfare.

Washington Spotlight

By J. F. SANDERSON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 —(CP)—There is a minor fight developing in Washington between Donald M. Nelson, head of the war production board, and Lt.-Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, head of the army department of supply.

It concerns the fundamental question of civilian or military control of raw materials and production but it is too early yet to declare a winner. In the long run, President Roosevelt probably will make a choice.

DR. OF FACTS MOVES IN

Bernard M. Baruch, originally a Wall Street speculator who took charge of armament production in the dark days of 1918 and created order out of chaos, has moved in on Washington again. "Doctor of Facts," as President Wilson called him, heads a three man board to investigate the confused and muddled rubber situation in the United States.

Baruch is one of those curious men who doesn't need a desk or secretary or filing cabinet. He carries the facts in his head and he carries a lot of them.

You can find him practically any day on a bench in Lafayette Park, across Pennsylvania avenue from the White House, or in his room in the Carleton Hotel where a steady stream of high officials go to him for counsel and advice on the economic and financial side of the war.

The American people have learned to rely on the advice of this 72-year-old white-haired man who finally has come back into the limelight. His report on rubber is awaited anxiously and if it means the end of all pleasure driving, as many people expect, the mere fact that his name is attached to it should hasten its public acceptance.

CUBAN NICKEL

Canadian officials in Washington do not seem to be disturbed by the threat of competition from Cuba to Canada's world monopoly of nickel. The United States government has appropriated $20,000,000 for the development of the Nicaro ore reserves in Oriente province at the eastern end of Cuba and 2,000 engineers and laborers are preparing foundations for a plant.

With supplies from New Caledonia shut off, Canada is the only source of nickel for the war machines of the United States and Britain and, despite every effort, the mines at Copper Cliff in Northern Ontario cannot meet the demands.

According to Canadian officials here, the Cuban ore, although extensive, is low-grade and its development at this time is only a desperate attempt to increase production for the United Nations, irrespective of cost or effort. These officials do not believe the Nicaro project will be able to compete with Canadian nickel in post-war world unless heavily subsidized.

OUR BEST PUBLICITY

Some of the best, if not the best, publicity Canada earns in the United States is through the documentary films of the National Film Board at Ottawa, particularly its series on the world at war. Released once a month, they are regarded generally as the finest documentary films on the market and are distributed in hundreds of American theatres.

Each film seems to contain exactly the right amount of Canadian publicity, not enough to be stamped as propaganda but enough to hammer home the idea that Canada is a major factor in the war.

John Grierson, director of the film board, has turned down many tempting offers from Hollywood. If that does not make him unique, he heads a government agency that actually makes a profit on its operations, turning money into the treasury instead of regarding it as a bottomless pit.

A Bible Message For Today

Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God.

Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her inquity is pardoned: for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins.

The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness. Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God.

Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain:

And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.

Letter To The Editor

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—After my escape from Hong Kong and upon my arrival in Canada I was astonished to find that the clerical groups severely criticize those who had provided our soldiers in the Near and Far East with a limited amount of beer. It never occurred to us, while we were under the fire by the Japanese, that our people at home were waging a battle to prevent us from having something that we not only wanted, but also sorely needed.

It is all very well to argue the merits of temperance when you have a clean, wholesome supply of water at hand, but it is quite another matter when your water supply is cut off, with nothing to drink except the vilest and the filthiest brackish water, which is unfit for consumption. No one who has not been through such extremities can possibly appreciate what our ration of beer meant to us. Ask any soldier and he will give you the reasons in terms and in language that cannot be misunderstood. I think it will be conceded that the man in the field is really the competent judge. Even if it were only a whim and not a real necessity it still follows that the soldier is entitled to the simple pleasures and the good he obtains from a clean, wholesome bottle of beer.

Those who are in doubt have the means of determining the truth very easily. Let them join up for service in the hot countries at temperatures of 120 degrees and higher, and they will soon discover why the Canadian fighting man is really entitled to have his beer under fire. Ask the next soldier that you meet and he will give you the right answer.

Less smugness and a greater regard for the practical facts would be a big help.

Wages In Wartime Britain

The widely prevalent impression that runaway rises in earnings have been common is mistaken. In general wage advances have been very moderate, when allowance is made for overtime work and the increased speed of piecework output under war conditions. If the trade unions had seriously tried to make full use of their bargaining power, there would be a very different tale to tell. As matters stood in January, the trouble was not that average earnings were high, but that the distribution was very uneven—a fact which the use of averages necessarily conceals. The tales about skilled workmen who find their novice daughters earning more than themselves are no doubt true; but they represent only a tiny fraction of the total. The wage-system is in a good deal of a muddle; but there are quite as many cases of low as of high payments.—New Statesman and Nation (London).

Helping To Keep Them Flying

Women of Canada are shouldering more and more of the burden of the war effort. Working in offices, in war industries and serving in the auxiliary active forces is only the beginning for them. They are now volunteering as members of ground-crews at flying schools, where they check and service aircraft. Shown ABOVE at No. 8 Air Observer School, Ancienne Lorette, P.Q., operated by Quebec Airways (Observers), Ltd., and one of seven such schools across Canada, sponsored by Canadian Pacific Air Lines, Limited, on a non-profit basis, are, LEFT to RIGHT: Miss Jeannine Beauchamp, Miss Alice Parry, Miss Cecile Noel and Miss Mabel Robertson, of Quebec City. Equipment used also indicates where Canada's scrap rubber goes.

See Drastic Step To Save Tires

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—(AP).—The three-man investigation of the rubber situation was reported today to have been inquiring into legal aspects covering possible drastic steps to conserve tires.

Bernard Barauch, chairman of the committee appointed by President Roosevelt two weeks ago, confered recently with Attorney-General Biddle and the latter's top legal aide, A. Cox, Assistant Solicitor General.

Among the basic questions which some observers believe were discussed by the special committee and Justice Department officiails were:

1. How far President Roosevelt could go using his war powers as President, and how far he might go using his authority as Commander-in-Chief.

2. The possible need for new legislation, or executive orders.

These questions were believed to have arisen in connection with theoretical proposals such as national speed limits for all rubber tired vehicles, requisitioning of automobiles or of tires, limitations on use of automobiles and redistribution of available rubber-tired equipment so as most efficiently to serve war needs.

Dieppe Dunkirk in Reverse With R.A.F. Air Umbrella

By GLENN BABB,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

We have had our preview of the second front. Wednesday forces of Western United Nations, Canada Britain, the United States and the Fighting French, broke into the defences of Nazi and at Dieppe, maintained thmselves for nine hours on the soil of Hitler's New Europe and returned to base on schedule.

For the first time an Allied landing on the Continent has been carried out under the conditions that will obtain when the Commandos are followed by the great transport fleets filled with the army of Europe's liberation.

Goebbels' propaganda machine, trying to convince the Germans and their slave peoples that Dieppe was the real thing and that it failed disastrously, pictured a mythical transport fleet lying offshore in the Channel mists yesterday. But that was ony a figment of the Goebbels imagination; when it becomes reality the Nazis will have to invent new myths to explain the opening of a new and dreaded phase of the war.

This preview of the second front is at once an inspiration and a warning of the cost of the grim task that must be undertaken and carried through. The United Nations have done what Hitler has never dared attempt—even when Britain reeled almost helpless after Dunkirk—they have crossed the Channel and landed with all the weapons of invasion on the enemy coast.

Dieppe was Dunkirk in reverse, with a mighty canopy of planes covering an offensive operation, not a retreat. It showed vividly how greatly the war situation has changed since the black days of June, 1940, for not even the dangerous position of the Russians in the Caucasus or the retreat to Suez can obscure the growing accumulation of evidence that the initiative is passing from Hitler's hands to the forces bent on his destruction.

Canadian army troops have fought on the Continent for the first time since 1918. This landing, of course, was under far different conditions from those under which the stream of Canadians flowed through friendly ports when nearly all France was a beachhead for the Allies.

This time the re-establisment of the Continental beachhead is a necessary preliminary to a march to the Rhine and beyond. Dieppe was the dress rehersal for that vast and costly operation.

Yesterday's landing was admittedly costly. The Canadian people, whose sons formed the bulk of the landing forces—grimly welcoming the chance after two years of waiting and preparation—have been warned by the Dominion Government to expect heavy casualties. Nearly 100 Allied fighter planes were lost, with at least 68 pilots, a heavy toll even though offset by at least equally heavy German losses, which some experts estimated accounted for a third of the Nazi air power in the Western coastal zone of operations.

The layman may ask for the justification of this expenditure of life and costly weapons. It is simply that so tremendously important an operation as the invasion of Naziland can not be undertaken without every bit of knowledge and experience that can be gathered—knowledge of the enemy's permanent fortifications and tactical dispositions and plans, experience of what the enterprise requires in the way of weapons, manpower and training.

The Dieppe raid was invaluable in its contribution to the Allies' fund of military wisdom. It tested their ability to land in daylight on a hostile shore, to maintain themselves throughout a day of bitter fighting on a hotly-contested beachhead and, most important of all, they proved the ability of their air forces to maintain over the narrow seas the powerful cover of fighter planes without which the invasion will be impossible.

Offer 16 Cities Help In Defence

TORONTO, August 21—(CP) — Civilian Defence organizations in 16 Ontario cities will be recognized and assisted with funds and equipment providing such organizations are established by the local authorities, Attorney-General Gordon Conant announced yesterday.

This step is taken and approved by the Ontario Civilian Defence Committee, Mr. Conant said, because of their importance as centres where war industries are located and "because the general situation is becoming more serious."

"I am of the opinion we will have to extend civilian defence to every centre of any importance in the province just as far as our facilities and organization will permit," he said.

Costly Lessons Taught by Hun to Benefit Paratroops

OTTAWA, August 21.—The awful lesson taught by the Huns, when their parachute troops fluttered down on the Isle of Crete by the thousands from transport planes to seize this strategic spot, will bear rich benefits for the Allied Nations when Canadian parachute troops to be trained at Fort Benning, Georgia, go into action.

Every trick, every manoeuvre of the German paratroops will be improved upon in the training of the Canadian air borne troops.

They will learn how to drop behind the enemy lines, assemble in orderly array as a powerful fighting force, then seize strategic enemy strongholds or harry the opposition forces from the rear.

It is a job for fearless fighting men, and Canada is calling on the bravest of her trained soldiers to volunteer for service in the Parachute Unit. The first detachment assembled in Ottawa at Lansdowne Park preparatory to going south.

Upon completion of their training, they will return to Canada as instructors at the parachute training centre to be opened at Camp Shilo, Man.

Men trained in British parachute schools will also be assigned to the Canadian paratroop training unit so that Canada will be able to utilize the best features of the British and American methods. Of interest, therefore, is the system in use by the Germans in the training and operation of their parachute units.

German Method

The Germans classify their airborne troops as parachutists and air landing troops. Parachutists are those dropped from an aircraft by parachute. And air landing troops are carried in power aircraft and gliders. They are not dropped, but are landed with their 'planes.

In the middle of 1940 it was estimated that Germany had a minimum of 5,000 trained parachutists. This number has been considerably increased.

At first, all parachutists were volunteers. This is not now the case.

The parachutist must be independent. He is trained to use his initiative whether working alone or in a number. The general idea is that they must continue to be on the offensive regardless of local conditions.

Parachutists are trained at certain schools in Germany. At these schools they are trained in actual jumping from aircraft only. After four weeks at the schools they graduate to parachute units.

With the unit he has been posted to, the parachutist is given a two or three month course of intensive training in his operational role. He is taught to use the weapons he may need or may be called upon to operate.

On the ground, the parachutist may be considered to be a brother to the infantryman. He is trained to handle a rifle, automatic pistol, tommy gun, light, medium and heavy machine-guns, light artillery pieces and mortars.

In Germany certain specialists are trained in demolition work, and others receive training to equip them as spies.

Well Equipped

The parachutist wears a special light metal helmet. His trousers are similar to the Canadian skiing pants, and a pair of waterproof overalls in the typical German olive green is worn over the uniform.

He wears rubber-soled boots with slide fasteners. His hand are protected by padded gauntlets. He has knee pads and foot and ankle bandages.

For his personal protection the parachutist carries a respirator, pistol, two hand grenades, two smoke bombs and a knife. His comfort and subsistence are provided for, he has a wallet containing food, a flask of rum, an electric torch and a field dressing.

Air borne troops, both parachutists and air landing troops, are unable to carry large supplies or amounts of ammunition with them. Supplies are unlikely to last for more than a week unless they are augmented in some way.

The general German method of dropping personnel and stores seems to consist of the using of various colored parachutes. In Greece, according to one report, white 'chutes were used in the dropping of the troops, while stores were lowered in grey, black and red.

Some of the parachutists carried flags which were immediately unrolled and displayed to their fellow-fighters in the air. This, of course, identified them, and the flags were used to drape captured vehicles.

Equipment carried with the parachutist and dropped for him has varied in different campaigns. The general idea, however, is not varied greatly.

Many Jobs To Do.

The German parachutist has many jobs to do. The general interruption of communication systems and transportation facilities is one of the most important. General sabotage is carried out by them. And they often attempt to direct bombers to targets by pre-arranged plan, such as making markings on the ground.

The parachutist is often used as an agent for the spreading of false rumors. The breakdown of morale of morale of the civilian populations is one of their objects. They try to seize and hold small localities and features such as airdromes.

Because they are usually dropped from low altitudes, usually 300 to 400 feet, they reach the ground quickly. They leave the aircraft in rapid succession and fairly large numbers may be dropped on an area in a short space of time.

Air Landing Troops

Unlike the parachutist, the air landing troop stays with his powered aircraft or glider until it has come to rest on the ground.

Every infantryman in the German army is considered to be a potential air landing troop. The training is comparatively simple. Soldiers are quickly trained to emplane and deplane. Many German units have been moved by air.

Airdromes are not a necessity even for the landing of air borne troops. A clear space 600 feet square, flat and free from obstacles, will do.

One of the most important follow up operations after the landing of either paratroops or air landing troops is the achievement of an adequate system of supply for them. Armored fighting vehicles and artillery are considered to be necessary for their support.

The Canadian paratroops will be more than a match for the Huns, however, when they take to the skies.

Censors OK Nips Conviction Fear

OTTAWA, Aug. 21—(CP)—The censor's stamp of approval on material in radio broadcasts, newspapers, periodicals, books and moving pictures is officially recognized as a proof against conviction for an infringement of the Defence of Canada Regulations under an amendment to the regulations published today in an extra edition of the Canada Gazette.

A spokesman in the office of the Director of Censorship said that in practice the order makes no change in the position of publishers. He said suit has never been started against a publication when the material in question had been approved for publication.

The amendment to the regulations consists of a new section—63A—as follows:

63A (1) No person charged with an offence under these regulations by reason of his having published any matter in any broadcast, in any newspaper, periodical or book or in any moving picture film shall be convicted under the said regulations if it appears that the matter complained of has been passed for publication by any of the chief censors of publications or any person having authority to act on their behalf.

(2) In any proceeding under these regulations a certificate purporting to be signed by one of the chief censors of publications that any matter therein set out or described was or was not passed for publication by them or by any person authorized to act on their behalf shall without proof of the signature be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated.

Bob Adams Out For Rest Of 1942

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Aug. 21.—(AP) Second Baseman Bobby Adams will no more baseball this year with Syracuse Chiefs, battling to finish in the International League's first division.

Adams' physician said today a knee injury suffered in a recent collision with Outfielder Goody Rosen would keep the infielder from Stockton, Cal., out of action.

Adams collided with Rosen while going after a looper by Johnny Wyrostek of Toronto Maple Leafs which went for a double in the first game of a doubleheader, Aug. 2. His injury then was diagnosed as torn ligaments and it was thought he would be back in action in another two weeks.

There was no bowling last night—the weather man took care of that.

Over at Hastings on Wednesday afternoon Nels Routly and R. F. Downey won first place in the doubles tournament. They received War Savings Stamps. We are indebted to Mrs. H. Young for the following lines. They are both timely and helpful.

Don't complain about the green—your opponent has no better one.

Don't chase your bowl down the green—its destiny is already fixed.

Don't bother your skip with advice—wait until he asks for it.

Don't be over boastful about your bowling—your "bump" is coming.

Don't fail to applaud a good shot—we all relish praise.

Don't talk about your "next victim until you are nine up coming home.

Don't think you know it all—those who have been bowling for years are always learning.

Don't forget that you are a gentleman—under all circumstances.

And just while we're on this "don't" business. Don't forget the men's rink tournament for this evening—7.30 p.m. is the starting hour. Phone your name in early.

Some Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 21 — (CP). — Gordon Richards, many-times jockey king, rode the strangest double in the history of British racing at Salisbury. It won exactly nothing for those who wagered on the two horses, either singly or as a double.

Richards ran Fleur de Lys to victory in the Yeovil Stakes. He could not have lost unless the mount fell dead or jumped the fence because it was the only horse in the race. The other entries just didn't show up. That's called a 'walk-over" and pays nothing to betters.

Thirty minutes later Richards rode Probation which ran a dead heat with the outsider Towkay in the Arlington Handicap. Since Probation was an even-money bet with the bookmakers a win wager on the dead-heater cancelled itself out.

Betters who placed their wager with the track totaliser instead of the bookies actually lost because the "tote" win dividend was returned at 42 cents for every 50 cents invested.

The "walk-over" was the first in Britain since war began.

They played a "Test" cricket match at a prison camp deep in Germany while Nazi guards stood about with guns at the ready in case any of the participants didn't stop running.

A letter received here from one of the players said the match, Australia vs. England, was played on a concrete pitch laid down by the prisoners.

"The game had all the attributes of a Test match, and had quite an international flavor, even to both teams wearing sweaters with monograms representing their countries," the writer said.

Incidentally, England won by 53 runs on the first inning.

They favor the Canadian game of ice hockey so much in Scotland that they play it most of the summer before large crowds. As proof a tilt between a Royal Canadian Horse Artillery team and a Scottish select club at Dunfermline ended in a 6-4 victory for the Scots.

Held throughout most of the struggle, the Scots scored three times in succession in the early part of the final period for their victory margin. The Canadians could tally only once after being tied 3-3 at the end of the second period.

Artillery marksmen were Gunner R. Griffis of Montreal, defenceman who scored twice; Sgt.-Major Jack Belwa of Kingston, Ont., and Sergt. C. Turner of St. Catharines, Ont., each with one.

Market Wise Out With Bad Knee

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y., Aug. 21—(AP).—Market Wise, arch-rival of champion Whirlaway, and one of the nation's "name horses," will do no more racing this year, according to present plans. So said Trainer George Washington Carroll between races here yesterday afternoon.

Carroll said Market Wise has been recuperating from a wrenched right front knee, which probably occurred in the colt's stall after he beat Whirlaway in the Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park on Memorial Day. Carroll says Lou Tufano's bargain colt is not lame or sore now, but he thinks the horse deserves a good rest. Market Wise will be pointed for Hialeah Park's Widener Handicap should everything go well for the Florida turf season.

Carroll will take Market Wise back to Jamaica from here Saturday and plans on starting for Florida about November 1.

Mettlesome Nips Volante 'Cap By 2 Lengths

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Mettlesome, who recently ran a dead heat with Harvard Square in the fastest six-furlongs time of the Saratoga meeting, equalled that mark yesterday when he won the Volante Purse in 1:11 4-5 over the Spa track.

He finished two lengths ahead of Fairaris, English-bred entry from R. S. McLaughlin's Oshawa, Ont., stable.

Although rated only second choice in the betting by the crowd of 8,235, Mettelsome, four-year-old high-strung gelding was easily the best in a field of "comeback" runners. For Fairaris it was the first race since June 10 at Aqueduct.

Third money went to Royce Martin's Our Boots, away from the races since Belmont's Suburban Handicap on Memorial Day. Chasing them home were Wheatley Stable's Bold Irishman, who recently made his season's debut, and Warren Wright's 1941 Belmont Futurity winner, Some Chance, who had not started since July 2.

Mettelsome was always the aggressor in the Volante. From a good start "Robby" steadied him on to his stride as Arcaro hustled Our Boots to the top about a length before him. Moving into the far turn, Mettlesome began curving to Our Boots on the outside as Fairaris joined them.

In the run around the sweep of the stretch bend, the face was decided, Our Boots being first to falter, and Mettelsome outrunning the Canadian-owned three-year-old as they were straightened up for the run through the front path.

Fairaris dug in gamely as Schmidl showered down on him, but from the eighth pole home was forced to yield steadily. Our Boots was a limber third, Bold Irishman closed steadily.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Another great softball battle is expected tonight when Plazas and Royals clash at Riverside Park in the second game of the best four-of-seven City League series. Plazas have a slight edge on the final round by grabbing off the opener 5 to 2 but it is a long series and Royals can make it all even by a win tonight. Manager Parnell's crew played fine ball defensively the other night and the only thing that beat them was their failure to hit in the clutches. They will certainly give all they have to take tonight's tussle and sew up the series. The Plazas, however, hope to win the round and to take it as rapidly as possible in order to get a breather before the Oshawa playoffs which begin here a week from Saturday. The result of tonight's tilt will have a decidedly important bearing on the final series and for that reason both outfits will battle all the way to take the verdict. The pitching choices look like Dave Wilson for Plazas and Bill Fraser for the Royals and the two should stage a merry duel. The game will start sharp at 6.45 o'clock and officials and players are warned to be on hand on time.

That Girls' Softball League title is still hanging in the balance. Westclox and Generals made an attempt last night to make some progress toward settling the argument but then the rains came and the tilt was washed out in the first half of the second inning with the score tied 3-3 and the Generals with two on the bases and one out. The Electricians got away to a good start in the first half of the first when Phyllis Bigelow singled through short with two out and Eleanor Craig boomed a homer to centre. A brief shower held up proceedings for a few minutes at this stage and then the game was resumed. Westclox got three in their half on a walk, a single by Eunice Armstrong, a double by Marg Hawthorne and two errors. Just as Generals had scored a run in the second innings with one out and had two on the bases the clouds really opened and all chance of finishing the argument was gone.

* * * * * *

The two teams will try it again tomorrow, Saturday night, at 6.30 o'clock and should stage a real battle as the Westclox fight for the game that will mean the championship and Generals strive just as valiantly for a victory that will keep them in the running. Generals had a full lineup last night for the first time in the series with Norma Strickland back into action after being hurt last week and they will have the whole battle array ready for Saturday night's important tilt. Bea McDowell started to do the firing for the Generals last night and the Millbrook girl will likely be the choice again tomorrow night while Manager Pat Hayden of Westclox will undoubtedly start Marg Watson. The winner of the series is billed to play the Toronto winners in the provincial playdowns Wednesday and a win for Generals tomorrow night would make another game necessary Monday night. Interest in the series is high and there will be a real crowd out Saturday to see the rivals tangle.

A Great Opportunity

The visit of outstanding pros like Gordie Brydson, Bill Kerr, Bob Gray and Les Franks to Peterborough Sunday will provide a great opportunity for local folk to see how golf should be played. These clever performers, among the best in the country will play a round Sunday afternoon as part of the Milk for Britain Fund tourney, and undoubtedly hundreds of spectators will watch the talented shot-makers negotiate the Kawartha course. It should be a real attraction for Peterborough people and it is expected many of them will take advantage of the opportunity to see golf played by experts and at the same time help a most deserving fund. The tourney, the fine prizes for which are on display in the window of Elliott's drug store, will bring out a field of over one hundred competitors with numerous entries from around the district added to large quotas from the Kawartha and Peterborough clubs. There will also be many entries in the ladies' competition which starts at the Peterborough course at 9.30 o'clock Sunday morning.

The O.A.S.A. has issued strict orders to all clubs participating in provincial playdowns that there shall be no waste motion in connection with games in the provincial series. Says the latest bulletin: "Everyone is aware of the unusual situation which prevails this year which necessitates the utmost economy in all activities, particularly the gasoline and time restrictions and the fact that many men are engaged in war work, with loss of time being a series setback to Canada's war effort. In view of this every secretary and manager of clubs participating in the O.A.S.A. playdowns is urged to save expenses. Squabbling over trivialities, unnecessary protests, and delaying of games etc., must be done away with so that the necessity of replaying games will be eliminated as far as possible." To speed matters up the association will authorize Sunday games where Sunday playing is permitted and will also authorize games under the lights in places where the necessary illumination is available.

Boston Red Sox have apparently found some of their old power but their present drive seems to be too late to give the Yanks much cause for alarm unless the McCarthy machine comes apart at the seams. The Sox grabbed off another game from the leaders yesterday, winning 7 to 4, to make the record in the series just completed three victories as against one loss, a net gain of two games. However the Yanks still have a 10½ game margin. The Red Sox won yesterday's argument on the strength of a six-hit barrage in the fifth, topped by Jim Tabor's third homer in two days, that netted six runs and drove the Yanks' starting pitcher Marvin Breuer to the showers. Bill Butland was the winning Boston pitcher but Ingersoll's Lefty Judd had to go to the rescue in the seventh to quell a threatening Yank uprising. The win leaves Boston five full games ahead of the third place Cleveland Indians who have only half a game margin over the Brownies.

In the National League last night the Brooklyn Dodgers stretched their lead over the second-place Cards to seven games by defeating the Giants 2 to 1 in a decidedly close ball game. The Bums got some help in scoring their two runs when Babe Young misjudged a fly ball that went for a triple. The only counter registered by the Giants was a homer by Johnny Mize. Incidentally that was the only hit allowed by Whit Wyatt who pitched one of his best games of the year to pick up his 15th victory. In the only other National League game the Cincinnati Reds who have been faltering badly took a 5 to 3 win over the Pittsburg Pirates.

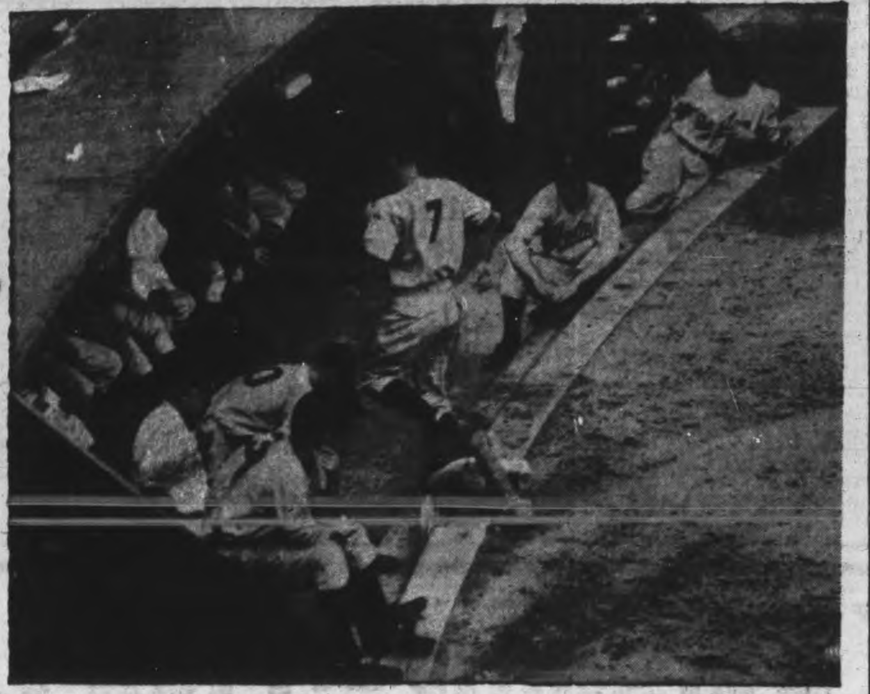
WHIT WYATT FLINGS A ONE-HITTER AGAINST NEW YORK GIANTS

Gets Warm Reception?



Eddie Miller (No. 7), Boston Braves' shortstop, gets a warm reception from teammates as he trots into the dugout after poling a home run with one man aboard. It was the fourth inning of a New York-Boston game at the Polo Grounds, and the Giants were leading at the time, 6-0. The homer accounted for the Braves' only runs. Carl Hubbell of the Giants won his eighth straight game, 10-2.

Homer By Mize Spoils Hopes; Reds Nip Pirates

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Brooklyn Dodgers still have a little matter to settle with St. Louis Cardinals before they will be ready for the World Series, but their ace right-hander, Whitlow Wyatt, is as fully prepared for the October classic today as he can ever hope to be.

Wyatt, who never has pitched a no-hit game in his dozen years around the major leagues, came as close as possible without actually achieving it yesterday when he let New York Giants down with one blow was the Dodgers triumphed, 2-1 in a twilight-arc light game.

His only mistake was in trying to throw a fast one past big John Mize, who demonstrated that he has recovered from a recent injury by parking the ball behind the centre field score board for his 20th home run.

In compiling his 15th victory against only four defeats, Wyatt fanned six, walked none, aside from Mize, didn't allow a man to get on base except in the fourth when Mickey Witek reached first on an error and Mel Ott was hit by a pitched ball.

The victory, opening an important four-game series boosted the Dodgers National League lead to seven games over the Cardinals, who were idle.

Reds End Losing Streak.

In the only other National League game, Cincinnati Reds snapped a six-game losing streak and crept up on the third-place Giants by turning back Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-3.

Johnny Vander Meer pitched six-hit ball for his 14th win and missed a shutout when Vince DiMaggio blasted a three-run homer in the eighth.

Boston Red Sox, refusing to concede the American League flag to New York's front-running defending champs, walloped the Yankees, 7-4, and rounded out a four-game series with three triumphs.

Jim Tabor, who hit a pair of two-run homers in leading the Sox to victory the previous day, homered with two mates aboard yesterday to climax a six-run outburst in the fifth inning. The Red Sox chopped another full game off the Yankee lead but they still trail by 10½ lengths.

At the other end of the junior circuit, the Philadelphia Athletics took a doubleheader in their cellar series with the Washington Senators.

A 17-hit attack on three Washington pitchers gave the Athletics the opener, 9-2 and sent back Buck Newsom to his 16th defeat as Russ Christopher hurled seven-hit ball for Philadelphia.

The nightcap went 12 innings before the A's triumphed, 6-1, by routing Walt Masterson with a five-hit uprising that produced five runs with the help of a sacrafice, a walk, a wild pitch and two Washington errors.

Chicago White Sox came from behind with six runs in the fifth inning to stop the St. Louis Browns, 8-5, in a night game. Johnny Humphries hurled seven-hit ball for the Sox.

Twin Bird Punch Clips Toronto Leafs By 6-2 and 10-9

By The Associated Press

Sparked by the timely hitting of William (Bud) Rabe, 21-year-old outfielder, Baltimore came through with a double victory over Toronto Leafs at Baltimore last night. Rabe, bought from Rochester Red Wings this year, slammed out two home runs and two singles, and drove in seven runs.

The twin killings, by scores of 6-2 and 10-9, left the Birds one percentage point behind the sixth-place Leafs in the International League standings.
